CHRONOLOGICAL EVENTS.

Fulton's first steamboat trip made in 1807.

JOTTINGS.

—Golden October to-day.

—The Board of Freeholders meet to-morrow.

—Rev. Dr. Yerkes of this city says that it's a sign that a man's nose needs repairing when it is red.

—Several North Plainfield bicyclists are entered for the bicycle race at the Somerville fair to-day.

—The Democratic county convention will be held on Tuesday, October 21, probably at the court house, Elizabeth.

—Plainfield members of Columbia College will again take hold of satchel and book on Monday, when the Fall term begins.

—A reporter from The Dial, a new New York afternoon daily, was in town this morning looking up the murder rumors that were current in town yesterday.

—The Ranger Band attended the Turn Verein Fair in a body, last evening, and thereby added to the fun of the occasion. Look for the whip, cane and diamond ring is very lively.

—There is some doubt about the H. I. M.'s parading Friday night. They have got their "filled shirts," but they haven't got their strut down fine enough yet. It is claimed that they are the best fixed men in town—financially, and otherwise.

—President Arthur passed through this city a few days ago returning to the country seat of Secretary Frelinghuysen, and his seldom attention to one of the handsome ladies in that vicinity has let loose the gossip that it is to be a sure thing.

—Efforts are being made to have President French of the Reform Club make an address taking up some entirely new points on the temperance question, and attack the liquor dealers side of the issue as given by the Chicago Herald and copied in THE NEWS.

—How things change: It is said that there are Plainfield Democrats who were formerly Republicans, and vice-versa. But what of that. Was not Blaine once known as an Independent Republican, when Roscoe Conkling was a stalwart! Now their positions are really reversed whatever they may be nominally. Conkling is only a nominal stalwart. He holds aloof, because the party choice was not his.

—Plainfield is made famous by its Temperance Reform Club, says Rev. Mr. Raymond of this city, who was frequently questioned about it while on his vacation, in New York State, as far as Albany. But Newark is starting a movement that differs somewhat from that in this city. Plainfield objects to whiskey and intoxicating beverages generally. Newark takes them all in, but a club of ladies has been found who draw the line against the use of tobacco, vowing not to kiss a man who uses the weed. Well, kissing is very naughty anyhow—naughty but nice, a silhouette says.

—Commuters from this city during the recent very dry weather, occasionally caught in their eyes dust. This is a remedy. Remain quiet awhile as the tears may wash the bit of dust away; the flow of tears may be prompted by attempting to open the eye. Blowing the nose violently assists the operation. The head of a pin, covered with the end of a pocket handkerchief, and moistened with saliva, may be moved about between the eyelid, and will detach the intruder if not too firmly fixed. Another plan is to get a fellow traveler to raise the eyelid, with his fingers, and then gently wipe the red mucous membranes with a moistened pocket handkerchief, or remove the foreign body if he can see it. A little piece of paper twisted to a point is useful. A drop of olive oil introduced into the eye will often allay a pain and intolerance of light produced by a fine irritant, as sand.

No Bolters in Our Tracks.

The report that the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company had given notice to a default on the payment of the Central of New Jersey car trust bonds was denied yesterday. The amount due on December 1 is $60,000. It is said at the Jersey Central offices in New York that no notice of default had been received. If the Reading proposed to extend the bonds there was no doubt that the extension could readily be made. The bonds were amply secured and owners would be glad to receive six per cent. on their money. It was learned later that the Reading proposes a plan of extension, but all bondholders who decline to accept it will be paid.

GREAT EXCITEMENT!

[Special to The News.]

ELIZABETH, Oct. 1.—The delegates to the Third District Democratic Congressional Convention began to arrive in this city early this morning. Library Hall had been selected as the place for holding the Convention, but it was found, at the last moment, that it could not be obtained, and the delegates made the court house their rendezvous.

The Union County caucus was held at 9:30 o'clock in the grand jury room. Thomas Butts, of Elizabeth, was chosen chairman, and George R. Sibley, of Elizabeth, secretary. An informal ballot for choice of candidates gave McMahon, of Rahway, twenty-nine, Martine, of Fanwood, eleven, Hough, of Rahway, six, Chapman four. A motion to make the vote unanimous was carried.

The Monmouth county caucus was held in the morning, and elected John T. Haight, of Colt's Neck, as chairman, and Frederick Parker, son of ex-Governor Parker, of Freehold, Secretary. An informal ballot for choice of candidates gave H. B. Kinmouth, of Asbury Park, thirty-eight and Jacob A. Geissenhainer, of Freehold, thirty-three.

The Middlesex County caucus met in the court room, and elected Mayor William S. Stover, of New Brunswick, chairman, and Peter Edger, of Woodbridge, and John Harp, of New Brunswick, secretaries. No vote for choice of candidates was taken.

The convention was called to meet at twelve o'clock, but it was nearly one before some of the delegates gathered in the court room, and a motion was made to hurry up the absentios who were hobnobbing outside.

The convention was finally called to order shortly after one by Dr. Patterson, of Monmouth, the chairman of the last convention. Judge Louis F. Wadsworth, of Plainfield, was chosen temporary chairman and was greeted with applause when he took the chair. Judge Wadsworth made an eloquent address thanking the convention for the honor conferred.

Secretaries were chosen as follows: Mr. Edger, of Middlesex, G. R. Sibley, of Union, W. S. Throckmorton, of Monmouth.

Vice Presidents were as follows: L. L. Appleby, of Middlesex, Pitney Curtiss, of Monmouth, S. Philips Savage, of Union.

COMMITTEES.

Committees were appointed as follows:

On Credentials: Manning Freeman, of Middlesex, J. V. N. Willis, of Monmouth Bernard Rogers, of Union.

On organization: Fred Weigel of Middlesex, Peter Farmo of Monmouth, R. M. Stover, of Union.

On rules: A. E. Gordon of Middlesex, A. H. H. Patterson, of Monmouth, William Ackerson, of Union.

On Resolutions: Oliver Kelly, of Middlesex, James Stace, of Monmouth, Judge Nathan Harper, of Union.

A motion that the committees retire and report to the convention as soon as possible was carried.

A motion to take a recess of thirty minutes to enable the Middlesex men to hold a caucus was carried.

Notwithstanding the determination of the Union county caucus to present the name of McMahon of Rahway as their candidate, a number of Union men will not vote for him. In this event delegates from Monmouth and Middlesex who are in favor of a Union county man, provided one can be found upon whom the entire delegation will unite, will vote for a home man.

McMahon is not a very well known man, but has lately come into notice by being president of a Cleveland and Hendricks club and contributing liberally to the campaign fund.

ELIZABETH, 4 p. m.

Ex-Judge Green, of Elizabeth, nominated on second ballot. McMahon once bolt, bold convention and accepts McMahon. McMahon appears and accepts.

A Hoboken Club Treat.

One of the privileged few entering the vestibule of the Hoboken Club building last evening heard a volume of music—music in every sense of the word—emanating from a chorus of rich, mellow and highly cultured male and female voices rehearsing the dramatic cantata, "Lost and Saved." The musical qualities of the building are no less marvelously fine, and even a bell-like ring to the female voices, which made a hearer feel like passing around the club for more, something after the manner of Oliver Twist.

Entering the hall, one beheld a number of Plainfield's best ladies, and men conspicuous in musical and refined circles, every one in solo, duo, trio, quartette or chorus, a treat to listen to, all local talent, of which Plainfield may feel proud. They are under the direction of Dr. Utter a well-known musical ability of high order. The cantata is a simple temperance story, and one captivates the audience from the outset, and we predict that with such talent as evinced last evening it will prove one of the grandest successes in this line ever in Plainfield.

Further Developments in the Cow Case.

The hearing of John Brown and James Harding for assaulting Patrick Bergen while he was driving Mrs. Burke's cows to the pound came up before Justice Nash last night. Brown was acquitted of the charge, but Harding was held in two hundred dollars bail to await the action of the grand jury.

A further development in the case is found in the complaint made before Justice Nodyne by James Harding. Harding avers that Bergen was guilty of cruelty to animals in chasing Mrs. Burke's cows with a club about three feet long and about two inches in diameter. The fine in a case of this kind can be put as high as one hundred dollars.

The public, having now been treated to four suits arising from cows trespassing upon a neighbor's land, now impatiently await the result. Perhaps the cows might be induced to suit their owners for not providing them with proper pasture.

The Plaza of the Bicycle Club.

The Plainfield Bicycle Club is a flourishing institution now numbering nearly thirty members. It is the intention of the club to secure rooms above the Music Hall entrance and have permanent quarters fitted up somefortably which will be ready for next evening for the convenience of the members and for the reception of visiting clubs.

On Monday evening the club took a run to Scotch Plains. Last evening they were to go to New Brooklyn, but the weather was unfavorable. On Friday evening they are to take in the quiet beauties of New Market, and return home by a roundabout way. The week's runs will receive a good finish on Saturday evening, when the club will make a trip to New Brunswick.

Death from a Lockjaw.

The death of Mr. John Hagins, the proprietor of the flourishing Mansion House, from lockjaw, calls to mind a remedy given some months ago in the Scientific American. It is as follows:

Let any one who has an attack of lockjaw, take a small quantity of turpentine, warm it, and pour it on the wound, no matter where the wound is, and relief will follow in less than a minute. Nothing else has been applied to a severe cut or bruise than cold turpentine; it will give certain relief almost instantly. Turpentine is also a certain remedy for croup. Saturate a piece of flannel with it and place the flannel on the throat and chest, and in a few cases three or four drops on a lump of sugar may be taken inwardly. Every family should have a bottle on hand.

A Rahway Weather Prophet.

Judge David J. Bunn, of Rahway, who has been quite successful correctly as to the weather, says that the "three months succeeding the time the sun crossed the line, this season, there will be very little rainfall, and the Fall will be open, and moderately warm. Instead of an equinoctial rain storm, it will be a wind storm. Strong winds are likely to prevail."—Rahway Advocate.

Runaway.

A team belonging to Peter Ricketts, attached to a trunk load of freight being unloaded in front of a house on Jackson avenue, near Somerset street about ten o'clock this morning, broke away in a run up Jackson avenue, towards Watchung avenue, colliding with fences and carrying away gates at a lively rate, until some workmen on a new building succeeded in stopping them.

Personal.

Mrs. N. T. Van Zant and Mrs. Hartwicke of Newark, made a visit to friends in this city yesterday.

Mr. Cassius Clay Andrews, some time a resident of this city, has taken a position in the Newark Business College as teacher of shorthand.

Miss Ida Small, who has been visiting during the Summer friends in Port Jervis, N. Y., has returned to town.

Prof. Lindsley, of North avenue, has moved his business to his residence on East Front street, above Netherwood avenue.

—A Committee from the Board of Freeholders of Union and Somerset Counties, met at Laing's Hotel, in this city, yesterday afternoon, and decided to build a bridge over Farragut avenue, plans of which have been prepared and adopted.

—There will be a Fair and Lawn Party at the residence of Mr. L. W. Serrell, to-morrow afternoon and evening for the benefit of the Children's Home.

—The's popular ice cream garden has been closed for the season. Mr. Tice contemplates making improvements greatly enhancing the attractiveness thereof for the forthcoming season.

Four cows and a horse belonging to Michael Kennedy, a milkman, were burned to death in a barn in Perry street, Newark, yesterday.

The Recreation Man in Plainfield.

As well as the best amusement and others are invited to call on R. J. Sharp, Front opposite Park avenue, and get free a trial bottle of Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs, a remedy that is daily receiving endorsements and is guaranteed to cure and relieve all Chronic and Acute Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, and Consumption. Price 50 cents and one dollar.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1884.

THE following definitions of a thief and a liar are given by the Arkansaw Traveler: Er thief is de man whut acks de lie, an er liar de man whut thinks de theft.

THE number of scandals in which clergymen of the Church of England have been mixed up is sadly on the increase, and the World sums up the situation by the declaration that, whereas the fool of the family was formerly shunted into the army, he now shuffles into the church.

NOTHWITHSTANDING the formidable economic and meteorological objections that have been advanced against the practicability or utility of any such scheme, Mr. Edwin Lowe has again advocated the firing of cannon and the use of explosives for bringing about an increased rainfall in New South Wales.

THE hunters of literary curiosities have scanned the last edition of Tennyson to discover whether the peerage suggested any change in the phraseology, and have been rewarded by finding that in "Clara Vere de Vere" the grand old gardener Adam is transformed into the gardener Adam simply, presumably with a view to sparing Mr. Gladstone's susceptibilities.

BELVA Lockwood's maiden speech is awaited with interest.

ONE industrious family of three, father, mother and daughter, managed to make $4.16 per week last year in a nail and rivet factory in Birmingham, England. The girl was one of 16,000 girls who work in Birmingham for starvation wages. Birmingham is one of the largest manufacturing cities in free trade England. Yet there are people in this country who want to abolish the living wages of protection and, introduce the starvation wages of free trade.

IT is said Belva Lockwood wants a conference of all the presidential candidates, in order that the issues may be talked over and the sharp corners of the campaign be rounded off. We knew Belva didn't intend being a "first factor in this campaign. "Rare old Ben" would probably be the only one at the conference who would dare sulking over the loss of Belva's, and how soon she would set him up with a rap of the gavel which she would yield as caller of the meeting. But Belva's only thirty-two years old, it is said. She will have to wait.

AND now a prominent American journalist residing in London has eloped with the handsome wife of an English gentleman. The names are not given. Detectives are on their track, but have not succeeded in tracing them for. If this elopement mania continues the cow pretty soon will not only jump over the moon but run away with the heavenly cat.

ST. JOHN ACCEPTS.

His Formal Letter Giving a Review of His Principles.

He Claims that the Old Parties and the Old Issues are Dead—Moral Welfare must now be Considered.

OLATHE, KAN., Oct. 1.—The following is ex-Gov. St. John's letter, accepting the Prohibition nomination for the presidency:

In formally accepting the nomination for president tendered me by the National Prohibition convention at Pittsburg July 31, I take the opportunity to state that while the honor was entirely unsought, nor do I accept it now, yet it is greatly appreciated, bestowed as it was by a convention composed of delegates who, in point of moral worth and ability, were fully equal, if not superior, to any political convention that ever assembled in this country. The war for the Union is over; the rebellion has been crushed; Lincoln, slavery abolished; old issues have passed away, and with them should go all prejudices and sectional strife. To-day the prosperity of the north and south is dependent largely upon friendly relations between the same flag, every section of our country acknowledging allegiance to the same government. Hence it is a time of peace when our people could better afford to, and when it was more important that they should stop and think, than now. With the manufacturies shutting down, banks breaking, merchants failing, securities unsalable, western wheat selling at the same market for forty cents per bushel and hundreds of thousands of industrious Americans and laboring men who are willing to work, but can get nothing to do, it seems to me that the time has come for the people, who are the source of all political power, to call a halt and stop and think, for there must be a reason for this condition of things. The old political issues of the two parties can stand after dealing out the full measure of personal abuse and vilification that each seems to think the other merits, is manufactured for the benefit of the lucky few, who, by reason of the control of the means of business, has been compelled to make an assignment for the benefit of his creditors, will not find relief in the agitation of that question, but when all the wrongs farmers become very enthusiastic over the discussion, with his wheat not worth as much in the market as the cost of raising it.

The amount received by the government for duties on imports is less than $200,000,000 annually. There are about 175,000 dealers in intoxicating liquors in the United States, each of whom pays to our government $25, in consideration of which sum they are permitted to carry on their business for the term of twelve months. When we add to this the amount paid by the distillers, brewers and wholesale dealers, we find that the interest on the investment of the manufacturers and sale of intoxicating liquors is about $50,000,000 annually.

This traffic, sanctioned as it is by the laws of our country, robs the people, at a low estimate, $1,000,000,000 a year, not to speak of the destroyed homes, debauched manhood, poverty, heart aches, crime and corruption it produces. This disgraceful state should be suppressed, and the enormous sum of money, that under the present system is worse than thrown away, saved to the people, and thus a protection would be given to the industries of this country that would enable us successfully to throw our doors open to the commerce of the world.

Republicans and Democratic parties favor a continuance of the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage, while the Prohibition party declares that this same shall be forever suppressed. Thus, an issue is presented to the people in which is involved the welfare of every home and state in the land. It is not a mere local issue either, but it is a national as well as a practical question, upon which a large and intelligent public will be called upon to act and vote, and they will not be found halting between two opinions touching this matter, but will weigh, study and vote against this evil until it is driven from our land, never to return.

The government is simply the reflex of the individual composing it. If we want an honest, sober government, we must have an honest, sober people. But we can never have an honest, sober people so long as the government sanctions that which makes its citizens dishonest, drunken and corrupt.

The declaration of principles, which I have indorsed, and which is the platform of the Prohibition party, is entitled to the thoughtful consideration and earnest support of all good citizens, without regard to locality or former political affiliations.

Our country needs an administration that will rise above mere partisan considerations, and in the selection of public officials make honesty, integrity and efficiency the sole service to party, the best. It should be conducted not in the interest of any particular class, but for the good of all, and in the best of the whole people. To accomplish this all good citizens should promptly step to the front and be counted for the right. This is not the time for doing so. The election will never win, and surely never deserve a victory.

Then let us look to God for His guidance, and fearlessly and faithfully do our whole duty, never doubting that He will take care of the results.

Blaine Among the Buckeyes.

DAYTON, Oct. 1.—Mr. Blaine left Toledo at 10 o'clock, and, after a pleasant run of forty minutes, reached Bellefontaine, Gov. Foster, was reached. Twenty-five hundred persons greeted the presidential candidate, and he made a brief, pointed talk. The party arrived at Tiffin at 12:45. A crowd of 8,000 people were assembled. Mr. Blaine was conducted to a decorated stand and spoke briefly. Hon. Emory Storrs, of Chicago, delivered a humorous five-minute speech, and the train moved on. Carey was the next stop, where a large crowd was gathered. Several thousand persons cheered and a salute was fired. Mr. Blaine spoke from the platform. A five-minute story was made in earnest. Twenty-five hundred people, including a great many ladies, had congregated. Mr. Blaine simply thanked the people for their kind reception and the train moved on. At Fostoria he arrived at Kenton at 1:35. Cannon were fired, the crowd cheered, and bands played while the train was in motion. Mr. Blaine was taken to a platform near the depot, where he was presented by Col. T. M. Strong to the people. His speech was brief and to the point. He said he was glad to be allowed at a dozen points the principal case before Bellefontaine, Urbana and Springfield. Brief speeches were made at all, and when Mr. Blaine arrived at Dayton he was greatly fatigued. He was accorded a grand reception by the Dayton people, and addressed a large meeting. There were a number of other prominent speakers.

WORK OF FIRE BUGS.

Fortunes Amassed by the Slaves of the Insurance's Torch.

A Public Meeting Held to Take Preventive Measures—Special Police Appointed—Prayers Offered on Sunday.

READING, Pa., Oct. 1.—For the past few weeks fires have occurred nearly every day in the large forest covering the Blue mountains in Berks county, which was of extensive growth. The property destroyed was owned by the farmers in the vicinity, and by the Reading stockholders. The losses will aggregate some $75,000, not one-third of which is covered by insurance. The police authorities were unable to trace the incendiaries, but it has been discovered that there is a large gang of men composed of the most worthless characters, who have formed a secret society for the purpose of robbery and lucre. The victims are nearly all farmers who have their fine barns and year's crops destroyed, and they are now alarmed that they do not consider their lives or property safe. In several of the counties meetings have been held to devise some means of protection and strong resolutions were adopted.

In the northern part of Lebanon county three fire insurance companies have been organized, and many more are talked of. They have received their charters and the farmers in that neighborhood will be their own fire companies. Within the last week fires have occurred within the last twenty-four hours by a number of the supposed gang, the burning of the barn of Henry K. Shelly, about four miles west of Mount Aetna, which was destroyed together with its contents, consisting of 600 bushels of wheat, 800 of oats, a lot of corn, four horses, and all the implements used in farming implements, causing a loss of $6,000. Mr. Daughtitch, who lived on the farm, ran into the stable to save his property and was nearly suffocated by the work of an incendiary. While the destruction was going on the indignation among the farmers was high, and threats were loudly made that should the burning of the barn of Henry G. Felix, in Bucking-ham township, Bucks county, which was entirely destroyed, involving a loss of $6,000.

In this case two arrests were made, and the prisoners were quickly lodged in jail. Jacob Kimmel, of Mount Aetna, and Harry Martin, adjoining, near Reidenbach's store. Lancaster county, were also totally destroyed with many of their contents and those of the adjoining buildings. Loss, $6,000. At an early hour in the morning the large twin barn of John R. Hester, in Lower Pottsgrove township, Montgomery county, was consumed by fire, including its contents, which consisted of a large lot of farming implements, 800 bushels of wheat and forty-five tons of hay. The loss is about $5,000; partly covered by insurance. At Allentown, John McGuire and James McGee were bound over to answer the charge of being connected with the incendiary fire there, the town having not less than eight fires in one week, all of suspicious origin. Two strangers, who have been loafing about the town, sleeping in stables, and too lazy to work. They are supposed to belong to the gang.

At a meeting held in the court house, city hall and passed a resolution recommending the appointment of a committee of vigilance in each of the cities where the fires have occurred. This was adopted, and thirty special policemen have been sworn in.

A Political Wheelbarrow.

BOSTON, Oct. 1.—Joshua Hobart, of Somerville, has made a novel election wager with J. E. Hill, of Roxbury. Mr. Hobart, who is a prominent Democrat, says Cleveland and Mr. Hill Blaine; and it is agreed that the loser shall wheel the other from Union Square, Somerville, to State street, Boston. In 1876 Mr. Hobart paid an election bet by wheeling a barrel of oysters, weighing 400 pounds, from Providence to Boston, in twenty-four hours, and Frederick Lodi, of Somerville, has also paid a bet with A. Caswell, by wheeling a barrel of apples, weighing 205 pounds, from Bear Lexington to Union Square, Somerville, in one hour and thirty-eight minutes. The wheelbarrow used on both these occasions, known as the old Democratic wheelbarrow of 1864, will be used in paying the bet now pending. In 1878 D. W. E. Stone, editor of The Somerville Truth, wheeled the same barrow containing a barrel of apples from Union Square, Somerville, to the Quincy house, Boston.

A. O. H. in Session.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—The annual meeting of the Ancient Order of Hibernians of the state of New York, which was held at Emmet hall, was well attended. Among those present were John Dolan, national delegate; William Sheridan, national secretary; Edward Dowdall, state delegate; Lawrence Kelly, international delegate; Thomas Smith, state treasurer; Patrick Hayes, Anthony E. Timony, Laurence Langan and J. Burbridge, National delegate Nolan made an address at the meeting in regard to the recent course in which he congratulated the order upon its prosperous condition and upon the harmony which prevails among its members. He condemned the action of certain members of the order in dabbling in politics this fall, and declared that the order should not in any manner be called upon to sanction campaign or figure in it in any way, and that the society could not be ruled by any one man in the United States.

Racing at Narragansett.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 1.—The October meeting of the Narragansett Park Association began. The first event was an effort of Maxey Cobb to beat his record of 2:15, John Murphy holding the ribbons accompanied by Johnny Murphy on the pacer. The second quarter was made in :33, half in 1:04½, three quarters in 1:36 and mile in 2:13½, giving Maxey the title of "King of Shellbacks." Mr. Cobbsell, his owner, will refuse a record of $40,000 for the stallion but would not take $100,000. The three minute class, purse $200, seven starters. It was won by Almont Eagle in three straight heats. Time, 2:28, 2:28¼, 2:29¼, purse $400, four starters, was won by Lizzie B., Stephen G. second; best time, 2:23½, by the latter; winner's best time 2:21½.

Seized for a Large Amount.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 1.—The stock of Henry McCollum & Co., carpet dealers, was seized by the sheriff this afternoon on attachments in the sums of $60,000, and executions aggregating $70,000, which will probably be increased, as all creditors have not put suits in yet.

GENERAL NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD.

Most Important Events of Recent Occurrence Briefly Told.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—It may be accepted as definitely settled that Secretary Gresham will retire from the cabinet and accept the position of United States circuit judge. Postmaster General Hatton, it is said, will be the president's choice upon whom to confer the treasury portfolio, and rumors will remain in abeyance until the arrival of Secretary Folger. There is no question of Mr. Morton's eligibility for appointment as secretary of the treasury except in the minds of those who are opposed to his appointment on political grounds. Mr. Morton is the senior member of a banking house which has no connection, and to be sent eligible for the treasury portfolio he must absolutely retire therefrom. Consequently should the president offer to appoint him to the cabinet should Mr. Blaine be elected, and that this appointment meets the approval of the national committee.

IN FEAR OF DYNAMITE.

The Duke of Cambridge to Lord Spencer—Sensible Talk.

LONDON, Oct. 1.—The object of the visit of the Duke of Cambridge to Ireland is said to be purely military. The appointment on the staff of Sir George's channel is not in the capacity of a royal duke, but of the commander-in-chief of the Irish forces. He comes to inspect the troops in the principal garrison towns, and has set about his work in a thoroughly businesslike way. The authorities at Dublin castle, however, are in a fearful state of excitement. The recent dynamite outrages is intensified by the advent of the duke. Lord Spencer has caused the most elaborate precautions to be taken for the duke's safety, and has only been laughed at for his pains. The duke ridicules the idea that he is in any personal danger, and has refused to be surrounded by a cordon of police. He has made a remark to a friend to whom he told a meeting of Irishmen that if he were shot down like last would gratified find another man to take his place. The duke is about to visit Cork, and the viceroy, mindful of his own unpleasant reception in the south of Ireland, urged that he should make his residence in the military barracks during his sojourn in that city. The duke replied that he had no doubt that the quarters at the barracks were very comfortable, but that the Imperial Club was rather more to his taste, and as he has accordingly engaged rooms for himself and suite at the famous hostelry on the South Mall.

Existing Council Proceedings.

HUDSON, N. J., Oct. 1.—The special committee of the common council appointed to investigate the charges made against Councilman Bethuel N. Crane, of attempting to influence legislation at Trenton in matters affecting the American District Telegraph company by offering them stock in the company, have reported that after hearing all the testimony submitted to them that the charges against Mr. Crane had been satisfactorily proven. At the session of the common council these were read and then Mayor Timken had previously sent a communication to the council calling attention to the alleged neglect of Street Commissioner Jeffrey to perform his duties. Mr. Jeffrey replied in a lengthy letter, which was presented to the council. He denies the charge, and asks for a prompt investigation. The paper was written in an extremely sarcastic and personal style. The mayor was present, and as the city clerk finished reading, he sprang up and demanded to have the street commissioner arrested. There was a great excitement for the time. Later the mayor went before the recorder and asked to have a warrant issued for slander, but the latter refused to do so.

Garrett's Immense Fortune.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 1.—The death of his wife, it is said, prevented Mr. John W. Garrett from completing his will, upon which he has been engaged for several years. He contributed liberally to the poor association and Young Men's Christian association. He also entertained the project of establishing an extensive free library in this city for years. A gentleman who was on intimate terms with Mr. Garrett said that he made the bulk of his fortune in 1874, when the famous Pennsylvania railroad corporation secured. Mr. Garrett bought heavily at the low rates. In a short time the stock rebounded to about $100. Garrett & Sons' fortune at present is reported Robert Garrett & Sons' is estimated at between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000.

Othello with a Hatchet.

BURLINGTON, Ia., Oct. 1.—George Williams, a negro, yesterday attacked his wife with a hatchet, inflicting five or six severe wounds on her head and face. The woman escaped down-stairs covered with blood. Williams then struck his little daughter, cutting one ear off and inflicting a wound on the floor. Thinking he had killed both women and child, Williams walked out on the street and was arrested. The woman's injuries may prove fatal. Jealousy was the motive for the deed.

Killed for Grape Stealing.

NEWPORT, Mich., Oct. 1.—Henry Hoffman, a wealthy farmer, living four miles west of here, caught a man stealing grapes in his garden and shot him, wounding his name he would shoot him. The man started to run and Hoffman fired, the ball taking effect in the fugitive's back. The wounded man died before reaching a neighbor. The doctor gives no hope for Hoffman's recovery.

H. and H. Receivers Appointed.

DETROIT, Oct. 1.—In the circuit court here two provisional receivers were appointed for the property of the Bankers' and Merchants' Telegraph company in this state and the Michigan Postal company was temporarily restrained from taking possession of its line from Detroit to Toledo.

A Village on Fire.

QUEBEC, Oct. 1.—From 1 o'clock until daylight fire raged unchecked in the village of Levis, opposite this city, and in Lauzon. The Catholic church and over twenty houses were in ashes before a sudden change of the wind saved the town from destruction. The loss is about $25,000.

Strikers Quit Their Posts.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1.—The two hundred strikers of E. D. Bullens & Co., who left work on Saturday, because of the action of the firm in discharging Richard Kelly, a member of the Knights of Labor, Illinois, will return to work. Kelly will be reinstated. The shoemakers are jubilant over their victory, and say they were determined not to yield here.

THE LAST ACT PLAYED.

John McCullough Has to Retire from the Stage.

America's Great Tragic Star a Victim of Paresis—His Engagements All Cancelled and His Company to Be Disbanded.

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—Hundreds of people were at their way to McVicker's theatre for the opening night of John McCullough's impersonation of the "Gladiator," only to find the doors locked and the theatre closed. Manager Brooks, McCullough's manager, and Price, his stage agent, were at hand. McVicker, for the purpose of saying that the engagement be cancelled. They had called on McCullough last night in the room of the latter, and in a few minutes it was decided to cancel all dates and send the company to New York. Notices were at once posted at the doors of the theatre announcing the fact to the public, newspapers and other agents. All this was done without a word to McCullough, and it was decided not to break the news to him until after his breakfast this morning. The rumor was current in the theatre that he was dangerously ill, and that everybody was sounding him. "They say I'm a dying man," he said, bitterly, "but I will show them that I am not." He then went to Lafayette and allowed himself to be put to bed. Many of his friends say that they saw him on the stage on Monday night in the Gladiator had the last look at John McCullough as an actor. Mr. Keene says that to have continued the season would have been to invite disaster to himself. He was not admitted by the attending physicians and a few intimate friends, although the latter only breathe it in a whisper, that he is suffering from progressive paralysis—the same affliction which has overtaken Mr. Storey, of The Chicago Times, and that the only hope for a successful treatment are rendered the more difficult by his long illness and his determination to follow indulgences which can only aggravate the complaint.

A Shot Down in the Print Trade.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Oct. 1.—The question of a shut down is still unsettled so far as the action of the mill owners in this city is concerned. Many of the mills were not represented at the conference. Those which were present are very reticent about the doings of the meeting. So far as learned no definite action was taken. It is stated, however, that all those present were in favor of closing down a fortnight from the 1st October, and that it was decided to ascertain the opinion of the treasurers who were not present before taking definite action. It is believed that the unionists favor the movement in the print cloth market a shut down within a short time is inevitable, and further delay will bring the shut down into cold weather, when the operatives can ill afford to be idle.

Constructing the Trade Mark Act.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Patent Commissioner Butterworth decided that the proper construction of the label and trade mark is to admit the subject matter of an application for a label shall be that which may be properly claimed as a label and not be merely subject matter for a trade mark. In another case he holds against the claim of a 17 years statute of limitations, saying plainly to applicants that if they do not push their applications with reasonable diligence they will be regarded as having abandoned them.

Newburyport's Quarter Millenial.

NEWBURYPORT, Mass., Oct. 1.—The Historical societies and people generally of old Newbury, voted to invite James Russell Lowell, who is a descendant of one of the old families, to deliver the oration and Joh. Greenleaf Whittier the poem at the Newburyport, Eng., will be invited to participate.

CRAZED BY TROUBLE.

Physician Takes Morphine to Avoid a Trial.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 1.—Dr. Abram Babcock was found suffering from an overdose of morphine in his cell in the county jail. It is supposed he attempted suicide. He was to have been examined as Canaseraga as a charge of having caused the death of Mrs. Martha J. Chaffee, by criminal practice. The examination had been postponed several times at Cazenovia, so the grand jury here issued an indictment for malpractice and manslaughter, and Babcock was arrested on a bench warrant and imprisoned in a court cell. At 6 o'clock it was discovered that he had taken morphine. His two daughters visited his cell and prevailed on the authorities to permit the removal of the supposed dying man. His temperature was then only one to the minute, and he was given up by the physicians, who left the building. He was taken home, where he lay till 9 o'clock, when he began to improve, and later regained consciousness. He has been charged with malpractice many times, and was indicted and tried a year ago for causing the death of Hattie Cain. He was acquitted, owing to the uncertainty of the medical evidence. He was indicted at the June session by the grand jury, and was to be tried at the October session for the same crime in the case of Hannah G. Nipe. It was thought he would surely be convicted. Physicians say his case is a wonderful one, as he lay without treatment for four hours with his respiration below the point at which life is believed possible. Dr. Babcock is 58 years old, and has two daughters who are nearly married. He will be held in $5,000 if he lives. His daughters insist that he did not intend suicide; that he was accustomed to the use of morphia, and in his nervous excitement took an overdose. It is said, however, that he has talked of suicide to his acquaintances for several weeks, and it is believed that he has been crazed by trouble.

THE TERRIBLE TORNADO.

A Scene of Death and Desolation. Tombstones Scattered.

BRADFORD, Pa., Oct. 1.—The tornado which passed over this region on last Sunday crossed the New York state line and struck the village of Shongo, eight miles south of Wellsville. The little town is to-day a scene of death, ruin and desolation. Two persons were killed outright, about twenty were badly injured and thirty buildings in the business part of the town were destroyed. The tornado came from the southwest and was evidently in the height when it struck Shongo. Those killed were Mrs. E. Pratt and W. Gardner. A son of Dr. J. A. Elliott was so terribly injured that he died. Miss Anna Lancaster is not expected to live. Among the others injured are Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Peet, Dr. A. A. Elliott, wife and three children: Austin Kemp, Duane Kemp and wife, Edward Pratt, husband of the lady killed; Edward Brundage, wife and two children, and Mrs. Asa Quasky, of North Bingham. The house and barn of H. S. Brundage, G. H. Brundage, Edward Brundage, Anna Lancaster, Leonhard Higgins, Willie Gardner, J. Williams, Dr. A. A. Elliott, Edgar Peet, Homer Drock, Austin Kemp, the Shongo school house, George Frazer's blacksmith shop, and J. Gee' store and barn were totally wrecked. Horses, pigs, cattle and poultry were killed and orchards destroyed. The tornado's belt was narrow and its duration only a moment or two, but there was a terrific and destructive force wrapped up in it. After ploughing a narrow area of wreckage among the forest trees over the hill to the southwest of the doomed village, the current settled down and crossing the valley struck Shongo, more than two-thirds of which is now a ruin to-day. So fierce was the wind current that in the beautiful village cemetery only two tombstones were left standing, all the rest being blown to the ground, and some were even carried out of the cemetery across the street.

Gould in the Corn Clique.

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—The Evening Mail says that F. H. Weare was the head broker of the September corn deal, and F. W. Stevens, ex-president of the Northwestern Telegraph company, the power behind the throne. Last night after the directors of the board of trade had fixed the marginal price of corn at 55 cents, Simmons, Weare and others of the clique held a conference to consider what should be done in case they were called upon for margins beyond their power to put up. The result was that Simmons wired Gould for funds, and the latter responded in an order upon the strongest bank in Chicago to allow the clique to draw on his account $2,500,000. As it happened, however, margins were not called. It is understood that the clique realized $1,500,000 net, and that the deal will be carried into October, on which dealers are already several million bushels short.

Evidently Determined to Die.

PORT WAYNE, Ind., Oct. 1.—Geo. A. Wilt, of the firm of A. Wilt & Son, lumber merchants, of Philadelphia, and a member of the Philadelphia board of trade, committed suicide while en route from Philadelphia to Muskegon, Mich., on the limited express on the Pennsylvania railroad. When near Lima, O., he stepped to the rear of the sleeping car in which he was riding, cut his throat from ear to ear and jumped from the train, which was running at a high rate of speed. He died almost instantly. His wife, who was on board the train, gives no cause for the act. The sleeping car officials say that Mr. Wilt appeared to be quite despondent for a number of hours previously.

Who Owns the Play?

BOSTON, Oct. 1.—The case of A. M. Palmer, of New York, vs. R. M. Field, of Boston, in which the complainant petitions for an injuction to restrain the respondent from continuing the production of "Nunky," the comedy now upon the boards of the Boston Museum, came up before Judge Colt in the United States circuit court. On recommendation of Judge Colt it was agreed between the counsel to make a careful comparsion of copies of the two plays—which has not yet been done—and the court adjourned till next Tuesday at 11 o'clock.

Admiral Wells Retired.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Oct. 1.—Rear Admiral Clarke H. Wells hauled down his flag as commandant of the Portsmouth navy yard at noon. A NEW PAVEMENT.

The undersigned has secured the exclusive agency for the sale of the

Diebold Patent Iron Stone,

whichfor elegance and durability, is unsurpassed, and in price will compare favorably with any other pavement now in use. It is the most beautiful pavement known for walks and yards, gutter stone, door tiling and street blocks. It is used to build fire and Burglar proof vaults, and for building purposes generally. These pavement blocks have many striking qualities—They show no perceptible wear, are non-conductors; repel ice and snow, as well as all kinds of moisture. When dampness accumulates on the ordinary brick, this material remains perfectly free from it. These Blocks are cast 7×7 the million Iron Slag and are the hardest of substances. Specimen exhibition at Warner's Fancy Store, opposite Stillman Meeks House. For further particulars call on or address

WATER IN EUROPE.

An Expensive Thing to Buy and Very Hard to Get.

Drinking Water Scarce and Water for Bathing Almost Out of the Question—Beer and Wine.

[Eli Perkins' Letter.]

The most expensive thing and the hardest thing to get in Europe is pure water. At the hotels even in Switzerland, where the ice-crowned Alps are in sight, they charge you for ice-water to drink. There is no water on the table, and at the stations they look at you in amazement if you ask for it. To protect myself I now carry a bottle of water strapped to my carpet-bag.

But if it is hard to get a glass of water in France, Switzerland, or Germany to drink, how much harder it is to get enough for a bath. The idea of water enough to bathe in all over sets them wild. At Dresden, the busiest art center of Europe, my wife wanted a hot bath. In America when a guest wants a hot bath he rings for the chambermaid, she turns on the hot water, takes it, and finds 25 cents charged for it in his bill. Well, I went down to the office and saw the clerk about it. His answer half dazed me. He talked of a bath, and went off to see the proprietor. The proprietor came puffing back to the office and asked me what I wanted.

"My wife wants a bath," I said.

"All over—bath all over?" he gasped.

"Yes, all over, in hot water."

"Hot water—hot water all over—mein Gott im Himmel!" he exclaimed throwing up his hands.

"Yes, a hot-water bath," I said; "tell the girl to turn on the hot and cold water."

"But there isn't any hot water," said the landlord; "we'll have to send a commissioner to the bath-house on Frederick strasse and he will be brought here."

"What!" I said in surprise, "send for a bath and hot water—send out for it?"

"Yes," he said, handing the commissioner a note, "it will be brought in a hour."

I went up to the room and awaited results. The hotel was in an uproar. It was a great event to take a bath in Dresden, and I evidently had the same trouble and surprise in Berlin and Cologne. After waiting an hour there was a great noise and clatter in the hall. Pretty soon a man and his wife came to the door. They were carrying something that looked like a coffin. It proved to be a long, black, rusty bath-tub. They placed it in the middle of the room. Then they went down two pairs of stairs to a wagon standing in front of the hotel and commenced bringing up hot water in large tin buckets. This water had been heated at the bath-house a half mile away. They soon had the bath-tub full, and my wife took a bath. Then the thing was carried down-stairs to the wagon again.

When I paid my bill I was charged 2 marks (75 cents) for the bath and 50 cents for the commissioner. You can never get a hot bath in Europe for less than 50 cents. It is 5 cents for a drink of ice-water even with your dinner in a Paris restaurant and from 2 to 5 cents for going into a Cabinet pour Dames or a Cabinet pour Hommes [water closet]. The other day I felt smoky and sticky on the train and looked around at the station for a chance to wash. The big Seine river was running the other side of the depot. An old woman in the wash-room had a pint of water in a tin basin and wanted half a franc for the use of it. I told her I was not going to destroy the water but would simply use it a moment. She was inexorable, and I paid the toll that customs always has to pay in barbarous Europe.

The Germans feed better than the French. Their food is more substantial. They are stronger than the French. German meals consist in strong coffee, bread and butter for breakfast, a table d'hote dinner at 1:30 of soup, roast mutton or beef, chicken or duck, and sweetmeats for dessert, and beer for supper in the afternoon. Berlin has thousands of beautiful beer-gardens, where rich and poor congregate nightly. Beer seems to be taking the place of wine all over Europe. In Dijon, the center of the Burgundy wine district, I saw nothing but beer in the gardens and cafes. In Wiesbaden, surrounded by the Rhine vineyards, it is all beer. The price of beer is usually 3 cents per pint glass, except in Munich, where it is 3 cents per quart mug. The Bavarian beer is always the best; and it is said to be very mild over Prussia.

I am pained to see dram-drinking increasing in Germany. The English bar with brandy and whisky begins to occupy conspicuous corners. Plain beer is too thin for the habitual drunkard. He can never drink enough to actually kill himself or bring on the delirium tremens. He can hardly get a red nose from beer. So, when he wants to paint his nose red, get the delirium tremens, and kill himself, he has to resort to the English bar, where the poison is stronger and its result more deadly.

Alexandria, Virginia.

[Ben: Perley Poore.]

Alexandria, which was within the original ten miles square which constituted the District of Columbia, made a vigorous attempt in 1846 to be restored to the jurisdiction of the state of Virginia. Being quite out of the atmosphere of Washington, she derived no advantage from her connection with the government of the United States, while her citizens were deprived of the privilege of voting for their rulers and of those thousand comforting, maternal attentions which are derivable from a state legislature, congress being so large and so dignified as to overlook so small a place as Alexandria. She could give no votes, while immense attention must be paid to the logrollers of the west and the south that had votes to bestow upon presidential and congressional candidates. Alexandria had petitioned the legislature of Virginia for her back, and the legislature, the spring present, made arrangements, so report has it, to receive her into the blissful embrace of divorce, to receive back her daughter, stripped of much that she possessed when she left her maternal home.

In the Language of Boston.

[New York Times.]

"Oh, Miss Elsie Silver remarked young Brownes to the Boston girl, "I had such a funny time last night."

"Is that so? I'm charmed to hear it. What did you do?"

"We sat around and drank champagne until my head swam, bah Jove!"

"And the next morning?"

"Well, to be sure, that really wasn't much upon them. I had to put cracked ice on my head to restrain it so it would fit in my hat."

"That's what they call a rebuttal ad absurdum in Boston."

Mr. Browne, who had never been in Boston, felt highly fatigued.

Origin of the Straw-berry Name.

[Isaak Walton's "Complete Angler."]

Indeed, my good scholar, we may say of angling as Dr. Boteler said of strawberries, "doubtless, God could have made a better berry, but doubtless, God never did," and so I say of angling, that the learned never did make a more calm, quiet, innocent recreation than angling.

STOPPED AT NIAGARA FALLS.

An Old Groaner's Appreciation of the Great Cataract.

[Joseph Free Town.]

A man, seemingly about 60 years of age was telling the people in the waiting-room at the Third Street depot the other day that he had been over to the Falls to see his son his sisters, and that on his way back he stopped off at Niagara Falls.

"That's a place I never saw," remarked a woman with a polka-bonnet.

"You didn't? Well you've missed the swellest sight on earth. I was just stunned."

"What is it like?" queried the woman.

"Well, there's a river, and the falls, and lots of hotels, and several Injuns, and the bridal veil, and lead only knows what else. If my old woman had been along she'd have wilted right down."

"There's water there, I suppose.

"Oh, heaps of it. It pours and thunders and roars and foams and tumps around in the wettest manner. You have bit on a shirt-button in a piece of pie, haven't you?"

"No, sir."

"Well, the feeling was about the same—kinder shivery. Why, the biggest man that ever lived ain't half as big as Niagara falls. Let him stand there and see that ere water tumbling over there like a cataract, and help but feel what a miserable hoss fly he is. You've fallen out'o' bed haven't you?"

"No, sir."

"Well, it's about the same thing, you wake up and find yourself on the floor, and you feel as if you had been stealin' sheep or rob bin' blind pears."

"What portion of the falls did you most admire?" she asked.

"The water, mum," he promptly replied. "If you'll just stand and tumps around in the wettest manner. You have bit on a shirt-button in a piece of pie,

CHRONOLOGICAL EVENTS.

Fulton's first steamboat trip made in 1807.

JOTTINGS.

—The clothing business is booming at French's, notwithstanding the unseasonable weather.

—The Republican parade announced for this evening has been postponed until Monday evening, by order of Rufus K. Cass, marshal.

—Rynier Gulick, of this city, who disappeared some days ago with several hundred dollars of his employer's money, is a son of Peter Gulick of Raritan.

—There was a small attendance at the Turn Verein Fair last evening on account of the threatening weather. To-night there will be dancing and a large crowd is expected.

—Mr. Dan Adams of North Plainfield and a member of the Plainfield Bicycle Club, won the bicycle race at the Somerville Fair yesterday, making the mile in 3.07 1-4. The prize was a gold medal.

—Mr. Thomas J. O'Neill who was recently night operator of the telegraph office here is now day manager of Lakewood, N. J. office just succeeded by Mr. P. J. McAndrews of White Haven, Pa.

A Horse Thief Caught.

Theodore Apgar was employed during the summer by John Bonner, to produce peddler, of West Second street. Yesterday Apgar made way with a horse and wagon together with a quantity of fish and bananas, belonging to Bonner, and disposed of the same in Rahway. Bonner estimated his loss at $138.50. He afterward recovered part of his property. Bonner made a complaint against Apgar before Justice Mash and the police have since kept their eyes open for traces of him. On Monday night Chief Dodd received information which led him to believe that Apgar was in the vicinity of the Junction. The chief accordingly went there on Tuesday, and captured his man. He was taken before Justice John C. Lick, of the Junction. Apgar being unable to furnish bail he was given into custody of the officer, who brought him to this city and took him before Justice Nodyne, who committed him to await the action of the grand jury.

Apgar has been convicted of burglary twice before, once for entering a store on Park avenue, and another time for stealing some harness belonging to one of the present councilmen. On his conviction he was given six months in the county jail.

A Bereaved Home.

Mrs. Harriet Sweeny occupies the first floor of a house on Short Second street, between Liberty street and Plainfield avenue. Mrs. Catherine Gerrity and Mrs. Johanna Clifford occupy the second floor. Last evening beer flowed freely in the house, and toward midnight the women became hilarious, and a sort of free fight was the result. At least some of them were quite bruised up about the face without any very clear idea of how they came to be so. As they became too noisy for the public good Officer McCue, whose beat is in the neighborhood, called Officer Kelly, and together they marched to get the three women to the station-house. This morning Justice Good fined Mrs. Gerrity five dollars and Mrs. Clifford to the county jail for thirty days and fined Mrs. Sweeny ten dollars and also sent her to the county jail for sixty days. Mrs. Sweeny is an old offender.

Temperance Dedication at Clinton.

A month ago two ladies of Clinton started to form a Women's Christian Temperance Union. They succeeded in getting a membership of fifty-one, and last evening they dedicated their rooms. A large audience was present, completely filling the hall and overflowing out to the sidewalk. A blessing was delivered by the Rev. W. E. Honeyman, of this city, and Mrs. Baldwin, of Newark, one of the officers of the State organization.

Personal.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Reiter and daughter, of New York, who have made Plainfield their place of summer residence, removed to New York yesterday, leaving behind a host of friends who will regret their departure.

Mr. and Mrs. George C. Martin and family of Brooklyn, have leased the Reiter residence on Crescent avenue for the winter, expecting to remove there next Saturday.

"Yes, sir," said Mrs. Partington speaking of one who feels himself to be the "first," "sir, dissolution has brought many a man to his grave."—Life.

THE DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

The Proceedings after the Nomination.

The Notter's Convention.

The Democratic Congressional convention re-assembled at two o'clock yesterday afternoon after having taken a recess of half an hour.

The committee on organization reported for permanent officers those who served as temporary officers. The report was adopted.

The committee on credentials reported that there was but one contest, that from the Matawan township, and submitted the names of those receiving the committee's sanction. The report was adopted, and the delegates admitted as reported.

The committee on rules made a report recommending that thirteen for candidates be taken by counties, and that the rules governing the House of Representatives should govern all other cases. The report was adopted.

The committee on resolutions reported a series of resolutions pledging the Democratic party to roll up a big majority. The resolutions were adopted.

Nominations were then called for. Monmouth County presented the names of H. S. Ilsmouth and Jacob A. Geisenheimer. Union County presented the names of William McMahon, of Rahway, and Robert S. Green, of Elizabeth, and seconded the nomination of Geisenheimer. Middlesex county seconded the nominations of McMahon and Green.

The first ballot gave McMahon 76, Ilsmouth 24, Geisenheimer 28, Green 81. Before the vote was announced changes were made which gave McMahon 84, the two coming from the weaker candidates. McMahon was then within four votes of a nomination. Another ballot was ordered.

Before any changes were announced the second ballot gave McMahon 116, Geisenheimer 1 and Green 37, giving McMahon the nomination by 28 majority. The wires were then manipulated with telling effect, and the changes were numerous and rapid. Middlesex began, and changed 21 from McMahon and one from Geisenheimer to Green. Monmouth then transferred 15 from McMahon to Green. This left the vote 90 for McMahon and 84 for Green. The McMahon delegates then howled themselves hoarse demanding the announcement of the result. A delegate from Union county then wanted the county's vote re-polled. This was loudly objected to by the McMahon men, who continued to demand the result. In the midst of the confusion a Monmouth county delegate slipped to the secretary's desk and changed 12 votes of Monmouth's delegation from McMahon to Green, thus giving Green the entire vote of the county. Green now had 96 votes and McMahon 78. The consternation depicted on the faces of Rahway's delegates at this juncture was a study. The vote was immediately announced, and Robt. S. Green was declared the nominee for Congress. The convention then adjourned amid much confusion.

Immediately after the adjournment the McMahon men decided to hold another convention, and a delegate mounted a seat, and howled the meeting to order.

"He's a Boiler man," shouted Editor Gordon of the New Brunswick Times, Miles Rose organ.

The Butlerite subsided, and another delegate, presumably a straightout, took his place. He likewise gave it up, and several more followed suit. At last the meeting quieted down enough to elect one of the regular convention's secretaries as secretary of the meeting.

About this time James R. Martine, of this city, was discovered on the platform beside the chairman. "Put him out," "Put him out," resounded over the hall. But Martine kept his seat. Three or four willing delegates bounded over the railing to the platform, and for a moment it looked as though Martine must go, but the chairman raised his voice for peace, and things quieted down. Martine then endeavored to make a speech, and succeeded in getting as far as "Fellow citizens" for the third or fourth time when he thought he had better subside, notwithstanding loud calls from some Green delegates in the rear of the room for a speech.

Just about this time that William McMahon, of Rahway, he declared the regular nominee of the Democratic Party for Congress from the Third New Jersey district. The motion was carried, and a committee appointed to wait upon McMahon and bring him before the convention.

In a short time McMahon appeared and was placed on a chair. McMahon said: It has been said that the nominee of this convention must be a Ross man. I am not a Ross man, have not been one and I never will be one. And he shook his head tremendously, and was cheered to the echo. He was about to descend when three or four hands bolstered him up again and whispered, "Accept," "Accept." McMahon nodded his head, and tried to slip down. But his followers wanted his acceptance, and he was bolstered up again, and a delegate shouted, "Do you accept?" "Yes," said McMahon, and he was allowed to depart in peace.

It was set down by the delegates that Green was a Ross man, and McMahon was not, and it would seem from McMahon's speech that this was one of the issues upon which the bolters would make their canvass.

That Shooting Affair.

The latest about that Roller Skating Rink shooting affair is this. It is said that a man was seen about eight o'clock Monday night trying to get into the shed where all the tools are kept. After awhile he whistled as if for cronies, and that a neighbor believing they intended to steal the tools and not like to the risk, he made it lively for the boys. Others did not come up, and at last Joe Sloppen heard the shot. It is further stated that the gang hurriedly got a hack and got away with the supposed wounded man. We cannot verify any of the stories but believe there is more in it than has been told. Reporters from New York papers were here and have written about the matter and left similar tales, as appears by various accounts found in the New York papers.

FOURTH CONGRESSIONAL CONVENTION.

J. N. Pidcock, of Hunterdon, the Nominee.

The Democrats of the Fourth District of this State met in convention at Lawton Tuesday to nominate a candidate for Representative in Congress. There was a pretty full representative from the four counties (Hunterdon, Somerset, Sussex and Warren) composing the district. A majority of the delegates arrived Monday night. Two of the candidates, Messrs. Pidcock and Harris, had rooms at the Cochran House, and received many calls. The indications were strongly favorable to Mr. Pidcock's nomination, as Sussex had instructed her delegates to vote for Hunterdon's first choice.

The convention was promptly at 12 m. Richard S. Kuhl of Flemington was chosen temporary chairman and B. F. Brakely of Warren was made secretary.

The committees named were then appointed:

On Organization—J. H. Clark, Hunterdon; Joseph W. Ballentine, Somerset; R. T. Johnson, Sussex.

On Credentials—George P. Sharpe, Hunterdon; J. G. Kenner, Somerset; W. J. Williams, Sussex; Hon. G. H. Beatty, Warren.

On Resolutions—W. H. Martin, Hunterdon; W. H. Alpaugh Somerset; J. S. Stover, Sussex; Charles Rittenhouse, Warren.

On Rules—Dr. Geo. T. Ribbis, Hunterdon; W. P. Sutphen, Somerset; J. J. Coon, Sussex; R. A. Cannon, Warren.

After the Committee on Resolutions reported, Hon. J. N. Pidcock of Hunterdon, Hon. Henry S. Beatty of Warren, and Mr. C. Bossenbury of Somerset, were nominated, and after a ballot in which Pidcock received 99 votes, Harris 82 and Bossebury 11, Pidcock was on motion declared the unanimous choice of the Convention.

The townships were represented thus:

Barnardsville—J. L. Anderson, Thomas Terrill VanCleaf Meeker.

Bedminster—Peter Apgar, O. H. Perry, W. C. Sutphen.

Branchburgh—Wm. W. Tunison.

Franklin—H. P. Cortelyou, Ayers Coddington, G. R. Pace.

Bridgewater—Joseph W. Ballentine, Wm. Rose, Jr. J. G. Kenner, A. A. Clark, Jno Parcell, E. L. Keenan, W. H. Alpaugh G. R. Geddis.

Hillsborough—M. W. Skully, E. B. Allen, J. V. Taylor.

Warren—Pesonden Stiles.

North Plainfield—David J. Carney, John Woodland.

Montgomery—F. V. Cruser, John L. Van Doren.

Crushed Site Foot.

William Totten, a workman engaged with others by Newton Spencer, on North avenue, removing an old building, to make room for Day's livery stable, had his foot crushed yesterday morning by a falling beam. He was conveyed in a wagon to his boarding place, 70 East Front street, over Dunn's meat market.

State Items.

Mrs. Bridget Ryan, of Matawan, indicted at the last term of Monmouth County court for selling liquor without a license, was fined $500 Monday.

The decennial convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance State Union will hold next Monday and Tuesday and Wednesday at the hall in Mulberry street, Newark.

John Noerman, a laborer employed by Contractor Henry, was run over and fatally injured yesterday at Lewis street and Palisade avenue, Union Hill, by a wagon loaded with Belgian blocks.

Ex-Alderman Patrikop, of Jersey City, recovered a verdict in the Circuit Court yesterday against the Greenwood Lake Railway Company. He was returning from a picnic last August, when a stone thrown through the window broke his arm in three places.

James Carnahan, a young man from Tuliptown, was struck and instantly killed at Morganville yesterday by an east-bound train from Trenton. Carnahan was driving a team of horses and his wagon was loaded with grain. The vehicle was struck and completely wrecked. One of the horses was so badly injured that it had to be killed.

The suit of Vanderbilt & Hopkins against Reeder & Co., of the Central Railroad, came up before the Chancellor at Newark yesterday, and will occupy some days. The plaintiffs are lumber dealers, and one of them is a relative of Judge Lathrop, who, while receiver of the Central, gave them a contract to supply a large amount of ties for the road. It is now alleged that the contract was for an excessive amount of material and more than the road could use for years, and he repudiated the contract.

Rev. Father Rogers of New Brunswick has completed thirty years' pastorate of St. Peter's parish, which at one time included portions of this county. Recently one of the largest congregations ever assembled in St. Peter's was gathered together, to do reverence to the old patriarch they so dearly love and honor. Rev. Father Rogers celebrated high mass. The vestments worn by him on the occasion were presented by parishioners. Many years ago over the first time they were ever used. Rev. Fathers Hogan and Trenton, K-by of South Amboy and O'Reilly of Perth Amboy officiated. Touching addresses upon the beautiful and consistent Christian life of the venerable Father, were delivered by them. The services were conducted by the parish priest. On Sunday evening the services at the church were of an equally solemn character, the well-beloved Father Rogers being the recipient of some handsome and valuable presents.

OUTSIDE EDITORS.

The Trenton Times a few days ago had an editorial on the above subject which will apply with more or less force to all independent papers. We give it below in full.

It is curious how many people want to edit The Times outside the office. There are scores of persons who deem themselves competent to take charge of the editorial department of the paper and run it much more satisfactorily than it is run at present.

These people have never had any newspaper experience. They know nothing of the pleasures and pains of journalism. They simply feel that they could edit a paper in a manner that would be more pleasing, at least to themselves.

Outside Editor Number One says the paper isn't independent any more, because it favors the Republicans now and then too much. If he ran it, he would make it Democratic.

Outside Editor Number Two says the paper isn't independent any more, because it leans towards the Democrats now and then and finds commendable features in the Democracy. If he ran it, he would make it Republican.

Outside Editor Number three says the paper gives the Prohibitionists too much of a boom. It reports the temperance meetings and praises good temperance men. If he ran it, he would leave temperance men alone or else abuse the Prohibitionists.

Outside Editor Number Four says the paper reports items of news among the liquor men and doesn't denounce the traffic as illegal and wicked. If he ran it, he would keep all news, except temperance, out and make a strictly moral and religious journal of it.

Outside Editor Number Five says the paper has too much politics in it. If he ran it, he would make a funny paper of it and print an exciting love story every day. He wouldn't notice politics.

Outside Editor Number Six says the paper hasn't any views at all except on the fence. It is dreadfully neutral and not independent. If he ran it, he would make a party organ of it and make half the subscribers boiling mad.

The Times is sorry it cannot put all these outside editors on its staff and let them take turns writing editorials. But in the first place, the expense would be too great and in the next place, it doesn't care to lose its circulation and influence inside of a week.

The Times will therefore have to content itself with its present course. It sees its circulation growing, and while it errs now and then, it finds its circle of friends increasing and notices that men of all parties read it every day. Most of them seem to like it. Only the outside editors find fault.

"Everybody shut your old, you know, my dear madame," said a physician to a lady who evidently took it upon the remark as a personal one; for she promptly replied: "Not everybody, doctor, a great many of your patients will never grow old."

THE RIVAL FORCES.

What is Being Done to Insure Political Victory.

Preparing to Welcome Grover Cleveland—Eliaha's Open Door—The Irish American League Wants No Foreign Meddling.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—A special to The Worldsays: To a stranger it looks as though the city had gone wild over 3,000 uniformed men in line; a score of bands playing, nothing twice as many Democratic organizations, Greek fire, rockets and fireworks along the principal streets, Japanese lanterns hung from all the avenues leading to the capital and 5,000 men struggling to get into a big tent are some of the signs that meet the eye, at the 5,000 tenement the executive mansion Gov. Cleveland steps bareheaded to the window and cheers go up from the crowd below, and the Democratic clique muches on in full city array. Yes, we do this twice a week. Some day we will have a really big meeting." At the big tent the principal speeches were made by Maj. Hamilton Fish, ex-Tammany assemblyman and ex-District Attorney Mosk, chairman of John Kelly's state committee in 1879. Gov. Cleveland leaves at 1:15 p. m. for Buffalo to visit the town in Buffalo for the first time since he was nominated. A committee from Buffalo will meet the train at Peterboro, Utica and Syracuse, and as

The Drought in Virginia.

LYNCHBURG, Va., Oct. 2.—The heat here is very oppressive. The thermometer has scarcely fallen below 90 night or day for a week. The effects of the drought about Piedmont, this state, are unparalleled. The vegetation is burned and the ground parched to a great depth, which makes ploughing impossible and preparations for fall sowing are delayed in consequence. Tax hay crop is destroyed. In parts of southwest Virginia the graziers are driving their stock into Tennessee for water. The small streams are drying up. In many localities forest trees are dying and numerous forest fires are burning.

A Woman Reduces Taxation.

GREAT BARRINGTON, Mass., Oct. 2.—Mrs. Mark Hopkins, who has resided in this village during the summer months, for the past few years, and has expended over $200,000 in building the Congregational church and parsonage, besides erecting buildings of her own, has given notice to the association that she has taken up her residence in town. This will add immensely to the taxable property and reduce taxation materially. Town is great rejoicing among the citizens over her decision. Her property has heretofore been assessed in California.

China Will Declare War.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—It is now stated that China is awaiting the next hostile operation of Admiral Courbet, with the intention of then issuing a manifesto to the powers stating that she is forced by the illegal aggressions of France to declare war. In the meantime several of the French newspapers are arguing, with an impudent inconsistency which is purely Parisian, that Admiral Courbet's acts of "reprisal" are tantamount to a declaration of war, and that therefore the French naval vessels have a perfect right to search neutral vessels and seize contraband supplies.

Our Expensive Navy Again.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—While proceeding up the East river the steamer Thomas Kiley, belonging to the Quarantine department of the United States navy, met a Ross veli street ferry boat as it emerged from its ferry slip, and the two came together with a crash. The Kiley received injuries to her operator which will necessitate her going into dock for repairs. No one was injured. There were few passengers on the ferry boat.

The Legislative Season Commenced.

MONTPELIER, Oct. 2.—The legislature of 1884 and 1885 assembled yesterday. The present re-elected, Chauncey W. Brownell, of Burlington, secretary, and Alfred K. Brown, of Sheldon, assistant secretary. J. Batchelder, of Arlington, was elected speaker of the house, and W. W. Stickney, of Ludlow, clerk. To-day Gov. Barstow will deliver his farewell message and Governor-elect Pingree his inaugural.

THE LIGHT FANTASTIC TOE.

What a Fashionable Professor of Dancing and Deportment Says.

(Philadelphia Times.)

There will be no radical changes or departures from the dances of last season. The german will this winter receive new impetus from several startling and novel figures to be introduced. Among them I may mention the roller-skate figure, which promises to be very popular. A very light pattern of skate has been produced especially for this purpose and will be used in the dance. Other figures likely to be much danced are the four-in-hand and tandem, the paper bag, jockey, mirror, triangle and dice-throwing figures. Favors will be unprecedently costly, and will include finger-rings, bracelets, scarf-pins and $2.50 gold pieces, on one side of which a monogram will be engraved. An almost endless variety of new figures are contemplated.

In waltzing, the fashionable Newport glide will become the favorite. The regular waltz glide will remain the dance of a great many who do not follow the changes of fashion in dancing. The racquet will be better favor this year among watchful mammas, the step having been brought down to the trois temps, which keeps the feet nearer the floor and robs the dance of the somewhat indecorous kick hitherto considered so objectionable. The ripple, a western step, will be much danced, while the double glide will have perhaps more admirers than ever. The Saratoga lancers will be one of the most popular dances this winter on account of its having been so much danced at the seashore during the summer. The minute lancers will also be in favor on account of the easy grace of the movement.

In quadrilles there will be added the cocquette and cauliflower figures, sometimes terminating with the new year and Tempete figures. The Caledonian quadrille, a beautifully arranged dance, will be among the season's favorites. La Varsovienne, with the old mazourka waltz step, will be revived with a great deal of enthusiasm by the young people. The schottische will be danced, with the addition of the glide waltz, which, of course, will make the step more graceful. The polka galop, a very interesting dance, without the laborious movement of the old polka, will be classed among the favorites, on account of its easy grace of movement.

The effort made by the Society of Professors of Dancing to secure uniformity in dancing throughout the country has not met with the success that was appreciated. The fashional cities have proved stumbling blocks with their deep-rooted provincialisms and their unwillingness to make any change in the prevailing styles. The successful season at Long Branch, Saratoga and Narragansett Pier, where dancing has been the rage, will give great impetus to the winter's dancing in large cities.

Dying Lawyers.

[Every Other Saturday.]

"I met the other day a little article on the difficulty of getting correctly the last words of great men, and referring particularly to William Pitt. It brought to my mind Daniel Webster. The evening before he died his physician repeated to him the words, 'Thy rod and Thy staff they comfort me,' and Mr. Webster replied, as if in sympathy, but too weak to complete the sentence, 'Thy rod and Thy staff,'—the fact—the fact—I want—' Here the matter rested as at first reported, and, I think, as publicly reported by Mr. Everett. The true account, as it came to me very directly, is as follows: Mr. Webster asked whether he was likely to live till morning. His physician, Dr. Jeffreys, declined to give a direct answer, repeated from the twenty-third psalm: 'Thy rod and Thy staff,' etc. Mr. Webster saw the evasion, and in a clear and rather severe tone said: 'Thy rod and Thy staff.' The fact, the fact, I want.' I a, he wanted an answer to his question."

"This reminds me of the last, or nearly the last, words of his distinguished friend Jeremiah Mason. His daughter said in a suppressed voice: 'He is dying.' Mr. Mason asked what she was saying. 'Nothing, father,' she replied. 'Precisely what words did you use to my son?' was his question then put by the great lawyer and unquestioning child. It thus remains the clear, penetrating intellect of the advocate continued to the last.

A NEW PAVEMENT.
The undersigned has secured the exclusive agency for the sale of the
Diebold Patent Iron Stone,
which for elegance and durability, is unsurpassed, and in price will come favorably with any other pavement now in use. It is the most beautiful pavement known for walks and yards, gutter stones, door sills and steps blocks. Also used to build fire and burglar proof vaults; and for building purposes generally. These patent blocks have many interesting peculiarities—They show no perceptible wear, are non-corrosive, non-absorbent, will resist 95 per cent. of moisture. When dampness accumulates on the surface brick, the Diebold stone remains perfectly free from it. These blocks are cast in the molten iron Slag and are the hardest of substances known to mankind. Every specimen open for inspection at Stillman Music Hall. For further particulars call on or address

The Sun.
About sixty million copies of THE SUN have gone out of our establishment during the passed twelve months.
If you were to paste end to end all the columns of THE SUN printed during the next year you would get a continuous strip of interesting information common sense wisdom, sound doctrine, and news all long enough to reach from Printing House square to the top of Mount Copernicus in the moon, then back to Printing House square, and three quarters of the way back to the moon again.
But THE SUN is written for the inhabitants of the earth; this same strip of intelligence would girdle the globe twenty-five or twenty-eight times.
If every buyer of THE SUN during the passed year has spent only one hour over it, and if his wife or his grandfather has spent another hour, this newspaper in 1884 has afforded the human race thirteen thousand years of steady reading night and day.
It is only by little calculations like these that you can form any idea of the extension of the usefulness of a live American newspaper, or of its influence on the opinions and actions of American men and women.
If you know THE SUN you like it already, and you will read it with accustomed diligence and profit during what is sure to be the most interesting year in its history. If you do not yet know THE SUN, it is high time to get into the meadow.

WORKING A WRECK.

The Interesting Process of Blowing a Sunken Steamer to Pieces.

Breaking Up the Hull of the Ill-Fated Columbus—A Fortune in Old Junk—Nitro-Glycerine.

[Martha's Vineyard Cor. Philadelphia Times.]

Standing among the huge boulders which lie strewn along the beach under the wave-gutted clay-cliffs of Gay Head and looking out upon the heaving and sighing billows which swell up from the Atlantic, four buoys may be seen tossing upon the ever-moving surface of the waters less than a mile distant. An uncouth-looking craft lies at anchor and two or three small boats are riding the waves near by. On the shore against the foot of the cliffs a rude mast covered with a tarpaulin, attracts attention. A rough board bearing the legend: "Nitro-glycerine! Explosive! Danger!" tells the tale of the work going on in the water. The buoys mark the spot where the steamer City of Columbus on that cold January night went surging upon the reef of the Devil's Bridge and sent 116 human beings to a grave beneath the water. The lumbering craft, with its derrick and tackling, is the lighter from which the divers ply their hazardous work upon the wreck in the depths of the waters beneath. Before the wintry blasts again beat upon this isolated and solitary promontory nothing will be left to tell the tale of that dreadful disaster.

Pulling into conversation with a weather-beaten and battered old salt who had just pulled up on the shore, the story of the wreck since it first crashed upon the reef was soon told. After all hope of rescuing at least one of the 116 human beings on board was forgotten and had been abandoned, the vessel, which had lodged in the apex of the reef which forms an inverted V, the keen shoulder on Gay Head, was left to the pitiless waves, which came roaring in from the ocean. Her iron sides had withstood the pounding of the breakers. The cupidity of fortune seekers came to account. For the small sum of $700 the vessel which had cost thousands to build was bartered off to a company of wreckers, who are now at work blowing the hulk to pieces and bringing the material to the surface, to be sold for scrap to the rolling mills or to stock the junk shops.

"We expect to clear $10,000 out of our bargain," said the amphibious salt. Judging from the immense torn and ragged sheets of iron which once formed the sides of the Columbus and are now strewn about one of the wharves of Vineyard haven on this island to be shipped away at some convenient opportunity, the enterprising adventurers will not be disappointed.

The old salt explained that the piping and copper and brass had already been taken up and shipped to Boston, and the sides of the vessel had been recovered, leaving nothing but the bottom and the boilers and engines to be lifted. To the end of having the compact structure of the vessel is an emphatic illustration of the force of modern explosives. The diver in his armor takes with him to the wreck below a harmless-looking board, to which are fastened two apparently equally harmless cylindrical packages, about eight inches long and one and a half inches in diameter. This board is placed in such portion of the wreck as it is desired to break away. Returning to the surface a simple electric wire may be seen leading into the waves.

When all is ready a dull sound and a splash of waters are heard and in an instant the work is done. Examination reveals a detached mass and the clanking of cogs and rachets, the groaning of the derrick and the desperate pulling of the relaxed energy of steam soon bring to the surface the object at first to be taken for some slimy monster of the deep, but proves to be an immense sheet of riveted plates of iron. This is deposited on the lighter's deck and the operation is repeated until a cargo has been raised, and then away the craft steams to the nearest harbor, nearly twenty miles away.

Opinion Papers, Not Newspapers.

[T. G. Bowles in Fortnightly Review.]

The newspaper originally, as I have already remarked, published news alone; but in the beginning of the present century, the editor, no longer content that his paper should publish news, began to take gratuitously to assume the right of professing opinions. He began not merely to tell his readers what was happening but also to tell them what he thought and what they ought to think of what was happening. It is now over sixty years since this became general in English newspapers, and the result has been that the leader has overshadowed the news in importance, and that the horn of the leader writer has been exalted while that of the news monger has been abased. Newspapers, indeed, are less news papers than opinion papers.

The profession of opinions not only causes the editor to neglect the collection of news, but it prevents the honest and unreserved publication of such news as is collected. Opinions being regarded as of more importance than intelligence, the editor will occasionally suppress altogether intelligence which makes against the opinion of his newspaper, or publish it with such gloss as to diminish as much as possible its influential force. Every writer in a daily journal is unbalanced and warped in his view of acts and events from the special position occupied by that journal. And it is not too much to say that the whole staff of a newspaper is engaged in presenting things, not as they are, but as it is held by the editor on behalf of a certain class that they should be.

The Pie-Eater and the Luncheman.

[Cincinnati Enquirer.]

The other day a newspaper man, en route from Columbus to his home in Cincinnati in search of a clean shirt, might have been seen munching a piece of pie at the lunch counter of the depot at Xenia. The pie-eater observed to the luncheman:

"I notice that this piece of pie is below the vegetation line."

"Well," was the reply, "the fact is, I am a little short on pies this morning, and I had to make a draft on the transfer pies. The truth of the matter is, I sell a piece of pie to a railroad employe or transfer hand for 5 cents and I charge a passenger 10 cents, so I cut a passenger pie into three pieces and get twenty 30 cents for a pie. The transfer pie are cut into four pieces, and I get 20 cents for the pie from the transfer hands. You just ate a piece of transfer pie. Ten cents, please."

"If a passenger happens to get served with a hunk of transfer pie he has to pay regular passenger rates, eh?"

"Correct again."

"Suppose the transfer pies should run out and the passenger pies had to be served to the railroad employes, what rate would they pay?"

"There goes your train, sir."

The Current:—Why a cook or a housemaid should be regarded as a "servant" any more than employes with other functions is not very clear.

"I TOOK ONE DAY."

[Tyas.]

I wish one day to find that Youth was going With Time, who takes good things and ill. To join a vague procession, ever growing, Of gibbering people streaming down a hill. Those whom the years have rent world-wide or kindred.

Old friends once daily hailed upon: Some toil upon this earth and some rest under.

No doubt; and do some still regret. I wonder. The glad old days, the good time gone!

Time rakes away his dust-heap of dead roses, Of empty cups, of broken vows, Spent love, and all life's memory discloses, The morning after Youth's carouse;

He sloyes us shells of unforgotten faces, We find the print of feet that pass'd, Of revellers who leave us still some traces Of songs whose echoes haunted old halting-places.

Where night was often turned to day.

And many rest in sleep by dreams unbroken, By winds unswept, by stars unseen, Never to speak again as they have spoken, Or know lost joys that might have been.

When slow departing summer day yet tarries, Between the purpling western bars, When winds sound faint, as if some far-off strayers, Were touching harps with tired, trembling fingers,

We see but eyes smile to the stars.

TWO OF A KIND.

A Kind of Evolution Which Mr. Darwin Fails to Elucidate.

[Burdette in Brooklyn Eagle.]

Did you ever stop on the bridge that spans the creek? How he nose his way slowly along up the little inlets, along bits of driftwood, around chunks of clay. To every log, stone, branch or dam appear to find anything. Isn't particularly anxious to keep in the shade, doesn't seem to care very much whether you see him or not; he just easily and slowly noses his way, silently, with never a splash or a ripple; he nibbles at some inedible substance once in a while and then abandons it, drifts on a little farther, finds a worm in the mud, noses it with the air of a fish who has found what he has been searching for along five miles of coast line, and disappears into deep water.

Now do you know, the catfish develops into a man! Here is a field for Mr. Darwin. Any warm, very warm, sunny day on the Ohio river, where the water is still enough to be yellow, you can see the man who is evolved from this catfish. He has a low skiff, unusually square at each end; it isn't exactly a shell, for one thing, though he intended to make it sharp-bowed, but lacked energy enough to draw the sides quite together. It is the dirtiest skiff on the river. A hard rain or a sweeping freshet soaks it dirtier. The rowlocks are bits of sapling stuck in holes. The man who owns that boat will hunt for days for a bit of growing timber of the right size rather than whittle down a piece of history. He rows along the still river with the motions and the instincts of a catfish. He never hurries. His oars dive into the water without a splash, and he softly raises them without a ripple. He nozes his way along the bank. The spectacle of this man rowing down the side of the stream is as rare as sunshine at a picnic.

Sometimes he wants to cross over to the other shore, but then he rows very rapidly in mid-stream, the only time he is ever known to make any exertion. Along the shore is his favorite haunt, and here he and the catfish are twins, and both the dirtier and lazier. If, partridge and pheasant are plentier up to bits of driftwood, occasionally hauling some broken plank aboard his craft. He has a sluggish but wary eye for floating cakes and logs; like the catfish he rejects four-fifths of the things he inspects, and what he accepts appear to give him very little pleasure. I never observed that this party is clear waters or on cold days. But if the sun is hot, the water muddy, a sense of malaria present in the adjacent swamps, you may wager about the bank of the river and watch for the catfish snubbing along the shore. And when you have found him lift up your eyes and lo, the man in the boat is not one hundred yards away. And you will wonder which of the twain evolved the other.

A Blast on the Foghorn.

[San Francisco Chronicle "Understone."]

This lonely sailor has always been a subject of solicitude to sentimental people. I don't know why the sailor has been given accustomed to seasickness. There's an awful lot of bosh talked about the dangers of the ocean. I am not opposed to any arrangement which will make the sailor's life, or any body else's safer. But I protest against the foghorn. Whenever there is a fog on the bay that cursed foghorn begins, and makes a fellow's back creep. It is the most painfully lugubrious noise that is known to creation. It is enough to make a ship founder on full if it were within a thousand of the water. It starts all sorts of miserable ideas.

Suppose a ship should strike on the rock and everybody go down, would it not be horrible! And yet to come down in a calm is fact, it is far less likely that a ship should strike on the rocks than that a railway train should fall off a trestle, or that a dummy should run away on one of the hills and the brakes refuse to work. But what I want to get at is the value of this foghorn. When there is a fog on the bay nobody should be ventureseome as to bring in a ship! How often does it really warn people on board steamers with any value, that could not be obtained by other means? To warn a ship a few people a certain amount of danger, the whole northern part of San Francisco, say 100,000 people, are compelled to suffer the painful effect on the nerves of a foghorn. It is a costly benefit that discommodes a whole city to save the weary mariner who ought to be wrecked if he is fool enough to take so much risk.

A Cigarette-Smoking Hero.

[Philadelphia Times.]

Cassa y Ochoa died a hero. He was a Spaniard in the government civil service. At the time of the collision of the steamers Ojica and Lachaza, a few months ago, he was a passenger on the former. In the midst of the panic he remained leaning over the rail of the burning steamer. He declined to enter the small boat because he thought another person would endanger the safety of all. The vessel had settled in two water by the time Ochoa was swaying to and fro violently. The persons in the small boat shouted good-by. He lit a cigarette, adjusted his gold-bowed eye-glasses and then waved his hand. A second later the steamer sank and then dived straight down into the sea.

Social Unpleasantness in Georgia.

[Rome Courier Gazette.]

Too much sweetness is as damaging to a small town, like Jonesboro.

Prejudice, malice, hatred and envy are the four essential qualities that make up a devil.

The prevailing motto of the day is, "you kill my dog, I'll kill your cat."

Design for a Statue.

[John Paul.]

If I were called upon to design a statue that should practically represent "Liberty Enlightening the World," I would merely place my right hand on the top of my head, my left behind my back, and, keeping both in outstretched hand and waging his daily paper.

A Good Reminder.
[Life.]

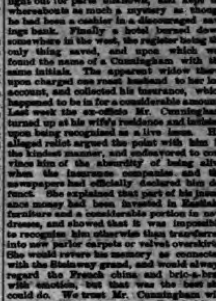
Ha! I feel as though I had extended the invitation to call with a corkscrew.

She: Well, I hope you will enjoy it as much as you do other things you extract with a corkscrew.

An Obstinate Corpse.

[San Francisco Post.]

Mrs. Cunningham, of Montreal, seems to be the latest victim of misplaced confidence. Some ten years ago Mr. C. vanished in light air for parts unknown, and kept his whereabouts as much a mystery as though he had been a cashier in a discouraged savings bank. Finally a body turned down somewhere in the vicinity was regarded being the only thing saved, and upon which was found the name of a Cunningham with the same initials. The approved widow thereupon charged one roast husband to her last account, and collected his insurance, which happened to be in for a considerable amount. Last week the corpse of Mr. Cunningham turned up at his wife's residence and insisted upon being recognized as a live issue. His alleged relict argued the point with him in the liveliest manner, and endeavored to convince him of the absurdity of being alive when the insurance companies and the newspapers had definitely disposed of the remains. She explained that part of his insurance money had been invested in Eastlake furniture and a considerable portion in new dresses, and that it was impossible for her to recognize him otherwise than transferred into new parlor carpets or velvet overskirts. She would never be able to be connected with the Eastlake ground, and would always regard the French china and bric-a-brac with contempt, but that was the best she could do. We trust Mr. Cunningham will be persuaded to stay dead. This habit of departed husbands turning up at inconvenient moments is getting shockingly frequent of late, and ought to be put down at once.



The Prize Melon.
[Harper's Bazar.]

"Oh, yo' mis'able stray pup, yo'!"

"Mose in ah bulrushes! How come dat chile in dat watah-melung?"

Me Was Captured.

[New York Mail and Express.]

A middle-aged man, with red eyes, appeared to be a load on his mind, visited the Arctic steamer Thetis yesterday and seemed interested in what he saw.

"Dey," he said to the officer on deck, "I'd like to go on the next expedition."

"It's awful cold up there," remarked the officer discouragingly.

"I don't care for that."

"You'd have very little to eat, and you might starve to death."

"That wouldn't be pleasant," said the visitor.

"I should say not," returned the officer. "And you might be eaten by your comrades."

"Is dat so? Dat would be tough."

"And then," continued the officer, "you wouldn't see your wife for three years, or possibly longer. You know you can't take her with you."

"Well," returned the old gentleman, after a long pause, "I guess you can put my name down on your books. Your last argument captures me."

Washington Was Not Bow-Legged.

[San Francisco Post.]

An old lady of Chicago, 94 years of age, wants that she used to sit in Washington's lap. She remembers the old hero as the father of his country was so bow-legged that when he was "knapin' company" he had to put a shingle across his knees for Martha to sit on.

Burlington Hawkeye: A Hagerstown, Md., paper tells how a snake is the constable near there bit a man in the heel of the boot, killed the snake, killed the snake, killed the snake killed the shoemaker who sold the boots. At last accounts the boots were still living.

Boston Post: A clergyman was once invited by way to a congregation that consisted of his deacons. Before the meeting began he remarked: "Brethren who wish to contribute to-day will please rise." Whereupon all the deacons but one arose. "Brethren who wish to contribute next week will please rise." Whereupon all the deacons but one arose. Signal Office Predictions—slightly cooler weather, fresh and light north-easterly winds veering to southeast, threatening weather, and light local rains, lower barometer.

CHRONOLOGICAL EVENTS.

Fulton's first steamboat trip made in 1807.

JOTTINGS.

—Examine the News' advertisements.

—The seats are being placed in the Music Hall.

—There are several lecture courses talked of for the coming season.

—A firemen's parade will take place in Somerville on October 23.

—There will be a glass ball and pigeon shooting sweepstakes on the ball grounds to-morrow.

—Sealed proposals for building the abutments for the Farragut avenue bridge are called for.

—The Presbytery of Elizabeth will hold their semi-annual meeting at Basking Ridge on Tuesday.

—The Muhlenberg Hospital, which a few weeks ago was almost empty of patients, now has seven.

—The adjourned County Prohibition convention has been called to meet this afternoon at Bound Brook.

—The opening of the Music Hall will be the event of the season. Tickets may now be had of the directors.

—Even a fence on the Vail property at New Market caught fire a few days ago. Probably the ground will go next.

—A meeting of all Irish American anti-Cleveland voters is called for Saturday evening at St. Mary's Hall, West Fourth street.

—Gov. Leon Abbett is to address Plainfield Democrats, Tuesday evening, Oct. 21, when there is also to be a big parade.

—Too bad. The small boy languishes. The rain prevented the Republican parade last night, and prevents that of the Democrats to-night.

—Thursday, Oct. 9th, the Democrats expect to have a grand parade, on which occasion they are to be honored with the presence of the T. J. M's.

—The roving school conducted by Mrs. Frank Gardener, opens to-morrow, Saturday afternoon, at three o'clock. It is hoped that new faces with the old ones will make an appearance at that time.

—The Reading road announce another of their popular excursions to Mauch Chunck, Glen Onoko and the Switchback for Wednesday, October 15. This will be the eleventh this season. The train leaves this city at 9:10 a. m., and the fare is $1.75.

—A Cleveland and Hendricks meeting was held in Metuchen last night, and an address was delivered by Mr. Frederick Couders, of New York. A torchlight parade through the principal streets by the Democratic club headed by a band attracted a great crowd.

—The Republican Congressional convention for the Fourth District, which includes North Plainfield, will be held to-morrow evening at Washington, Warren county. It is probable that the present incumbent, the Hon. Benjamin Howey, will be re-nominated by acclamation.

—Here is the testimony of a firm whose success in business fully demonstrates that they know whereof they speak: "An experience of many years has demonstrated to us the great value and benefit derived from carefully prepared and properly displayed advertisements in well-established, influential newspapers."

—There were 67 uniforms distributed to the H. L. M.'s, in the Cornet Band room, over the Council Chamber last evening, at a cost of $3.40 per suit, C. O. D. These without the C. O. D. did not suit. They have decided not to turn out this evening, requiring more time to dress and some time to appointment before giving a public exhibition, which is to be just immense.

—David K. Vail, Joseph Stites and Robert Lee, who were held in the preliminary examination before Justice Austin, of North Plainfield, during the Summer for assault and battery on a German working for a farmer named Baldwin, who resides in "Scotch Plains" Valley, have been tried and convicted. Vail was fined ten dollars and the others five dollars each, with costs.

"Yes, sir," said the automobilist, "I can tame flies so that when I whistle they will come and alight on my head. I whistle and they come and alight on my head without my whistling." The chronologist sat down.—Detroit Free Press.

"Are you badly injured? I see your face is cut." "No, I've only been to the barber's and had a hair breadth escape."—Boston Budget.

Resignations of the Opera House.

The following are regulations of an Opera House in the wild west. It is hardly necessary to say they would hardly be applicable at the Music Hall.

1. No smoking permitted in any part of the house.

2. Gentlemen are expected to remove their hats on entering either the balcony or dress ing circle.

3. No gentleman without a coat on will be admitted to any part of the house.

4. The first three rows in the balcony are always reserved.

5. Only those who deport themselves as gentlemen will be permitted to remain in the house.

6. The management would further request that the mode of applause be the clapping of hands, and not the stamping of feet and shrill whistling.

7. The management would further request that any gentleman finding it absolutely necessary to his happiness to use tobacco during a performance will please not expectorate on the floor or carpets. By notifying an usher he can secure the use of a cuspidor.

Marriage Bells.

On Wednesday evening at half past six an interesting event occurred at the residence of Mr. Henry C. Randolph on the Parkway road. At that time his daughter, Miss M. Allen was united in marriage to Mr. Frank French, son of Mr. M. French, of Washington Valley, the Rev. William C. Richards, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian Church officiating. The bridesmaids were Miss Nettie Ketcham, of this city, and Miss Ida Marinon, of Brooklyn. A reception and supper followed the ceremony. The presents were numerous and costly. The happy couple left town on the 9:20 p. m. train bound for Niagara. On their return to this city they will take up their residence on Somerset street.

How to Sell Property.

A exchange very sensibly remarks: It is a bad policy to be too close when advertising valuable property for sale. There are often large sums of money lost in a sale by trying so save a few dollars in advertising. The printer very often can do more than all other influences combined to make a success, and to be afraid to advertise valuable property. To show such fear, the conclusion with people often is that the property is not worth much. A buyer wanting it will often take advantage of such indifference on the owner's part to create the impression on others that the property is not valuable, so he can buy at his own price. Always get a big, showy notice to make the largest show of value.

The German Democratic Meeting.

The Independent German Cleveland and Hendricks Club held a mass meeting in the Democratic wigwam on Somerset street, North Plainfield, last evening. The building was filled and the President of the club, Mr. H. W. Hyler presided. Addresses were made by George Huffman, of Hoboken, and Chas. Kapf, of New York. Gen. Franz Seigel was announced to address the meeting, but was prevented from attending by sickness. It is probable however that he will make an address here before the close of the campaign.

The Republican Parade.

The line of march of the Republican parade this evening has, by request, been changed, the changes occurring at Park avenue and Rockview avenue. The line of march as changed is as follows:

Front street to Liberty, to 6th; to Central avenue, to 8th street, to Division, to 7th, to Park, to 9th, countermarch to Front, to Washington avenue, to Manor avenue, to Rockview avenue, to Washington avenue, to Linden, to Grove street, to Emily, to Somerset street, to Front.

The Reform Club Meeting.

The regular business meeting of the Reform Club for October was held in the club hall last evening. Less than fifty were present, owing to the bad weather. Very little business was transacted, and most of the time was given to addresses which were made by Judge Harper, Mr. Frank French, and Messrs. J. Q. Miles, T. W. Berger, C. B. Corwin, George W. Jr. Randolph and Robert S. Manning.

The F. T. V. Fair.

Ryder's Hall was crowded last night the occasion being the fourth night of the Plainfield Turn Verein Fair. The fair lasted until 12 o'clock, after which the dancing commenced and lasted until morning. The music was furnished by Prof. Fraser.

Miss Dorothy Ketcham.

Miss Sayres, the missing woman whose whereabouts have not been known during the past eight weeks, has returned to New Brunswick. She declines to give any reason for her strange conduct.

James Ferry, one thirty-seven, who lived in Avenue D, Bergen Point, was instantly killed by a New Jersey Central train yesterday.

Hop at the Netherwood.

The regular thursday evening hop will take place at the Netherwood to-morrow evening at the Hotel Netherwood. All friends of the hotel are invited to attend. A number from this city attended the hop last week and it is probable that the number will be increased this week. Orchestra music will be furnished under the direction of Mr. R. Seyford, of Staten Island. The following is the program:

Personal.

Miss Rose Vardon, of North Plainfield, has returned from her European tour.

Mr. S. V. Woodruff, the proprietor of the Netherwood, has returned from a short season of rest at the seashore.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Randolph, have returned from their wedding trip, and have taken up their residence on West Second street.

Not Convicted.

The jury in the Smolenski murder trial at New Brunswick retired at twenty-five minut e past four o'clock yesterday afternoon to consider the testimony, and returned into court at 8.15, rendered with a verdict of not guilty. Smolenski, who appeared completely surprised, shook hands with his counsel and left court.

How the High School Stands.

A ballot was taken at the High School at a meeting of parents recently for preferences for presidential candidate resulting as follows: Butler, 1, St. John, 3, Cleveland, 1; Blaine, 5. Messrs. Thickstun and Newman acted as inspectors of election.

The Park House Meetings.

Miss Louise Lesslie, the elocutionist who was so well received at the Park House on Monday evening, will again give readings there to-morrow evening. She will repeat, by request, "How Rubenstein Played" and possibly others.

State Items.

The Burlington county Freeholders have decided to adopt the Mercer county plan in dealing with tramps and vagrants by putting them to work by hard labor.

The wife of Theodore Abbott, a saloon keeper of Tyler Park, eloped with Frank Edwards her husband's bartender. She took all her husband's available wealth—about $500.

Mrs. Agnes Smith, a widow, who occupies three rooms on the second floor of a tenement house at 565 Bergen avenue, Jersey City, was arraigned before Police Justice Stisling yesterday, charged with arson.

Theodore Lewis, a grocery shop keeper of West Hoboken, reported to the police Wednesday that his wife had eloped with his bartender, Frank Edwards. Albert said that he was not so anxious for the return of his wife as he was for $500 which she had taken.

Newton M. Bovey, a milkman on Fourth street, above Avon, Jersey City, was arrested and held in $300 bail for assaulting George L. Schuyler, also a milkman, living on Bridge street, same place. Schuyler visited Bovey's house to chastise him for insulting his wife, it is alleged, and met with a hot reception. His injuries are serious.

James Ferry, a teamster in the employ of A. W. Booth & Brother, of Bergen Point, while driving across the track of the Pennsylvania and Reading Railroad in Jersey City yesterday morning, was struck by an engine and thrown from his cart. His death occurred a few minutes later. Ferry was a soldier in the late war. He leaves a widow.

A civil suit for damages has been entered in the Camden Circuit court by John J. Wade, son of Thomas C. Wade, Sallie Hirsch, of No. 423 South Second street, against Dr. Davis, druggist, of Third and Washington streets, whose story is as follows: Wade made a mistake in compounding a prescription, and which has destroyed the woman's health.

Henry Powell, the young man who eloped from Trenton with Miss Annie Wilde, and took the bride and himself desire to come back. The bride's parents sent word to-day that they would receive the couple with open arms.

A wild bull, Wednesday broke from a drove of cattle in Paterson and jumped into the basement window of the house 100 Straight street. The occupants were so frightened by the sudden entry that they fled pell-mell to the street. Mrs. Andrew Inglis and Mrs. John Swinky were both knocked down and severely hurt. The bull escaped through the yard and the ladies were attended by a physician.

The Pennsylvania and New Jersey Railway Traction company was organized at Trenton yesterday to operate a line of railway from Camden to Haddonfield, with a capital stock of $5,000,000. The incorporators are E. E. Bates, Joseph Cooper, Jr., Haddonfield; S. Hoey, Joseph M. Collingwood and P. F. Kelly, with offices in Camden and Philadelphia. The company will operate with Bell and Wilson patents for constructing and operating cable or traction railways.

The Democratic Meeting in Elizabeth.

As well as the hundreds and others who travelled to and on R. J. Shaw, Front opposite Park avenue, and get from a trial bottle of Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs, a sample bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup free. Large bottles regularly sold for 50 cents and 25 cents and guaranteed to cure and relieve all Coughs and Asthma. Consumption, Bronchitis and Consumption. Price, 25 cents and 50 cents per bottle.

PLAINFIELD SCHOOL OF ART.

No. 3 East Front street. I am now prepared to open classes for drawing, painting, in oil, water, pastille, monochromatic and water colors, at Room No. 3 East Front street (over Dr. Shaw's Drug Store.) Terms satisfactory.

My method of teaching is considered much easier than old methods which took for art one hours to learn and paint from nature in a very short time with less expense and less study. Everything made plain and simple but directly to the point. Special advantages to those in the public schools. Private lessons where desired. Pictures of all kinds painted to order. Very Respectfully,

MRS. H. H. CONNARD.

Orders, or calls, at Park House will be received with pleasure.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1884.

THE manufacture of wood-working machinery has made very rapid progress of late years. Ten years ago there were comparatively few establishments devoted to its manufacture. Now they are scattered over the country, and some of them cover ten to twenty acres. The capital invested ranges from $100,000 to $1,000,000, and the number of hands employed in each from 200 to 1000. The opening up of the country by railroad has given an impetus to wood manufactures, and thus the demand for wood-working machinery has advanced rapidly. Planing mills by the score are springing up in the South and in the lumber regions of the West. Furniture manufactories and agricultural works are growing in number and the railroad shops are also helping to swell the demand for this class of machinery.

THE Guardian, the most important Church of England paper, speaks of Wyoming, now brought into prominence by the cattle dispute, as the scene of Campbell's poem, "Gertrude of Wyoming." Another church paper of less note savagely attacks General Wolseley and Lord Northrook for starting on their Egyptian mission on a Sunday. The same paper took up the statement of a distinguished correspondent that he carried tobacco in his mouth through the wards of the cholera hospitals in the south of France, and said that even the plague was preferable to such a vicious and degrading practice.

IN England there are 12,000 co-operative societies, with 600,000 members, representing 3,500,000 people, or one twelfth of the entire population. The capital stock amounts $45,000,000, and the profits to $10,000,000 yearly. The wholesale society has branches and depots in Scotland, Ireland, France and Denmark and owns three large steamers plying between England and the continent.

IT is a curious fact that the largest handler of oysters in the world is located at Chicago. He employs $5,000,000 of capital and buys 6,000 bushels daily in New York and as many more in Baltimore. The English market takes 10,000 bushels a week, showing that the taste of the English has changed since Thackeray compared an American oyster to a baby.

A PROJECT is on foot to establish pneumatic tubes between large cities for the transmission of packages. The business of the post-office has grown to such proportions that some capitalists think there is room for a profitable investment in this direction.

Financial Operations Carried on So Successfully That for Years He Has Been Able to Live in Luxury and Ease.

BOSTON, Oct. 3.—Marcus F. Norton, an elderly man of Aldermanic proportions and easy manner, stood in the criminal dock of the municipal court this morning, and heard a bold tale. He was dressed in a style becoming a man of fortune and a pair of gold-bowed eye-glasses adorned his nose. When arrested he refused to settle with the hotel and pay the detective, but his eagerness to do so signified suspicion and he was held. It was then learned that Norton was one of the biggest swindlers in the country and when his identity became known scores of his victims flocked to the court to see him. It is estimated that his victims, most of which were on a gigantic scale, and out of them he and his family have lived in splendid style. He turned up a few weeks ago at the Bullfinch House, took a room and talked so familiarly about mines and speculations of various kinds that he easily got all the credit he wanted. A fifty days ago he borrowed, $50 from the clerk, and gave his check on the Maverick bank for the amount. He went out and bought a $100 gold watch with the money, but only $17.17 had been placed to Norton's credit at the bank. He was traced to New York, back to Boston and arrested. The officer who arrested him found $1,000 in bills in his pocket. Norton has lived on Bowdoin square for several years in magnificent apartments with his wife and three pretty daughters. Everything about the place was on a grand scale, the library alone being worth $20,000. Norton's father, the late Fitch Norton, loaned his name and a private secretary to Norton. Lewis C. Little was identified with all his enterprises.

Norton was born in Vermont, and settled years ago in Troy, N. Y., where he practised law and, as he claims, became judge. He pretended to wield great political influence, and in 1868 or 1869 was offered the office of governor of the territory of Wyoming. He published in handsome form a pamphlet containing letters from Secretary Seward to Gen. Grant recommending his appointment.

These publications served a purpose later on and he was regarded as a "big man" in Boston. Two years ago he met Senator Ferry and his brother in Michigan and obtained a mining speculation which, run through a mining speculation which, run through a mining speculation which, run through a mining speculation which he was not to use, but which he soon negotiated, causing the Ferrys to fail. Then he came east and proceeded on ocean-to-ocean railroad schemes. The capital was $20,000,000. He was president and Little, secretary. The names of the directors were not published, but some stock is said to have been sold in this prospecting. His wife and daughters were sent to Stuttgart, Wurtemberg, where for a year they lived in elegant style, spending $6,000 to $8,000 each. There was a private coachman for each and half a dozen different turn-outs.

A Mr. Wright who came back from Germany and stayed for a time in the Langham hotel, New York. Their furniture was seized in the custom house for duty by the proprietor. Mrs. Norton got $1,500 on a draft on German bankers that was not honored, and Oelrichs & Co., of the North German Lloyd steamship line refused to pay the amount from Norton himself through their Boston agent. This agent got a second mortgage on Norton's furniture. J. G. Tarry, late of this city, was appointed receiver for $4,300 loaned, and Holmes & Co., who supplied the furniture, claimed that it was not Norton's, having only been leased to him. Norton's wife and daughters left the parties. Norton gave the German agent a $30 check to pay interest on the draft, but it was no good. Norton's wife got $1,000 from Boston a $5,000 note which he had got from Ferry, giving him back $2,500 in cash and the note went to protest. A few months ago Norton brought a suit against the city of Boston to recover for an infringement of the patent on the "Boston" engine, which runs on five engines. There were suits also in New York, Chicago and other cities for amounts aggregating $300,000. The suit here was the test. He claimed that he had $12,000 in stock of which was put up by a man named Richardson, in New York. Norton has now a suit pending against the city government of Boston for infringement on a patent stamp cancelling machine. He joined the Tremont Temple Baptist church recently, and, after making great profession, borrowed $5,000 from Deacon Chipman. He has a scheme on foot to buy up claims against the government and expects to make $30,000 out of it.

Jewellers, safe makers and printers are stuck for large amounts. The roads he projected are known as the Boston and Northern Cut-off, the great through trunk and and short line system from Boston to Chicago, the Boston and Montreal short line and the Boston and New England. Maps between Boston and Chicago and Boston and Montreal. He has had tons of maps and pamphlets distributed here in the furnace of these schemes. By some he is regarded as a crank and by others as a long-headed, clever swindler.

Celebrating the Moon Feast.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—The Feast of the Moon was observed here with feasting and other holiday customs by all true sons of the Flowery Kingdom in accordance with the traditions of their home. A reporter called in the afternoon upon Mr. Fabe Lee, who is a graduate of Yale and at present attached to the Chinese legation at New York, and put a question as to the holiday said: "The Feast of the Moon is one of those old Chinese customs that are hard to explain. Probably Confucius himself could not say how or when it originated. The moon is and always has been regarded with great veneration, and the Chinese consider it a powerful orable influence on the earth and its inhabitants. The Chinese on this day prepare banquets and invite their friends, when they partake of the moon cake and other dishes." The night was a cold one for all who wished the moon "many happy returns of the day," for the full orb hid itself all the evening behind banks of dripping clouds.

Extensive Railroad Shops Burned.

MERIDIAN, Miss., Oct. 3.—The shops of the Queen and Crescent railroad have been burned. The fire was not discovered until the entire building was enveloped in flames. The shops, which are the largest in the south, contained a quantity of fine machinery, all of which, together with the shops themselves, was destroyed. The loss cannot now be exactly estimated, but will reach a quarter of a million dollars.

Medals for Schley and Emery.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—A gold medal for Commodore Schley and a silver medal for Lieutenant Emory of the Greely relief expedition have been received from the Monarch onto Hunsack, Norway.

CLEVELAND IN BUFFALO.

Bands, Bands, Bands, Illuminations, Decorations and People.

BUFFALO, Oct. 3.—The rain which fell all of yesterday dampened Buffalo's ardor, but the enthusiasm of the Democracy, as it might seem down the rain pedestrianized, and the streets became packed. It was known to many the exact progress of governor Cleveland's train this morning. It was known out that he would arrive at half-past 8 o'clock, but as that hour passed and no Governor, the throngs began to disperse. Carriages, clubs bearing torches and transparencies had early assembled at their headquarters, and to the enlivening strains of brass bands perambulated the streets in order to muster en masse to the depot. Along the line of the route to be taken the windows of the upper floors of the houses were alive with faces.

It was about 9 o'clock when the locomotive bells came in. The crowd around the depot was immense, and the sea of upturned faces presented a picturesque effect in the glare of torches and electric light, made a striking effect.

"Our next president!" yelled a man up a lamp-post.

The cheer that answered this impromptu cry made the governor pause as he was descending from the cars. He raised his hand and held it in his hand for a full minute.

"Speech, speech!" yelled the crowd.

The governor bowed and seemed really overcome by emotion. He was soon to move his life, but his words of thanks came almost inaudibly at first. Straightening himself carefully in his seat on such occasions he then said:

"I thank you, citizens of Buffalo, for this welcome to the city that first did me the honor of electing me mayor. I thank you from the bottom of my heart."

Then the line of march was taken up and the six large divisions of torch-bearers with bands attached, numbering in all 15,000 men, fell into line and proceeded along the now brilliantly lighted street to the Genesee house. From the balcony of the governor's at it swept past the Genesee house was certainly most imposing. The governor was in the best of spirits, and as organization after organization filed past the balcony he bowed most on the point of cheering in response to the cries of "Welcome Grover!" from well-known tongues. The booming of cannon, the streaks of fire-works and the glitter of the torches made everybody forget the rain and mud.

BLAINE, RESTING.

A Quiet Day in Cincinnati—A Visit on Change.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 3.—This has been a day of rest for Mr. Blaine. He has not kept closely to his room, however, but enjoyed the relief from being drawn across the country by an engine at breakneck speed has proved most beneficial. Mr. Blaine visited the Merchants' exchange and was received with cheers. President Peabody introduced the visitor in a neat speech. Mr. Blaine replied at length and his remarks elicited much applause. He paid a high compliment to Cincinnati, her enterprising business men and touched upon her great transportation facilities. He left the exchange at 1:30 p. m. Mr. Blaine returned to his hotel, where he held a reception. From 3 o'clock until 4:20 there was a constant stream of visitors pouring through the hall into parlor No. 13, and thence out by the Third street entrance. Mr. Blaine received the visitors, shaking hands with each one, and grasped the hand of each as they passed along. For an hour and twenty minutes this was kept up, when it was found necessary to shut off the crowd to enable the party to be any end to the procession. Mr. Blaine and Gen. Logan, a few minutes after, made their appearance on the upper floor of the hotel. During the day Mr. Blaine received delegations from Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, Louisiana, West Virginia and Tennessee, who requested him to make a tour of the states. He consented to go to Indiana, Illinois and West Virginia, and expressed regret that he could not visit other states.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 3.—Mr. Blaine will go from West Virginia to Michigan, and will spend Oct. 14, 15, 16, and 17 in that state. The 18th and 19th will be devoted to rest and recuperation preparatory to the 20th when he will spend four days in Indiana, filling a programme which will be arranged by the state central committee. On the morning of the 24th he will be received by the Illinois state central committee at Danville, and will proceed thence to Springfield. Gen. Logan will accompany Mr. Blaine in Indiana during the last week in October.

A Ballot Girl's Adventures.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Among the passengers on the steamship St. Laurent, from Havre, who were landed at Castle Garden, was pretty Miss Schiller, 18 years of age. When the vessel was two days out from Havre Anna was found hiding behind some casks. She was clad in a light gauzy costume, quite unsuited for the sea, and was shivering with cold and half famished. The poor girl was taken in charge by the captain and stated that she had left her home who in Bavaria, and that her parents took her to Paris, where she appeared upon the stage of a variety theatre. Being illtreated by the manager she decided to run away from them and hid herself on the ship. She is without money and has no relatives or friends in this country. Superintendent Jackson, in charge of Castle Garden, has undertaken to see that she is not befriended until her parents can be heard from. She will probably be sent back to Havre.

McCullough Closely Guarded.

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—There is no change for the better in the condition of John McCullough. He is closely guarded at the Sherman hotel, and he is not permitted to quit the building. It is not known whether Mr. McCullough will be sent to his family in Philadelphia or to his brother's in Cincinnati. Messrs. Price and Brooks are still here. When asked what would be the future movements of the unfortunate tragedian Mr. Manager Brooks said: "I have said all I will say in regard to the matter. The management is cancelled, and that is the end of it. There is nothing more in the matter to say." Mr. McCullough is now a private citizen, and should be treated as such. I suppose his future movements will be announced hereafter. The thing is all over, and I personal favor I wish the papers would drop it."

That Post Office Robbery.

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Oct. 3.—There is nothing new in the post office bond robbery. Postal Inspector Newcomb is still in the city and working on the case. He is reticent as yet no arrests have been made. Complaints were made to the local postmaster by N. A. Tanner, of a monthly magazine published in Boston, and by Hurlbut, Bowling, of the Yale Silk company, who claim that small amounts of money contained in letters addressed to them have been taken therefrom at different times past. The case will be investigated.

A Trifle Rude Perhaps.

TROY, Oct. 3.—During the funeral service of a prominent Trojan the officiating clergyman paid a touching tribute to the memory of the supposed woman before him. He spoke of her many virtues, her great sympathy when informed by a friend of the deceased that he had been preaching over the remains of a man.

NO MORE MEDICINE.

The Laying On of Hands to Go Away with Doctors.

Dutch and Other Mysterious Cures Said to Be the Prevailing Fad Now—Incredible Stories Concerning Their Success.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3.—A special dispatch to the Times from York, Pa., says: "The publication last week of an account of the journey of Mr. Myers to Mount Wolf Healing from a consultation of Englishmen to apparent strength and vigor by Edmund D. Myers, of this city, has attracted the attention of a large number of persons who have suffered from various causes which have baffled the skill of the legitimate physician. As a consequence Mr. Myers has been overwhelmed with applications for relief. Among the number whose attention was directed to the potency of Mr. Myers' touch was James Kennedy, whose home is at No. 1,424 North Eighteenth street, Philadelphia. Mr. Kennedy arrived in this city from Philadelphia last evening. When first seen his condition was so pitiable as to excite the sympathy of every beholder. With a heavy cane in each hand he hobbled along in a painful manner that could hardly be called walking. Immediately upon his arrival he inquired for the residence of ex-Sheriff Peeling, and sought a confirmation of the report published. It was more than seven years Mr. Kennedy has been crippled by what eminent physicians of Philadelphia pronounced sciatica, and for which they had applied all the known remedies of the day. He has also

NOBLE LORD'S ARRESTED.

They Consider Themselves Very "Fly," but the Police are "Flyer."!

LONDON, Oct. 3.—The prize fight at Epsom between Jack Massie and Coddy Middings, has had some sensational results. Most of the aristocrats who witnessed the slugging match escaped from the police in carriages or on horseback. Some, however, were less lucky, and one party of five was nearly captured. They were leading spirits in arranging the fight, and being very "fly," had taken remarkable precautions to hoodwink the police in case a raid. They had engaged a large furniture van and when all the constables appeared upon the scene the five noble abettors of the manly art climbed into the van, bolted the doors on the inside and told the driver to drive with all possible speed to London. The van started off all right, but the extraordinary rate at which it went attracted the notice of the police and a mounted squad was sent in pursuit of them. The constables overtook the van at Streatham, and a short conversation with the driver convinced him that he had better direct his course to a police station. The five gentlemen who had imprisoned themselves in the van heard nothing of this conversation and knew nothing of the change of destination which had been arranged. They laughed and chatted boisterously inside of the van until it stopped. Then they unbolted the door, clambered down the back steps of the van, and each gentleman found himself in the grasp of a stalwart policeman. They were escorted into the police station and made as comfortable as possible pending their removal for examination at Bow street. The inspectors at Scotland Yard look upon this as a remarkably clever arrest. They say that if high-toned gentlemen will violate the laws of the land it is very considerate on their part to provide their own prison vans, and the example should be imitated. Detectives are scouring London in search of other abettors of the fight, and the list of suspects includes at least one baronet.

ROMANCE OF A SHIRT.

That Necessary Article of Attire May Lead to a Marriage.

WAVERLEY, N. J., Oct. 3.—Sunday night a young doctor of Newton centre escorted the daughter of a prominent and wealthy citizen to church. The father of the girl had forbidden her to keep the young man's company. When church was out the father lay in wait behind a tree for his daughter's companion, and jumped out upon him as he passed. He seized the young man by the throat and tore his collar off and the bosom out of his shirt. The old gentleman then ran away. The doctor went on home with the young lady as though nothing had happened. When she entered the house her father took her to the parlor and pointed to the doctor's shirt bosom which he had tacked on the wall.

"I intend to have it framed," he said.

On Monday the doctor saw the old gentleman passing his office. The story of the shirt bosom was already known about the village. The young man rushed out, dragged his Sunday night assailant into his office and compelled him to take off his white shirt. Attaching to it this placard, "A contribution from a coward," he fastened the garment to a pole and hung it out of his office window. Since then the father of the young lady has apologized to the doctor, and invited him to call on his daughter as often as he pleases. The doctor has accepted the apology, and will not surprise the village if he became the old gentleman's son-in-law at no distant day.

American Seamen Imprisoned in Halifax.

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 3.—Six seamen of the bark Moss Glen from New York alleged to be for Dunkirk, are in distress, refusing to work any further because of the shipping articles read: "To any port in the known world excepting Green'sind," and also because they were illegally shipped according to the latest American law. They were in consequence arrested last week. The city magistrate gave judgement deciding as follows: First, that the shipping articles, or in other words, the contract of the prisoners with the captain is not void by reason of the payment of the advance in New York; Second, that the voyage is described in the articles with sufficient particularity in view of the requirement of section 149 of the merchants' shipping act of 1854, and the amending act of 1870; Third, that in view of the captain's offer to allow two of the men to go ashore at a time to make complaint to a magistrate. Considering that the ship had just arrived in port on the 1st inst., the refusal to do duty was not justifiable. "I am not disposed, however, to view the offence with severity, and if the men return to their duty they will be discharged, otherwise they will be imprisoned in the city prison for two weeks with hard labor." The men said they would prefer going for six months rather than join the Moss Glen at present, so they accepted the sentence. The American consul general was a witness at the trial.

Tennessee Wants No Mormons.

NASHVILLE, Oct. 3.—The excitement in Lewis county over the warning given to the Mormon converts to leave on pain of death is on the increase. It is known that the Mormons expires next Monday, and it is understood that serious trouble will result should the warning be disregarded. James Condor, at whose house Elders Gibbs and Berry were killed, and whose son and stepson were slain, has been ordered to depart as soon as possible. William Winters, one of the Mormons, left a day or two ago for Missouri. Thomas Garrett went to Illinois, and Elisha Talleys, John Lancaster and William S. Ely will leave this week. Others are selling their property and preparing to get away before next Monday. Mormons in Hickman counties are also looking for new homes. No trouble has yet occurred in Wilson county, but the Mormons there are much alarmed.

Murdering for Fun.

PLATONIA, Tex., Aug. 3.—At New Prague station three unknown men dismounted before the store of F. Kroesek and shot and instantly killed Kroesek. They then remounted and rode southward. A report from a point a few miles south of here states that the desperadoes shot and killed a farmer on the road, and rumors have been circulated of other similar murders further south in the country. Officers, with a posse of farmers, are in pursuit of the murderers. No robberies have been reported and the cause of the murders is a mystery.

Lots of Ballots, But No Results.

HARRISBURG, Oct. 3.—The congressional conference of the Fourteenth congressional district re-assembled, and after taking four more ballots they were unable to come to any result. The convention adjourned to meet at Sunbury, North Cumberland county, on Oct. 13.

Land Agitation in Scotland.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—The Scotch land restoration league is raising a fund of $5,000 with which to engage Mr Henry George to lecture in Scotland, and organize local leagues for agitation, in view of the coming general election. Mr. George is expected to arrive in November.

WOMAN AND HOME.

Mrs. Frank Leslie's Brief Letter from Long Branch.

A Good Word for Homely Girls—Bedroom Furniture—Piano and Mantle—Fashion Items —Brevities.

[New York Tribune.]

BOSTON OR THE TRIBUNE: A letter from a Long Branch correspondent published in your paper is being extensively copied, and as many of its inaccuracies put me in an unfavorable light before the public to which we both appeal, I will ask you to make a few corrections.

My immediate party at the Branch consisted of a lady, her daughter, son, and the gentleman whom I am to marry, and we joined a number of friends, and with them occupied a cottage at the west end.

I remained but four days, having been recalled to town by important business, and my hotel bill was $20.50, and not "$400 a week" as was stated.

I have a pair of horses, and not "ten," and no groom, and have never in my life employed a maid, French or otherwise, having faith in the proverb that, "The Lord helps those who help themselves."

I really have not counted my dresses, and cannot say whether they number "sixty-three complete toilets," but I do know that on the visit referred to I wore but three silver black or white, and they of the simplest description.

Your correspondent is right as to my having worn diamonds (not "a pint measure full"), and they were worn in proper place and number—a pair of solitaires, which I have the proud satisfaction of having purchased out of my own earnings, and a corsage, as old fashioned, in engagement gift.

As regards my marriage to the Marquis de Imoville, when that event takes place it will be as publicly announced as was our engagement.

It is always painful to have one's private affairs brought before the public, but since mine were considered of sufficient interest to your correspondent to write, it is but right that that article should be correct. Besides, as I am the head of a publishing house which devotes several columns, and no unusual daily attention is given to the conduct of my business, you will readily see how annoying like these and the references intended to be drawn from them, are likely to prove detrimental to my interests.

I can only hope and believe that your correspondent (whom I take to be a woman) has been misinformed and is not malicious, as no one has received greater or more generous encouragement and support from the press, or is more profoundly grateful for it than

Yours respectfully, MRS. FRANK LESLIE.

A Good Word for Homely Girls.

[Pittsburg Dispatch.]

"Why are homely girls always the best scholars, the best workers, and make the best wives?" This question was propounded by an observant and intelligent gentleman who had been twice led to the hymeneal altar, and is ready to be sacrificed again.

"Is such really the case?"

"I have reason to know that it is. It is natural enough, isn't it? The girl who is handsome in feature and form considers very early in life that these are her stock in trade, and with these she enters the matrimonial market. Nine times out of ten she is soon off the books and at the head of a home. Her homely sister has hardly entered her teens until she discovers she is made to stand aside for the pretty-faced girls. All that means of dress, elegance of manners, and proficiency in the arts of pleasing she's self attractive she does, deliberately and for a purpose, perhaps, or possibly for no other reason than, Topsy-like, she grew that way."

"The chances are she does it solely for the purpose of compensating for her lack of physical beauty."

"My observations lead directly to the opposite conclusion," replied the intelligent observer. "There is among the great laws of nature one known as the law of compensation, and I can think of nothing that tends to fit the homely girl is indebted for the tastes and disposition that prompts her to make herself useful when she can not be ornamental."

"Then if you had the choice of two ladies, one beautiful and the other homely, you would take the homely one?"

"Experience and observation both teach me that would be the wise thing to do. The first impulse would naturally be to take the prettier of the two, but I would give the first impulse time to pass off, and act upon sober, second thought."

The old gentleman may be entirely right in this matter.

Bed-Room Furniture.

[Godey's Lady Book.]

The furniture of a country bed-room should never be heavy. Exquisite suits of common pine, covered with cretonne or cattoon, are now admired much; but oak, ash, cak, or satin-wood are still the conventional materials. Draped dressing bureaux or "tables" are extremely pretty. They are merely pine structures covered with frills and flounces, and holding an upright mirror from which falls a sweep of effective drapery. A garniture of lace and some artificial flowers is permitted, but the frills are always in dainty taste, and better not tampered with. A bedstead of brass or nickel hung with white curtains is a pretty addition to the room. The whim now is to stand the bed out from the wall toward the center of the room, so that it is accessible from all sides. This is an old custom. Old furniture can often be adapted to a sleeping apartment. A bed with a valance is quite an institution, and the old straight-backed chairs are perfectly adaptable. Worn-out chairs may be recaned, taking folded pieces of stout ticking, and working them into a basket pattern secured around the edges with brass nails. A cushion of cretonne supplied with a flounce half way up to the floor, is the proper finish.

Swiss Girls.

[Foreign Letter.]

No sooner are the girls large enough to possess the requisite physical strength than they are set to the most servile work the land affords. The child has a pannier-basket fitted to her shoulders at the earliest possible moment, and she drops it only when old age, premature but merciful, robs her of power to carry it longer. I have seen seven little girls, of 10 or 14, staggering along the mountain side, or along a rough pathway, under the weight of bundles of fagots as large as their bodies, which they no sooner dropped than they had to fetch others.

I have seen girls of 15 or 16 years, barefooted and bare-headed, in the blistering rays of an August sun, breaking up the ground by driving a multitude heavy enough to tear the strength of an able-bodied man. And I have known a young miss no older than these to be employed as a porter for carrying the baggage of travelers up and down the steep, rocky mountain path in all the region round about. She admitted that it was sometimes very hard to take another step, but yet she must do it. And she received much as remuneration for her services as a Swiss porter.

But, lest I exhaust you of your chance—I closed you of your chance."

"So it so, Joe. I forgive you, and love you all the same. Now, throw off the burden and live for Polly's sake and mine."

"Too late, too late," faltered the failing lips. They refused to touch the glass. The limp body fell back almost lifeless in Phil's arms. Then Joe summoned himself once more and called for Polly in a harsh, strained voice that reached her despite the roar of the sea. She flew to his side, but was only in time to catch a few indistinct, disjointed sentences. With a last effort the dying man lifted the hands of his wife and his friend, joined them together, clasped his own around them, and so the three remained till the soul of Joe Barrett fled.

* * * * * * *

"And if there could be such a thing as witchcraft," said Miss Mortimer to some friends the other day, "Joe Barrett's widow would have been burned at the stake long ago. She was pretty well on in years when Joe died, and I'll leave it to anybody if she don't look like a blonde mummy now. Phil Somers has that air of distinction and elegance about him that he might carry almost anybody; Joe Barrett's widow is old and ugly and sick and poor, but I shouldn't be at all surprised if Phil Somers would marry her."

Indian, just over, smiling grossly: "Spiel! Tres f' 5 cent—s."

"I say who told you you could keep a stand here?"

"A—h," intelligently, "panamas. Nice piece—nice."

The reporter seemed to be angry about something now, and spoke in a loud voice and as though his whole heart was in his tongue: "Darn your 'panamas! Who gave you a permit to sell here?"

Italian, fairly cackling with understanding: "U y-e-s, sirzoola ma. Yess, dem panamas."

And he seized the tin measure, with three fingers in the inside, after the thrifty fashion of his tribe, and made a dash at the gooders. But when he turned to offer them to his customer the inquisitor had gone on towards the mayor's office, murmuring to himself in large capitals. Cesar Pratinon walked out to the curbstone and gazed wistfully after him until he turned the corner, and then sat down on his stool muttering his disgust at "Dutch-a-mans who spik not Inglis."

After a Desperate Chase he Caught It.

[Boston Globe.]

"Boys," said old Charley Bridges, the other day, "I have a joke to tell you, and it's a good one, too, if I was the victim."

"You know, boys, it was blowing pretty hard last night when the saloons closed, and somehow or other I found myself in a part of the city (Boston) that I couldn't locate then, and never have. There were high, seven-story buildings on each side. That much I could see, but the wind had blown out about, I should say, every other lamp, and it was as dark as—well, use your own imagination. I had on a black felt hat, and upon coming to a side street, down which the wind blew a terrific blast, off it went, and I after it. Run as hard as I could, that confounded hat kept just in front of me. Up one street, down another, until, after chasing it for about 500 miles, I should say, I got it in a corner, and clutched—a black cat! Boys, what's yours?"

JOTTINGS.

—Hop at the Netherwood this evening.

—Readings at the Park House this evening by Miss Leslie.

—Denton's finest sale of trees is advertised in another column.

—The regular meeting of the Common Council for October will be held on Monday evening.

—A fair for the benefit of St. Joseph's Catholic Church is to take place as advertised elsewhere.

—Mr. Frank Dodge and Mr. John H. H. Sayers will speak at a temperance meeting at Mt. Bethel to-morrow evening.

—Secretary Chu called yesterday on his way to visit the President at Secretary Frelinghuysen's residence at Raritan.

—The anniversary of the Third Presbyterian Sunday School of Elizabeth occurs to-morrow. Judge Good, of this city, was one of the first officers of the school.

—Mr. James McGee, of North Plainfield, a lay preacher of the Methodist Episcopal Church, will preach in the church of that denomination at Bound Brook to-morrow.

—There was a preparatory service at the Trinity Reformed Church last evening. The pastor, the Rev. A. V. V. Raymond, preached a sermon, and other exercises incident to the occasion were held.

—The entertainment to be given at the Reform Club Hall, on Tuesday evening next will be the most interesting and eloquent temperance lesson ever given in Plainfield, and for a good purpose.

—Cleveland should have been given eleven votes and Blaine twenty-five in the account of presidential preferences of the High School lads, and not as given yesterday. These votes don't count now, however.

—The Fair and Lawn party on Mr. L. W. Sacrell's grounds is postponed until Monday afternoon, on account of the ground at present being too wet. The proceeds are to be for the benefit of the Children's Home.

—A train on the South Branch road ran off the track at Somerville on Thursday afternoon through an open switch. The passengers were shaken up, but no one was hurt. Travel was delayed for a few hours.

—One of Plainfield's firemen, a member of Zephyr Hook and Ladder Company, is out in a very neat uniform suit, made of fine blue beaver cloth. It is proposed by a correspondent that all the firemen adopt the same.

—To-night is the last night of the Turn Verein fair in Ryder's Hall on West Front street. As the week has been rather stormy, the friends of the fair people should turn out en masse this evening, for a glorious wind up.

—There were nineteen arrests during the month of September. Thirteen of these were for drunkenness, three for disorderly conduct, one for selling liquor, one for stealing and one for the violation of the back ordinance.

—Mr. R. S. Manning, the Corresponding Secretary of the State Reform Club League, will hold a temperance meeting at Stelton with eight members of the Choristers and a number of speakers to-morrow evening. He also sends a delegation to speak at the afternoon meetings at Bound Brook and Somerville.

—The newest important industry of Plainfield, the Scott Press works, will start up Monday morning, when the whistle will be sounded for the first time. The whistle is provided with chimes, to prevent a harsh sound, and being very large, can be heard for long distances. For some weeks only pattern work will be done. When the patterns are completed, other branches will be started up in proper order.

—Great interest is being manifested in the forthcoming parade of the H. I. M. club. One of the best looking members, wealthy or otherwise, said yesterday, who looks upon Haven a great aid to his digestion, and who therefore either reads it three times a day to commit it to memory fear—or ought to—informed us this morning that 1,700 persons have seized him what is the H. I. M. club referred to in THE NEWS. And I put each fourth of one hundred added him. What is it? No, it isn't a what-is-it club. Some say H. I. M. means His Infernal Majesty's club, or the Homeliest Independent Men of Plainfield.

—Arthur LePoe, the young Frenchman, of Jersey City, who was recently indicted for larceny, withdrew his plea of not guilty yesterday and pleaded guilty. He will be sentenced on Monday.

THE OIL-CLOTH WORKS ON FIRE.

Varnish in the Stationary Caldron Found Heated Gas—One of the Workmen Burned.

Early this afternoon an engine on the Readington road gave notice as it passed through the city, of a fire, somewhere near the oil-cloth works, by a terrific blowing of the whistle. In a short time the fire bellmarked to the city, and a cloud of black smoke in the eastern part of the city fixed the fire definitely at the oil cloth works above Richmond street.

The oil refinery at the works was a small brick building by itself in one end of the yard. A wooden shed was attached to it and a number of oil and varnish barrels were scattered about the yard. Edward Benyot, a workman, was engaged in reducing some black varnish. Some of the other fire plugs had been used during the day, but there was no other fire in the building except that used by Benyot. The other fire places however were hot, and it is thought that the gas, or heated air, from them, caused the varnish which was being reduced to catch fire. The fire spread quickly to the wooden shed and to the oil barrels. Benyot was burned somewhat about the hands, and was taken home.

As the fire is still burning as we go to press the loss cannot be definitely stated.

A Worthy Subscription.

Mrs. Rose Farley who was run over and had her leg broken by a young man on horseback named Hoglen on Tuesday afternoon, of being cared for at the Muhlenberg Hospital and is doing as well as can be expected. It will be remembered that young Englen was riding from Dr. Long's office at the time of the accident, and was returning to his mother who had been injured in an accident at the Notch, and for whom he had come to this city to get a doctor.

Mrs. Farley is very poor and was living with parties who gave her a home for looking after their children while the mothers went out washing. The misfortune of the old lady enlisted the sympathies of Mr. Fred Berry who immediately started a subscription in her favor. The following is the subscription list with the amounts obtained.

Fred Berry, 50; W. S. Benton, 50; Cash, 15; Cash 25; J. L. 25; Cash, 25; Mrs. D. S. R. 25; Mrs. J. B. B. 25; Cash, 25; Cash, 25; Cash 25; Friend 50; L. M. 50; Cash 25; D. Roberts, 25; Cash, 15; Cash, 35; Anna Randolph, 25; Cash, 10; R. J. Shaw, 25; Arthur Linsley, 25; Cash, 25; Cash, 25; A. M. Griffin, $1; Griffin, 25; Cash, 10; Cash 25; Cash, $1; Cash $1; Cash $1; Cash 25; Cash, 25; L. L. Compton, 25.

Mrs. Farley has requested Mrs. Berry, to keep the amount subscribed for her until she is discharged from the hospital, when it will be of great use to her as she will then be without a home.

The Democratic Mass Meeting.

The Democrats had to contend against very disagreeable weather in holding their mass meeting in VanDeventer Hall last evening, but notwithstanding this the hall was fairly filled with voters eager to hear the campaign discussed from Democratic standpoints. The guards were there in uniforms and the Cornet Band enlivened the intervals with music.

Mr. James E. Martine called the meeting to order and in behalf of the city executive committee nominated Judge Nathan Harper as chairman. Judge Harper was unanimously elected, and on taking the chair made a short speech. A number of vice-presidents from the several wards were also elected. Judge Harper introduced as the speaker of the evening the Hon. C. H. Winfield, of Hudson county. Mr. Winfield occupied the entire time, speaking for about two hours.

Fire Board Meeting.

The Fire Board met in special session in the parlors of Zephyr Hook and Ladder Co., last evening at eight o'clock.

Present — President Van Winkle, and Messrs. Morris, Jones and Livingston. Absent Mr. Depew.

Mr. T. C. Dunn presented the plans and specifications for the new hose to be built for Gazelle Engine Co., No. 1, and Zephyr Hook and Ladder Co. The plans were referred back to Mr. Dunn to be altered and presented to the Board again this evening.

Mr. Jones presented a bill from Alex Gee for fifty cents for removing a dog from the Third and Liberty street well.

The Board then adjourned to meet this evening at the same place at eight o'clock.

A Self-Confessed "Mugwump."

Some person, who is said to be well informed, writes to the newspapers from this place and says that Plainfield has a "mugwump" when he sees one.—Central Times.

"Mugwump," whatever that means need not reproduce several times.

At the times on several occasions has prided itself on being an independent Republican newspaper, and has frequently halted the party nominations, it is evidently calling itself names, and of course can take its own medicine, as indicated in the last extract.

A Baby Lockwood Club.

A Belva Lockwood Campaign Club was organized at Rahway Thursday night with a membership of seventy-five young men. Their uniform consists of a highly colored Mother Hubbard dress and polka bonnet. Being the first in the field the fair Belva should see that they are duly encouraged.

The F. T. V. Fair.

To-night will end the week of the Plainfield Turn Verein Fair. The contest for the whip, cane and diamond ring will be decided to-night and some lively voting is expected. The proceeds of the fair are to go to the society.

Services To-morrow.

Communion services will be held in the Trinity Reformed Church in the morning. As usual on Communion Sunday no service will be held in the evening.

An evening service will take the place of the usual afternoon service at the Holy Cross Church, North Plainfield. The Rev. A. E. Tuttle is expected to officiate. The high at the Methodist Episcopal Church morning and evening.

Non church goers and young people especially are very cordially invited to the free o'clock meeting in the afternoon at Reform Club Hall, under the auspices of the Women's Christian Temperance Union. Christian workers regardless of denominations, and all who are interested in Gospel Temperance, are requested to aid in the exercises by volunteer testimonial addresses of five minutes each. The leader requests that those who are interested in the spiritual welfare of friends or relatives will remember them for the prayers of the people. He says that an experience of twelve years in this special brand of Christian work proves its efficacy.

A Runaway Boy's Recommendation.

Isaac Morehouse, of Rahway, started on Tuesday night with horse and wagon on an electioneering tour. He had not progressed far before he drove up to a house in that place, and left his conveyance for a few minutes.

Johnny Sheridan, a promising Rahway youth, perhaps 16 years of age, saw the horse standing there, and jumping into the wagon drove off. He went to Bound Brook Wednesday, and on to Somerville, then back to Bound Brook again, drove over to Chimney Rock and back, and then put up the horse in William Taylor's barn for the night.

But the horse did not stay there long. Wm. Taylor, Jr., who now lives at Rahway happened to be home there on a visit, and seeing the horse, at once recognized it as belonging to Mr. Morehouse. Young Taylor accordingly took Sheridan and the conveyance back to Rahway where the youthful John was arrested.

Somerset County Prohibition Convention.

A number of Prohibitionist met in Bound Brook yesterday and formed a county organization, with the following officers:

President—George La Monte.
Vice-President—Wm. H. Vactor.
Secretary—Peter Vroom.
Asst. Secretary—Rev. W. Chamberlin.

Delegates were appointed to the Congressional convention.

Rev. H. O. Opdyke was chairman of the meeting, and R. W. Dunning, secretary.

The Warren Mission Meeting.

There were about two hundred and fifty persons present at the temperance meeting at the Warren Mission in North Plainfield last evening. The following were the speakers: Doctor Platt, Frank Dodge, Frank Mundy, S. F. Robins, Lot Marshall, C. Cassidy, George Decker, J. Q. Miles, Louis Wright, Samuel Tucker, P. Tenbrook, Frank Marsh, Mrs. Theodore F. Randolph and Miss Gracie Randolph.

Accident at Bloomington.

Thursday morning Robert McNabb met with an accident which may prove quite serious to him. At the time the mishap occured Mr. McNabb was busy in his planing mill, at Bloomington, running a buzz-saw. A board he was sawing suddenly flew back, and striking him on the left cheek, just under the eye, peeled off the skin, leaving the bones almost bare. He was also injured about the hips.

Died from His Injuries.

Phillip Deming, who was knocked off the Fence street bridge by a train on Monday last, died this morning at the Muhlenberg Hospital of blood poisoning, resulting from the injuries then sustained. The dead man's wife and brother were telegraphed for, but arrived too late to see him alive. His remains will be taken to his late home for interment.

Personal.

The Rev. Dr. A. S. Patton, of Netherwood has returned from a trip to Europe.

Mr. Charles MacGeachy, well-known in this city as the founder and editor of the Dunellen Hook, a paper which achieved something more than local notoriety, is the secretary of the new Lyceum Theatre school of New York city.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1884.

A NEW PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE.

Another Presidential candidate was formally put in the field a few days ago. Captain William L. Ellsworth is the man, and he is the standard bearer of the American Political Alliance, and he resides in Philadelphia.

Captain Ellsworth is proud of his military record and full of mystifying allusions to his private and intimate relations with the most famous men of the country, whose autograph letters he often displays. He never fails to make a most profound impression upon the members of the organization that has made him its candidate. Captain Ellsworth's life has had but one policy—dodging reporters. He has admitted to some of his most intimate friends that the restriction of immigration and a change in the naturalization laws will be the first things to occupy his attention, but as yet he has not announced his Cabinet. He has thrown out some intimations, however, that he will choose "great Americans" and has made several enigmatical allusions to "his friend, Mr. Conkling." He told an intimate friend yesterday that he had assurances that Mr. Conkling would speak for him. "Why, bless your heart," he remarked to this gentleman, "Conkling is a member of the Alliance. He was Hamilton Fish; so was General Dix. Some of the most famous men of the country are with us and will come to the front at the proper time."

Captain Ellsworth presents the curious anomaly of a Presidential candidate who is not in the directory. He once had lodgings over a store on Arch street, near Sixth, Philadelphia, but his letters never came there and few even knew his name. But in order to gratify public curiosity Captain Ellsworth has prepared a biography of himself, to be used for campaign purposes, which he has given to one of his trusty lieutenants and is now put in print. In this he describes his origin and rise to distinction. He is a native of Connecticut, born November 15, 1837. He was, under Pierce, Council at Cyprus, Turkey. He went into the war as Captain in a New York regiment. He was nominated for Congress in the Third New York District in 1872, but withdrew before election. Captain Ellsworth is a civil engineer and inventor. In politics he has been in sympathy with the Stalwart wing of the Republican party.

His friends say that he will make the canvass an active one, contesting every inch of ground in support of the principles of which he has been made the "standard bearer." A membership of 500,000 is claimed. The campaign headquarters will be located at Philadelphia. The national committee claim all the doubtful States and by reason of the many tickets in the field claim the election of the American "farmer boy."

Capt. Darit, of the Nova Scotia ship Colchester, who was locked up in jail in Jersey City to answer to Charles A. Johnston, who had been steward of the vessel, for entering Mrs. Johnston's affections, has paid the injured husband $600 and secured his release.

THE CHURCH BELL.

A Brooklyn Colored Congregation Are Members of It.

A Lively Account of a Lively Squabble—Breeders and Sisters Insnare the Harmony of a Sunday Night's Service.

BROOKLYN, Oct. 4.—Aaron Johnson, ex-deacon of the Bethel Baptist Church (colored) people, and Joseph Bacon, sexton and change-preacher for the Memorial Colored church, which holds divine service on the top floor of a building at Cumberland and Fulton streets, were with a dozen or more dusky church members in Justice Walsh's court, Johnson as plaintiff, there on business. Both men claimed to have been assaulted and each made charges of assault and battery against the other. Johnson charged that Mrs. Louisa Field and Sister Charlotte Jackson were the principal witnesses on one side. According to their sworn statements the defendant came into the church Sunday evening last. The prayer-meeting in the Memorial church had just been opened. Parson Roberts was giving out the hymn when Deacon Johnson declared a little late. Brother Bacon, the sexton and preacher, occupied the chair which is known as the "deacon's seat." Deacon Johnson asked Brother Bacon to vacate the deacon's chair. The aged sexton refused to. The deacon and the sexton became angry. Sister Jackson, who is the church's secretary, stood the sexton on the head with her palm-leaf fan. Bacon seized a chair and tried to drive Johnson through the church with it. The singing ceased, and Parson Roberts, who is fat, rose to its feet to quell the disturbance.

Johnson believed his life was in danger. He started through the aisle and was endeavored to persuade him that his course was most un-Christian-like and not calculated to impress the sister's with meekness of heart. Recalled to Johnson's counsel's story, was in no manner to receive what some advice. He endeavored to [illegible] thing from his pocket. [illegible] a missile [illegible] Arrangements [illegible] against [illegible] Gideon [illegible] Johnson [illegible] Bacon [illegible] Roberts [illegible] the [illegible] pastor [illegible] wanted [illegible] matter in [illegible] church, and started [illegible] something about her grandfather's maxim that honesty was always the best policy. The magistrate smiled and told her so tell what happened on Sunday night. With a grieved look the witness said that Mrs. Jackson struck her "dah nasty" on the nose with her fan and knocked her senses from their proper position. He went on singing as if nothing had happened until Johnson struck him on the head with a chair. He solemnly testified that she hit Mrs. Jackson with a chair.

When Brother Bacon was called to the stand he looked appallingly at the judge and then exhibited a very large rent in a very ragged vest. Johnson, he said, had torn it when he grabbed the white man's coat from the church witness to return the compliment, "pasted Johnson over de eye." Sister Louisa Fields, a member of the church choir, testified that Johnson's attack caused numerous dissensions in the church. As a preacher he was not a success. The church had been "pulled down flat" on its account. The congregation was rendered unhealthy by his presence. Papers which were submitted in evidence showed that Johnson had been expelled from the Bacon church for not walking in the straight and narrow way. After other evidence which reflected more or less on the character of both Bacon and Johnson had been heard, Justice Walsh informed the latter that it was his candid belief that he had told more than one falsehood while on the witness chair. Bacon appeared to have told truthful. Johnson was then fined $10, and with that peculiar, hair-suppressed utterance which distinguishes the colored people left the court room.

Two Brave but Rash Poets.

OTTAWA, Oct. 4.—Pete Mueller and N. Petersen, two Danes, recently arrived at Victoria, B. C., in a sealskin canoe, having made the voyage from the Island of Kodiac, off the Alaska coast in about a fruit bark in 105 days. They pursued their way over the billows along the coast, frequently living for days on whatever they could find. Before reaching Cape Spencer a terrific storm overtook them, capsizing their canoe. After righting her, they headed for Cape Hillsborough, in touching at which they had their troubles, the Behring's Indians, who are unusually warlike and savage, gave evidence that they intended making it interesting for the adventurers, and they were forced to quickly put to sea. Among the Queetat Indians they ran the same hairbreadth escapes, and were only fortunate in getting out away with their lives. They put in at several places to replenish their stock of provisions, and at one landing succeeded in killing two porpoises. The fish thus secured was 1,500 miles, which was made in a canoe weighing seventy-five pounds when empty. The craft measured nineteen feet in length, was five feet wide in the beam, two feet deep and drew ten inches of water when loaded. After resting at Victoria the plucky navigators started on their journey to San Francisco.

A Boy Runs in Trouble.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 4.—Orrin G. Beasley of Thatcher, Primrose & West's minstrels, who was arrested on a charge of burglary in August last and was placed in the penitentiary to await the action of the Grand Jury, has been discharged. Beasley created great alarm in a house here by clambering at midnight through a window into a bedroom occupied by an elderly gentleman and his wife. The screams of the lady and the cries of "Murder!" "Thieves!" of her husband brought the neighbors and police to the house, and it was found that earlier in the evening he had engaged in a flirtation with a girl whom he met on the street and had made an appointment to meet her at the house he entered through the window. The mode of entrance to the house adopted by him was the one she had suggested. He described the appearance of the girl, and it was found that no person employed there answered the description. She denied, however, having met Beasley or inviting him to call on her.

A Long Wanted Thief Captured.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Oct. 4.—Albert Crump, colored, one of the most notorious, darkest criminals in Alabama has been arrested here. For five years he has been engaged in his nefarious business. He would break into and enter and remove all valuables from the freight until the train had reached some convenient spot, when he would throw out such freight as he wanted. He was developed in Atlanta, but always managed with his plunder. He has robbed several depots and looted a number of cars for the purpose of robbery. His capture was effected by a detective who has been on his track for a year.

"GLASSES IN OFFICE."

Sweet Items to the Scores of Democrats—An Explanation.

MONROE, O., Oct. 5.—The Blaine party arrived at 11:15. The town was beautifully decorated. Arches extended across the principal streets, cannon boomed, bands played and people cheered. Mr. Blaine was conducted to a grove half a mile from town, and spoke briefly.

CELEVELAND, Oct. 4.—Upon arrival at Xenia the Columbus reception committee joined the party. The streets were thronged. At least every house on the line of march displayed the American flag or some kind of decoration. The speechmaking occupied about an hour, when the train was again packed with people.

South Charleston was reached at 2:15. Over 3,000 people were awaiting him. The carriage was driven to a grove half a mile from the depot. On the way the horses drawing Mr. Blaine's carriage became unmanageable, and Mr. Blaine left the carriage. Blaine leaped to the ground, and was assisted into another carriage.

The train arrived at London at 3:35. Here Mr. Blaine was driven to Arbor Hill through lines of mounted gentlemen and ladies, the latter being attired in black jerseys, with white plumes and a few in white robes. The town was beautifully decorated. Prominent among the banners was the inscription, "London, Ohio, for Blaine: 2,000 majority." Then the wife of Mr. Blaine passed through two rows of little girls as he ascended the steps to the grand stand. Each girl represented a state. In the center was a little girl with a flag, and others on a banner she bore, had the Maine statesman to the steps, where another little girl representing Ohio took him, welcoming him in behalf of the state. Two other little ones scattered flowers in his pathway.

The train left London at 4 o'clock, arriving at West Jefferson at 4:30, where 1,000 people assembled. Mr. Blaine merely assured the people of his [illegible] for the reception, and [illegible] Columbus was [illegible]

Rescue [illegible]

[illegible] Rise Proved.

[illegible] Will of [illegible] he late [illegible] E. Henry, of this county, [illegible] condition, who was [illegible] for [illegible] ons, has been [illegible] written in pencil [illegible] on a piece [illegible] about [illegible] inches [illegible] torn from a blank used in the [illegible] navy. It is dated at Camp Clay, Ellsworth [illegible], May 15, 1864, and is as follows:

"I, Charles E. Henry, being of sound mind and health, do hereby declare this to be my last will and testament all my property, real and personal. Two thousand dollars I bequeath to my parents, brother and sisters now alive, to be equally divided among them. William Helms, of 99 South Fifth street, Chicago, I appoint as my executor.

CHARLES E. HENRY.

"Private, Fifth Cavalry, U. S. A."

The will is witnessed by Lieut. G. F. Kinglington and Private John Bendorf. A postal card to Mr. Helms tells of the condition of the command, saying:

"Camp Helms, Oct. —.

"Only six more days' provisions are left. Seven have died of starvation, and we are all ready to follow. We are living on slight rations of horse meat. The time is up before the 15th you can conclude all of us to be dead. My respect and love to all the few friends I met in Chicago. I remain yours.

CHARLES E. HENRY."

The Largest American Pilot Boat.

BOSTON, Oct. 4.—The largest pilot boat owned in the American fleet was launched at Chelsea. She is 104 feet long over all, 9 feet 6 inches on the water line in sailing trim, and will draw 18 feet 6 inches of beam, a 12 feet deep, and will draw 16 feet 6 inches of water aft. She has spacious quarters forward and aft, tastefully but substantially finished. The cabin, forward, starboard, state rooms, etc. Her frame is of white oak, her ceiling and planking are of hard pine, and is square fastened throughout, though a portion is copper fastened, and is finished in the first style of workmanship. She is owned by Capts. George W. Taylor, formerly commander of the Lillie, Augustus Hardy and Jarvis Smith, all branch pilots, and was built at Chelsea by Messrs. Howard and Montgomery. She will have two masts fore and aft rigged, with wire standing rigging. Manila hemp running, and cotton duck sails. She was designed and draughted by D. J. Lane, and is a handsome pilot fore-and draughted by him, all of which have been remarkable for speed and seaworthy qualities. She is to be named the Hesper.

Charges Against Prominent Municipal Officials.

MONTREAL, Oct. 4.—An investigation is now in progress by the civic corporation into some heavy defalcations by officials at Point Massau, who has just been discharged from jail in New York, and O'Meara, now also in jail, for whom a warrant was issued some months ago. It appears that Alderman Jeannet, from here, interviewed the men in New York, and received information, which he communicated to the council, involving high salaried officials, with manipulating the funds of the city for their private purposes. The council, however, refused to receive any questions at a meeting of committee on investigation, unless permitted to have his law adviser present to protect his interests. This was refused, and that formal charges be promulgated against him and his confrere. Some compromising admissions have been made by the treasurer and ex-treasurer, but the books are closed, and were locked on as inaccurate, these charges created genuine surprise.

Thin to Terrible.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Five girls, whose ages ranged from 14 to 18, have been arrested on charges of larceny. They had organized themselves into a regular band, known as "The Chinese Five," for pilfering Chinese families and carrying on other disreputable work. They would lure women from the Chinamen and then rob them. They were heavily dressed and showed a depravity seldom seen in children of their age. They all confessed and were sent to the Bridewell under fines of $100 each.

Victims of a Railroad Disaster.

ASHLAND, Wis., Oct. 4.—Four more of the men who were injured by the construction train on the Omaha road going into a washout near Brule, Douglas county, died of their wounds. They are J. McCoy, conductor, of Elroy; J. A. Robbington, engineer, of Albion; J. Meyrin, fireman, and M. McCarty, all living at Minneapolis, and Mr. Meyrin from his scalding. Ten coffins were ordered from St. Paul, which indicates that the number of victims is even greater.

The Week's Failures.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The business failures throughout the country occurring in the past seven days, as reported by R. G. Dun & Co.'s agency, by mercantile agency, by banks, number, for the United States 198, as against 208 last week, for Canada 39, as against a total of 218 last week. There is nothing particular to note. The failures are more numerous than usual in the south and west and light in New York city.

ASYLUM OR PRISON?

Which Will Open to Admit Young Rhinelander?

That Celebrated Case Still Being Argued—A Change of Its Base—Been Decided and the Decision Declared Sane.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The report of the commissioners in lunacy in the case of William C. Rhinelander, who shot John Drahm, was filed in his office to-day, and was found him to be a sane man, same up in the court of general sessions, before Recorder Smyth. Rhinelander listened attentively to the proceedings. Assistant District Attorney Vincent applied for such an order as is required from the court to confirm the report, which was filed on Sept. 10. Delmas and Patrick Nolan declared that Rhinelander was insane, the dissenting opinion being written by Commissioner Patterson. Mr. Vincent argued that the finding of the majority was conclusive. Mr. Frot R. Cowders, of counsel for the Rhinelander family, argued in favor of Mr. Vincent's motion, which he declared, fully sets the case. As Rhinelander had been found insane, they should be a suspension of his trial until he became sane. If the unfortunate young man were insane, it would be inhuman to put him on trial when he had no defense but insanity. The report, in Dr. Curtis' opinion, was a mere jury, and the report of the majority was that of the commission.

Ex-Judge Curtis, of counsel for Rhinelander, said that the case of Hadfield was the most remarkable proceeding in the history of jurisprudence. A citizen was indicted by the grand inquest of the country, and when he reported to the court for trial he is told that it has been made to appear to the court that he is insane. Mr. Curtis declared that every power of the district attorney's office had been pressed into service to establish the insanity of the respondent against whom there had been treated "a remarkable course of fraud." Mr. Curtis regretted that the doctor on the commission was not an alienist. Mr. Curtis urged that there had been a conspiracy to take the prisoner to a third Right Asylum. Defense was aware of the nature of the act committed, and if a jury declared that it was unconscious the respondent proposed to suffer its punishment.

Counsel dwelt on the intellectual power shown by Rhinelander when on the witness stand, and argued that there was no law relating to the appointment of the commission that made their report binding on the court. If Rhinelander had shown any insanity, Mr. Curtis said he himself would have joined in the petition to have him committed to any asylum. On the contrary, he was able to plead to the indictment, and showed the most remarkable intellectual clearness. Counsel were not defending him for pay, but because they were convinced that he was a sane man. If the report was not confirmed by the court, Mr. Curtis asked that the recorder should consider a former application for bail.

Mr. Cockcroft said that Rhinelander's family wished to save him from the fate of a felon until de was cured in a lunatic asylum. After enlivening talk between counsel, Recorder Smyth adjourned the hearing, when the evidence taken by the commissioners will be argued.

Hunting For Burglars.

FRENCHTOWN, N. Y., Oct. 4.—This section of the country along the line of the Ulster and Delaware railroad has lately been visited by a number of burglars. The dwelling of Mr. W. G. Newton, a prominent merchant here, was entered on the night of the 23d ultimo, and about $100 taken from pocket-books. The hotel of Mr. Rudd was likewise ransacked the same night and $5 left in a money drawer was taken. The robbers drooped their booty in their flight, however. Mr. Newton's trousers were found in the dooryard, and his pocketbook was picked up on the railroad, half a mile from the village. Both the Newton dwelling and factory and other places along the line of the railroad were visited during the week and various articles stolen. On Thursday night an attempt was made to enter the house of Mr. George Wolcott, at Pine Hill, who fired three shots at the intruder, and blood marks were found about the steep in the morning.

A $10,000 Election Wager.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The Financial Advertiser (Rep.), says: The sensation of the day was the report of the wager of $10,000 on the result of the election between two well known men. The wager is to be divided as follows: $1,000 that Cleveland will have 25,000 majority in New York county, $1,000 that he will have 15,000 majority in Kings county, $1,000 that Cleveland will carry New York, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Ohio and New Jersey, for whom he will receive, and be elected in Michigan, $1,000 that Blaine's majority in Ontario will not be as large as Folger's, and $1,000 on the general result, making $6,000. The odds are 5 to 3 that Ontario county in 1880 by about 1,000 majority, while Folger lost it in 1882 by over 600. The Republicans carried it last year by 300 majority.

An Editor Charged With Arson.

NEWARK, N. Y., Oct. 4.—J. W. F. Robertson, editor of the Journal, of Penn Yan, who was some time ago indicted for arson in the third degree for having been implicated in the firing of his office, is well known here, and it is said that the indictment against his father, who is Edward M. Ruttenber, the historian, was born here and resided here for many years. The accused man was formerly a resident of Penn Yan, where he was admired and respected. He did not plead guilty to the indictment, as has been stated, but was convicted by a jury of his peers. The lad who made the confession implicating Ruttenber has a bad reputation, having been expelled from Hamilton college for stealing. Robertson is out on bail, and under the name of Case, his counsel name being Chandler.

Another Electric Girl.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Another electric girl, the rival of Lulu Hurst and also from Georgia, is in this city and proposes to give exhibition. She gave a private séance to members of the press at the parlors of Madame Rose. She is but fourteen years old. Her methods are similar to those of Miss Hurst. Among her performances was overcoming the muscular strength of gentlemen by placing her hand on and lifting a chair with four men trying to hold it down. At the conclusion of this feat she was lifted by muscular fatigue. She claims it is mental force.

EXIT; ONE CANDIDATE.

A "Disturbing Factor in Politics" Eliminated.

The Headquarters of the American Alliance Collapse—An Innocent Note and a Flag Pulled on the Grave Results.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4.—The American Alliance, in addition to the misfortune that has overtaken its candidate, Capt. Ellsworth, has been visited by another stroke of bad luck in the collapse of the national headquarters at the Vendome hotel, on Broad street. In the morning James M. Mungen, the proprietor of the Vendome, received a hastily scrawled envelope which contained the following:

DEAR SIR: We will have to get a flag on the school house and will never do to start the campaign without a proper flag. I would like you to put a flag out of every window if possible. If they will not let us run a rope across the street we will have to put a flag on a pole, the one with my picture on. Don't mind the attacks on me by the Chronicle organ. (The Times.) They are instigated by Cleveland in New York. My political principles are all right, and have nothing to do with my private character. Yours truly, ELLSWORTH.

P. S.—Don't forget the flag.

The note, as is the custom with Capt. Ellsworth, gave no address. Mr. Munyon, upon receiving it, decided that the order to put out at once, grew very wratky. He had been looking anxiously for the candidate for several days, and had been bored almost to death by hundreds of all sorts of people coming in search of him and acting as if he was hidden away somewhere about the premises. Besides, he couldn't find out what the Alliance was, and he wanted to know who was going to pay for the room. "Who is the Alliance, anyhow?" demanded Mr. Munyon, when he got ordered.

"I am not the Alliance," said Charles Wilson, an elderly and very polite old gentleman, secretary of the home committee, who has been in charge of the building a week or more. "I don't know anything about it. I came here to oblige Ellsworth."

"Mr. Jennings," said the proprietor to the unruffled cashier, "call the all the porters and bell boys instantly."

In answer to several "ding dings" four strapping colored fellows arrived on the scene. "Order out the police," said Mr. Munyon, "and clear out that room. Bring everything there is, and store it in the back room. Put a padlock on the door, and don't have any of that sort of nonsense in my house." In a few minutes a couple of the men came down stairs, one with a roll of paper and the other with a bundle of rope and cane. "Does all de traps up dere, Mr. Munyon," said one, "ain't no colder campaign fixings." The roll of paper proved to be a manuscript address of Capt. Ellsworth, candidate of the American Alliance for president of the United States.

"What! are these all the assets?" exclaimed the irate landlord. "Throw them back there in the corner, and if any of the Alliance comes around here bothering any more, just tell them they'd better keep out of my way."

Electric Lights for Mines.

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Oct. 4.—Recent explosions of fire damp here set mine operators to thinking how most effectually to protect themselves and their employes. Many shafts in this region are using safety lamps, but they give a dim light. These and other circumstances have moved the H. C. Frick Coke company to make some experiments with the electric light, with a view to using it in mines. A two-horse dynamo has been placed in the engine house at the Trotter works, and the necessary wiring for lights in the engine room and tower at the mouth of the shaft and for four lights at the bottom. There is no doubt of the utility of electric lights in the mines, but the question to be determined is that of its cost. It would not be surprising to see within the next year the mines in the Connellsville region illuminated by electricity.

Meeting the Southern Exposition.

ATLANTA, Oct. 4.—A meeting was held in the senate chamber of the capitol in the interest of the world's exposition at New Orleans. Gov. Waller presided and made a short address, in which he introduced Col. F. C. Moorehead, commissioner general of the exposition. Hon. Thos. F. Plunkett, United States commissioner for this state, and others followed. The meeting then was an informal discussion by manufacturers from various parts of the state. It is generally understood that as a result of the meeting Connecticut will make a superb display of her resources and products.

Bound to Kill Somebody.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Last evening Daniel Ort, a native of Poland, entered the saloon No. 152 Chatham street, where a number of men were playing cards, and drawing a pistol, a revolver, attempted to shoot a young woman named Emma Storch. The shot, however, did not take effect, but the would-be murderer turned the weapon on himself and, tangle, pulled the trigger and dropped dead on the floor. Jealousy is supposed to have been the cause that led him to commit the deed.

John McCullough's Condition.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—John McCullough is much improved. He walked out of the hotel for a stroll at rationality and naturally as a perfectly sane man. McCullough, with his manager, Joseph Newton, has left the Leland hotel. It is thought they have started for New York, but their destinati on is not positively known.

CONDENSED NEWS.

The new Lyceum theatre school opened in New York yesterday with about 100 pupils present.

A. M. Sullivan is reported to be better, and his physician expresses hopes of his recovery.

Watch Fletcher was hung at Paducah, Ky., yesterday. He maintained his innocence to the last.

Charles Boswell, of West Hartford, Ct., formerly a state senator and several times a member of the lower house, is dead.

At Lima, Ohio, Mrs. Mary Moore attacked and killed the judge and chief of police of that place. Many people were badly injured.

The Republican convention of the Second Massachusetts congressional district have nominated Warren Lock, of Norwood, for congress.

Hon. Geo. Bancroft quietly celebrated his eighty-fourth birthday at Newport yesterday. He was the recipient of many congratulatory letters from all parts of the world.

Philadelphia reporters have run down and reported a fraud in the head of a mythical labor organization. The man had made considerable money out of his swindling operations.

The New York gas companies have combined to create a gigantic monopoly. Their present capital of $70,000,000 is to be increased up to $80,000,000 and the business carried on as a trust.

A New Cure for Cholera.

PARIS, Oct. 4.—Experiments made in the hospitals show that colpolis of carbon is the best agent for restoring the normal action of the bowels in cases of cholera. It has restored to consciousness in thirty seconds hypodermal preparations which produce in the patient a condition similar to that of death by suffocation of carbonic acid.

THE RULER OF THE WAVES

Receives some Instruction from Germany on Naval Matters.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—The secretary of the navy having recently noticed statements of the system adopted by the German government for rapidly mobilizing squadrons, called upon the bureau of navigation for a report from the office of naval intelligence of any information that office had upon the subject. The following memorandum of the mobilization of a German squadron has been furnished: "At a conference held at Kiel, September, 1883, it was decided that all the vessels suited to modern war purposes should be kept in thorough repair, ready for immediate service, and that the complete outfit of each vessel should be prepared and either placed on board or in separate storehouses close at hand; that the officers and men for each ship should be detailed beforehand from the active navy for ordinary service. It is expected that in eight days the whole naval force can be mobilized. At 9:10 A. M. April 25, 1884, the chief of the admiralty, Von Caprivi, with his aid, arrived respectedly at Kiel, and at 1 P. M. ordered into commission for immediate service six-teen vessels. Notice was sent to the officers and crew, according to the system adopted in the army. The trains brought in the men and in a few hours, with the assistance of the men of the dock-yard division, the ships were equipped. At noon, April 26, just forty-seven hours after the issuance of the order, the rear admiral hoisted his flag in command of a squadron of twenty vessels ready for war service. The vessels already in commission joined the squadron."

THAT POST OFFICE ROBBERY.

The Thief Arrested and Confesses. He is the Janitor.

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Oct. 4.—Post Office Inspector Boyd arrested Albert Bowen, colored, aged 21, janitor of the New Haven post office, who confessed to stealing from a registered package $10,500 on telephone stock, sent by Broker Crosby, of New York, to John L. Watrous, of East North Hampton, Ct. Before the arrival of the clerks of the office in the morning it was part of Bowen's duty to sweep out and clean the office, and thus it was that he was given an opportunity to open the registered package and secure the valuables therefrom. Bowen also confesses to taking money from packages and letters belonging to and addressed to the Eagle Linen company, but denies all knowledge of any other missing letters, although letters addressed to West & Co., rare printers of this city, were found in his chest in the basement of the post office building, together with the securities of Mr. Watrous, the actual or market value of which it transpires is but $400.

The Yale Silk company, a "crazy quilt" scrap concern, and The Home Chess, a small monthly, claim and have made complaint to the post office authorities that their letters have been pilfered on several occasions. These cases are being investigated. Bowen was for many years coachman for Post master Sperry.

Gen. Logan at Dayton.

DAYTON, O., Oct. 4.—Gen. Logan arrived at Dayton at 11:15, leaving Cincinnati by a special train. An immense crowd awaited his arrival at the depot, and when he stepped on the car platform hurrahs rent the air. Mrs. Logan and Gen. Noyes accompanied him. Carriages were in waiting, and an escort of 200 soldiers and sailors led the way to the Phillips house. On his arrival at the hotel Gen. Logan spoke a few words from the veranda and retired. In the afternoon the party were driven to the Southern Ohio fair, where the general made a short speech. The party were then driven about the fair grounds, and after wards to the Soldiers' Home, where 4,000 men were drawn up in line on the campus, whom Gen. Logan reviewed. He then went into Memorial hall where a crowd soon gathered to hear him speak.

A Theatrical Breeze.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4.—The agent of John S. Clarke, owner of the Walnut street theatre, demanded the keys of Israel Fleishman the lessee, and has assumed the management of the theatre. Fleishman took the theatre two years ago, and the lease expires at the end of the present season. The annual rental was $30,000, and he has made money on these terms. He failed to pay $5,000 due Oct. 1, but proffered $2,500, and said his partner, Thomas A. Hall, was responsible for an equal amount. Mr. Hall denied, as his name does not appear on the contract. It is intimated that Fleishman adopted this course to get rid of his partner. Their partnership has been dissolved.

Burglary and Incendiary Combined.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 4.—Thieves broke into the saloon and residence of 48 Street Commissioner Charles Ott and ransacked the premises. The door of his room was locked and escaped invasion. Failing to secure any money they attempted to burn the house and inmates. A fire of lace curtains, newspapers and a music book was kindled and the thieves made good their escape. Mrs. Ott discovered the fire and it was promptly extinguished. Entrance was made through a second-story window in the children's room.

A Stakeholder's Trouble.

TORONTO, Oct. 4.—Capt. Dillon, of the Toronto Rowing club, was charged before the magistrate with being a stakeholder of money unlawfully wagered. He pleaded guilty and was remanded for sentence. Mr. Rogers and Mr. Turnbull deposited with Dillon $700 on the result of the recent double-scull race for the championship of America. Dillon subsequently complained to a detective that he had either lost the money or been robbed of it, when, coming to the ears of the county crown attorney, led to his arrest.

The B. and O. Telegraph Company Cutting Rates.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The Baltimore and Ohio Telegraph company have inaugurated a further reduction of its rates between New York, Boston and all intermediate points, the new tariff being twenty-five cents for twenty words and one cent for each additional word.

Wonderful Pacing.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—At the driving park the mare Johnston lowered his record of two seconds, pacing a mile in the remarkable time of 2:05¾. Minnie B. also lowered her record. With a running mate she paced a mile in 2:05¼. Her best previous record was 2:05¾.

Iron Founders Incorporate.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Mallon & Bourke, iron founders at No. 170 Jane street, have made an assignment. The firm were incorporated in June, 1883, when they owned $54,000, and had $75,000 nominal assets. Their plant is mortgaged for $15,000.

Died in Harness.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—At 1:50 yesterday afternoon, while driving to a fire, Acting Chief Fire Marshal Kinney was thrown from his buggy and fatally injured. He owned two roany horses.

A NEW PAVEMENT.
The undersigned has secured the exclusive agency for the sale of the
Diebold Patent Iron Stone,
whichfor elegance and durability, is unsurpassed, and in price will compare favorably with any other pavement now in use. It is the most beautiful pavement known for walks and curbs, for gutters, for curbing and street blocks. Also can be laid for hard and Burgler proof cellars, for building purposes generally. These pavement blocks have many striking advantages. They are non-absorbent, non-conductors; repel ice and snow, as well as all kinds of moisture. When dampness accumulates on the ordinary brick, this material remains perfectly free from it. These Blocks are cast 12 in the center iron Ring and are the hardest and most durable. Specimen of the same can be seen at Warner's Fancy Store, opposite Dilligan Music Hall. For further particulars call on or address

INTERESTING FACES.

Portraits of Several Persons with World-Wide Fame.

Hon. Perley Poore, Louisa Alcott, Henry Labouchere, the Late J. W. Garrett, The Dumas, Father and Son, and Others.

THE LATE JOHN W. GARRETT.

In the death of John W. Garrett, which occurred on Sept. 26, the country loses the giant among railroad managers. Garrett was born in the city of Baltimore, July 31, 1820, and was the second son of the late Robert Garrett, who came from Ireland poor, but became a wealthy merchant and banker. His education was completed at Lafayette college in Pennsylvania, when he entered his father's counting room, and was shortly after, at the age of nineteen, made a partner in his father's business. His first connection with the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, was in October, 1857, when he was made a director of the company—a time when the embarrassment of the road was of a most serious character. In 1858 Mr. Garrett was elected to the presidency of the company, which position he retained till his death. The practical wisdom of Mr. Garret at once inaugurated that policy of economy, retrenchment and personal supervision that has ever since characterized his management. The first practical result of which, was the payment to the stockholders in the spring of 1859 of the first of that unbroken series of dividends that has continued to this day, and raised the value of the stock to $97, the highest quotation at the time when Mr. Garrett took hold, to something over $200 to-day. In the meantime he has extended the main line and branches, without increasing to any considerable extent the capital stock of the company, and without constructing a debt equal to that of many roads of far less mileage and business. Mr. Garrett was also the head of the banking house of Robert Garrett & Sons.

Milking a Cow.

[New York Star.]

When a man milks a cow, he should not attempt to smoke a cigar at the same time. A young man out in the country tried it, and got along well enough until he lowered his head and touched the cow's flanks with the lighted end of his weed. The next instant himself and the cigar were dreadfully "put out." The cow introduced about two tons weight into one of her hind legs, and then passed it under the milker's jaw. When he ceased whirling around, and the myriads of stars he saw had disappeared, he said farming was the hardest work a man could put his hand to.

A Very Popular Writer.

LOUISA MAY ALCOTT.

Louisa May Alcott was born in Germantown, Pa., in 1832. Her father was the social philosopher A. Bronson Alcott. She early showed a talent for writing fairy tales, her first book appeared when she was but 22. She has since been a contributor to many of the magazines and author of numerous books for the youth. All her writing exhibits the kindly, charitable disposition of the author, which was shown in a practical way by her volunteering as a hospital nurse in the Union army during the war.

The Bicycle in Agriculture.

[Springfield Republican.]

A Vermont farmer's boy has bought himself a bicycle, and wishes he hadn't. His father has utilized the thing by making it furnish motive power for his winnowing mill, corn sheller and grindstone. This he does by suspending it from the axle, removing the tire from the wheel and connecting it by an endless rope with his agricultural machine, then making his son mount and do the propelling.

The Editor of London Truth.

HENRY LABOUCHERE.

Few London papers are more frequently quoted in this country than Truth, and it is owing to the bright and intensely sarcastic vein of the radical Labouchere. Though he is himself descended from the peerage, and was an attache of the British ministry at Washington, he takes a special delight in showing up the ridiculousness and weakness of her majesty's government. Labouchere first attracted attention by his "Letters of a Baronet radical," written from Paris during the siege. In 1874 he started Edmund Yates in starting The London World, but soon after retired to establish Truth, from which he now derives an income of $20,000 a year. He is also a member of parliament, being elected as a Radical.

The Veteran Author, Statesman and Correspondent.

HON. PERLEY POORE.

Mr. Ben: Perley Poore is one of the most industrious men of our day. He has accomplished wonders in his various labors by his undertaken and a mere record of which would fill a volume. He was born in 1820 at Indian Hill farm, about four miles from Newburyport, Mass., where his ancestors have lived in unbroken succession since 1650. At the age of 7 he was taken to the District of Columbia, where the principal portion of his busy life has since been spent in public duties. In 1831 he accompanied his parents to Europe, where he had the pleasure of meeting Sir Walter Scott, Thomas Moore, Gen. Lafayette, and others distinguished in literature. Upon his return from Europe he was placed in a military school to receive a preparatory training for West Point. The prospects of a military life, which his parents had intended he should follow, being particularly irksome to him; he ran away from school and became apprenticed himself to a printer in Worcester, Mass. After a period of drudgery here he visited his home, when his father purchased him a printing office in Athens, Ga., where he spent two years, when he accepted a position as an attache to the United States minister to Portugal, remaining five years, and visited every portion of Europe, the Holy Land, and Lower Egypt. On his return in 1847 he began in Washington the correspondence for Massachusetts and other papers which he has since continued. In 1865 he was appointed clerk of printing records for the United States senate, and has also edited the Congressional Directory. His home at Farm Hill, Mass., is a mansion of sixty rooms. It contains more than 10,000 volumes, documents and records than any public library in the country, not excepting the government archives. It contains a private printing office, a model of its kind, and as the major is an expert in the matter of agriculture his farm and stock are not to be surpassed anywhere.

A French Dramatist and Novelist.

ALEXANDER DAVY DUMAS,

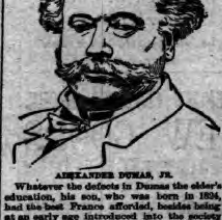
the elder, was born in 1805. As a youth he held a small office in the household of Louis Philippe, his African blood preventing him from holding a very high position in the court. This social ostracism spurred him to extraordinary efforts toward self-education, which resulted in his beginning at the early age of 20 a career of literary and dramatic work which was extremely prolific and profitable. By his novels, which have been widely translated, he derived a large income and fame.

His Patients Were Well Healthy.

[Arkansaw Traveler.]

"I understand that you have stopped practicing," said the secretary of state to an eminent colored physician. "Yas, sah, 'cluded ter gin up de trade an' go ter preachin'. In dis country dar ain't no money ter be made in de practicin' o' medicine. W'y, sah, of I had o' voted my time or chas'n' nuthin' else on it, fer de hull business I would er been putty well off by dis time. Ober two-thirds o' my patients nebber paid me, sah." "Why didn't you use them?" "Twouldn't done no good, case da was dead, sah. I got de wus' class o' patients. None o' 'em nebber had no health an' constitution."

A Member of the French Academy.



ALEXANDER DUMAS, JR.

Whatever the defects in Dumas the elder's education, his son, who was born in 1824, had the best France afforded, besides being at an early age introduced into the society of literary people and given the advantages of travel with his father. Dumas, jr., has been a disappointment. He has succeeded best as a dramatist, and he misused his talents in magnifying the worst side of society. In 1875 he was admitted among the "Forty Immortals," as the members of the French academy are called, and is now trying to redeem his reputation.

A Pretty Tight Squeeze.

[Burlington Hawkeye.]

"William, Broker," he said to her husband very earnestly, as they sat at the breakfast table, "look me in the eye and tell me the truth; are you losing all your money in a fruit speculation?"

He was scared to death when she began, but conscious innocence gave him strength and presence of mind to answer her question, "No," he said firmly, "I am not."

"I believe you are," she said, shaking her head, "for last night you cried in your sleep and said you had lost every chip you had in the world on one little pear."

And then he grasped and admitted that he had dropped a few cases in a little deal in perishable fruits. But it was the narrowest escape he ever had in his life.

The Edison Electric Light Company Heard From.

[Detroit Free Press.]

The medical board appointed by the proper commissioners, it is reported as follows:

"Brown hereby accords to Edison upon the terms at issue—to be and not only until day left he got shot of. If the invention of a safe 'nonconductor' to any persons, do notice must be suppressed. He leave in de central station for the approbation of vice in vari'ous farms will receive die one ear, two each member at least two years in state prison. We recommend prompt action."

Who Invented the Telephone?

DANIEL DRAWBAUGH.

Who claims to be the inventor of the telephone and who is one of the contestants in the present suit to decide who is the real inventor, and which suit is attracting universal attention on account of the value of the instrument in dispute, has always lived where he was born at Eberly's Mills, a little village of perhaps a couple of dozen houses, some four miles from Harrisburg, Pa. Drawbaugh is one of those odd geniuses often found in country communities who can do pretty much anything in the mechanical line. He repaired clocks and guns, painted wagons and portraits, built furniture and machinery with equal facility, and bore the title of machinist by way of courtesy. He has made electric clocks and all kinds of electrical apparatus, invented nail making and other machines, but has never been able to keep himself and family above extreme poverty. He claims to have made in 1866 the watch Bell patented ten years later.

Governor of Nebraska.

JAMES W. DAWES.

Gov. James W. Dawes, of Nebraska, who, was elected to the gubernatorial chair in the autumn of 1882, has been unanimously renominated by the Republicans. His present term expires on the 9th of January, 1885.

Ice Cream Worked Its Delicate Benefit.

[San Francisco Chronicle.]

He had taken her to the opera and filled her full of Italian music. He had done the sweet and pretty, and had not kept his appointments with men outside in the pauses of the piece, and last of all, he took her to the ice creamery. Over the dainty dishes they grew fond. They had just admired a handsome turnout at the theatre door.

"When I get married I mean to have just such a turnout for my wife."

She gave a gentle sigh, and as the last faint sweetness of a big spoonful of cream thrilled her young and sympathetic palate, she threw into her eyes a beaming glance and whispered:

"Give me the first ride in it."

WILLIAM SEACH.

Edward Hanlan, the American oarsman, who has had a phenomenal success in defeating every rival that this continent or Europe could produce, has at last been obliged to forfeit his laurels to William Beach, an Australian oarsman, who, on the 10th of last month, in a race at New South Wales, defeated the American champion by seven lengths. The Australian is in his thirty-first year, and has only devoted the last four years to aquatics.

A New Cremation Temple.

CREMATORY TO BE ERECTED NEAR NEW YORK.

At Mount Olivet, near New York, will shortly be erected a marble and brick crematory. It will contain the office and reception room of a music hall where services may be held while the remains are being incinerated in the furnaces below, an operation which will require one hour of time and will reduce the body to a white ash of about four per cent. of its original weight.

CHRONOLOGICAL EVENTS.

Jennie Lind born 1821.

JOTTINGS.

—Common Council meeting this evening.

—The grand pool tournament for a solid gold medal commences this evening at Gerstell's billiard parlor 30 West Front street. Admission free.

—A sociable will be held in the lecture room of the Methodist Episcopal Church this evening. Mrs. A. B. Betts, a former leading soprano in the church choir, will be present and give several vocal selections.

—The Reform Club meeting last evening was as crowded as usual. Addresses were made by the Rev. A. V. V. Raymond, of the Trinity Reformed Church, the Rev. Elston Dunn, formally of this city but now of the west, Mayor W. R. Marxon, Councilman Frank Maple and Mr. J. D. Spicer. President French called for signers to the pledge, and twelve persons responded.

—The third meeting of representatives of the Reform Club of this city conducted by Messrs. John H. Sayres and Frank Dodge was held in the Mt. Bethel Baptist Church last evening. There was an audience of about one hundred, some of whom, it is said, were not temperance people. After spirited addresses by the above mentioned delegates, thirty-eight came forward and signed their names to the pledge.

—The Rev. A. H. Tuttle, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, occupied his pulpit yesterday for the first time after an enforced vacation of a few weeks on account of his voice. A large number were present to greet him. He preached from Matt. 16:15, "Whom do men say that I the Son of Man am? In the evening Chauncey Schaffer preached, and the Rev. Thomas Ely, known as the "canal missionary," made an address.

—A large audience gathered at Stelton Baptist church last evening to listen to addresses on temperance. The meeting was under the auspices of the State League. Judge P. P. Good, Secretary Manning and N. W. Pike delivered the addresses. The music was in charge of the following members of the Glee Club. H. Martin, William Stewart, E. Odell, A. Lyons, Jr., Fy Conger and William Hardy, and added much to the interest of the meeting. The altar was crowded during the signing of the pledge, fifty-eight subscribing their names.

The Oil Cloth Factory Fire.

The fire at the oil cloth factory on Saturday afternoon did damage to the extent of four thousand dollars, a great proportion of this being occasioned by the loss of the oil. This is, we understand, a total loss, inasmuch as the insurance companies refuse to take risks of this kind. Superintendent Benoit, who was burned about the hands, and it is also feared internally from breathing the hot air was at the works to-day, states that the entire establishment will be running as usual in a few days. Mr. Benoit deserves great credit for his heroism at the fire. A barrel of naptha was in the refinery at the time of the fire standing near the kettle. Mr. Benoit says that should the fire have reached the naptha it would have blown up the works. He therefore rushed into the burning room and clapping his unprotected hand over the bung-hole, rolled the barrel outside. It was in this way that he received his injuries.

Closing of the P. T. V. Fair.

The Plainfield Turn Verein Fair, which was held during last week, in Rode's Hall, concluded Saturday evening. A canvassing and ring had been offered as prizes to persons receiving the largest number of votes, and Saturday evening the votes were counted, the result being as follows:

FOR THE CANE. No. of votes.

Chelsea Keller, President of the Club..... 250
Carl Mann, President of the Plainfield Sangerbund..... 240

FOR THE RING.

Miss Louie Krauss..... 629
Miss Lizzie Mohl..... 411

FOR THE WHIP.

Engine Co., No. 3..... 109
Engine Co., No. 1..... 81
Zephyr Hook and Ladder Co., No. 1..... 62
Engine Co., No. 2..... 50

The cane was awarded to Mr. Keller, the ring to Miss Krauss, and the whip to Engine Co., No. 3.

The fair was a success in every respect.

HOW AT A POLITICAL MEETING.

An Anti-Cleveland Gathering in the Fenwick Wood Interrupted by a Crowd of Clevelanders.

A meeting was called for Saturday evening at St. Mary's Hall on Fourth street of all Irish-American Anti-Cleveland voters. In response to this call a number assembled at the hall and elected Patrick Kinsley chairman and P. J. Burke secretary. The chairman made a short speech and introduced Mr. M. Carroll, of Jersey City, as the speaker of the evening.

Mr. Carroll was nearing the end of his address, when a crowd of Clevelandites surrounded the building, and commenced a series of catcalls and shouts for Cleveland, and otherwise disturbed the meeting. They were remonstrated with by a number and were requested to leave the building should they not wish to listen to the address. This only incensed them the more, especially one fellow not unknown to the police court of this city, who boldly stepped into the middle of the hallway leading to the room and bawled forth who he was and said that he believed in free speech. After that now gone he opened exclusively to the Democratic party.

Affairs quieted down a little after this fracas, and the meeting proceeded, only to be interrupted again by more shouts for Cleveland, cat-calls, etc. Stones were also thrown against the building from the outside. A policeman appearing on the scene about this time prevented any fight occurring, but did not otherwise visibly decrease the disturbance. One quiet man who ventured to tell the policeman that he was not fit to be one was promptly told that if he did not keep still he would be shown.

As Carroll had finished speaking the chairman took the floor and tried to make a few remarks.

"Put him out," shouted one of the Clevelanders.

"Come and do it," calmly said the chairman, and he smiled as he clutched a stout cane with a knob on the end of it which would have knocked any molester senseless in a second.

The meeting then adjourned, and the quiet chairman then proceeded to the end of the hall, where, after a slight passage of words with some of the disturbers, the crowd dispersed.

Lawn Tennis Tournament.

The tournament of the Plainfield Lawn Club began Saturday afternoon last at their grounds on Central avenue, between Eight and Ninth street. Only members of the club were allowed to enter the contest, and these were divided into two classes: class I comprising the best players, class II including the rest. The matches were the best two out of three without advantage games, and on Saturday afternoon were between single contests in class II. The prize was donated by Judge Wadsworth and no alternative but to obey it. It was not Judge Wadsworth that was to blame. The majority themselves were to blame in adopting the rule. The Democratic coddling were entrapped by the Democratic foxes.

As to the charge of cowardice. It rather belongs to the crowd who would attempt to attack a white-haired old man of slender frame like Judge Wadsworth.

Mr. Martine, of this city, an alleged Hessite, after Judge Wadsworth disappeared and the excitement was created, got upon the platform to address the delegates whose fury became in consequence so great that a rush was made to get him and hurl him out of the window, so we understand he expected, but for the timely intervention of the Sheriff, who got his men around the platform. His face was seen to twitch and turn deathly pale with fear, as the crowd rushed at him, and all manner of escape were cut off. He is a round, middle-aged man of probably average strength. Would any one think of charging a man of this physique, feeling a sense of fear in the presence of such an infuriated crowd and under such circumstances? If so, it is much less so in the case of Judge Wadsworth. No; the Democratic majority made a fool of themselves in adopting the rule referred to, and acted cowardly in attacking, or attempting to attack their chosen candidate for enforcing it.

During fifteen years we have attended to every Democratic Conventions, but never did that we not almost incessantly shake up. The benefit at this convention of Judge Wadsworth to withhold the vote until it ceased, and by that time the majority of the Monmouth delegation had reported in favor of Green, which gave him a majority over Wadsworth. The old man was declared, whether the chairman was right or not. The Democratic party has Republican principle of not playing behind the fence. The cowards in that convention were not Wadsworth or Martine.

Readings at the Park House.

Miss Louise Lessie gave the second of her series of readings at the Park House on Saturday evening. A number of the friends of the hotel gathered to hear her. The following was the program rendered:

Judge Wadsworth a Coward!

A correspondent in the New Brunswick Home News in a communication occupying three-quarters of a column in fine type, roundly abuses Judge Wadsworth of this city, for his course as the chairman of the Democratic State Convention. Correspondent Elizabeth last week, calling him among other things an "obsequious tool" in the hands of the Ross faction, and substantially alleging that he defrauded the majority of the delegates of their choice, raising such a storm of indignation that he was forced to escape by "a rear window" to save himself from the consequences of their wrath.

In fact the correspondent boldly calls him a coward. After his escape the Convention recommended and named McMahon of Rahway the choice of the majority.

The communication is too lengthy to publish entire. The pith of it is contained in the annexed extract.

"The Convention was composed of 175 delegates, made up as follows: Middlesex 32; Monmouth 72, Union 50; consequently 88 constituted a majority. On the first ballot Judge Clement gave McMahon 34 votes, Union 34, Monmouth 8.

Then changes were made which brought Mr. Ross 34, within 4 of the majority. At this point 34 delegates from Monmouth county declared to have their votes changed from Kinkenbush to McMahon, but objection was made that the change must be reported through the Chairman of the Monmouth delegation.

This the Chairman, George W. Paterson, refused to do, and the Chairman of the Convention (Wadsworth) refused to count the votes, so McMahon was done out of his 34 votes, which nonplussed him and made him rightly the standard bearer of the Democracy for Congressman of this district.

Now different was the action of the Chairman (Wadsworth) from that of Governor Abbett, when Governor Ludlow was nominated for Governor and Governor Abbett the Chairman of the Hudson county delegation reported a solid vote for Governor Cleveland; 12 men objected and changed their votes for Ludlow. Abbett, the Chairman, like an honest man and fair Chairman, ordered the 12 votes recorded as the delegates asked for Ludlow, but the trio, obnoxious to his manners, turned around and ran to the 36 men from Monmouth and ordered a new ballot, No. 2. This ballot stood:

Ross—McMahon 33
Monmouth—McMahon 37
Union—McMahon 37

There was one change in Middlesex, making the total 118, or 36 more than a majority.

The ballots were all in, counted and plenty of time allowed for the Chairman to announce the vote, but incredible as it may appear, do you believe, Democrats of the Third Congressional District, the Chairman refused to do it, although called upon by delegates time after time in tones that could not be misunderstood.

At this juncture appeared on the scene of action Miles Ross, the second," etc.

The correspondent omits to state a point which will put a somewhat different phase on the matter.

At an earlier stage in the proceedings the convention had adopted a rule that the vote of each county be announced through the chairman of the delegation. Judge Wadsworth strictly adhered to the rule, and, while there was no doubt in the mind of the convention was overwhelmingly in favor of McMahon of Rahway, the so-called Ross faction had the chairman from each of the three counties, and seem to have used those men as a means to defeat the majority under the rule stated. The latter were bound by Judge Wadsworth and no alternative but to obey it. It was not Judge Wadsworth that was to blame. The majority themselves were to blame in adopting the rule. The Democratic coddling were entrapped by the Democratic foxes.

As to the charge of cowardice. It rather belongs to the crowd who would attempt to attack a white-haired old man of slender frame like Judge Wadsworth.

Mr. Martine, of this city, an alleged Hessite, after Judge Wadsworth disappeared and the excitement was created, got upon the platform to address the delegates whose fury became in consequence so great that a rush was made to get him and hurl him out of the window, so we understand he expected, but for the timely intervention of the Sheriff, who got his men around the platform. His face was seen to twitch and turn deathly pale with fear, as the crowd rushed at him, and all manner of escape were cut off. He is a round, middle-aged man of probably average strength. Would any one think of charging a man of this physique, feeling a sense of fear in the presence of such an infuriated crowd and under such circumstances? If so, it is much less so in the case of Judge Wadsworth. No; the Democratic majority made a fool of themselves in adopting the rule referred to, and acted cowardly in attacking, or attempting to attack their chosen candidate for enforcing it.

During fifteen years we have attended to every Democratic Conventions, but never did that we not almost incessantly shake up. The benefit at this convention of Judge Wadsworth to withhold the vote until it ceased, and by that time the majority of the Monmouth delegation had reported in favor of Green, which gave him a majority over Wadsworth. The old man was declared, whether the chairman was right or not. The Democratic party has Republican principle of not playing behind the fence. The cowards in that convention were not Wadsworth or Martine.

OUR ARISTOCRATIC NAVY.

Secretary Chandler's Opposition to Volunteer Officers Serving the Wolf.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—There is considerable feeling of resentment displayed by officers of the navy who served as volunteers during the late war, at the alleged persistent opposition of Secretary Chandler to the adjustment of their claims for longevity pay, computed upon their entire service. It seems that congress extended to the navy the benefits of the army provision which gives officers of the regular army who served as volunteers for the actual time they served as officers or enlisted men; but the terms of the original act were so ambiguous that the accounting officers of the treasury were not able to adjust the accounts, and the officers interested derived no benefit therefrom. The law was finally amended in 1883 to supply, as was supposed, all defects, although enacted over the opposition of Secretary Chandler. Meantime test cases were prepared for the decision of the Court of claims, and, after elaborate argument, that body unanimously rendered judgment for the claimants, and no appeal to the Supreme court was taken by the attorney general. This was supposed to end the complication, but a second competition has recently been requested by Secretary Chandler to suspend settlement of the cases until he can lay his views before congress.

The difficulty appears to be in the fact that navy officers who are graduates o. the academy are too opposed to recognize as their equals the officers transferred from the volunteer service, and are utterly hostile to the existing law, which credits such volunteer officers with their service in the volunteer navy or army, and these social and official influences have been too great for Secretary Chandler to resist. The officers interested think it remarkable that Secretary Chandler should antagonize existing law, which only places the army and navy on an equal footing respecting volunteer service, and declare their intention to fight for their rights to the bitter end.

RELIGION AND POLITICS.

Mr. Talmage Announces He Will Review the Situation.

BROOKLYN, Oct. 6.—Mr. Talmage baptized a new born babe before his sermon yesterday. One happy father astonished his pastor by naming his offspring "Sarah Talmage," which caused a titter of amusement among the congregation. Mr. Talmage announced that on the next and the following Sunday morning he will preach on national politics, the text yesterday was Revelations xix., 14. "And the army which were in heaven followed him on white horses." In a series of graphic word-pictures the preacher described this wonderful procession. There passed regiments of Scotch martyrs, brigades of English martyrs, the thousands who were slaughtered on St. Bartholomew's day, the regiments of Christian poor and Christian invalids. "How long will it take that procession to pass? No man can estimate the multitude of the redeemed. There have been, it is estimated, 144 generations of men, so that 20,000,000,000 of human beings have died. The figure goes beyond conception. It is probable that a vast multitude of these will ride on white horses in that procession. I, of course, state the text figuratively, but I do not know but that it may, in a certain sense, prove literal. When I see horses scourged and beaten by their cruel owners, I think that it would be right if they should have a hereafter. I would not be at all sorry if I had in heaven real horses, in that great procession. The inference question for you and me is, Shall we be among those who shall follow the Master on white horses, or shall we be numbered among the black horse cavalry of hell?"

"OUR MARY'S" HEALTH.

Fears Entertained About Her Condition — Perhaps an "Ad."

LONDON, Oct. 6.—The state of Miss Mary Anderson's health during the past week has been the cause of a great deal of anxiety to her friends. Although she has appeared nightly since the opening of her present season at the Lyceum Theatre in "Pygmalion and Galatea," it has been generally remarked that a great deal of her old spirit was lacking. She was unable to attend an important rehearsal of "Romeo and Juliet," and although she played on Saturday night it was with considerable effort and contrary to the advice of her physician and friends, who insist that ordinary rest, if nothing else, dictates rest. The opening performance of "Romeo and Juliet," which has been set down for Oct. 18, will probably be postponed beyond that date in consequence of the difficulty experienced in preparing the elaborate accessories which are expected to lend so much to the success of that revival. While this delay may be a disappointment to the habitues of the Lyceum, it is expected, however, that it will prove an opportunity for the thorough restoration of Miss Anderson's health by affording her a needed opportunity for rest and recuperation.

A Chinese Girl in an Ohio University.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 6.—The Ohio Wesleyan university at Delaware has just admitted into the school a girl who has come all the way from China to be educated in Ohio. Miss Hu King Eng is the daughter of the Hon. Hu Yong Mi, the reserve delegate from the Foo Chow conference, and also presiding elder of the Hokchiang district. She is a bright, intelligent girl of 18. She was born of Christian parents, as the family of her grandfather, Hu, was the second which embraced christianity thirty years ago. The object of Miss Hu King Eng in coming to this country is to obtain a thorough English education, then to study medicine, and go back to work among the women of her own land. At present her knowledge of English is limited, as her education has been conducted in the mission schools in her own language. The ladies are interested in her success, and special contributions are being made to aid her in her effort.

Mr. Blaine on the Tariff.

WHEELING, Oct. 6.—Mr. Blaine has his headquarters at the Globe hotel, Bellaire. He left this morning for Gordon and returns to-morrow. On Saturday night Mr. Blaine reviewed a long torch-light procession and then spoke on the tariff. He said a tariff for protection is primarily of interest to the laboring man. He claimed that Ohio had added to its vast wealth through a protective tariff, and asked his hearers whether they wanted a change.

Gen Butler in Indiana.

KELSEAEY, Ind., Oct. 6.—Gen. Butler passed through this city en route to Sturgis, Mich. He talked from the car platform for about forty-five minutes. He told the crowd that if they wanted everything good in politics they should vote the People's ticket.

Gov. Cleveland Returns to Work.

ALBANY, Oct. 6.—Gov. Cleveland, accompanied by Erastus Corning, Simon W. Rosendale, Mayor Banks and John A. McCall, Jr., arrived from Buffalo at 8:40 a. m. On their arrival the party at once drove to the executive chamber for breakfast. At 9 o'clock Gov. Cleveland was at his desk.

A NEW PAVEMENT.
The undersigned has secured the exclusive agency for the sale of the
Diebold Patent Iron Stone,
which for elegance and durability, is unsurpassed, and in price will compare favorably with any other pavement now in use. It is the most beautiful pavement known for yards and walks, gutter stones, door tiling and street blocks. Also used to build fire and Burglar proof vaults, and for building purposes generally. These pavement blocks have many striking peculiarities. They alone are incapable of being non-conductors; resist ice and snow, as well as all kinds of moisture. Also dampness accumulates on the ordinary brick, but on this pavement perfectly free from it. These blocks are cast in the molten iron Slag and are the cheapest of substance. To-times on exhibition at Warner's Pantry Store, opposite Stillman Music Hall. For further particulars call on or address

JOE BARRETT'S CONFESSION.

[Mrs. Frank McCarthy in Harper's Weekly.]

One 17th day of August, not many years ago, a party of four, consisting of Joe Barrett and his wife, their most intimate friend, Phil Somers, and Miss Maud Mortimer, a young lady they hoped he might be induced to consider the future happiness of his existence, stood quite alone upon a narrow strip of sand on the Long Island coast, not far from the great metropolis. Joe Barrett and his wife had long ago been given over by their relatives and friends, and the genial circle of society they adorned, as an old-fashioned couple that prolonged their honeymoons to a most unprecedented and unheard-of period. They had lately celebrated their silver wedding, and for the amusement of others and the romance for themselves would have gone through with the original ceremony again had it not been for a serious obstacle. The clergyman was still alive and vigorous for his years, and Phil Somers, Joe's best man at his wedding, was yet his best friend, but the pale, pretty little bridesmaid had vanished long ago off the face of the earth, and became one of that shadowy band to which "we call, and they answer not again."

There was a rumor that if she had lived she would have become the wife of Phil Somers, thus making the happiness of the four complete. It was currently believed that because of this tender and romantic episode of his life, Phil Somers had remained a bachelor. In his younger days this apparent halo of soft regret and unappeasing longing lent a melancholy grace to his already pleasing exterior, and many a damsel endeavored to console him. But although he was gentle and even chivalric to all womankind, he remained, to all matrimonial intents and purposes, unconsoled.

And here he was, a bachelor still, 50 years old, getting rather grizzled about the temples and crow-footed about the eyes, bronzed by his partiality for the open air, thin but muscular, tall but straight; while Joe Barrett and his wife might pass for "fat, fair and forty," though they were not so many years Phil's junior.

And here they were, plotting as lively as ever for Phil's eventful bliss. The present victim of their kind designs was reclining in her first youth, would have seemed so to any other light but the critical one of sun against sand; and now that thick bands of gray clouds lay heavily across the sky, tempering the brilliancy of the sun's rays, and the young lady had pulled her veil about the outline of her face, Miss Mortimer seemed at the heyday of her charms.

While waiting for dinner, which was in process of preparation in a long, low hostelry a dozen furlongs or so inland, they had strolled down to the water's edge, and, true to the plan in hand, Joe Barrt t had pulled his wife's chubby hand through his arm and trotted her away from Phil and the young lady.

"Let's leave them alone together for awhile," said Joe "it seems a propitious time for love-making, and I hope something will come of to-day's trip, Polly; I'm getting awfully tired of working the a pack-horse for Phil's happiness."

While strolling along they indulged in a spirited conversation about Phil and the matrimonial projects in which they had been engaged on his account. At last Joe remarked, looking fondly at his wife: "I'd be the happiest fellow in the world if Phil could be happy too."

His wife shook his arm impatiently.

"See here Joe," she said, "I think you are absurb about Phil Somers, and you may as well understand, once for all, that if this thing falls through I'm not going to bother about his marrying at all. If none of your business or mine. I don't believe he wants to marry, anyway. Some natures are so constituted that one body love once, and I believe all the love Phil had to give any one was squandered long ago on our dear little bridesmaid. After all, there's something very sweet and touching in his remaining faithful to the one memory all these years."

Joe shifted uneasily from one foot to the other. He picked up a stone and sent it savagely whirring over the water.

"Polly," he said, "I think I'll take a plunge in the sea. It will tone me up, and give me an appetite for dinner. There's a bathing suit in one of the little cribs behind us."

"Look at that big black cloud, Joe."

"I won't stay in long, Polly." He gave his wife a tender squeeze, looked down upon her with an expression that seemed to say he'd kiss her if it wouldn't shock Miss Mortimer's sense of propriety, ran up to the bathing-houses, and, to the surprise of Phil and Miss Mortimer, presently disappeared in a huge green wave that covered them with its spray.

"Joe is a regular water-dog," said Phil.

Miss Mortimer made no reply. She had not come down to the seashore that day to listen to laudations of Joe Barrett and his wife. Miss Mortimer felt that she had no time to lose, and was resolved to waste no words upon Joe Barrett's matrimo nial proclivities.

Phil, however, kept his eyes upon Joe as he swam out to the open sea, and went on talking about him without requiring any special reply.

"Joe is a little impulsive and reckless, perhaps," said Phil, "but he's a capital swimmer."

"But it growing cold," said Miss Mortimer, contracting her shoulders in that graceful way that some women have of making even a shiver attractive.

Phil remembered with remorse that his wrap was hanging forgotten upon his arm. He hastened to put it about her shoulders, but the wind which was rising to a gale, made the effort a prolonged one.

"Don't you hate the wind?" said Miss Mortimer, coquettishly.

"I am never ungrateful," said Phil, capturing the bundle of silk and cambric and holding them for the time above her slender form. A keen look of intelligent triumph lighted from Miss Mortimer's eyes. Phil's women always seemed to mean so much more than they said. And she could not, unfortunately, see that his eyes were still looking fixedly over her head upon the water beyond the cove.

A shrill or two of wild light flashed down upon the scene. An ominous rumble from Joe's life assigned with the roar of the sea. Suddenly the earth and sky were enveloped in a blinding glare. In that special light Phil distinctly saw Joe Barrett fling his arms wildly about and disappear in the darkness.

That threw off his shoes and his coat and he ran to the sea, and Miss Mortimer had great difficulty in rescuing his wrap, which was newly dyed, and by no entertaining weave. Her costume was drenched with the spray and she nearly lost her footing, but she saved the waterproof, which contained Phil's watch and other valuables. Then she hurried to the shed of the bathing houses, for the rain once began to fall heavily. Through the din and roar of the storm she saw the white face of a woman. Miss Mortimer knew it was Mrs. Barrett as she ran wildly down to the water, but she attempted no recognitions. She had made up her mind that of the party of four that were down by the sea that day one would not enter before dinner. It was no trouble to say who might never be seen again. Forgotten as he was by everybody else, Joe Barrett was still living to the utmost limit, and, fanning it to possible to restore him. Barrett is said to be, and thrown about her a rough barpaulin. Over the harsh folds of which her haggard face and wind-blown hair was a sorry sight to see.

The two bodies were now coming in atop of the foaming surf, with no help or hindrance of their own, and, slowly locked together, were presently ashore on another prey of the elements. They were narrowly rescued from the greedy maw of the returning wave, and carried with all speed to the little inn, where everything was in readiness to restore consciousness to the one and foster it in the other.

The storm passed away as suddenly as it came. The pale glow of twilight deepened into night. There was no moon, but the stars shone over the bay and harbor, and the dusky little passenger boats, with a few gaudy ripple of waves lapping lazily along the soft white sand Phil could hardly believe that so little time ago two men had been done almost to their death. As he looked, he could get out into the wooden porch of the inn to breathe the cold, sea-scented air. And as for Joe, God only knew what would befall him. He had been brought back to life, but not to consciousness. Polly had managed to get word to the town physician, but the way was long and the sand was heavy.

It must have been about midnight; Phil could not tell the exact time. His watch was in his waistcoat, under Miss Mortimer's head, in the bed of the landlady. Phil had told them not to awaken Miss Mortimer under no circumstances; he was so glad she was asleep —and it would be impossible to say how glad he was. The latch of the door was bolted behind him. Phil's heart sank. He was afraid Miss Mortimer had, after all, been awakened. But a faltering, uncertain step reached him, and the solid little hand of Polly Barrett clutched his arm.

Any one but Phil would never have known her. The last remnant of her soft round loveliness had been swept away with the storm. All her womanly graces and frippe ries were gone. She wore an ill-fitting gown of the landlady's. Her whole face was of a wan gray pallor, like the waves under the cold light of the stars.

"Is Joe better?" stammered Phil. "Does he know——"

"He knows everything and perhaps he's better. Oh, Phil! Phil" Polly repressed her sobs and motioned Phil to the door. "He is determined I shall try and get some sleep before he will watch with me for a while. As if I could go to sleep! But go to him, Phil; don't thwart him—go!"

Phil went in to Joe. His will never forget the low-ceiled room, the two wooden chairs, the pine table whereon a mop of rugged wick flared from a saucer of oil, the bottle of liquor within reach, and the coarse green quilt, the fold of which lay in the corner, kicking off the seconds, and Joe's ghastly face and motionless form upon the camp cot in the corner. Joe tried to stretch out his hand to Phil, but it fell back heavily upon the patchwork quilt of the landlady.

"You did your best, Phil," he said; "you brought me ashore, but the levels was done out there: something seized me, God knows what—paralysis, cramps, palsy—who can tell! Anyway I'm done for old man I can't move a finger below. It's a mere question of time, Phil, and we can't afford to lose any."

"I hope you're wrong, Joe; we'll know better when the doctor comes. You were right not to tell Polly. But she must come to you, Joe."

Phil would have gone at once for Polly, but something in Joe's face held him back.

"Hold on a bit, Phil. I didn't send for you and drive Polly away to tell you something that you'll both know soon enough. There's a few hours yet, my boy, and Polly's been trying there like a plumber of lead all these years. Listen to me, and don't interrupt me if you can help it. Give me some of that stuff down to the bottle, and when I grow weaker give me more."

Phil lifted Joe's head and put the glass to his lips; then he sat down upon the edge of the cot, leaning his face upon Joe's chest and the pillow. Joe could feel Phil's pulse now, and the loyal heart of his friend beating regularly as a clock.

"It's twenty-five years, Phil," said Joe, "since that night we drove down to the shore here and had that talk together. You remember it, Phil?"

"Yes, Joe."

"Ah! you've remembered it too well, Phil; I've tried hard enough, God knows, to make you forget. The sun was sinking over yonder in the west, and sky and sea were all aflame. Some fleecy clouds dropped low over the old shed where we had ordered a meal for two. I remember when I saw Polly that night. To dress she wore was like a club to me: it was of some soft, floating material that reminded me of the fleecy clouds over the old shed. You didn't eat the clams, Phil. You fallied with the shells and turned them over with the tea-spoon, old fork they had given you. And all at once you took down and and lighted a cigar, and turned your face to the sea, and began to talk of a woman you secretly loved. Now give me some wine, Phil."

Phil put the glass again to Joe's lips. "Don't talk any more Joe," he said. "Let me go for a doctor."

"Not yet," said Joe. "You were a handsome fellow, Phil, twenty-five years ago. As you went on to talk of the woman you secretly loved, I remember what a light there was in your face from the splendor in the west that made it like that of an archangel. It seemed to me that no woman could withstand you. If I heard right you did not. My first thought was to wait out in the water and "draggle myself; my next was worthy of Judas Iscariot. It was a device to betray you. I must have been stricken by the devil, for an ideal is my judge in this awful moment of my life. I never dreamed before that night that you and I were in love with the same woman. I got upon you with a cudgel. She is mine!' glaring upon you with a dogged, resolute stare. 'Have you, then, asked her to marry you?' you said. Your face still looked like an archangel's, while mine must have been incarnated with the passions that beset a man beyond his strength. As I remember, you said you were not, for the words seemed to leap from a throat of fire. It was the first down right, hideous, malicious lie I ever uttered, for I had not yet asked her—I had only made up my mind that I would ask her, upon that very night, the next lie slipped easily from my parched throat, though it was a worse one by far. For I told you, Polly, Phil had told me that he'd marry me—that you had confessed to me your love for her friend, the poor little girl that afterward became our bridesmaid. Whether my words were convincing, that makes no difference now; many men, I fancied I saw something in Polly's eyes that told me, had in her heart for my treachery, your chances would have been better than mine. Now take your arm away from my neck, Phil, and curse me if you will—my story is done."

The pale set Joe's ear leapt and tugged as if it would burst an artery, but Phil's voice had the old tender ring.

"You might have spared yourself all this," he said. "I think Polly has proved who it was that she loved."

"You might have, indeed, Phil, yes. Polly is one the kind of woman to make the misery of Cuba on the Road to Ruin.

Cuba will be reduced to a wilderness if the present system is long under the rule of Spain. The population of the island is about 1,600,000, one-third being slaves and other colored people who pay no taxes. The tax-payers have to pay annually from $23 to $40 per capita. This state of affairs cannot last. The sugar product ten years ago was 1,000,000, now it is only 350,000 tons. The tobacco and coffee crops have also almost gone to ruin. The valuable timber forests are untouched. The roads are the worst in the world.

What a Slow Track Is.

[New York Sun.]

"Pa," said a little boy looking up from a newspaper, "what is meant by 'a slow track?'"

"A slow track, my son," replied the old man, in the kindling of a sportsman, "is a track on which the horse fails to beat the record."

SOTTINGS.

—Hugh Laing was this morning fined ten dollars and sentenced to the county jail for sixty days by Judge Good for drunkenness.

—The H. I. M. were out drilling last evening. This club expect, to participate in the Brooklyn celebration on Oct. 16, and are preparing to eclipse everything else in line on that day.

—Efnall announces his Fall and Winter opening on Monday next when he will display the most attractive list of bargains this house has ever shown. The hall will be ready for exhibition on Oct. 16, and are preparing to eclipse everything else in line on that day.

—The Elizabeth Herald says that uniformed clubs from Elizabeth will be invited to participate in the Democratic torchlight procession intended to be held in this city on the 9th inst. If the H. I. M. Club can't get dressed in time the procession may be again postponed for their accommodation.

—THE NEWS was the only paper in New Jersey which had a full, complete and impartial report of the Third District Democratic Congressional Convention, on the same day it occurred, not even one wide-awake papers in Elizabeth, although on the ground, satisfactorily up to Plainfield Evening News in this respect. In the four months of its existence THE NEWS the number of its enterprising strokes will probably exceed those of any other paper in the State in as many years. We claim that THE NEWS, considering the size of its field, is the best and most up-to-date paper in New Jersey. We go in for the whole hog or none. Nothing mean about us. Make or break, we want for our readers the latest news.

High School Athletics.

The first annual championship games of the High School were held on the Fair Grounds on Park avenue on Saturday afternoon.

The various events on the program were well contested, and gave ample scope for the exhibition of the well-known powers of the High School students.

The following is a synopsis of the events:

The mile bicycle race for members of the Grammar School was won in two heats by Duncan Morgan.

The hundred yard dash for members of the High School was won by William Thickstun.

The two and a half mile run was won by Garrie Wood.

The one mile walk was won by William Thickstun, who also won in the running high jump.

The standing high jump was won by Herbert Peck.

Throwing the 16 lb shot was won by Thomas Horn, and Thickstun again came to the front in putting the stone.

The most interesting event of the day was the wrestling match between Thomas Horn and Duncan Morgan. There were three bouts, catch-as-catch-can. The first was won by Horn, the second by Morgan, and the third after a hard struggle by Morgan.

The students, through the manager of the games, Herbert W. Peck, wish to thank the superintendent of the Fair Grounds for kindly allowing them the use of the same.

Political Probabilities.

When the nominal editors of our weekly Democratic contemporaries fold their ears on Saturday noddle's lest the diluted contents might fit out away as soap bubbles, the probabilities are that they are straining to distort a report of the Democratic Congressional Convention out of all recognition from the real facts, and that the product will be so unlaughable in the extreme, that will not fool any sensible Democrat, while he can be enlightened by THE NEWS.

The Methodist Sociable.

The opening church sociable of the season was held last evening in the lecture room of the Methodist Episcopal Church. A 14-dining supper was rendered. Mrs. A. B. Butts sang several solos, Miss Carrie Jackson gave a few instrumental selections, and the Rev. A. H. Tuttle, the pastor, made an address. The event passed off very happily.

Tennis Tournament.

The Tennis Tournament was continued yesterday afternoon on the grounds corner of Central avenue and Eighth street. Matches were played between Judge F. Field and Mr. B. White, Mr. W. Murray and Dr. Hedges. To-day's games will decide the championship in a contest close singles was also to be this afternoon.

A communication from the mayor appointing P. J. Flanigan a regular policeman to take the place of Martin resigned was presented. The appointment was unanimously confirmed.

The monthly report of the City Collector was presented, and referred to the Finance Com.

The quarterly statement of the treasurer was presented, and referred to the Finance Com.

Mr. Marsh, from the select committee on rooms, reported that the committee had two rooms under consideration.

The Alms Com. reported correct the claims referred to them; claims referred to Auditing Com.

The Finance Com. reported correct the claim referred to them; claims referred to Auditing Com.

The Lamps Com. reported correct the claims referred to them; claims referred to the Auditing Com.

A bill from the telephone company which had been referred was ordered returned to the company for correction.

The Law Com. reported correct the claim of C. A. Mayo $100; referred to Auditing Com. The committee also reported objections to forming an excise board, and asked to be discharged from the preparation of an ordinance to that effect; request granted. The committee also reported in the matter of the Plainfield property owners who had not moved their fences back to the proper line, that two of the three were willing to do so at nominal charge, while the third wanted large damages.

The License Com. reported back the back licenses referred to them, and recommended that the licenses be granted; the recommendation adopted.

The Police Com. reported correct the claims referred to them; claims referred to Auditing Com.

The Stationery Com. reported correct the claim referred to them; claim referred to Auditing Com.

The Salaries Com. reported correct the claims referred to them; claims referred to Auditing Com.

The Street Com. reported correct the claims referred to them; claims referred to Auditing Com.

The Law Com. made an additional report concerning the law regarding the terms of councilmen, and said that an opinion had been asked of the Attorney General regarding its constitutionality, as requested, and that he had declined giving one, but recommended the principle that a law is to be regarded as constitutional until a competent court has declared otherwise.

The corporation counsel was requested to give an opinion as to the length of the term of the councilmen-at-large under the new law.

Mr. West presented an amendment to the license ordinance; making it or several points in the ordinance; read twice and ordered engrossed and to a third reading by a vote of six to five.

Mr. Dumont presented a resolution authorizing an election for the raising of $5,000 to be used on the streets next year, the election to take place at the time of the city election; adopted.

The amendment to the public morals ordinance was taken from the table read the third time, and passed by a vote of eight to three.

An ordinance to improve certain streets was taken from the table, read the third time, and passed.

An ordinance for the erection and removal of buildings was taken from the table, read the third time, and passed by a vote of ten to one.

The Lamps Committee was given power to act on a petition for the erection of a frame building on East Third street, referred to the committee at a previous meeting.

An ordinance to the ordinance regarding stoves and other exhibitions was introduced, read twice and ordered engrossed and to a third reading by a vote of six to five.

On motion the Council proceeded to the election of a janitor, and Mr. Wm. B. Mundy was unanimously chosen to that position.

The ordinance to macadamize Crescent avenue was taken from the table, read the third time and passed by a vote of ten to one.

The ordinances to macadamize certain portions of eleventh street was taken from the table, read the third time and passed by a vote of ten to one.

The bids for macadamizing Crescent avenue and Seventh street were then rejected. There were two bids, both from Spottswood and O'Rourke, one offering to do the work for seventy-five cents a running foot, and the other under certain limitations, for seventy cents.

Mr. Dumont introduced a resolution that inasmuch as the property owners on Crescent avenue and Seventh street had made their agreements to pay for macadamizing at sixty cents per foot, the city should pay the balance; adopted by a vote of ten to one.

A resolution authorizing the Street Commissioner to construct a cross-walk over Park avenue at North avenue was passed.

The Auditing Committee reported correct the claims referred to them; claims ordered paid and warrants drawn for the respective amounts.

The Council then adjourned.

Killing a Horse for His Hide.

An act, which for its brutality would be hard to equal, occurred in New Brooklyn early Monday morning, and became known in this city last evening. A horse belonging to Michael Higgins, who lives on a farm there, has been lame for a few days, and has been turned out to pasture pending recovery. For several nights the animal has been allowed to stay right in the pasture. On Monday morning when Higgin's workman went to the pasture, he found the animal dead and stripped of his skin. Mr. Higgins was away at the time, but upon his return he was informed of the occurrence, and immediately endeavored to ascertain who had been guilty of committing the act.

It seemed apparent from the carcass that the horse had been stunned by a blow behind the ear, and out dying quickly enough his windpipe had been cut. It was evident that the horse had been killed by Higgins traced the perpetrator of the act by loose hair from the hide and by drops of blood over a fence and across some fields and more fence to a colored man's house about a mile and a half away.

He then came to this city, and found the at a colored man had been cutting a horse's hide to Pound's factory early Monday morning before the place had opened, and had received one dollar for it. The price for a whole hide is one dollar and a half, but the one presented by the colored man had several gashes in it, and was therefore not worth so much.

Higgins then went before Justice Lacky, of Dunellen, and made a complaint against one James T. Manning and Kate Manning. Both Mr. Manning and his wife were brought up on the justice, and admitted skinning the horse, but denied having killed him. The justice committed the parties to the Middlesex county jail at New Brunswick to await the action of the grand jury.

Manning has served a term in the State prison, and has otherwise an unsavory reputation. They have two small children, who will probably be taken care of by an aunt.

The Republican Parade.

The parade of the local Republican club last evening attracted large crowds, a rattling forming point, and other places along the line of march, even the City Fathers, taking a recess to witness it when it passed along Front str et. A number of places were illuminated, among the more noted of these being Lindley Hall on East Front street, and the residences of Mr. Ferdinand Fish, Mrs. Taylor and Mr. D. J. Bliss on Park avenue. At Mr. J. H. Ackerman's on South street, a fine display of fireworks was witnessed. Colored fire lighted numerous places on the line of march, among which was Butler's drug store on East Front street. The clubs participating were the F. A. Potts Mounted Guard, the Fourth Ward Pioneers, the colored Blaine and Logan Guards, the Lincoln Guards, the Henry A. McGee Guards, the Boy in Blue, and a small company of boys from North Plainfield. The marching of the McGee Guards was especially noteworthy. The correct band furnished the music.

Presidential Electors.

Annexed are the Presidential electors on the Democratic ticket of this State:

AT LARGE—Edward Balbach, Jr., of Essex, Thomas Keys, of Sussex.

DISTRICT—John Russell, of Cumberland, Ephraim Emens, of Ocean, James S. Vanleiter, of Union, Phillip Hand, of Warren, James D. Inglis Jr., of Passaic, Samuel Lord Jr., of Essex, A. A. Hardenbergh, of Hudson.

Mr. Vanleiter is of this city, and is the Union County Clerk.

The Temperance Cantata.

The final rehearsal of the temperance cantata, "Lost and Saved," to be presented this evening at the Reform Club Hall, was held last evening. This entertainment is given solely for the benefit of the Reform Club, and promises to be in every way worthy of support. The talent engaged for the occasion is of the best, and includes many well-known vocalists of this city.

Republican Delegates.

The primaries for the election of delegates from the various wards to the Republican Congressional Convention at Freehold on Wednesday were held last evening. The First Ward elected J. B. Cowand and D. W. Lindley; the Second Ward, Elias E. Fogo and Vincent W. Mash; the Fourth Ward, J. B. Miller; Alfred Lyons, and W. B. Ayres.

News About Town.

It is the current report about town that Kenny's Balsam for the throat and lungs is making some remarkable cures with people who are troubled with coughs, asthma, bronchitis and consumption. R. S. Shaw, Front street, opposite Park avenue, will give any person a trial bottle free of cost. It is a guaranteed nerve and cure. Price 50 cents and $1.—Adv.

THE BARTHOLDI PEDESTAL FUND.

The Hon. William M. Evarts, chairman of the Bartholdi Statue Committee, has written to the subscriber, has urged him to enlist the aid of the people of Plainfield in the patriotic duty of providing means wherewith to raise the pedestal on which is to be placed the colossal gift of the French nation to America.

As is well known, the cost of the statue was paid by the masses of the French people, and therein lies the chief significance of the gift. There is probably no American who does not cordially respond to the sentiment of national friendship and esteem which inspired the action of the people of France; none who would not be glad to see their next mail-bag overflow with offerings of the people of American prompt action in providing for their appropriate completion of the statue, but the universality of the obligation tends naturally to impede the progress of the fund for the pedestal, and the result is that the receipts of funds is inadequate to the speedy completion of the pedestal. It is a reflection upon the people of what to every-body's business is nobody's business.

Private subscriptions would doubtless accomplish the desired end, but that is impracticable, and should be discouraged.

To those national obligations which, deriving no direction to private convenience, reside in the national honor, the true American should be keenly sensitive, and quickly responsive. Let every man, woman, and child in Plainfield claim his or her privilege, and act at once by contributing something, however little; and besides furnishing a noble example for other communities, the city will a name and fame of which its citizens may well be proud.

Contributions in any amount will be received at the office of the undersigned or of the several newspaper offices, and will be acknowledged in the public prints.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1884.

A NEWSPAPER man in the northern part of the State of New York stumbled upon a factory in the back woods. He entered the establishment and found within it a machine that resembled very much a huge pencil sharpener. It was revolving very rapidly. In it were placed large sticks of poplar wood, and these sticks were soon converted into large, thin shavings many feet in length. These shavings were then subjected to a grinding process, and were finally converted into a substance that resembled a soft, velvety Indian meal. He inquired of the editor man in charge of the case of such an article and was informed that it was an artificial flour. The proprietor of the establishment was very reticent in regard to what became of it, what it was used for and who bought it. He said: "Well, I'll be durned if I know anything about it. All I know is that we make it and sell it. Some folks say they make bread of it; others say they feed their hogs with it. I'll be durned if I know what they do with it. I'd rather not feed my hogs on it; I'd sooner buy musty flour for them. You can't get anything more out of me; you'd better go."

THE German Government is preparing for the expected invasion of cholera by ordering physicians from all parts of the empire to study the most improved methods of discovering the existence of microbes through the microscope at Berlin. Dr. Koch, the cholera expert, has been ordered to personally investigate the first case that appears, and take measures to prevent the spread of the disease.

Two prisoners in the Deer Lodge, Montana, Penitentiary claim to have invented a method of transporting articles at the rate of 200 miles an hour, which they promise to make known to the world on condition that they are pardoned.

THE doubtful States begin to smell kerosene these nights.

OUT in Ohio now it's politics till you can't rest.

State Items.

Assemblyman Frank O. Cole was re-nominated at an open primary by the Republicans of the Fifth District of Jersey City a few nights ago. The regularity of the primary was called in question, and Mr. Cole has declined to accept a nomination which will appeal anew to the voters of the district.

It has been reported to the police that on Wednesday night Mrs. Mary A. Macdonald, living at No. 7 Longworth street, Newark, was knocked down and robbed of a gold watch and chain by a highwayman while she was walking at Washington street, near William street, about a block from the Police Station. She was rendered nearly unconscious by the force of the blow.

A number of business men complained to Chief of Police Murphy at Jersey City yesterday that they had been swindled out of small sums of money by a confidence man, by means of bogus checks drawn on the Commercial Bank, of Brooklyn. The active Parson arrested the man who was identified by several of his victims. He gave the name of R. ward A. Cordell, age thirty-nine, of Orange, N. J. He had a check-book and a list of about forty business men in Jersey City.

HIS "WAD" TAKEN.

A Highwayman Operates in Central Park, New York.

He Does Him over in the Regulation Style, and When His Victim Resists a Pistol Comes into Play.

An Arrest Made.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Five shots and a loud cry of "Help! Police! Stop thief!" brought Sergeant Flack, Office Driscoll and half a dozen of the gray-coated policemen of the Mounted Squad in the vicinity, in Central park, at 8 o'clock on Saturday last. They found a tall young man leaning against a tree, unconscious and holding his left hand tightly with his right. Both hands were covered with blood. The stranger's collar was half torn from his neck and his clothing bore marks of a struggle. He was pale and faint. Supposing that he would have another case of attempted suicide to record, Sergeant Flack asked:

"What's the matter? What did you do this for?"

"Oh, for heaven's sake get a doctor and I'll tell you all about it. I have been shot and robbed of my watch and money."

The wounded man was able, with some assistance, to walk to the arsenal. A bystander ran to the nearest police station and the Presbyterian hospital. While the surgeon was bandaging his hand, the stranger said that his name was Alvin L. Smith and that he was a contractor from Salt Lake, Neb. He intimated that he was well off, and his appearance bore out his assertion.

"I arrived in New York only before yesterday, said Mr. Smith, "and put up at the Harlem hotel. On Thursday I inspected the Brooklyn bridge, and amused myself in the lower part of the city. Yesterday I called upon several irrrigge builders, and this afternoon and evening I spent in the park here. A little while ago I started to go out of the park at Seventy-second street and Fifth avenue. There I intended to walk over to Third avenue and take a car uptown. A little distance from the spot where I got down on a number of small rocks the bushes along the walk and stood square in front of me. He asked if I had any money and I told him I had. He then go about his business. 'You'd let or give up your wad and save trouble,' said the man. I tried to get past him, when he drew a revolver and pointed four shots at me. I made an effort to get the weapon away from him, and we had a struggle, in which the pistol went off and I was wounded in the left hand. I still retained my self-control, however, and help. But with one hand disabled I could do very little. The highwayman wrenched my watch and chain away from me and ran down Seventy-ninth street. I tried to follow, but the thief was as quick as he was strong, and I soon lost sight of him. At the gate in Fifth avenue I met four officers. I told them my money in a leather wallet in an inside pocket. To-night it contained about $200 in bills. When I left for it I found that it had been stolen."

Mr. Smith was taken to the hospital where he remained until Sunday morning. There he reported his hotel. He was found to be not dangerous, and in a few days he expects to continue his trip eastward. He has relations in Vermont.

Last evening, about 6 o'clock, a man was walked slowly along the ramble at dusk. A white handkerchief was found about his jaws, as though his had neuralgia. He was attended by a colored boy. A negro man followed him softly, coming closer and closer at every step. The man with the handkerchief neither slackened his pace nor looked behind him. The negro thought he was only a dozen or two behind he wielded quick as lightning and struck a sudden blow. The stranger dropped to the ground, as he had been shot. In fact he had felt the weight of the butt of Sergt. Flack's revolver.

"What do you mean by slugging me?" in quired the prostrate man. "I didn't roll nobody."

"That point will be argued later," replied the sergeant. "Meanwhile you must come with me."

At the arsenal the prisoner gave the name of Patrick Curry, of No. 118 Chatham street, and was informed that he was a newspaper office. He will be confronted by Mr. Smith, who, it is said, will identify him. A man has been noticed skulking about the ramble lately and there is reason to believe that Curry is he.

A Strand Snatched from the Burning.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 7.—An interesting case came to light in the police court when John Ryan was charged with loitering. Against him appeared a fair haired boy of 12 years, whose name is George Gilbertson, and who formerly lived in Chicago. He told his story in a straightforward manner and made a good impression. His mother died a year and a half ago, since which time he has been thrown on his own resources. He was employed in a tenement house until three weeks ago when dull business caused him to be discharged. While wandering around the streets he met Ryan, a man to whom he gave his name as John Ryan. He induced the boy to come with him on a trip toward Cincinnati, and to disguise his identity told him to call himself Ryan. The boy did so, and without him on the slightest pretext and made several attempts to induce the boy to enter houses for the purpose of robbery, and circulated him because he could not care for him. The boy met a Christian lady on the street and asked her for assistance. The kind woman placed him in the children's home, but the brutal master appeared and demanded the boy. A policeman was called and the man was arrested and sent up for thirty days. The boy will be given a permanent home at the children's home. He is a very bright and interesting young fellow.

Cabinet Changes.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—Secretary Gresham said when informed of the report which was circulated in Chicago and which he would go to New York for the purpose of conferring with the president: "I have no intention of going to New York, and you may contradict the story." Mr. Gresham further said that there was nothing new concerning cabinet changes. Judge Drummond, who, it is generally believed, Secretary Gresham succeeds as circuit judge of the seventh district, is still in Washington. To-day is the day appointed for the opening of that court.

A Good Sensation Spoiled.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—The story of a brutal prize fight in Long Island City yesterday, in the presence of a number of "sporting men," has not the slightest possible foundation in fact. Paddy Smith, a criminal just out of jail, had a quarrel with a companion in a saloon in Astoria, and both men retired to the woods to fight it out with fists. The prize fight idea was constructed by reportorial imagination.

SUBTERRANEAN FIRE.

A Large Superior Copper Mine in Flames—Fossil Remains.

HANCOCK, Mich., Oct. 7.—Saturday night fire was discovered in an idle portion of the Hecla branch of the Calumet and Hecla mines, on the eleventh level between No. 2 and No. 4 shafts, where for several years wooden stoppings from timber were made. The accumulation of rubbish and shavings, partly saturated with oil, through some unknown cause became ignited. Several men went down Saturday night to use the hose to drive back the flames. One fireman Gribble was suffocated, and could not be rescued. Sunday morning John Rapson, with three other volunteers, descended to the level, going by way of the shaft where Gribble's body. After going a short distance they were driven back. Rapson was overcome. He was soon to fall back, but his comrades could not return to him. Other volunteers, among them R. Berryman, descended to attempt to recover Rapson's body. Three men were overcome. Berryman made strenuous efforts to save his comrades. He ran to the shaft for air and returning threw the three men into the cage. He was then seen to fall back, but turned and rang the bell. The car raised the three unconscious men. Berryman was almost exhausted. The recovery of the three men revived the hopes of those who were watching the large tramway, which is saturated with oil, and may conduct the fire to the other levels. The extent or progress of the fire is unknown, as mine is filled with smoke. The shafts are being closed to prevent a draft. Great fear and excitement is manifested by the people. Superintendent Hoar is in the Lake Superior copper mines, and the first suspension of work in this great copper producer since the strike of 1872. The mine has been worked for years, and with this exception is very inflammable. A large gang descended to fight the fire.

MINISTER MORTON ARRIVES.

He Does Not Know Anything, Looking for Information.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Mr. George Bliss, of Morton, Bliss & Co., tucked his arm through that of a tall, clean-shaven, well-built gentleman in the Newport yacht club house walkout around the log shed. Breathing their way between heaps of baggage, grumpy custom house officers and cowardly Irish cabmen and blue-coated officials. The Frenchmen and French men were passengers on the steamship Normandie, of the French line, which arrived last night at Quarantine, and the tall gentleman was the Hon. Levi P. Morton, United States minister at Paris and co-member of the firm of Morton, Bliss & Co., bankers. Mr. Morton was appointed to his present position by President Garfield March 9, 1881, and was confirmed by the Senate April 6. He left this country in July, and returned yesterday for the first time. The smoothshaven face which he presents now gives him a considerable resemblance to Recorder Smyth.

"I haven't anything to say, remarked Mr. Morton, cheerfully. "I'm looking for information myself."

"It has been said, Mr. Morton," suggested a reporter, "that you have returned to accept the treasury portfolio in Arthur's cabinet."

"All I know about it is what I have seen in the newspapers," replied the minister.

"It has also been reported that you have come to take part in the present campaign. Is that true?"

"There, there," said Mr. Bliss nervously, as he tugged at his partner's arm; "I wouldn't say anything, Morton."

Mr. Morton replied in substance that he had not returned to take any active part in politics, and in response to further questions said that he had been offered the mission and did intend to return to France in a few weeks. After attending to his baggage the party drove off in a carriage, and Mr. and Mrs. Morton, who came from Europe with him, and his brother-in-law, Mr. Street, who met him on his arrival here. He was driven to the Windsor hotel, Fifth avenue and Forty-second street, where he will remain for a few days. Then he will go to Washington. He has engaged staterooms for a return passage on the Normandie in November.

A Great Social Sensation.

VIENNA, Oct. 7.—A tremendous social sensation has been caused by the result of a bankruptcy case involving the financial capacity of Baron Victor Erlanger. The baron is a brother of the famous bankers of the same name in London and Frankfort, and has been known for many years in Europe as a bold and heavy speculator. His name is as well known in Paris as in Vienna, and he has had influence in the former city and his connection as a promoter with the Direct Cable company and other enterprises from which he made millions of francs. He was also the Austrian commercial general in Spain and, more recently, president of the International Electrical exhibition in Vienna. In a leader the Neue Freie Presse expresses the indignation of society and its PATRIOTISM PREVAILS.

The English Names of Dublin Streets to be Changed.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—There was an uproarious meeting of the Dublin corporation, the occasion being a debate on a proposal to change the names of some of the principal streets of the city. In anticipation of a scene the lobby and galleries were crowded with a turbulent mob, comprising Nationalists, Orangemen and Tories in about equal numbers. The hall was opened by Councilman Clancy, an ex-suspect and former secretary of the Irish National league. He offered a resolution providing that those streets in Dublin which bore distinctively English names should be gradually rechristened, and that the new designations selected should be such as would present an epitome of Irish history, testify to the patriotism of the Irish people, and give a faithful, instead of a lying chronicle of the times. The reading of the resolution was interrupted by shouts of laughter from the two members of the council and by jeers and cat-calls from the gallaries, but at its conclusion there was a counter demonstration of prolonged cheering which drowned the voices of the opposition. Councilman McDonald, who keeps a well-known public house in Dublin, seconded the resolution. He declared that it was a libel upon Irish history and a disgrace to Irish manhood for residents and visitors to encounter on the street corners of Ireland's fair capital such names as Spencer, Yorz, Brunswick, Hanover, Nassau, Waterloo, Westmoreland, Albert and Gloucester. Each of these names were greeted with howls by the Nationalists, the demonstrations being especially vigorous as the names Spencer, Waterloo and Albert. Mr. McEvoy, a Tory member of the council, opposed the resolution. He said the proposition was ridiculous and the changes would cause endless confusion. It not was a question of sentiment but of boundaries of properties and legal accuracy. To upset half the street names of the city would lead to disputes about deeds in which property was described by the old names and result in much needless litigation. There was, he said, no more patriotic people on the face of the earth than the Americans, yet when they won their independence from Great Britain they did not descend to any such puerility as changing the English names of streets and cities. Mr. Moyers, a liberal councilman, also opposed the resolution, saying that it was simply a piece of political fireworks, meant only to dazzle the mob. Both the latter speakers were howled down and the resolution was adopted by 29 to 13.

Why Minister Young Interfered.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—In response to the statement concerning the action of Mr. Young, the American minister to Caina, to mediate between France and China, it can be stated on the best authority that fully three months ago the Chinese embassy in this city communicated to our government the desire of the Chinese government for its good offices in the premises. The United States government was willing, then, as now, to undertake the mission, but, of course, could only do so in case France intimated the same desire to China. France has not done this. The request of China was doubtless communicated to Mr. Young for his information, but he had no authority to act as he is reported to have done, and which is disbelieved at the state department. If the reports of Mr. Young's action should be confirmed he will be recalled.

Racing at Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 7.—The attendance at the Latonia races was good and the track was in excellent condition. First race, one mile—King Kyle first, Madison second, Easter third; time, 1:46¾; mutuals paid $28. Second race, selling, all ages, one mile and a quarter—Ascender first, Tom Martin second, Breechloader third; time, 2:08½; mutuals paid, $45.30. Third race, Kinnaird stakes, all ages—Troubadour first, Orlando second, Irish Pat third; time, 1:51; mutuals paid $30.30. Fourth race, mile and—Phil Lewis first, Solaris second, Kenoi third; time, 1:47, 1:48¾, 1:50¾; mutuals paid $51.

Breaking Up a Monopoly.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 7.—It is stated here on the best authority that the Pennsylvania Railroad company has notified the Baltimore and Ohio that after Wednesday the rate arrangement between the two companies by which the latter's cars are run over the Pennsylvania lines between Baltimore and New York ceases. This will necessitate the shipment of freight from Baltimore to Philadelphia by water and thence to New York by the Philadelphia and Reading line.

Boston's Board of Trade.

BOSTON, Oct. 7.—At the annual meeting of the Board of Trade, Alpheus Hardy, president, and Edward Sands, treasurer, were re-elected for three years were elected as directors Henry W. Peabody (shipping), Edward Rice (dry goods), L. G. Hanson (coal), John Whitmore (railroads) and Walter Dabney (cotton). The usual committees were appointed and votes of thanks passed to retiring committees.

Secretary Tolles on a Vacation.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—Secretary Tolles left Washington last night for New York, where he will visit the president for a day or two. He will then go to Colorado, and expects to return to Washington in about a month. The annual reports of the bureau officers of the interior department will soon be ready, but the secretary has decided not to give them to the public until after his return from his western trip.

Another Hotel Fire.

KNOXVILLE, Oct. 7.—The Windsor hotel was entirely destroyed by fire before daylight, the guests narrowly escaping with their lives. George McMahon, a telegraph operator, jumped from a third story window and had his leg broken. A female servant was severely burned. The loss is estimated at $4,000. An explosion of gas caused the fire.

The Broken Cable.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—Tests made show that one of the Cuba cables is found 1,800 miles out. The other presents faults at a much greater distance from England, but is not believed to be severed. Both cables will probably be interrupted for several months.

Pensioners and Politics.

BOSTON, Oct. 7.—Gen. George N. Tibbetts, of Jacksonville City, commander of the United Veteran Army, has written the veterans of the third congressional district advising them of Congressman Ramsey for his opposition on the pension bills.

Protecting a Royal Duke.

CAIRO, Oct. 7.—Unusual precautions have been taken to prevent injury to the person of the Duke of Cambridge, who is here, suspicious having been noted at the door and windows of the hotel where he is staying.

The Cholera.

NAPLES, Oct. 7.—There were forty-two cases of cholera and eighteen deaths reported in Genoa yesterday. There were twenty-two cases and twelve deaths.

A NEW PAVEMENT.
The undersigned has secured the exclusive agency for the sale of the Diebold Basalt Iron Stone,
which for elegance and durability, is unsurpassed, and in price will compare favorably with any other pavement now in use. It is the most beautiful pavement known for walks, carriage ways, floors, floor tiling and street blocks. Also used in build fine and first-class private yards, and for building purposes generally. These pavements have many striking peculiarities—They show no perceptible wear—no concentrations, dry or wet and snow, as well as all kinds of moisture. When dampness accumulates on the ordinary brick, this material remains perfectly free from it. These Blocks are cut to the uniform size required and are the hardest of substances. The Financial Value to the Stage Fairies Who Live It.

Wages of Corypheus, Serenader and Premiere—Supply Exceeding Demand—The Public Unsatisfiable for New Faces.

[New York Journal.]

Considering the trouble ballet dancers have to learn their business they are not well paid—hardly, if at all, better than a chorus singer in a comic opera. Anybody can become a chorus singer, almost. That is to say, it needs no very extensive vocal acquirements and a practice of only a few weeks, whereas to be a ballet dancer of any ability whatever takes years of study and constant daily practice. Considering how hard they work, and how much it is marvelous few of them ever accumulate enough to give out of the corps de ballet to become corypheus, serenaders, or premieres. The fact is that one must begin at a very early age. Most good premieres have had parents or relatives in the business, and they have usually studied ever since they could control the use of their legs. Considering all this the reward is insufficient, because a premiere may become celebrated at 16 or 17, and she is done for at 26 or 27—that is she has to descend to the second rank. This is a season of forty weeks for ten years at most the utmost a premiere can make—say $300 a week—and the total earnings of her prime are not more than $91,000. This is the utmost, and it is not much when we think that it is spread over ten years.

But the very great majority of even those who have studied all their lives make no such wages as this. They all seem to sink into obscurity or poverty after a few years unless they happen to make a good marriage, which is seldom the case in this country, where the hard sense of the people is against such sentimental connections.

The secondas at the theatres here are paid an average of $50 a week. This is much more than they can earn in Europe. The coryphees require $30 a week at Niblo's and about $25 at the Star, and the corps de ballet anything they can get, the general price being from $13 to $18 a week. This is the price of a chorus-singer in every good comic opera company. But the work of the ballet-dancers is infinitely the harder. If you follow the work of one of them during an evening you are not amazed that they are ready to fall with fatigue when the performance is over. They must dance and march, and then must stand for hours looking on at the evolutions of the principals, whose dances do not last more than six minutes at a time. But even this is nothing to the rush and hurry that is made when the dances are over, and they have to get to the dressing-rooms to change their costumes, which in a spectacle before five or six times in the course of an evening, often more. There are women in "Sinbad" who have to change as often as ten times, in itself a work of no light consequence.

"But," said the maitre de ballet, to a reporter at Niblo's one night between two of the scenes, himself in a torrid heat of perspiration after having watched and filed and sent out a couple of hundred women, closely following their gyrations, clapping his hands at every change of movement to guide them to a new one, "but even for the hard life there is always a greater supply than a demand. There are more than 500 women in New York to-day who are out of an engagement, but who can dance pretty well. The public, you see, is insatiable for new faces. If it finds in a ballet half a dozen faces with which it is familiar it is dissatisfied, and accuses the management of foisting old ballets on it. That is why the supply must constantly come from Europe, where the wages are even much smaller than here. Mere numbers on the stage do not count much if they do not know how to dance. It is better to have a small row of good dancers and pretty, well-formed women than a big row of people who do not know how to dance and who are not good looking. Fill your stage well, but do not overcrowd it, for the effect is worse that way than to have no lady at all upon the stage."

Most of these newly imported women live in cheap foreign boarding-houses near the theater, where the fare, however, at $9 and $11 a week is infinitely better than what would be obtained in an American boarding-house at the same price. The better-paid women live further uptown and in a better class of houses, but it is noticeable that they are very economical and save as much of their money as they can. They come to America to save money, not to spend it. The conduct of the women is very good, and here, particularly, there is an absence of the stage-door mashing business, which would be in full blast if a new ballet or a comic opera or a burlesque company with English or Americans. "It is not at all habitual to find among ballet companies mainly formed of Italians the loveliness that prevails among these named.

The best dancers are divided between the merits of the Grande Ecole, which is that of Milan, and the Ecole Moderne, which is that of Paris and Vienna. The first adheres to the old-fashioned pas seul and pas de deux and groups with great beauty and skill and grandeur. The modern school seeks to be pretty and graceful and eccentric, and is now most in vogue, though not so legitimate.

He Started 'Em.

[Bloomington Through Mail.]

On one of the new railroads in Florida the stations have peculiar names, and a Bloomington man who passed several months last winter down there had a strange experience. He had seated himself in one of the intermediate-gauge coaches and was trying to keep off the mosquitoes and go to sleep at the same time, when a brakeman poked his head in the door and shouted:

"Alligator! Look out!"

Everybody on the car dodged, expecting to see a stone crash through the window or a pine tree fall on the coach, but the train gradually slowed up at a standstill and he asked if that was Lookout, and was helped off.

How It Came About.

[Chronicle-"Unitertones."]

One would think we imagined that something more earnest in character than ice-cream would have been required after a dose of tragic opera, but oh, the simple treat was good enough for her. Over the dainty dishes they grew fond. They had just admired a handsome turnout at the theatre door.

"When I get married I mean to have just such a turnout for my wife."

She gave a gentle sigh, and as the last faint sweetness of a big spoonful of cream throbbed her appreciative palate she threw into her eyes a beaming glance and whispered:

"Give me the first ride in it."

No candy.

Over-Ripe Stories.

A Yankee playwright, who has written several plays for the Boston theatres, which, after being refused by the managers, were [illegible]

Mr. Davis' Two Transactions in Bodstall Consolidated.

[Financial Record.]

In California, in the days of the Comstock excitement, when all kinds of wildcats were being floated on the market and rapidly bought by an indiscriminating public, a Mr. Davis bought a claim, known by the name of the "Bodstall Consolidated." The speculative Mr. D. organized a company. To a particular friend of his he sold a large block of 50,000 shares at $1 per share.

For some time the mine amounted to nothing, and after a few 36-foot segments had been levied the stock really would not have been cheap at a gift.

For this reason Mr. Davis and the friend to whom he sold the 50,000 shares as a good thing were not on speaking terms. One day, however, the friend, to his utter and complete astonishment, received a note, asking him to call at once at the residence of Mr. Davis. He did so, and found Mr. Davis in bed. The table was covered with medicine bottles, and Mr. Davis looked as if his head had been repairing in a sack of flour.

I haven't many hours to live.

"Jim," said Davis in a hoarse and feeble voice, "I did you a dirty trick a few months ago in selling you them 'ere bobtails, for I knowed you couldn't afford the money, and because knows they're not brought me no luck."

"Well," said Jim, "what has been done cannot be undone now," at the same time gazing compassionately upon the sickly form of the prostrate Davis.

"No, no," urged Davis, "I done you a wrong. The doctor says I haven't many hours to live, and before I die I want to undo as far as I can the injury I done you. Where are them shares?"

"Got 'em down at my office," was the reply.

"You bring 'em up here as soon as you can," said Davis, "and I will give you the money that you paid for 'em."

Muttering expressions of grief, and with eyes rapidly becoming moist with tears, Jim rushed off to the office and brought up the shares. The shares were handed to Davis, who, with an expression as if it were his last earthly transaction, handed his friend $20,000.

"I never knew I was ever meant to do me wrong," said Jim, speaking as if he was about to choke, "and I do hope you will soon be better, old pard." Jim then strolled out with his hands full of greenbacks and his eyes full of tears.

I guess I had him that time.

No sooner had he left the room than Davis, suddenly recovering, jumped out of bed and did a war dance on the floor. Wiping the flour from his face and taking the rag from off his throat, he remarked to a confidant: "Well, I guess I had him that time!"

"I guess you did," replied the confidant.

The following morning the news was blazed forth in all directions that the "Bobtail Con." had struck the greatest body of ore ever seen on the Pacific coast, and the shares bounded up from 75 cents, the last quotation unpaid, to $7. The last time Mr. Davis was seen he was living at the Hoffman house in New York, feasting on the fat of the land. He was then the largest individual holder of "Bobtail Cons," and drawing a princely revenue in the form of monthly dividends from the prosperous. But once again Davis and his friends are not on speaking terms.

Uncle Sis Criticism of the Mother Hubbard Dress.

[The Creaker.]

"My ole 'oman, Mis' Sis Mi. "what's allus on de p'int fur ennything what looks an' feels lazy, got Mudder Hubbard on de brain, an' she jes tromes off an' buys one or dem ere Mudder Hubbards."

"Well, what then?"

"Don't ax me! I jes' believ'd as' pay'd de yearls as we'd need 'em to de middle ob Jenooary, but I seez 'Look fresh, Sam'y, is Wine to use dat gyarmint fur or dress; it ain't dress, bit ain't finished fur de per-fession' gyirl. Bill need 'bout de pound or two sowed up in de tail ob bit, fur mek it sag plumb, an' guy-strings into de front ob her yer shoo tops fur fur keep bit taut agin de wind, an' den she'll look strong an' gyirth bain', an' sum kinder super-kyargo in de tar! If you wuster go out an' git hitch in ere rain how 'ud you like ter hab yer fotogra'f took fur de Ars Lamb show?' an' ef ar high win' struck ye when you reach de poleece 'ud be doin' while you was prancin' roun' like ar embroiler turn'd rong-side outen?'

"Wal, what did she say to all dat?"

"She ain't sayin' he mout ter me at all, but yistiddy mornin' fer sho' ye ax de book ob tradin' or mongsht likely Mudder Hubbard gowned fur or p'ar ob hems an' se cupple or mountain-sprout weiremillions! An' ef anybody see you 'lookin on you'll see you was kinder ole fashioned takes at my house, hoss!"

ARP PULLING FODDER.

A Rural Task for a Modern Philosopher.

He Dives Down Into the Tricks of Trades and Shows How One Class Gouges the Other.

[Atlanta Constitution.]

We are pulling fodder now. I've hired two men to pull by the day and two to pull by the hundred bundles. I want to see which is the cheapest. But they gouge me anyhow, and I can't help it. If they pull by the day they don't make 150 good bundles apiece, while they ought to make at 75 cents a day, and if they pull by the hundred they make over 200 bundles, and some of them are mighty light. But it is all right I reckon. They are watching me and I am watching them. It is the same old story—capital against labor. There are tricks in all trades. You can count the hands in a bundle, but you can't count the blades in a hand, and as they can make them heavy or as many as light according to pay. I've tried cord wood cut by the cord and they can pile it so as to put as much as a pack of hounds can follow a fox right through it and never touch a log. But it is no deep laid scheme to cheat you. They are just sloshing along and you can settle with a darkey easier than with any creature upon the earth. A mean man can pay them in bacon at 15 cents a pound and fleer at 4 when the cash would buy one at 10 and the other at 3, and he can cheat them 25 per cent. in the weights and they will never know any better and never care.

The Lord never made such an easy mean petting creature as a free nigger. There are white men who take advantage of them and cheat them and get their labor for their victuals and clothes, but the darkey is sure of a living anyhow, for if he can't earn it he can steal it, as it is all right anyhow and the races keep about even. Some farmers are tricky too, when they take chickens to town they pick out some that are not so good, specimens are put on top of the basket. The richest gins is on the outside of the load, and some rotten cotton will be put in the middle where the most is for sample. The merchant has his tricks too. He will bait you with something for less than cost and make it up on something else at 50 per cent. To keep up with hard competition he will sell you shoes with pasteboard soles and nails that break in two under the hammer, and shoddy cloth all through. But his customers want everything at the lowest price whether it is good or bad, and it is bustle and wages whether the merchant can get ahead of his customers or they get ahead of him. One thing is certain, when the merchant forgets to charge anything it is lost, forever lost. If he makes a mistake in charge or weight or measure, which is a specialty before five or six times in the course of an evening, often more. There are women in stores who have to change as often as ten times, in itself a work of no light consequence.

"But," said the maitre de ballet, to a reporter at Niblo's one night between two of the scenes, himself in a torrid heat of perspiration after having watched and filed and sent out a couple of hundred women, closely following their gyrations, clapping his hands at every change of movement to guide them to a new one, "but even for the hard life there is always a greater supply than a demand. At the Tennis Courts.

Bright skies and a cool October air favored the tennis players yesterday afternoon. A large crowd of ladies and gentlemen gathered at the grounds on Central avenue and watched the different games with evident interest. Dog carts and phaetons drawn up on the street, settees and camp chairs scattered around the various courts, filled with the elite of the city, the players dressed in neat suits, using their rackets with grace and skill, all combined to make up a scene at once interesting and attractive.

The visitors showed a thorough appreciation of the good plays, not only by vigorous applause, but by such exclamations as "good serve," "fine rally," "beautiful return" and a running fire of comments which showed that many of the fairer sex, as well as the gentlemen present, were fully alive to the finer points of play.

In the second class singles, Mr. W. Murray defeated Dr. Hodges. The championship in this class now rests between Mr. Murray and Mr. White.

In first class singles Mr. Coolidge defeated Mr. Sorrell two straight games with a score each time of six to one. Mr. S. McCutchen defeated Mr. J. H. Johnston in two successive games by a score of six to five and six to three respectively, though each set was hotly contested, and the playing on both sides was superior.

Mr. C. Johnston and Mr. A. Hudnut started on a match series, but were only able to finish one set before the darkness interfered. This resulted in Mr. Johnston's favor by a score of 6 to 3. The most scientific playing of the day was done by these gentlemen. Both had a swift curved serve which only a most skillful player could return, and both were perfect masters of the game. Balls placed in seemingly safe corners would be sent back whizzing over the net, only to be again neatly returned, and so evenly were the players matched that in one game after the umpire had called "deuce," for fully fifteen minutes the ball was "let," "served," and "let" before either could wrest the game from his opponent.

The increasing interest which has been manifested in the tournament must be very gratifying, not only to the members of the club, who have done so much toward establishing tennis on a firm basis in this city, and many of whom have proven themselves such worthy knights of the racket, but to all lovers of this healthful sport.

Fraternal Visit of Sons of Temperance.

Howell Division, Sons of Temperance Hall was filled last evening, the occasion being a visit from J. H. Hoagland, G. W. P., and a fraternal visit from Star and Welcome Division of New Brunswick and Union No. 10, Edison. A delegation was also present from Orange. Numerous short addresses, songs and recitations were the order of exercises. After the refreshments the company returned into the assemblies always so gratifying to the younger members. The division is steadily increasing in members and interest and meets every Tuesday evening corner of Park avenue and Front street.

Temperance Rally.

A delegation of the Somerville Reform Club held a meeting at North Branch, Sunday evening. Seventy signers to the total-dry were obtained. The speakers were L. D. Ayres, R. R. Coles, Talley, A. T. Bridges, Wm. Hoge and T. F. Robbins.

Personals.

Mrs. M. A. Crane, of Newark, the mother of Mr. L. V. F. Randolph, ex-Mayor of Plainfield and Treasurer of the Ellis & Colyer R. R. Company, is spending a few days at her son's residence in this city.

"Lost and Saved."

The success of the entertainment at the Reform Club building last evening has induced its repetition to-night. There was a full house and generous applause of the ladies and gentlemen who took part, and they well deserved it. The manner in which some of them performed their parts would have been a credit to professionals. By the advertisement elsewhere it will be seen that the performance is to be repeated this evening, the admission being 35 cents, the reserved seats to be 50 cents. The part assigned Mr. Runyon was originally given Mr. Ulrich, and was so attributed on the program. Mr. Ulrich, however, was so hoarse taken ill, and at two o'clock in the afternoon Mr. Runyon was chosen to take his place. The following is a synopsis of the cantata.

A Card from Sandford and Co.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Oct. 7th, 1884.

EDITOR EVENING NEWS:—Your article in issue of Monday in regard to the fire at our works is not a statement of facts, and we take the liberty of asking you to correct. In the first place, Mr. Sandford personally experienced no fire factory. Second, The fire was caused by pouring naphtha from a pail into a kettle of black varnish. There was no barrel of naphtha inside of the building. The barrel referred to was in the yard, and the naphtha carried from it to the kettle in a pail. Mr. B—— was only slightly injured and is at work, the factory running as usual. The insurance companies have never refused insurance on either building or stock. The fact is that our building being of brick and in general opinion of those competent to judge, that it was impossible to entirely destroy the premises, made us willing to run that part of the factory to carry the risk, and had a cover (provided for the purpose) been instantly put on the kettle the fire would have been soon heard without such an loss.

Respectfully, SANDFORD & COMPANY.

Proprietors of the Oil Cloth Works.

Our facts were obtained at the office of the oil cloth work from a person to whom we were referred as the superintendent, who said he was the superintendent, and whom the city directory says is the superintendent.

Sussex Convention of the W. C. T. U.

The eleventh convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union of the State begins to-day at Newark in the rooms of the Union, at Mark's and Mulberry streets, and continues for three days. Mrs. Pearson, of Bogota, and other speakers will address the meetings. All friends of the Union are invited to attend.

The October Term of County.

The opening of the October term of the Union county court yesterday at Elizabeth was attended by the usual busy scene, and large gatherings of lawyers, witnesses, jurors and others. While awaiting the opening of the court the lawyers talked politics, and much good humor prevailed.

Judge Van Syckel and associates were promptly upon the bench at half-past nine o'clock, and Crier Keene's proclamation brought the political discussions to an end.

At twenty minutes to eleven o'clock Sheriff Forsyth entered with the grand jurors, and they were sworn by Acting Clerk Cro. well. They are as follows:

GRAND JURORS:

Elizabeth—James B. Green, foreman, George O'Neill, James Potts, Charles Counsel, William McCormack, George Wheelwright, William T. Jones, John McGrath.

Plainfield—Lewis F. Wadsworth, Edward L. Ploch, Peter Hoagland, Robert L. Livingston.

Fanwood—William G. Stansbury.

Westfield—James H. Woodruff.

Cranford—Alfred Wilson.

Linden—William A. Baker.

Summit—James H. Kelly.

Springfield—J. Edward Meeker.

Union—Noah W. Parsell.

Clark—Israel Crane.

JUDGE VAN SYCKEL'S CHARGE.

Judge Van Syckel said the only matter brought to the attention of the court requiring a special notice to the grand jurors was the fact that in some parts of the county the liquor laws are being violated. The intimations to the court in that connection were without license are habitually selling both in the incorporated cities and townships. If the jurors found such to be the case, it would be their duty to present the offenders under indictment. Those offenses should be treated as all violations of law.

The jurors selected as their attendants constables John M. C. Marsh and William Enslo. They immediately retired for deliberation.

The following is the list of constables: John E. Marsh, William McCracken, John Stanton, William Enslo, Thomas Calahan, Charles C. Cornwell, John M. C. Marsh, John Spinning, John Bedou and Amos Moffett.

The calendar shows an ordinary list of causes, not unusually large, although it is anticipated that the term will be lengthy and important. The Supreme court causes number 16; the Circuit court causes, 15; jury appeal list, 6; justice appeal list, 8.

The Two Democratic Congressional Candidates.

A correspondent in the Elizabeth Herald tells who McMahon is, one of the two Democrats nominated last week. He says:

As there has been much inquiry in regard to William McMahon since his nomination by the convention of the Third Congressional district of New Jersey, and as many false statements have been put in circulation by his opponents, it would state, for the edification of the people of the district, that Mr. McMahon came to this city some eight years ago, and that six years since he received the nomination for mayor on this city, which he declined. He is one of the largest tax-payers, and one of the leading Democrats of the city. Most of the Cleveland and Hendricks club, a man of great extraordinary push and energy, a gentleman of education and polish, whose character will compare favorably with that of any of the gentlemen whose names were mentioned for the office. His family is one of the enterprises are of great magnitude and associated with him in that connection are some of the most wealthy and respectable business men of the city of New York, where his business is conducted. I am under no obligation to Mr. McMahon to write this and respectfully ask your publication of same in the interest of right, truth and justice. R. H. DIAMOND.

56 Main street, Rahway, N. J.

The other candidate, ex-Judge Green, of Elizabeth, is of the firm of Canning, Green and Vanderpool, New York lawyers.

The What Is It Parade.

The H. I. M. Club propose to start for the north to-morrow evening by the light of the silvery moon and the glare of many torches to take Plainfield by storm, in a grand parade, in their new five-dollar and forty-cent petfect-dog-gone-nobby-suits. Still expressly for the campaign, and imported from Gotham. They are to be attended by escorts and appendages, of Jolly Germans and Boys in Red, the Tara Vorsin Drum Corps, who are to contribute to the fun, and by some others the political complexion of whom is not at present known, but may appear later when the returns come in.

The club claims to have the best-looking and best fixed men in town, and as they have been drilling in the by-ways over the brook them many nights, it is probable they have everything down fine.

The line will form on Jackson avenue east of Somerset street at 7.30 p. m. and march through Somerset street to Emily, to Grove, to Front, to Liberty, to Seventh, to Park avenue, to Broadway, to Crescent avenue, to Park avenue, to Fifth, to Peter, to Front, to Somerset, to the wigwam and disperse.

Another Development in the Cow Case.

Mrs. Burke's cows again come to the front in an action brought in the city court by Rogers against Harding and Brown, Mrs. Burke's workmen. Rogers claims that Harding and Brown attempted to take the cows from him as he was on his way with them to the pound after they had been passed upon as property. The case is set down for to-morrow morning in the Council Chamber. The penalty in a case of this kind is a fine of five dollars for each animal, and in the present instance there were seven.

News About Town.

It is the current report about town that Knapp's Saloon for the throat and lungs is working wonders in curing cases with people who are troubled with coughs, asthma, bronchitis and consumption. Mr. Shaw, Front street, opposite Park avenue, will give you a free bottle free of cost. It is guaranteed to relieve and cure. Price 50 cents and $1.00.—Adv.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1884.

IT is announced that Mrs. Parnell, the mother of the Irish agitator, will speak in Buffalo. She has been invited by the Woman's Suffrage Convention, of which Mrs. Belva A. Lockwood and Mrs. Clemence Lozier are members. It has become known, however, that the convention is called not to approve Mrs. Lockwood's nomination, but to denounce her and her candidacy. A bitter opposition to her candidacy has sprung up within a short time. Hamilton Wilcox says that only a handful of the women nominated Belva Lockwood, and that the others do not like the nomination. He also says that the convention will formally oppose Mrs. Lockwood because her candidacy will do no good to the cause. Mrs. Parnell will not champion either side, but will speak of woman's work and progress.

THE English language is not studied in France, on the assumption that the French vernacular is destined to become the universal tongue. This, too, in spite of the recently published figures proving that the number of French-speaking people is declining, and that French is not now spoken by more than fifty million, whereas English is rapidly spreading and is already known to upwards of one hundred and fifty million.

THE American Alliance has suddenly come to grief, and Candidate Ellsworth has retired. It is too bad he had not looked ahead two or three days before accepting the nomination. Several million voters, more or less, will again have to change their preferences, and the politics' bookmakers of the campaign will have to re-arrange their tables.

A NUNISH company of Deadwood offers to send to the New Orleans Exposition this Fall an exhibition of gold bullion in one solid piece, worth $500,000, provided the various counties of the territory will unite in defraying the expenses of transportation.

ALL you have to do now is to look at the style of Fall hat a man is wearing to tell his politics. In a Park avenue hat store we noticed a short time ago the St. John hat and the Butler hat, and undoubtedly the others could be found inside.

THE title, "Your Honor," applied to American judges, has been introduced in England by royal proclamation as applied to county judges, who hitherto were neither lordships nor worships.

How the French Used them With Dead[illegible] Effect

An American Naval Officer Gives a Graphic Account of the Fight at the River Min—A One-Sided Battle.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 8.—The Pittsburg Dispatch publishes the following from a special correspondent, who is a naval officer on the United States ship Enterprise:

"FOOCHOW, China, Aug. 24, 1884.

"Although the cable has probably informed you before this of the naval battle between the French and Chinese forces at this place yesterday, a description of the fight by an eye witness may be of interest to your readers. I will give you an idea of the work that the Tricolor has done since Admiral Courbet, commander of Rear Admiral John Lee Davis, has been doing, and how the different vessels are stationed to protect American interests.

"In the early part of July last the flagship Trenton, the Juniata and the Enterprise sailed from Nagasaki, Japan, for Yokohama. On reaching that place on the July 21 we heard that fresh trouble had broken out between the French and Chinese, and that fighting might, at any time. The Trenton was immediately ordered to Shanghai and after a run of five days through the inland sea of Japan and straits of Simonoseki we reached the mouth of the Whampoo River.

"We found the Chinese fortifications full of men and everything in readiness for battle. There were also several Chinese men-of-war at the mouth of the river. The French had three vessels stationed at the fortifications, and every day we expected the fighting to commence. Our ship proceeded up the river as soon as the water on the bar permitted, and on our arrival at Shanghai we found everything in readiness to protect the foreigners. The captain of the Italian man-of-war Christoforo Colombo, being the senior officer present, had command of the fleet, and

WILD CATS AND YELLOW DOGS.

The British Public Frightens Shy of American Financial Animals.

LONDON, Oct. 8.—There is a growing feeling of suspicion in London financial circles as to the good faith of the new movement for the protection of American bond and shareholders. The movement was welcomed at first because of the need that has long been felt for some competent scrutiny and vetting of American securities offered for sale in this market. It was also felt that there were many sound investments in America which British capital would gladly seek if they were carefully sorted out from the wild cats and yellow dogs which were too often offered for sale by over-enterprising Americans. When the provisional committee was announced it was found to include many sound and able financiers, which seemed to give a guaranty of the bona fides of the new association. The membership of the committee has since been analyzed, however, by keen financial writers, and the startling fact is discovered that many of the members are the London financial agents of the very railroad companies against which protection is most urgently needed. Thus the Ladd VESTIENS, VELVETS, PLUSHES, NEW HOSIERY, MERINO UNDERWEAR, Yarns, Worsted, Ribbons, Knots, Domettes, Etc. A NEW PAVEMENT.

The undersigned has secured the exclusive agency for the sale of the

Diebold Paint Iron Stone,

which for elegance and durability, is unsurpassed, and in price will compare favorably with any other pavement now in use. It is the most beautiful pavement known for walks and yards, quarry stone, floor tiling and ornamental purposes. Water, fire and Burglar proof vaults, and for building purposes generally. These pavement blocks have many striking peculiarities not susceptible of description here, but are non-conductors; rejet are non-corr, as well as all kinds of moisture. When stone accumulates on the ordinary brick, the material remains perfectly free from it. These blocks are cut 1 to 2 in. square, 1 inch Slag and are the hardest of substances 7 to 9 mohs on scale. WILD CATS AND YELLOW DOGS.

The British Public Frightens Shy of American Financial Animals.

LONDON, Oct. 8.—There is a growing feeling of suspicion in London financial circles as to the good faith of the new movement for the protection of American bond and shareholders. The movement was welcomed at first because of the need that has long been felt for some competent scrutiny and vetting of American securities offered for sale in this market. It was also felt that there were many sound investments in America which British capital would gladly seek if they were carefully sorted out from the wild cats and yellow dogs which were too often offered for sale by over-enterprising Americans. When the provisional committee was announced it was found to include many sound and able financiers, which seemed to give a guaranty of the bona fides of the new association. The membership of the committee has since been analyzed, however, by keen financial writers, and the startling fact is discovered that many of the members are the London financial agents of the very railroad companies against which protection is most urgently needed. Thus the Ladd

Blaine's Journey.

CANTON, O., Oct. 8.—Blaine's trip from Wheeling to Canton was a long and tiresome one. The advertised time for the arrival of the special train in Canton was 8:56 P. M. Mr. Blaine boarded his train at Williamstown at 8:30. Stops were made at St. Marys and opposite New Matamoras. The first stop at which Mr. Blaine made was at Lowerville. Mr. Blaine urged the people to support Maxwell, the local candidate for congress at the election next week if they had the best interest of the state at heart. He also spoke of the important value of a protective tariff. At Clarington Mr. Blaine was introduced and spoke briefly. Judge Perry, of Brooklyn, made a short speech after Blaine. A short distance above New Martinsville the train stopped at the residence of Gen. D. D. Curtis, who was a classmate of Mr. Blaine's, and several of the party left the train for a moment and went to the house. They returned to the car loaded with flowers and fruit. At Barnsville Mr. Blaine made a few remarks. Nearly all of the speeches made by Mr. Blaine were short, and outside of the expressions of thanks and gratitude, they referred mostly to the tariff. At Hornbrook a crowd of pretty girls gathered about the station and cheered for Blaine as they threw small bouquets on the platform. At Canal Dover twenty-eight young ladies dressed in white surrounded the decorated stand from which Mr. Blaine spoke. When the party reached Canton they were driven to private residences. Mr. Blaine was the guest of Cornelius Aultman, a millionaire manufacturer. Last night Blaine addressed 5,000 people. He spoke returning thanks for the reception and reserving to-day to the coming election. Other gentlemen followed. Blaine held an informal reception at Mr. Aultman's house before retiring.

Note $30,000 Worth of Diamonds.

BOSTON, Oct. 8.—Mrs. George Eustis, of Marshfield, Mass., was arrested here for obtaining $30,000 worth of diamonds by false pretences from Mr. Lynch, the millionaire jeweler, of 369 Broadway, New York. Mrs. Eustis, who is the wife of her third husband last July, went to New York, engaged a suite of rooms at the Fifth avenue hotel, representing that her husband owned a large farm in Maryland and that he was worth $3,000,000. Shortly after she went to Mr. Lynch's store and purchased $5,000 worth of diamond jewelry on time. A week after she purchased $10,000 worth more of the same. She remained at the hotel for some weeks, running up a bill of $500 when her conduct aroused suspicion, and she suddenly left and took up her residence in Cambridge, Mass. The New York grand jury last week, indicted her on two counts for grand larceny, and detective Van Gresbeck of New York, came here and secured her arrest. It seems that after coming to Boston she hypothecated the jewels, securing money for all of them.

Germany's African Schemes.

LONDON, Oct. 8.—Dr. George August Schweinfurth, the famous African explorer and author of "In the Heart of Africa," has started on a new tour of exploration at the head of a scientific party fitted out by the Berlin Academy of Science. Unlike recent German explorations, which have been confined to the western coast of Africa, Dr. Schweinfurth has chosen Nubia and the White Nile as the field of his operations. Just before his departure Dr. Schweinfurth had a long conference with Prince Bismarck, after which both were given an audience by the emperor. This is considered as somewhat significant, as Dr. Schweinfurth is going to the seat of war in upper Egypt, and he has hitherto always spoken in criticising the acts of the English in the Soudan.

Col. Stewart's Death.

LONDON, Oct. 8.—The Tories are making political capital out of the death of Col. Stewart, which, they say, affords a fresh proof of the government's idiocy in delaying relief, while holding out false hopes until the delay resulted in the murder of Gen. Gordon's most trusted friend and lieutenant. Lord Granville has written a graceful letter of condolence to Col. Stewart's family. In which he says: "It is unwise to express pain hope of that gallant officer's safety. Col. Stewart's brothers in London are fearfully indignant and reportedly curse the government for his slaughter.

Colored Odd Fellows in Session.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 8.—The convention of the Grand United Order of Odd Fellows (colored) met at Robinson's Opera house. The welcoming address was made by T. J. Monroe. Grand Master W. M. T. Forrester, of Richmond, Va., presided. Grand Secretary D. R. Bousel, of Philadelphia, was secretary of the convention. Committees were appointed, when the convention went into executive session.

Another "Shoer" Official.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 8.—A special from New Castle says: "W. W. Catterel, ex-auditor of Henry county, who is missing, had arranged to settle the accounts and pay $3,700 to the school fund, overdue on the settlement of his accounts. He was probably unable to make the payment and fled. No one believes him dead."

Blaine Greatly Much Better.

FORTRESS MONROE, VA., Oct. 8.—Blaine leaves for Washington about Nov. 5. His health is slowly improving.

IMBODEN'S CAVALRY.

A Day's Stern Chase in the Shenandoah Valley.

Dare-Devil Death of Harry Gilmore's Wild Mosstrooper—A Relic that Looked Long as a Fence Rail.

[Washington Republican.]

"The Johnnies had some pretty dermal smart officers during the war," said the major. "Imboden was one of them. He was a smashing good soldier, had the true instincts of a cavalryman, and was as much at home in the saddle for a three day's ride to raid an outpost as he would have been playing bean poker for apple brandy in a cross-roads grocery in the Shenandoah mountains.

"On the morning of Oct. 16, 1863, not an hour after sunrise, I had my batteries out drilling, on the high ground at the western foot of Maryland heights, across the Potomac when I heard guns to the southward, away beyond Bolivar, and riding out to the redoubt above the river was signaled in a short time to come at once with my command to headquarters, Col. Revere of the Tenth Maryland, receiving the same orders. I gave the same instructions to battery and infantry alike, and started off at once with a lieutenant and our orderlies, and in a half an hour or so reported. No one yet knew the trouble, but the lookout from Bolivar heights located the firing at or very near Charlestown, and Col. Wells of the Thirty-fourth Massachusetts infantry was started out, Miner's Indiana battery, with which I went, and Cole's battalion of the cavalry accompanying.

"We soon found out what the trouble was. Gen. J. D. Imboden, with a small force of cavalry, perhaps 500, and a section of artillery, had started from Berryville at 2 o'clock that Sunday morning, nearly twenty miles away, and marched to Charlestown, where he arrived about sunrise, and succeeded in surrounding the place before a single officer or man discovered the least sign of his approach.

Imboden demanded a surrender, but Col. Simpson of the Ninth demanded an hour for consideration—probably wanted to drill the troops—which Imboden didn't have time, and sent word that he would give five minutes before he opened fire, and advised Simpson to send the women and children out of the way. Simpson answered gallantly to "Take me if you can," and firing at once began. Imboden had his guns posted within two squares of the court house, and said he only moved so well that in less than five minutes our people got out in the streets and tried to slip out for Harper's Ferry. Just at the edge of town Imboden's brother and Harry Gilmore met them, and after firing only one volley our troops downed their arms and surrendered—not to a single man, however, for at the first shot Col. Simpson, his lieutenant colonel, whose name I don't recollect, and five other mounted officers lit out, got through the ranks, and reached Bolivar heights.

"Well, in not much more than two hours after the first shot was fired Col. Wells had pushed his command so hard that we jumped into Imboden, who had been hastily improving his time in gathering together his prisoners and the considerable quantity of plunder he had secured in the way of arms, ammunition, accouterments and supplies, and had started them off to the southward on the Berryville pike.

"It was not long before matters began to warm up, and the game began, and the fighting all that beautiful day was kept up in echelon, almost as regularly as if a French general of brigade was exercising in tactics. A section of the battery was limbered to the front a couple of hundred yards at the gallop, supported by a portion of the other troops, and for the engagement would halt for twenty or ten or five minutes, as the case might be, Imboden resisting enough to check a continual movement forward, and retiring, as the other sections and portions of the command came up and passed on to right or left, so that for most of the time there was continuous fighting over almost every inch of the way from Charlestown to a point a few miles below Berryville, when the night came on and the pursuit was reluctantly stopped.

"Once late in the afternoon, at a point somewhere between Fairfield (blacksmith shop, grocery, etc.) and Berryville, Miner had gone into battery with all its guns in a rolling field off to the right of the road, where Imboden made what threatened to be a determined stand, as the ground was all he would have wished for if he had picked it out. Our front, Close by our right, and 400 or 500 yards from the road, was a patch of woodland that seemed to have been well thinned out, and had a thick second growth of scrub pine that you so often see in Virginia, and scarcely impassable, I should apparently advisedly, for I had ridden over to the margin of the woods and could see no trace of any sort of cleared or bridle path. The guns were well at work, and as Miner was short of officers I was directing one of his sections, which was a whoop and a yell, out of that thick undergrowth, a little to the rear, came a regiment of Harry Gilmore scouts, with that dare-devil schemer leading them, straight down on us, every man with his pistol presented at the thigh, and looking as if there was a whole division of them. I wasn't more than fifty yards away, and of course it didn't take long for them to 'get there Josh.'

"Our support at the time was one of Cole's troops and two companies of the Thirty-fourth, and the rush was so sudden and unlooked for—as a matter of fact, that the support gave way and Gilmore made straight for the guns. I was dismounted at the time, and actually, before anything could be done, they rode right over and past the guns, sabers slashing and pistols firing as they went. I had four pistol blazes at my large revolver—army pattern, weighing as much as a carbine almost—but couldn't get the blessed thing out, and so they rode over as a long legged red-headed fellow made a vicious slash at me over the wheel with his sabre. I grappled and pulled under the muzzle of the gun, and he didn't reach me, much to my satisfaction.

"'Load and shoot!' rang out, and back they came before you could draw a breath or I say satisfaction, and when they did I laid for the nearest one, and I'll be hanged if I ever before, for I had got out my gun by this time, and put a bullet square out of the top of his head. I didn't see my red-headed friend, but happened to look up suddenly right at a tremendous, angular-framed trooper, a boy in looks, was making a 'pass' to run me through. Down my bridle, goes, seems, four of that sabre, and I didn't be hanged as a fence-rail, and as bright as an electric light. I'll bet my pay this month to go into the remembered fund. It seemed to me as if I just stood still a hair an hour long, big as it is, but that was just fancy, for I dropped flat under the gun, and the boy swept on past. By this time the support had rallied and began to fire, and a second or two we wheeled a gun round as it stood, a stand of canister emptied a couple of muskets, and the fighting was practically over. But it was warm weather for the moment. As far as my own experience and observation go, that desk of Harry Gilmore's was the handsomest thing of the kind that took place during the war. You see, he and his men knew every hillock and bit of the whole country, and had just slipped around our flank by an almost impassable bridle path. I'd like to run across that young fellow some time. If he pulled through the war all right, and is back into civil life I guess I'll bet he'll be fat when he thought he had me as sure."

SOUTHY.

[Mary Ashley Townsend.]

"—and from sudden death
Good Lord deliver us!"
I cannot pray! God pardon me! For not for me
Implore deliverance from sudden death!
What is there in the struggle of the breath
To frighten one so tired? Oh! my fate may be
To lose no less pulse-beat mortality—
To be the fervent lightning's sudden sheath,
The tomb where thou hast been entombed.
The spark extinguished instantaneously.
I would not anguish-led, existence quit,
Nor balking fit, like some scared, whimpering hound,
With whimpering steps toward the echoless tomb.
Nay! I would rush into one incredible bound
The dark profound of deep love, and so merge
All once on the finite and the infinite.

CENTRAL AMERICA'S PALACES.

The Ruins of the Incas—Glory of Departed Greatness.

[Pittsburg Dispatch.]

Mr. Francis H. Smith, secretary of the Central American Syndicate company, expressed himself upon Central America as follows: "Most, or I might say all, of my traveling was done on the back of a mule, with only a servant. I would travel all day, and at night, after swinging my hammock under a tree in the public square of the little village we would stop in, and in a moment all the principal men of the village would gather around and ask innumerable questions about my country in a quiet, innocent fashion. After I had told them all, they in turn would relate the traditions of their ancestors; of the fabulous mines of gold and silver; of the Spanish conquest, and the glory of their departed grandeur. I traveled from the British colony of Belize to the Incas' ruins in the province of Copan, in the republic of Honduras."

"What do you know of the reported discovery by a priest of a key to the Mexican and Central American hieroglyphics?"

"I know nothing beyond what I have read since I returned to New York. I heard nothing down there. In fact, I think there is very little in it. I don't see how any key could be discovered to unlock the Incas' mysteries. There is no analogy of the old language left, and there was no contemporaneous language that was reduced to writing that I know of, so that the key to all of these Incas' rules, they are wonderful. You come upon them in the midst of morass and swamp. Miles of magnificent columns, the work of the palaces of emperors who ruled before Cortes came. Next to the beauty of their ruins comes the beauty of their pottery, remains of which are to be found within the walls of every temple and palace."

"What was the most striking thing in the way of ruins that you encountered?"

"A wonderful road. The Appian way has been the boast of antiquarians for ages, but what do you think of a road sixty miles long in the heart of tropical America, constructed over mountain and through morass and jungle, and exquisitely paved with square blocks of stone as compactly set as our Belgian blocks of to-day? One of the Incas emperors had the road built expressly for his bride, so that when she came on her bridal trip to his palace her male train would have a fit road upon which to travel. The tradition says that this ruler, whose name has been forgotten, had 1,000 men for nearly a year working on this enterprise. The ruins of the road are to show for the work yet, and I traveled on that strange thoroughfare over whose stones, firmly set, the tangled vines and branches of the great trees formed a canopy that almost excluded the sunlight."

"And the people are lazy and dishonest, I presume?" suggested the reporter.

"Lazy? Yes," replied the gentleman, "but not dishonest. On the other hand they are strictly honest. Once a month a peon is sent from the mines down to the colony for coin to pay the hands. The highest wage is 50 cents a day for his services. He returns regularly with from $4,000 to $5,000 in gold in the net on the mule's back. The village is quite a little one, for the native women are the prettiest on the continent, but they are the most slovenly, too, I may add." Mr. Fast will return to Central America the coming fall in all probability.

A Head Lives After Death.

[Paris Cor. London News.]

M. Brown-Sequard wanted to see whether life, after a violent death, is susceptible of being recalled in an animal killed in a healthy state. He beheaded a dog familiar with his voice. The head of another dog was before hand prepared to be transfused into the arteries of the head. No sooner was it injected than its heart began to become animated, the eyes opened, and, on the professor calling the dog by his name, an attempt was made to answer by a caressing look. When the arterial blood was injected life disappeared. This painful experiment was suggested by one made by Dr. Leborde on Campi's head an hour and a half after execution, and which produced the powerful motor had greatly lost excitability. Nevertheless, when arterial blood was injected into the head, the mouth appeared to take a living character, the eyelids were raised, the pupils contracted when light flashed upon them, and, by an orifice in the skull it was seen that circulation was momentarily established in the intellectual convolutions.

Baskets to Hold Water.

[Los Angeles Herald.]

The eastern papers speak in the splendid uses of the willow fiber for spinning and weaving into cloth, and it is said to be better than hemp or flax. But there is a kind of willow that grows on the north slope of the high mountains about eighty miles east of Los Angeles, on the border of the Colorado desert, which is used by the Cahuzo Indians to make baskets, light and impervious to water. They are better than any tin, galvanized iron, or any kind of a receptacle for water. They are used extensively by teamsters and old settlers, and will last a constant use a dozen or fifteen years. They are made quickly by the deft fingers of these Indians, and are sold readily to hucksters, merchants and regular customers. This is a particular product of the Pacific coast, and not only a novelty to eastern people, but also to a great many Californians, who do not live where they have ever seen them.

The Court Adjourned.

It was a quiet day in court. The flies unmolested played tag over the bald head of the crier, and the clerk was dreaming of the cooling drinks and delicious ices of Santaclaus. Some women were fanning themselves on the spectators' benches.

"What is the charge?" languidly inquired the judge.

"The embezzlement of 10 cents, your honor."

The judge aroused himself; a fiendish light glistened in his eye, and he shouted, "Take off with the prisoner to the penny tentiary!"

The crier awoke with a start, and fell precipitately; three women fainted, and the clerk jumped to his feet and chuckled an hideous, but the judge had departed, and the court was adjourned.

A Queer Name.

The Exhibitor is in the queer sense of a purchaser at Asbury Park. The editor informs the public that "exhibitor" means "to strike with a brick."

FRONTIER WEAPONS.

The Cowboy's Taste for First-Class Pocket Artillery.

A Smashing Attack with the Trigger—Nothing Less Than Caliber Forty-Five—The Sheriff's Shotgun.

[New Mexico Cor. Globe-Democrat.]

I was in El Paso the other day, having gone up to the Rio Grande to see how Lee Crosby and El Paso Bo washed out. While in town I dropped into a large store on El Paso street, which enjoys the reputation of doing more arms than any other house in the city.

While your correspondent was inspecting the glittering array of pistols of all kinds which cover half a dozen counters, a young fellow of about 20 entered. He was dressed in approved frontier style, somewhere it would take three days to walk round the rim of, with leather fringe all loosely hanging to the neck, blue shirt, pants stuck in his boots, and large Mexican spurs upon his heels, jingling as he walked. In his belt, or by a "gun" in the expressive and laconic language of the frontier a "gun" is a revolver, a rifle is called by the name of the maker, and the weapon of the sportsman, accustomed of its fair proportions, is known as a shot-gun.

Selecting from a case a handsomely mounted 45-caliber revolver the clerk said: "How would you like this? It is the newest thing out—a double-action forty-five."

"Ain't worth a row of beans. No man 'ceptin a tenderfoot wants that kind of thing. Gimme an old reliable all the time. You see a man that's used to the old style is apt to get fooled—not pull her off in time—and then he'll be laid out colder'n a wedge."

His eye then rested on a section of the same model, which, after carefully examining, he proceeded to cock and fire, twirling the pistol around his forefinger and cocking and pressing down to lock the barrel that came into the palm of his hand. After some little "kick" about the price the weapon was paid for and the customer left the store.

"There are few guns," observed the clerk as his customer left, "that can do that trick. I have been ten years on the south-west frontier, among the worst characters I ever knew, and less than half a dozen could successfully do it, so can Pat Garret, former sheriff of Lincoln county; so can Dan Tucker, deputy sheriff of Dunlap. Curly Bill could do it but of the lot, and that's how he killed Sheriff White at Tombstone."

A TREACHEROUS TRICK.

"How was that?" queried the correspondent.

"Well, you see Curly Bill was trying to paint the town red, and White heard of it, and going up to him covered him with his six-shooter and told him he had got to give up his gun. Bill handed the gun out butt first, but kept his finger inside the guard, and as the sheriff reached for it he gave it that twist you've seen, turned her loose, and the sheriff passed in his checks."

"Do you sell many of the bull-dog pistols?"

"Yes, they are about the favorite of laboring, tramps and boys. Men who are used to the country either buy a caliber 41 or carry a 44 or 45 in a shoulder scabbard."

"What is that?"

"Well, it's a pistol scabbard with a strap passing over the right shoulder, and supports the pistol under your coat on the left side. It enables you to draw while a man is thinking that you are only looking for your handkerchief. The bull-dog is a poor pistol, shoots wild and can't be depended upon for over fifteen feet. The great trouble with all these pistols are that they are hard on the trigger. The boys get over this by having the catch filed down. The pistol of the cowboy is as fine on the trigger as were the hair-triggers of the old dueling days."

A SPECIAL WEAPON.

"I want to show you a kind of shot-gun that has a history. I sometimes trade for them, and he led the way to the back of the store where about half a dozen double-barreled shot-guns were standing in a rack. They had all been cut off at the breech leaving barrels about two feet in length, but otherwise they were perfect. "These guns are prime favorites with the sheriffs, deputy sheriffs, United States marshals and officers of the law generally, and when they get the drop on you with one of them it's a case of throw up your hands, and quick, too, for you've got all you may have got. They are very handy, and you can stow them away under the seat of a buggy with ease. Wells-Fargo's messengers all carry them, and on the stage lines they beat rifles and six-shooters all to hades. It was armed with one of them that Horn, who was deputy sheriff at Lordsburg, took in Curly Bill. Bill was riding into town and Horn had stationed himself just by the door post. As Bill rode out he covered him and called to him to 'throw up his hands.' Bill only glanced at the muzzle and up went his hands. Had it been a six-shooter he'd have taken chances. A dart foot went and rode through the dining-room in the railroad hotel at Deming. Leaning on his pistol, and frightened the lady passengers bound west nearly into fits. Dan Tucker found the latter on the car, covered him with her and called 'hands up.' The blasted idiot make a motion for his six-shooter and Dan filled him chuck full of buckshot. He failed to get them, though, and now peacefully sleeps beneath the daisies.

BUT FEW ACCIDENTS.

"I notice that you have fewer accidents from fire-arms in the west than we have in the east, which, considering that every man carries a 'gun,' seems extraordinary."

"It is not. The men who are always handling fire-arms are the most careful with them. I'd like to see you pedal a pistol or shotgun at a cow-boy, and he'd make you drop it so quick 'twould make your head swim. There used to be a good many accidents, though, a few years ago, when the boys were in the habit of carrying the full six loads in their guns, and trusting to the safety catch to avoid any chance and regular accidents. This is a particular product of the Pacific coast, and not only a novelty to eastern people, but also to a great many Californians, who do not live where they have ever seen them.

The Court Adjourned.

It was a quiet day in court. The flies unmolested played tag over the bald head of the crier, and the clerk was dreaming of the cooling drinks and delicious ices of Santaclaus. Some women were fanning themselves on the spectators' benches.

"What is the charge?" languidly inquired the judge.

"The embezzlement of 10 cents, your honor."

The judge aroused himself; a fiendish light glistened in his eye, and he shouted, "Take off with the prisoner to the penny tentiary!"

The crier awoke with a start, and fell precipitately; three women fainted, and the clerk jumped to his feet and chuckled an hideous, but the judge had departed, and the court was adjourned.

CHRONOLOGICAL EVENTS.

Chicago fire occurred in 1871.

JOTTINGS.

—Read notice of Republican meeting tonight announced among notices.

—Patrick Sweeney, an old man and a tramp, was arrested and yesterday railroaded out of town.

—The New York Sun this morning says "Gep" "whooped 'er up" for Kean at the convention yesterday.

—The annual parade of the Somerville fire department occurs on October 22. Gosslin company of this city have been invited to participate.

—The selling out bargains are to be continued another thirty days at Manning Vermeule's store as advertised. Hats, caps, trunks and valises are offered at half price. The store is to let.

—William Rand and James Cahlers stole sixteen whips at the Somerset County Fair. They were captured with their booty, tried before Justice Bathgen and Voorhis and paid fines and costs amounting to $8.30 each.

—Robert S. Manning, Cor. Secretary of the Reform Club League will hold a meeting this evening in the Baptist Church, Orange, N. J., Rev. Mr. Davis Pastor. Speakers of the Trenton Reform Club will be present and assist in the exercises.

—Mr. John Ulrich, who was suddenly taken ill with a severe bilious attack, while attending the opening of the Union County Court, was in town and at his office for a short time this morning, but is not yet able to attend to his usual routine of business.

—The shower last evening somewhat interfered with the attendance at the Reform Club building, in which the performance of "Lost and Saved" was repeated. There was, however, a full house, and the entertainment passed off as pleasantly as on the evening previous.

—Thomas Calloway was arrested for being drunk and disorderly about the depot, and yesterday, sent to the county jail for sixty days. Calloway was recently arrested on suspicion of firing the Union avenue brewery which was burned a few days ago, but was discharged for the lack of evidence.

—Stuffed calves in silk stockings will not be worn by the bachelors in the parade tonight of the H. L. M. Club. There is not enough sawdust to go around. The stuffed calves may, therefore, serve to distinguish the bachelors and prevent awkward mistakes.

—The condition in which Park avenue, at the point near Front street where the improvements are being made, was left last evening was not a credit to the judgment of those having the matter in charge. No lights were placed there, and a number of occurrences there came near being serious.

—In what is known as the office of Mr. Taylor, of the Park House, the ex-mayor of Jersey City, located on Grand street, opposite Park avenue, yesterday had a Cleveland and Hendricks Club transparency placed before the windows on the third story, the Republican transparency being at the second story. The ex-Democratic mayor is bound to have some fun, and to overreach his aspiring adversary, might even climb a greased pole.

—In Princeton college a vote has just been taken among the students, who are eligible the franchise, which resulted in 42 for Cleveland and 38 for Blaine. Four years ago, in a total vote of about 100, Garfield had 50 majority over Hancock. This year out of the 80 voting, however, all but 4 have declared for Cleveland. There is also much dissatisfaction existing against Blaine among the theological students. A Cleveland and Hendricks Club has just been formed, with a membership of 125, all of whom are fully equipped for the campaign, a committee having purchased the necessary uniform for them.

An Exhibit of Newspapers.

By request of Governor Abbett, Assembly Clark H. D. Winton, of the Hackensack Democrat will prepare an exhibit of the New Jersey Newspapers for the New Orleans exposition, a copy of every paper in the United States and other interesting matter are to be included in the exhibit.

Shot at by Tramps.

John Merritt, a farmer, living near Scotch Plains, was driving through a stretch of woods toward Springfield at 1 a. m. yesterday, when he was twice shot at by men concealed in the woods, which were followed by jeering. He escaped by running his horse into the town.

JUDGE GREEN DECLINES.

Another Convention Called.

The annexed explains itself;

HON. L. F. WARSWORTH,
Chairman of the Third Districts Congressional Convention;

DEAR SIR—Delay in coming to a conclusion as to the nomination tendered me through a committee of the convention has been occasioned by a desire and effort to ascertain, exactly, what were the sentiments of those attending the vote and other parties of influence. Statements are, however, so conflicting, and complicated, with answers so unsatisfactory, that it is impossible to form any satisfactory judgment. The reported assistance and confidence in the convention may have led to different views, and, it may be, to have created doubt.

It is well known that this nomination was accepted by me, and while I might have—at some sacrifice of personal advantage—accepted the unquestionable nomination of my party, it must have come to me with no small regret.

Question is made by the friends of another gen leman as to my selection by the convention. Some claim that I was not the choice of a undivided front; and my own loyalty to that party and its history requires that there should be a second vote, unless there be some any possible reason or justice, and I be laid as my door.

There is ample time for the convention to reassemble, and, under the circumstances, I think it the best interests of the party require that I should accept the nomination tendered which has been tendered to me.

Accept for yourself and my kind friends, my sincere thanks, and believe me,

Very truly yours,
HORT. R. GREEN.

Elizabeth, Oct. 7, 1884.

Judge Wadsworth has to-day issued a call reconvening the convention at Elizabeth next Wednesday. It is claimed that Green will be renominated. Should this be the case he will undoubtedly accept.

Fourth Day of the Tennis Tournament.

The prospect of seeing some exciting games for the championship of first-class singles, drew together yesterday afternoon at the tennis grounds on Central avenue the largest and most enthusiastic crowd of the week. And these anticipations were filled to the utmost. Mr. C. Johnson defeated Mr. A. Hudnut six to two, which taken with Tuesday's score gave him two straight games. The championship then rested between Mr. C. Johnson, Mr. S. McCutchen and Mr. Coolidge the last named gentleman having "the bye." In the first match between Mr. Johnston and Mr. McCutchen the scores stood six to nothing in Mr. Johnston's favor, and the outlook was rather dark for the gentleman from North Plainfield. But Mr. McCutchen, though small in stature, has remarkable facility in getting anywhere and everywhere about the courts in an incredibly short space of time, and by it did he succeed in distributing himself at the most convenient localities, that in the second set he defeated Mr. Johnston six to three. Then the game was called because of the darkness.

Considerable interest and enthusiasm prevailed, especially during the last set. The finest rallies that have been seen on the ground this year were made by the players to this match and well earned volumes of applause came from the spectators at each brilliant turn of the game.

Fourth District Republican Congressional Convention.

Congressman Hewitt was renominated on Saturday by the Republicans of the Fourth District in convention assembled at Washington, Warren County. The district includes the counties of Somerset, Sussex, Hunterdon and Warren. The convention was called to order by Charles Place, of North Plainfield, and H. K. Carroll, of North Plainfield, one of the editors of the New York Independent, was made temporary chairman. The temporary organization was afterwards made permanent. The mention of Mr. Hewitt's name evoked great enthusiasm. The routine work of the convention was over in twenty minutes.

H. L. M. Change of Line.

The line of march of the parade this evening has been changed as follows:

The line will form on Jackson avenue east of Somerset street at 7.30 p. m. and march through Somerset street to Emily, to Grove, to Front, to Liberty, to Seventh, to Park avenue, to Ninth, to Broadway, to Crescent avenue, to Park avenue, to Fifth, to Peace, to Front, to Park avenue, to Fourth, to Madison, to Front, to Somerset, to the wigwam and disperse.

The line is to form at 7.30 o'clock and begin to march at 8.

The W. C. T. U. Convention.

The tenth annual convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of this State was opened in the hall of the association yesterday at Newark. About 250 delegates, from sixteen counties, were present. Mrs. S. I. Blanchard delivered the address of welcome. Mrs. W. J. Pierson, president of the British Union, spoke for half an hour on total abstinence. In the evening Mrs. Mary B. Dennen outlined the work of the State Union, and Mrs. Pierson spoke again. It was resolved to pray for the Prohibition candidates.

Election of Officers.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held on Tuesday. The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: President, Mrs. J. W. Yates; Vice President, Mrs. P. K. Fromm; Secretary, Mrs. W. B. Mazson; Treasurer, Mrs. W. R. Struthers. The annual reports of the various officers were presented.

Personal.

Gen. Eli Long and family of North Plainfield have returned from their summer residence at Shiff's, Point.

A suggestive sentiment hold Thomas Chapman, of 418 Henry street, Camden, as he was coasting on the Ferryboat Pennsylvania on the ten minutes' run trip recently. He blew a whistle, saw a tug of war coming and the boat so controlled as to cross wagon to by driven over one of the first, crushing it and demolishing completely.

Congressman Kean Renominated.

The Republican convention of this Congressional District met in Shiloh's Hall, Freehold, yesterday. John R. Russell, formerly a Police Commissioner in New York, and now a coal dealer in New Brunswick, was chairman and Assembly Joseph B. Coward of this city secretary. When the committee on credentials presented its report its chairman said:

"There is no dispute, we have no contested seats and there are no discordant elements here." John F. Babcock, editor of the New Brunswick Fredonian read the resolutions, they indorsed the nomination of Blaine and Logan and the platforms of the national and State Conventions, and were received with applause. Resolutions in favor of the thorough protection of the great industries of the country and a hearty indorsement of the record of Congressman John Kean, Jr., of this district were the signal of other storms of applause. When nominations were called for ex-Congressman Amos Clark, Jr., a fellow townsman of Mr. Kean's named the latter as the unanimous choice of Union county. The entire Convention sprang up as one man and cheered as that Mr. Clark was unable to continue his speech. Major A. Bilger, of Middlesex County, reported his county as unanimously in favor of Mr. Kean's nomination, and State Senator John S. Applegate opened his speech by making the same statement on behalf of Monmouth county. The Convention suspended the rules and nominated Mr. Kean by acclamation, and then cheered itself hoarse. When Mr. Kean entered the hall he was greeted in the most enthusiastic manner. In accepting the nomination he said:

For the distinguished honor just tendered me of a second nomination I thank you. The cordial unanimity with which your choice has been made is the more gratifying. If your action shall be ratified by the people of this district it shall be my purpose—by a faithful discharge of the duties of the office—to merit the confidence and good-will which you have shown. The overshadowing issue of the present canvass is the true protection to American industries shall be sustained and promoted or abandoned and destroyed. In the former event it will be my chief pleasure to cast a vote at the last session of Congress in accordance with the wishes of this constituency. It is, indeed, a high honor to represent a constituency so diversified in its interests and interests. The interest it takes in, are fostered and promoted by the policy of that party of which you are the representatives. That policy will be best served by a judicious management of that policy which called many of them into existence and which remains vital to the full solution of the question rests upon the people—upon whose hands it is committed. Upon us is the responsibility should be the result. I accept the nomination thus tendered and again thank you for the honor, promising my best endeavors to do my whole duty as the Republican party at the coming Presidential election.

Then the William Walter Phelps was then introduced and greeted with three ringing cheers. Mr. Phelps spoke for over an hour. He began by congratulating the convention for having renominated a Republican, a man of honesty, purity and courage and one who must be re-elected.

The Next Democratic Convention.

The Democrats of this county meet at Elizabeth, Oct. 21st, to nominate candidates respectively for State Senator and Sheriff.

The ratio of representation will be one delegate for every fifty, and one for every fraction over twenty-five Democratic votes cast at the last Gubernatorial election.

The number of votes given in each ward and township, with the number of delegates to which each is entitled, is as follows:

Elizabeth—	Votes.	Entitled to
First ward (3 districts)	441	9 delegates

The City of Plainfield will call its primaries on such evenings as the City Democratic Executive Committee may determine.

It was intended to have a ratification meeting in this city in the evening but members of the City Executive Committee say to the contrary.

State Items.

William Stelzarle, of Riverside, has appeared, of his own volition, before Justice Taylor of Burlington, and pleaded guilty to the charge the Burlington County District Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals intended instituting against him for maliciously killing his horse with an iron bar. The Justice fined him $20 and costs.

Miss Lita Taylor, a Mount Holly young lady, was assaulted on the streets of that city on Thursday night, about nine o'clock. The man, whom the young lady says was Miss Taylor is an unfrequented part of the street, he grasped the young woman by the throat and choked her nearly insensible. On loosening his hold she screamed out and assistance came.

The stables of D. H. Wiley, of Morristown, was broken open on Tuesday night and a horse and buggy worth $200 stolen. Farmer Wiley was telling of the robbery in Hollen yesterday when he remarked: "I'll be hog-tied." "That's him now, by Gosh!" said the Jerseyman. Chief Donovan captured the team, and arrested Henry Johnson and his residence on No. 215 West Eighteenth street, New York. He was locked up.

News About Town.

It is the current report about town that Kemp's Balsam for the throat and lungs is making more remarkable cures with people who are troubled with coughs, colds, bronchitis, asthma and kindred ailments, than ever before. Prices 25c, 50c and $1.—Adv.

THE BARTHOLDI PEDESTAL FUND.

The Hon. William M. Evarts, chairman of the Bartholdi Statue Committee, in a letter to the subscribers, has urged upon them that they "the people of Plainfield in the patriotic duty" of providing means whereby to meet the pedestal fund, which it is to be placed the colossal gift of the French nation to America.

As is well known, the cost of the statue was paid by the masses of the French people, and therein lies the chief embarrassment of the case. There is probably no American who does not cordially respond to the sentiment of gratitude and friendship and esteem which inspired the action of the people of France; none who does not feel that the honor of the nation, in the opinion of the people of America prompt action in providing for the appropriate reception of the statue; but the immediate duty of providing the pedestal, to induce speedy on the part of the individual citizens of the country, the small sums of funds to be adequate to the speedy completion of the pedestal. It is expected that Plainfield will be required as the other of the undersigned, or as either of the newspaper offices, that will be designated to receive subscriptions.

CAMPAIGN SAYING FROM THE STATE PRESS.

Butler is advertising for a party in New Jersey.—Paterson Guardian.

Over-confidence promises to injure both parties just now.—Trenton Times.

The Republicans love Butler almost as much as the Democrats love St. John.—Newark News.

Buffalo having stood on its head to welcome Blaine, had to turn itself inside out to do credit to Cleveland.—Trenton Times.

John Kelly shows no signs of mental prostration on account of his ardent labors for the Democratic National Ticket.—Newark News.

In justice to the Democratic party we must admit that the men who will vote for Cleveland are doing all in their power to encourage St. John.—Camden Courier.

It is beginning to look as if, after all, Blaine's candidacy is a mere device to help Mrs. Lockwood's canvass. We always suspected as much.—Jersey City Argus.

All the candidates are now holding a circus of their own around the country, except Belva Lockwood. Surely Belva isn't going to put her show in winter quarters thus early. —Trenton Times.

To use an every day phrase of the old time, Cleveland's jig is up, Salt River yawns for him, defeat hovers over him, and the clergymen and worthy sisterhood of the country cry "amen" to a man and woman.—May's Landing Record.

Hendricks has experienced a railroad accident, and St. John has had a narrow escape from a bullet fired through a car window. It is about time for Blaine and Butler to add some narrow escapes to the attraction of their performance.—Newark News.

After a careful review of the political columns of the New York morning papers we fell justified in stating that Blaine's majority in the State cannot be less than 25,000, while Cleveland is sure to carry the State by not less than 50,000, and Butler and St. John will each poll half of the total vote. Betting men may depend upon these figures as accurate.—Trenton Times.

The following unique advertisement appears in the editorial columns of the Jersey City Argus:

LOST—The Republican Convention's Convention committee and the Butlerite Convention's Convention committee. Any information as to where they were living at the business ends of beer glasses. Any information that will lead to their recovery, either dead or alive, will be suitably rewarded.

The same advertisement, with but little alteration, will admirably suit some of the members of the late convention, who "confirmed" in the parlors of the Hotel de Shelldar.—Elizabeth Herald.

The directors of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company who tampered with the wires of the Domestic Telegraph and Telephone Company on Tuesday will be examined to-day at Newark. The Domestic Company recently obtained an injunction restraining the New York and New Jersey Company from entering the city with its wires.

IMPORTANT DECISION

Affecting the Constitutionality of the Tenement House Law.

The New York Supreme Court Sets It Aside—Cigars Can Now be Made Anywhere—What It Was Unjust.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—After the court of appeals had declared unconstitutional the act of 1885, which prohibited manufacture of cigars in tenement houses in this city, the legislature passed a new law to the same effect. Ex-Judge A. J. Dittenhoefer, who had procured the annulment of the original act, maintained that the second one was likewise unconstitutional. Peter Jacobs, having been arrested for making cigars in his home, he procured writs of habeas corpus and certiorari for him. In the special term of the supreme court the writs were dismissed, but this was reversed at the general term, where William M. Evarts and ex-Judge Dittenhoefer appeared for Jacobs, as the representative of the cigar manufacturers generally, District Attorney Olney appeared for the people and argued that the law was constitutional.

The general term has declared that the law in valued rights of the citizens, and was therefore unconstitutional. The opinion of the court was written by Presiding Judge N. Davis. Judges Brady and Daniels concur in it. Judge Davis says: "It may be stated as a legal and political axiom that one of the great industrial assets of our country have little or no property but their labor and the free right to employ it to their own best interest and profit should be considered that the constitutional inhibition against all invasions of property without due process of law was fully intended to embrace and protect that property as one of the accumulations it may have gained. It is not constitutionally competent, therefore, for the legislature to deprive a citizen, by mere enactment a laborer in any lawful vocation of his right to work and enjoy the fruits of his work in his own residence and in his own way, except for the purposes of police or health regulations.

"A careful study of the act has satisfied me that its aim was not to improve the public health but to put a stop to a lawful competition. The act is unjust in that it selects for its field of operation from the general and common tenement houses of the city a limited class, to wit, such as are occupied as the home or residence of more than three families living independently of each other, and by cooking and eating on the premises." The result of this selection is that all tenement houses having less than three or more than twenty families, living in the common or not doing their cooking on the premises, are not within the act. Certainly if health were the object all such tenements would be included, for they are especially within the proposed mischief. Again, the first floor of the designated tenement is exempt from the operation of the law if it is used for the manufacture therein of cigars, or there be a store for selling cigars and tobacco on that floor. That fact, if health were the object, should be a reason for more stringent restrictions, instead of exception, because it would cause that floor to be the resort of more persons whose health might be exposed; but one manner to be held in the making of the act, cured by another. In the form in which the act comes before us it is as unjust in its operation as in its classification. It is oppressive upon the labor of poverty, so keenly discriminative in favor of the stronger classes engaged in the same occupation, that its validity must be tested when enacted; but, being enacted, ought to be held invalid, because it deprives the appellant of his right and liberty to use his occupation in his own house for the support of himself and family, and takes away the value of his labor, which is his property."

Judge Daniels, concurring, adds: "A further reason supporting the conclusion that the act was not in fact intended for the promotion of the public health is the omission to include the manufacture in other cities in the state within its prohibitions. The discrimination was conspicuously unjust and not warranted by the fundamental law of the state."

Gen. Logan at Philadelphia.

WILMINGTON, Del., Oct. 9.—The train bearing Gen. Logan and the committee of Young Republicans, of Philadelphia, arrived here at 12:40 P. M. Mayor Wales formally welcomed the Illinois soldier. A procession, headed by a platoon of police, then formed. As they moved along Gen. Logan rode with uncovered head, bowing right and left to the hundreds who greeted him. After the procession he was escorted to the opera house, where he made an address. A short reception followed, and at 1:35 the party left for Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 9.—Gen. Logan and the committee of Young Republicans, of Philadelphia, who acted as his escort from Washington, arrived here at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. No formal reception was tendered him on his arrival. He was driven with his wife to the Continental hotel. At 7:30 he addressed a crowd of 4,000 people in the Academy of Music on the subject of the tariff question and spoke of the wonderful prosperity of the country under a Republican administration since the war and argued that the democratic party was acting in the interests of the English government. After his address he was driven back to the Continental, where he received the grand torchlight procession given in honor of his arrival.

The Chinese Went.

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 9.—Information is received that a regular riot has occurred in the town of Tacoma, on the line of the Northern Pacific short line and the Oregon Railway and Navigation company's road. A gang from Seattle, designated, meeting and passed resolutions that no Chinese should be employed in Huntington. The committee waited on the officers of the Oregon Construction company and informed them of the action taken. This was wholly unsatisfactory as the company did not employ Chinamen. However, the mob spirit and the feeling of hostility to the Chinese took control at a session of the lawless crowd. They visited at night the Chinese quarter of the town, gutted the houses, destroyed the personal effects and drove the Chinamen out. The rioters next burned the schoolhouse occupied as headquarters by the Oregon Navigation's corps of engineers, totally destroying the instruments, records and books, thereby committing other acts of violence and outrage the rioters dispersed. At latest accounts everything was quiet. There were no arrests.

Secretary Chandler's Prediction.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Secretary Chandler was asked at the Republican headquarters: "You are counting on a Republican victory, I opened? What majority do you think the party will have in the Buckeye state?"

"I see that many of the political scrib machines are calculating upon a Republican majority of 30,000. There will be 1,000,000 votes in the state, and I shall be much surprised if the ticket does not receive a majority of 15,000. It may go beyond that, sir."

A TERRIBLE CATASTROPHE.

Two Lives Lost in the Collapse of a Crib.

CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—A catastrophe resulting in the loss of ten lives occurred at South Chicago about eleven miles from the city. For some time past a gang of fourteen men have been engaged upon the new crib that is being constructed for the Hyde Park water works, about a mile from the Chatterton Beach station. At the mouth of the tunnel which leads to the shore and above the crib, but below the surface of the water, several sixty feet square, supported by poles and bound together with heavy chains. Upon the platform a small cabin had been built, and here five men and a boy man had dined by day and slept by night. Heavy timbers resting on piles supported the platform. Early in the morning the men became restless. The support of the platform were washed away, but the men were not alarmed. They awoke at 5:30, dressed, and the cook, Peter Tilles, prepared the breakfast, of which all partook. The sea, in the meantime, ran higher and higher, and about 7 o'clock, just as the men were leaving the table, a huge wave struck the crib with irresistible force, tore it from its foundation and scattered the debris in all directions, with such rapidity that five minutes later not a vestige of the crib could be seen. Two of the unfortunate workmen were never seen again. The remaining twelve succeeded in climbing upon the huge timbers that were floating around and after lying face downward with their arms around the beam waited for help. In the meantime the life saving station was in charge of the Chicago life saving station put off for the scene. When they arrived within throwing distance a line was made fast by means of which the rescued were landed amid cheers from thousands of people who lined the beach.

The cook, in telling the story of the horror, said that every wave struck the men with such force that the flesh was torn from their hands, and one after another were washed from their hold and drowned. Out of eight men who made the attempt only four lived to tell the tale. When these four had reached the beach the cook said to the men that the only ones who were landed amid cheers from thousands of people who lined the beach.

WHIPPED FOR $43.

Two Brutes Meet in the Ring. Badly Punished.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Billy Madden's Athletic hall was crowded last night with sporting men who came to see the glove contest of eight rounds, though at Queensberry rules, between Jack Dempsey, of this city, and Robert Turnbull, of Brooklyn, for a purse of $125 proposed by Billy Madden. Just before midnight the men appeared on the stage, Dempsey being seconded by Tom Ferguson and Turnbull by Denny Costigan. Jim Dalton was the referee and manager John Stuck was timekeeper. The men did not wait to measure each other, but went briskly to work. All around the ring they fought, Dempsey leading with his left and left handers with telling effect. In the fourth round there was first blood, having his Turnbull's nose as the mess. At the end of the sixth round both men were puffing, and Turnbull's face showed the effects of the heavy punishment he had received. Dempsey was fighting with both hands, his eyes were closing up and his ribs and shoulders were badly scored. Turnbull, however, was game, and lasted through the eight rounds, when the referee declared that Dempsey had the best of the bout, and was therefore the winner. A collection was gotten up for Turnbull, which netted $43.

The President Censured.

CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—At the opening of the afternoon session of the convention of Trades and Labor unions, a telegram was read from the Amalgamated Trades and Labor union of New York, sending greetings and urging the hope that the deliberations of the convention would tend to the unification of labor. The telegram was answered appropriately, and other resolutions were handed to the chairman. They recommend the organization of building leagues in large cities, and also the forming of an international league to secure the wages of skilled labor against the importation of pauper labor; the establishment of labor exchanges in every city and district which have the opportunity for the purpose of acting as an intelligence office; the enforcement of the national eight hour law and the abolition of contract labor in penitentiaries. One of these resolutions protested against the action of President Arthur in not filling the position of chief of the bureau of labor statistics, to which he recommended the appointment of A. Donath for that position. This latter resolution provoked a lengthy discussion. It was finally carried, and it was also resolved that the president be telegraphed that he had violated the law in not making an appointment for the position. The executive discussion of the eight hour law followed.

Work of the W. C. T. U.

BOSTON, Oct. 9.—The seventh annual state convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union opened with an attendance of 600, representing seventy-four societies, this morning at Tremont temple. Mrs. Livermore was in the chair. The following statements from the report of the secretary, Miss H. E. Benson, will show the methods and work of the union a few years: Different towns throughout the state: Somerville W. C. T. U., before election, sent circulars to the saloon keepers against licenses and have carried the city for three years. The West Somerville Band of Hope has doubled its membership in a year. South Framingham has a Chinese Sunday school against license, and has practically reduced its number of saloons. Brockton, through the summer season, keeps five drinking fountains and has established the Old Colony Cambridgeport has introduced scientific temperance text-books into the schools. East Cambridge distributed ballots on election day. Miss Dorothea Dix has given out but samples of what is being done all over the state, and the prospects of the union grow brighter every day.

Gate or Safe Michigan.

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 9.—It is thought that considerable damage to shipping resulted from the gale. The wind blew directly from the south during the night, the gale being very severe about 10 o'clock. Reports from the west have been received, but fears are entertained regarding the safety of several vessels. The arrivals are very few to-day.

MURDERED IN A CHAIR.

The Brutal Assault Made on a Sleeping Physician.

It Is Supposed to Have Been Done for Revenge—Robbery Evidently Not the Motive—An Arrest on Suspicion.

BRANFORD, Ct., Oct. 9.—About 1 A. M. a horrible crime was perpetrated here, the victim being Dr. Ezra Zinn, who is already long list of Connecticut murders. Dr. Walter H. Zinn, an active trial jurors and a prominent local physician, was murderously assaulted in the dining room of his residence. He is now lying at the point of death, the physicians expecting him to breathe his last at any moment.

On returning from a visit to some of his patients, the doctor went to the dining room in the basement of his residence to get a lunch and read the evening papers before retiring. Being quite tired he sat down in his chair. A man entered the room and dealt him three powerful blows on the head with some instrument. The doctor was felled to the floor. On regaining consciousness he staggered out of the door, and going to the front door, rang the bell vigorously. A servant girl soon opened Dr. Zinn staggered in exclaiming:

"My God! Somebody has struck me. Lead me to my bedroom."

Coroner Beckwith, of New Haven, and several physicians were summoned. While the physicians were making an examination, Dr. Zinn exclaimed:

"I can see no hope."

Dr. Zinn had $205 on his person, part of which was found on the floor with his gold watch. Where they had probably dropped from his pocket, and another roll of bills was found on the dining room floor. This showed that the assault was not committed for the purpose of robbery.

Robert Dougherty, who was fined on Saturday by Justice Zinn, for drunkenness and assault, has been arrested on suspicion. Footprints were discovered made by a person barefooted, and which were found to correspond with the footprints made by Dougherty after his arrest. Dougherty is said to have made threats against Dr. Zinn, threats against the doctor since his trial. He is an uncouth specimen of humanity and drinks heavily.

In answer to questions put by the coroner, Dougherty said he was at Linsley's saloon until it was closed, and had several drinks of whiskey. While in the saloon he was heard to remark that Dr. Zinn could not in driving his span around three months hence. Dr. Zinn came to Branford years ago. He was one of the leading men in the town, and has made a great many friends and a few enemies.

Later developments do not seem to add strength to the suspicion fixed upon Robert Dougherty as the person who so murderously assaulted Dr. Walter Zinn. He will be held, however, until something definite transpires. Several prominent citizens of Branford have signified their intention to that town the expediency of offering a reward for the discovery of the perpetrator of the outrage. The condition of Dr. Zinn at a late hour this afternoon was not changed, with some prospect of his living through the night. It is feared that death is only a matter of time.

Reunion of Mexican Veterans.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 9.—The annual reunion of the Mexican Veterans was held at Pope's theatre at 10:30, about 200 veterans in attendance. Major Jas. C. McGinnis, of Missouri, welcomed the veterans to St. Louis and the meeting responded. In the course of his address Gen. Minnion said that the House of representatives had four times passed a bill for the recognition of the pension list of Mexican veterans, but that the senate had refused to pass it each time. It had been loaded down with such like amendments, which amounted to a refusal to pass it. He was received from the president of the Merchant's Exchange in Vitro, the veterans to visit the exchange and the invitation was accepted and as a journment was taken.

Cabinet Ministers Quarreling.

LONDON, Oct. 9.—It is reported that there were serious dissensions at the session of the cabinet. The Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, president of the Board of Trade, demanded a special session to discuss the franchise bill. Mr. Chamberlain was, in his turn, taken to task for the bitterness of his speech at Hanley, in which he severely criticised Earl Spencer and insisted that the franchise bill should be forced through without conciliating the house of lords by first introducing a reform in the latter body. It is said that the discussion of language was not only undignified in a member of the ministry, but was mischievous to its tendency, as it could only result in stiffening the opposition of Lord Salisbury and his party to all measures of reform.

A New Paper for Brooklyn.

BROOKLYN, Oct. 9.—A new evening paper, The Daily Standard, will make its appearance on Saturday next. It will consist of four large sheets, and in its typographical dress will be the largest penny paper published in New York or Brooklyn. A staff of thirteen experienced journalists, some of whom have achieved considerable fame in their profession, will fill the columns of the new candidate for support. Mr. H. Clement Rose, formerly on the staff of The Star, will be the editor. The Standard will be published at No. 71 Fulton street, and No. 11 Frankfort street, New York.

McCullough Says He Is All Right.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—John McCullough arrived in New York last evening accompanied by Mrs. McCullough. He remained a few days to perfect sections in the hands of a friend on Fifth avenue. To a United Press reporter the tragedian said he felt at present in good health and spirits, and would resume his tour next week. He has made arrangements to hold his company subject to his own orders. Mr. Conner declined to discuss the matter, saying only that Mr. McCullough wanted rest and he would ensure that to him.

"My Sweetheart" in Court.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Miss Minnie Palmer entered the superior court before Judge Truax, accompanied by her mother as counsel. She was present to answer to the suit of the actress against Mr. Richard K. Fox, for alleged libel, the damages being laid at $25,000. Col. Charles Spencer appeared for Mr. Fox, and moved that the case be called aside for an adjournment on account of the absence of material witnesses. Judge Truax put the motion down at the foot of the calendar. It may not be tried this month.

Celebrating an American Bishopric.

ANSONIA, Oct. 9.—The celebration of the consecration of Dr. Samuel Seabury as bishop of Connecticut—the first appointment of an American bishop by the Protestant Episcopal church—began this morning. Appropriate services were held in all the episcopal churches. The Bishop of Connecticut preached an address from his throne in the cathedral at Hartford this evening, and by a select guild chorus and general

MRS. HISTORY'S TOUR.

The Distinguished Tragic Actress to Revisit America—Her Wardrobe.

LONDON, Oct. 9.—Mrs. Kendal, the distinguished actress, is busily engaged in looking forward to her visit with a great deal of pleasure, and expected to revive the pleasant friendships that she made on her last three visits visited America some years ago, and was accorded a reception given to few members of the theatrical profession. Not only was she appreciated as artistic success, but she was also the recipient of marked social favors, the best society welcoming her to its inner circle. The engagement that Mrs. Kendal has played in England and to support by an English company, the leading members coming from London.

The Paris Figaro not long ago, in reviewing her career, claimed she was the greatest living exponent of tragic art, and that Mrs. Kendal was the only one on the stage who could compare with her in the delineation of the greater emotions and the passions which lead to tragedy.

Mme. Bistori brings with her an immense wardrobe, which has been made in Paris for this tour. As she plays in such tragedies as "Queen Elizabeth," "Mary Stuart," "Marie Antoinette" and others of a similar character she is afforded ample opportunities for displaying her handsome dresses, which are said to be unusually magnificent even for the stage.

BURKERS AT WORK.

Several Bodies Stolen from an Ohio Cemetery—Great Excitement.

JAMESTOWN, O., Oct. 9.—It has been discovered that eleven graves in the cemetery here have been opened and the bodies stolen, and rewards of $1,000 are offered for the bodies. Among the number of those are Etta Dyer, near Fosteria, was robbed, and the news caused a general examination to be made. The graves of Henry Snyder and son are found to be empty also. Twenty other graves, all of which had been made within a year, were then opened and eleven were found empty. The names of the missing dead are William Crowby, James Miller, Mary Brown, Mrs. Alice Morgan, Wm. Lewis, Peter Lewis, Grace Stevens, Louis Kirr (an infant), Henry Beaver, Alva Ryan and Mrs. Dorcas Ryan. The village is but a few miles' drive from three railroads, and the isolated situation of the graveyard make the work very easy. The families of the missing dead are prostrated, and one death is likely to follow. Every graveyard in this neighborhood will be searched. At Birdville, the station east, and at South Baltimore violated graves were found.

Insurance Companies and the Cleveland Fires.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—It is announced from Cleveland, Ohio, that one of the largest insurance companies there has ordered to cancel all policies unless the city authorities offer a suitable reward for the apprehension of the firebugs. Vice-president Moore, of the Continental insurance company, here said that his company would be slow to take any such measure, as the interest of the policy holder should be considered as well as those of the companies. They will offer a reward of $2,000 for the arrest and conviction of Birdwhy, the janitor, and the South Baltimore violated graves were found.

Burglars Had Big Booble.

ROCHESTER, Oct. 9.—At Perry burglars broke into the coal office of Robbs & Sons, opened the safe and secured $22,500 in Arkansas town bonds and valuable papers belonging to the company. They also broke Tomlinson & Sons' store, and breaking open a safe, secured a large sum of money. Three other places were also broken into and amounts secured. Wyoming county is greatly excited, and a large posse of men are pursuing the burglars, who have been tracked to Attica, where they were contracted, and further than that and as regards pension measures now pending, he declines to commit himself until further congressional action shall have been had which have aided him in forming an opinion.

A Brilliant French Victory.

PARIS, Oct. 9.—Gen. Brisse de l'Isle telegraphs that the French have gained a brilliant victory over a detachment of Chinese in the Lao Chas valley. The attacking force consisted of two companies of the Foreign Legion and a battery of artillery. Four gunboats also joined in the engagement, their fire from the river proving a very effective. The Chinese lost heavily, and after several hours' fighting they retreated, being pursued for some distance by the French. The latter had four men killed and twenty-one wounded.

In Honor of Gov. Cleveland.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Great preparations have been made for the parade in honor of Gov. Cleveland to-night. The World of this morning said that 20,000 uniformed men will take part in the parade. Meetings at the Academy of Music and Irving hall and from four stands which have been erected in Fourteenth street. Gov. Cleveland arrived here this morning but there was no formal reception.

John L. Sullivan Going to Europe.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 9.—John L. Sullivan, the champion pugilist, is going to Europe under the management of Mr. John D. Hopper, of Providence. Sullivan will give sparring exhibitions in England, Scotland and Australia, and will probably prove a "big card." They will start for Europe after the Sullivan-Ryan exhibitions and Laflin and "Bill" England have taken place in this country.

He Won't Try Them Will.

BOSTON, Oct. 9.—Congressman Leopold Morse (Independent), of the Fifth district, who declined a renomination and yet was nominated by the Democrats in convention in spite of his declination, has written a letter refusing his declination, saying that he does not feel at liberty to withdraw and to accept a fifth term, and he sees no consistency demanding the sacrifice.

A Bank Cashier Found Dead.

LANCASTER, Pa., Oct. 9.—M. T. Haubner, cashier of the Little National bank, was found dead in the office of the bank building this morning. He had been dead for some hours when discovered. On his desk opened the letters, and went into the office to look after the day. Not returning in a reasonable time the employes went in the private office and

THE WIDOW'S DIAMONDS

How Mrs. Heustis Came Into Possession of the Gems.

The Rapid Rise of Her Husband. From $10 a Week to $25,000 a Year—Money Taken Wing and Flies.

BOSTON, Oct. 6.—Mrs. Heustis was brought out of jail on a writ of habeas corpus, and was taken to the office of Commissioner Ira Myrick's diamonds was begun, but not completed, and she was remanded until to-morrow. Mrs. Heustis formerly lived in Manchester street, in this city, and later in Marshfield. In 1885 J. Fred Heustis, an idle husband, was a clerk at $10 a week in the store of Wentworth's provision store boy, and left that place in 1870 to go into the cotton brokerage business. He was fond of ladies' society, and soon after starting in business he visited Marshfield and met the widow, who was then after became his wife. Through a brother, now dead, he was led into a syndicate that was to boom Missouri, Kansas and Texas stock. He made from $10 to $15 a show in a large way in the stock ing $20,000. He then went to New York and had a big run of luck. He lived at the rate of $25,000 a year at the Windsor and Fifth Avenue hotels.

He met with hard luck, however, and last May came here in bad health, returned to Chauncey street, in this city, and later in Charles street here and was a policeman for a number of years.

It is claimed by her friends that she is the victim of an attempt to extort money. They say that her late husband's estate, which is now in the hands of an executor, is not sufficient to pay the debts. The relations existing between the Lyncles, mother and son, and Mr. and Mrs. Heustis appear, according to letters and bills in evidence, to have been very close in their business and social affairs. It is claimed that the diamonds and jewelry to the amount of $20,000, upon the alleged larceny of which she was held for indictment, were bought on credit by Mr. Heustis and presented to Mrs. Heustis. The regularity of the purchase is apparently proven by a bill of sale now in force, amounting to about $38,000, but reduced by several thousand dollars by payments on account, which are properly credited.

President Arthur and the Veterans.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—The soldiers and sailors of the late war will long and fondly remember with pleasure the administration of President Arthur. The revised statute provide that in appointments of every kind to the public service the late soldier are to be given the preference. No formal order has been issued on the subject, but the law is enforced whenever possible by the heads of the several departments.

A friend of Secretary Frelinghuysen called at the state department not long ago to ask the appointment as messenger of an acquaintance.

"Is he a soldier?" asked the secretary.

"No," replied the mediator.

"Well, then, there is no use to talk further about the matter," rejoined the secretary of state; "all our vacancies are filled by the appointment of soldiers."

Shall Sunday Trains be Run?

GREENFIELD, Mass., Oct. 9.—The railroad commissioners were largely attended hearing on the petition of the Fitchburg railroad to run its St. Louis express over the state railroad and the Hoosac tunnel on Sunday. Commissioner Adams, Prof. Dent Phillips, other railroad men and prominent citizens along the line testified that the trains were a public convenience and necessity. The only opposition to it in this town for the train was put in. A number of clergymen and others appeared as remonstrants and sent in a list of 2,000 names from the county and vicinity. Both sides had counsel. Decision reserved.

The "Midnight Marriage" Case.

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 9.—In the United States court, in the famous "midnight marriage" case of Leonora M. Trundy and others, charged by the early indictment of the kind ever found with having conspired to defraud the government by representing that said Trundy had been privately married to Capt. E. Robbins, of Robbinston, and by claiming in her behalf a pension as said Robbins' widow, the defence filed a general demurrer that the facts as set forth in the indictment do not come under the law. The court sustained the demurrer, and the defendants were discharged.

Swallow the Peanut but Not the Shell

TRENTON, Oct. 9.—A boy living near Princeton has been under the doctor's care with a disease of the lungs, followed by an abscess in his side. A few weeks ago he was pronounced in the last stages of consumption. Recently he had a violent paroxysm of coughing and coughed up half of a peanut shell, covered with pus, which is now believed to have gone into the trachea and embedded itself in one of the bronchial tubes, causing an irritation, from which the abscess and illness originated. Since the occurrence he has improved rapidly.

Trotting at Fleetwood Park.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—There was a large attendance at the opening trotting meeting at Fleetwood to witness the trotting for the silver cup. There was only one contest—the 2:28 class—in which there were nine entries. Nellie King and Nellie King won in two straight heats. Time, 2:34½ and 2:36.

Ironworks Financially Embarrassed

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—The Syracuse iron works at Syracuse have become financially embarrassed, and Charles E. Hubbell has been appointed receiver. The company was established in 1861, with a capital of $300,000.

CONDENSED NEWS.

The Baltimore and Ohio railroad directors met yesterday, but adjourned without electing a president.

Two hundred employes of Oliver Bros. & Phillips' South Side mills, Pittsburg, have struck against 12½ per cent. reduction.

Senator Edmunds has written a letter saying he is out of politics this year, although he hopes "the G. O. P. will pull through."

Pittsburg glass manufacturers are despondent. They say they are losing money by running their factories at the present price of glass.

The average of wheat sown this year in Northwestern Pennsylvania, Northeastern Ohio and Western New York is fully 25 per cent. greater than it has ever been.

KNIGHTS OF THE PUNCH.

Railroad Conductors in Session—Matters Concerning Them.

TORONTO, Oct. 8.—The annual meeting of the railroad conductors of the United States and Canada was convened here in the City Council chamber, which was crowded with delegates and visitors, including some fifty ladies, who had accompanied the party from every part of North America. All the members present had been, or are now "Knights of the Punch." Some of them are merchants, some assistant superintendents others commercial travellers and some newspaper editors. Mr. John Nichols, president of the association called the meeting to order. Joh. F. Coombs, of the Boston and Maine railroad, delivered the annual address. Mayor Boswell, of Toronto, welcomed the delegates to Canada, and spoke kind for the unavoidable absence of Lieut. Gov. Robinson. The president delivered his annual address, after which the executive committee's report was presented. It stated that the association never stood on a more solid basis. It has nearly 2,000 members and not a single death has occurred from May 25 to August 31, rendering no assessment of a member during that time necessary. From past experience the judgment of the committee is that it would be wise to define "total disability," fix a limit as to age of applicants for membership and provide for return of delinquent members far more in their favor than exist under the present arrangements. No death or injuries to members from the use of intoxicating liquors have been reported since 1883. This information is given on account of the resolution of inquiry offered by ex-President Sears at the Milwaukee convention. A grand reception by Toronto citizens was tendered to the delegates.

UP IN A BALLOON.

An Air Ship Goes Up but Does Not Come Down.

ARGUSVILLE, N. Y., Oct. 9.—Young Mr. Charles C. Van Devere, of this village from early boyhood has been infatuated with the project of making a balloon ascension. A few years ago he sought the privilege of accompanying an aeronaut on his trip among the clouds but was not permitted to go. He then endeavored to make an ascension with Carlotta, who has made many successful ascents in the Mohawk Valley, but she declined to take a passenger. He then went to work to make a balloon. He recently completed it, and advertised an ascension to take place yesterday afternoon.

He says he has invented an air valve which can be governed with ease, and will enable an aeronaut to better command at air ship, and this ascension is intended to test its qualities. Van Devere, at an early hour, began the inflation of his balloon. About 500 spectators were present in the afternoon anxiously waiting the movement of the amateur, who seemed confident that his voyage would be a success. With a few friends to assist him he was enabled to make a start about 4 o'clock. Loud cheers greeted him as he climbed into the basket. The balloon after being released ascended slowly, and when a short distance from the ground he threw out all of his sand bags to lighten it, and then rose rapidly, and was last in view in about six minutes among the dense clouds. It is not known where he landed.

The Party of Equal Rights.

BUFFALO, Oct. 9.—The Woman Suffragist Party, of New York, opened their convention in Association Hall with a secret session. They adopted a platform praising several state officers and United States Senator Hoar, Severe Miller for their cause, denouncing Superintendent Rugglis for "reported conspiracies to defeat the operation of the school suffrage laws," and recommending a reorganization of his department. Presidential matters were not discussed. Mrs. Parnell is on her way here. Mrs. Lillie Devereux Blake arrived last night. The meagre attendance so far is attributed to the rain.

A Church Desecrated by Vandals.

READING, Pa., Oct. 9.—The Doe Run Catholic church, in Chester county, was entered by unknown miscreants, who ruined the organ, destroyed a valuable picture of the Virgin Mary, carried off several altar vessels, damaged the pews, upset the heater, cracked the floor and walls and smashed several memorial windows. Although this time last year the same church was desecrated in a similar manner. Some claim intolerant enemies residing in that section did it, while others say it is the work of rascally tramps. No arrests have yet been made.

The Fatal Kerosene Can.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 9.—Mary Rush, wife of James Rush, tailor, living at No. 929 Hird street, attempted to make a slow fire burn quicker, by pouring kerosene oil on it. The attempt was at once successful and fatal, for the flames leaped up and completely enveloped her head and the upper part of her body. She lingered in terrible agony until death ended her suffering. Her head was burned almost to a crisp, and the dead body presented a shocking appearance.

A Mote of the Tweed Ring.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—The court of appeals having decided against the city in the suit brought by Jose F. Navarro to recover $75,000,000 for 10,000 water meters, supplied the corporation in 1871 under a contract awarded by William M. Tweed, then commissioner of public works, Comptroller Grant said the judgment will have to be included in next year's tax levy. The meters were never used by the city.

Discontent in Albania.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 9.—The Porte has become alarmed at the increased agitation in Albania, and has ordered the garrisons there to be largely reinforced. The Albanians have become threatening, and the governor has telegraphed that it is impossible for him to keep them in subjection with the troops now under his command, notwithstanding the fact that the governor of Salonica recently sent 2,000 troops to aid him.

Mr. Blaine's Movements.

MASSILLON, O., Oct. 9.—It is estimated there were 35,000 people in Massillon eager to catch a glimpse of Mr. Blaine. He and others of his party addressed 10,000 people in a tent on the fair grounds. Ernest Rawley, of Connecticut, made a long speech.

Western Union's Finances.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—The report of the Western Union Telegraph company shows that the revenue for the 3 mos. was $10,020,159 against $10,454,891 for 1883. The report recommended that dividends be reduced from seven to six per cent.

CURING LIEUT. GREELY

Surgeon Green Describes the Daily Treatment of His Patient.

The Lieutenant's Condition When Found—Process of Bringing a Man Out of a State of Starvation.

[New York Sun.]

The story of Lieut. Greely's recovery after his rescue from Cape Sabine is given by Passed Assistant Surgeon Edward H. Green, U. S. N., for the relief ship Thetis, in a communication to The Medical Record. The cases of Greely's six fellow survivors, it is remarked, were very similar to his. The condition of all was so desperate that a delay of two hours in the camp was necessary before they could be removed to the relief vessels. Brandy, milk, and beef essence were alone introduced.

Lieut. Greely's disease is called by the surgeon asthenia, a diminution of the vital forces. Greely fainted after being carried to the ward-room of the Thetis. When he was brought to, a teaspoonful of minced raw fresh beef was given to him. His clothes were carefully cut off him, and heavy red flannels, previously warmed, were substituted. He was excessively emaciated, and his body emitted an offensive odor. His skin hung from his limbs in flaps. His face, hands and scalp were black with a thick crust of soot and dirt. He had not washed himself or changed his clothing for ten months. He had lived a long time at a temperature inside the hut of from five to ten degrees above zero. He was nervous and irritable, at times almost irrational, and his eyes were wild and staring. He insisted on talking, craving news and demanding food, but he complained of no pain.

His tongue was dry and cracked and coated a brownish black. He was ravenously hungry. His pulse was 32, and soft and compressible. His skin was cold, clammy, shriveled, and sallow. His temperature under the tongue was 97.2 degrees. There was great muscular waste, and he was unable to move or to stand without support. Before leaving Fort Conger in August, 1883, he weighed 165 pounds. He now weighed 132 pounds. He was carried aboard the Thetis about 11 p. m. on June 23, it being then bread daylight in that region, and his transfer from that hour until o'clock the next morning was a teaspoonful of minced raw beef, alternated every half hour with a teaspoonful of milk punch. Strict quiet was enjoined.

On June 25 Surgeon Green was compelled to allow him to read some letters from home, after which he seemed less restless. He talked rationally, but showed a loss of memory in often repeating what he had previously said. He had not closed his eyes to sleep since his rescue. There was excessive constipation. The treatment was the same as during the night, except that finely cut raw onion was added to the minced beef, and half an ounce of milk punch was given every two hours.

On the next day, June 26, although he had yet had no sleep, and he showed a great desire to talk and read, there were signs of improvement. He was less persistent in demanding food, his tongue presented a modified appearance, he began to complain of soreness in his limbs, and his heart sounded stronger. Surgeon Green had him sponged with tepid water and briskly rubbed with flannels. He gave him a small quantity of oatmeal thoroughly boiled, beef essence, and scraped beef and onion.

On the next day, June 27, Lieut. Greely slept for the first time. He awoke after two or three hours, much refreshed. He talked without excitement, and his tongue and skin began to look more natural. His muscles felt sore, and his ankles were puffed.

On the next day, June 28, his mind was tranquil, but there was a loss of memory of words. He was allowed to sit up in bed and read a little. He slept six hours. For the first time since his rescue medicine was given him, some muriate of iron.

On the next morning he got eight ounces of tender steak, and on the following day, June 28, he dressed himself and sat up for two hours. His food was now gradually increased from day to day, and he continued steadily to improve. On July 1 he was well bundled up, and allowed to sit on deck for an hour in the sunshine. On July 17 the Thetis arrived at St. Johns.

Lieut. Greely's muscles were now filling out rapidly, and he was allowed to go on shore and take exercise. Here, Surgeon Green says, the lieutenant committed an error in diet at the American consul's table, and suffered for two days with a slight attack of intestinal indigestion. On July 25, for the first time, he was allowed to eat three solid meals. Six weeks after his rescue he had gained 49 pounds. He gained 9¼ pounds the first week, 15 pounds the second week, 8 pounds the third week, 7 pounds the fourth week, 4½ pounds the fifth week and 4 pounds the sixth week. Surgeon Green adds, under the head of "remarks:"

Vital dispensation, as exhibited by the temperature, not marked; digestion fairly good all the time; nervous system soon calmed. Microscopic examination of blood disappointing, exhibiting no unhealthy character of red blood globules. Liver not secreting. Large gain in weight, due to rapid assimilation of food owing to a great muscular waste.

Charles Reade's Contradictions.

John Coleman's personal reminiscences of Charles Reade, continued in Lippincott's for September, are remarkably successful in giving the reader a clear insight into Mr. Reade's character. "No man except himself," says Mr. Coleman, "ever combined in one and the same person such an extraordinary mass of contradictions," and, as illustrating his view, remarks: "If from some adverse circumstance—a bad house, an east wind, an unsympathetic audience—the play did not elicit the usual amount of applause, then the actors were stigmatized as 'muffs'—duffers, sir, who defiled my composition, mixed dish-water with my champagne, and ruined my work."

The cast might perhaps there was a good house, perhaps the wind was not in the east, perhaps a thousand things; at any rate it or the play was received enthusiastically; love all was condoned and forgiven. The popular applause was music to Mr. Reade; he would canvass himself in his box, turn his back to the stage, and as the audience laughed or cried so laughed and cried with them, and their tears or cheers were always his barometers of the actor's ability. I have known him to say that he thought the great scene or the great actor, quashing the full roar of applause crushed in one moment into a golden cup and drained from the noble heart, was the most enviable of human feelings."

Why the Youth's Hair Turned Gray.

[Chicago Herald.]

"Did you ever get scared half to death for nothing?" asked a clerk in a down-town store who had just returned from his vacation. "Well, I did, and I will tell you about it. Out where my folks live there is a railroad bridge of the old kettle style. It is about forty feet high and crosses a valley only, there being no water under it. When I was a boy I used to walk that bridge day or night, and the other evening I waited to go across and started out just as I used to. When I got about half way over I heard a train coming, and seeing that I could not reach the other end, I lay myself down under the stringers and hung by my hands, as I have done a hundred times when a boy. Something my arms were strong as they used to be, and they ached long before the train came. In my haste I had got into an uncomfortable position before it was necessary, however, and I commenced to stretch the kinks, and at last went thundering over my head. My hold was weakening every minute, and I soon realized that I could not hang much longer. I believe that train was a mile long. The perspiration fairly streamed from me as I thought of the awful plunge I must soon make. Then my head reeled, and my nerveless fingers slipped from the stringer, and down I went about six inches. They had been filled in the dust, however, while extending to make an embankment there, and I had not settled it in the darkness. If you see any gray hairs in these auburn locks of mine you will know how they got there."

A Nickel-Plated Clock vs. Husband.

[Pittsburg Chronicle-Herald.]

"You can't deceive me, Mr. Jarphly," said Mrs. Jarphly, energetically and emphatically. "It was after 1 o'clock, and I wasn't asleep."

"Why, Amandy, you're badly mistaken," respond Mr. Jarphly in a conciliatory voice. "It wasn't more'n half after eleven."

"Now, Jarphly, don't you sit there and falsify to me. I'm not fool, if you think I am."

"Amandy, I never said you was; you know I didn't. I only say you are mistaken, my dear, for it was only half past eleven, or mebbe twenty-five minutes to twelve."

"Jarphly, you're the one of your sitting there and lying! Don't you think I could see the clock?"

"Well, Amandy, I've got nothing more to say, if you'd rather believe a ninety-five cent nickel-plated nineteen dollar clock than your own married husband," responded Mr. Jarphly, deeply injured.

We supposed everybody knew what a peleryne is.

THE WAR'S BEGINNING.

How the Union Soldiers Were Gathered in Capitol Building.

Muskets, Cartridge-Boxes and Commissary Stores in Marble Corridor and Legislative Hall—Workmen and Soldier.

[Ben: Perley Poore.]

The first troops which arrived at Washington in April, 1861, were quartered in the capitol. The spacious legislative halls, and in the committee-rooms and offices of the house, the representative hall being reserved for the Seventh regiment. Armed men and the rude implements of carnage crowded in the marble corridors and gorgeous rooms, awakened me to a deep sense of the power and the abandon of military rule. On the marble floor of the central corridor, and the lofty crowded room who probably never before reposed in such magnificence. Over the imperial carpet of the floor were strewn in about forty feet high and twenty in width, piled stores of the commissary's department—here a slab of bacon, there a quarter of beef, or a saddle of mutton, or a Virginia ham, or a side of bacon, and the various spices of pepper, bags of salt and casks of vinegar filling up the interstices, and rounding up the pyramid. Upon the rich and costly furniture, consisting of sofas, chandeliers, and upon the gilt brackets that held the silk and lace curtains, were festooned accoutrements, cartridge-boxes, belts, bayonets, and the smaller implements and surroundings of a soldier.

In the halls and corridors the most war being drilled and taught to the use of arms. In broad contrast to the dark and polished Tennessee marble wainscoting, were the blue uniforms and rough bearing of the men. Their sleeping accommodations fell with a dull heavy sound the iron-shod butts of muskets and rifles. The stolid and frescoed ceiling echoed and resounded the ringing clatter of the manual of arms. The perfumed chambers in the mural of healing their pores in the senate chamber were quartered the Sixth Massachusetts regiment, and the luxurious couches and sofas of the senate committee-rooms and the room assigned to the New York Seventh regiment. When they had concluded lunch in the morning, and the guard for the day had been detailed, the remainder of the command were at their ease. In the vice president's chair, on Col. Jones, the commander of the regiment, a fine, soldierly-looking man. The clerk's desk was occupied by the adjutant and his assistants, engaged in making up the muster-roll, telegraphing requisitions, and sending active service. The privates were engaged at the senators' desks writing letters.

All the stairways in the halls of the capitol, and in the old rotunda, had been barred, to preserve it from injury through carelessness. The pictures in the panels had also been faced over with heavy planking, which secured them from harm. The doors of the principal building were barricaded to the height of about eight feet. The iron plates for the new dome were used for the breastworks between the marble columns. Behind these were placed barrels of cement, piles of stone and timber, forming an impenetrable barrier, in the rear of which the troops could take shelter in case of an attack. It seemed a strange contradiction to see the workmen engaged in the construction of the portico going on with their labor of laying the foundation, amid thousands of armed men; the click of the chisel, the stroke of the hammer, and the ring of the trowel, blending with the word of command, the challenge of the guard, and the tramp of the batallions drilling in the corridors. So reluctant was civilization to recede before the advancing footsteps of war, that the artisan lingered to enrich with his skill the parquet and dome that the morrow may be leveled to their foundations. Within musket range of the outposts of the troops were even then a score of men chiseling in marble the flowers and clusters of grape and ivy wreaths, with which the finished portions of the capitol were so profusely decorated.

Curiosity of Medical Life.

[Troy Times.]

An English paper gives some of the curiosities of medical life. It is the duty of one doctor to take lunch every day at a great castle belonging to a noble lord. The household is numerous, and there is just the chance that there may be some case of indigestion demanding attention. He gets some of the best company and best lunches in England, and only charges a guinea for each attendance. There is a wealthy man near a great city who cannot bear to be left for the night. There is a physician of great ability who drives out of town nightly to sleep at his residence; he is consequently debarred evening society, and if he goes out to dinner has to leave his friends before nine. He has to charge his patient 1,000 pounds sterling a year. One medical doctor has a standing engagement of 500 pounds sterling a year to look after the health of an old lady. She had to be inspected three times a day, was strong as a horse, and so selfish and perverse that he had great trouble with her.

This Thing Must Stop.

[Will M. Clemens in Arkansaw Traveler.]

E. P. Roe lives at Cornwall-on-the-Hudson and Oliver Wendell Holmes is spending the summer at Beverly Farm-near-the-Depot. Another well-known writer is at Manchester-by-the-Sea. It is well. When we were boys we spent two hours with our beloved dad at Cowhide-in-the-Woodshed, and the same summer we spent considerable time at a hanging resort known as the Slaughter-House-on-the-Creek. We also know a man who lives in Chicago-on-the-Shore-of-Lake-Michigan. This thing must stop.

Advice to an Athlete.

[Brooklyn Eagle.]

"I am an excellent sparrer," writes "Young Athlete." "I am quick, strong, cool, and quite scientific, but my arms are very short. How can I best improve my reach?" With a brick, my son, with a brick. Don't waste time on scientific sparring, and don't worry about your short arms, when a good half brick, deftly put to, with or without a twist, will enable you, by odds, John Sullivan half way across the street."

An Unpopular Innovation.

[The Hoosier.]

They have abrupt hygienic principles in Boston. A prominent physician of that city is quoted as saying: "If a child does not like to wash its face, and cries when it is washed, it is evidently the best Boston citizen, but will never become popular."

JOTTINGS.

—Next Tuesday will be registration day.

—Woodcock can now be shot until December 16.

—Excursion to Mauch Chunk via the Reading on Wednesday.

—A branch of the Salvation Army has been established at Somerville.

—Mrs. L. Adams' Fall and Winter opening is announced in our business notices.

—Mr. Craig A. Marsh, manager, is receiving bids for seventy-five tons of coal for the Music Hall.

—A special business meeting of the Reform Club will be held on Tuesday evening in the club hall.

—The Fall overcoat is at last appearing as the leaves are growing brown, and foliage is in its fall autumnal beauty.

—At a meeting of the committee on stables of the Fire Board on Thursday evening all the bids were rejected, and new ones called for.

—Delegations from this city will hold temperance meetings under the auspices of the State League at Liberty Corner and Bound Brook to-morrow.

—The weekly prayer meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union will be held in the Reform Club Hall on Monday afternoon at four o'clock.

—There will be a race at the Oxford Roller Skating Rink on West Front street on Tuesday evening for a silver medal. A number of well-known young men are entered for the event.

—About seventy-five Republicans organized a campaign club last evening which is intended to take the shine off the H. I. M. Th' seven dollar and a half suits are expected in on Monday.

—Over 600 reserved seats were sold yesterday at the box office of the Stillman Music Hall for the opening entertainment next Thursday evening. This fact will give some idea of the success of the affair as the Plainfield society eye'd of the season.

—The Somerville Sentinel's parade, which will take place Oct. 23d, will be partly united to by the Hook and Ladder Company, and the Engine Company of Somerville, and the Hose Company at Raritan. Manning, Patrick Regan, Dawson, James Chesney, J. Q. Miles, Dayne Price, Wm. Thomas, and Mrs. Sanderson. Mrs. Sealy Edsall and Mrs. Theodore Randolph.

—The Elizabeth Herald says of the Plainfield Independents in the recent parade: "In the procession, the new club of Independent Republicans, ninety-five strong, and commanded by General Stardine, was the centre of attraction. The members of the club come prize gentlemen, who have heretofore been known as the most prominent Republicans of the city." Jee so.

The Narrow Opening at Westfield Closes Up.

About the latter part of April last—or was it the first—there appeared in a New York paper an advertisement that read like this:

WESTFIELD, N. J.—Live inhabitants, under 30 years, business men preferred. No paper or jobbing will be taken. Apply by mail to the editor. Address Box H, Westfield, N. J.

The statements contained in this little bit of paid for boiler-plate were laughingly commented on at the time it appeared; or shortly after, by the press of the vicinity and our esteemed contemporary, the Railway Democrat, subtly suggested that a number of aspiring editors had already fallen into that "opening."

It is a painful duty—prophetically anticipated from the time the advertisement appeared to record the fact that another "capable editor" has succumbed to crawling into the opening and drawing the opening in after him.

Lemons Blown on Wheels.

Last Saturday's Plainfield Evening News contained here several tickets Tuesday night. This is about the usual time taken to bring papers from there. The Post Office Department might so modify the Blaine News service, which would bring the news from that city to this by daylight instead of five hours with Boss Dorsey's Star Route.

The War with Rockwell.

Yesterday was the ninth day of the Tennis Tournament held by the Union Club at their grounds on Central avenue, but there was no falling off either in the attendance or the interest manifested in the contests. Mr. C. Johnston won Mr. Coolidge played the remaining sets in their series. The first set Mr. Johnston won by a score of six to three. This made the score one set each, Mr. Coolidge having won the first set Tuesday afternoon. Five playing two games each sides and the ball driven very swiftly back and forth over the net. At one time the games stood four each and the finalist, when Mr. Johnston asserted himself and scored the two remaining games. This gave him the championship by first odds of light, a position which anyone in the club would accord him irrespective of these games, for he is justly regarded as their strongest man.

The matches in doubles also began yesterday afternoon. In the drawing some of the best players were unlucky enough to be pitted against some of the strongest couples, hence the games though plucky were rather one sided.

Messrs. Hulbert and Wadsworth defeated Dr. Field and Mr. VanDeventer two sets by a score of six one and six three and Mr. Herbert Johnston and Rev. Mr. Raymond defeated Messrs. Parke and Rankin by a score of six to one in the first set and six to two in the second.

The W. C. T. U. Convention.

At the State Convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union at Newark, Thursday evening the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Mrs. Mary C. Holden, of Atlantic Highlands, vice president; Mrs. J. T. Ellis, of Flemington, corresponding secretary; Miss Mary C. Osborn, assistant corresponding secretary; Mrs. Emma Bourn, of Newark, recording secretary; Mrs. Emma P. Downing, of Bridgeton, assistant recording secretary, and Mrs. S. Michie of Millville, treasurer.

Yesterday delegates to the National Convention were elected as follows: Delegates-at-Large—Mrs. M. B. Dennen, of Newark; Mrs. M. J. Dealy, of Montclair; Mrs. J. Ward Woodruff, of Newark; Mrs. E. W. Seabrook, of Keyport; Mrs. M. G. Baldwin, of Newark; Mrs. R. P. Fielding, of Plainfield and Mrs. Clark, of Jersey City. Alternates for each of these delegates were also elected. The president, both secretaries and the treasurer are delegates to the National Convention by virtue of their offices.

The National Convention will meet in St. Louis on October 24. The Semi-Annual State Convention will meet in April at Salem, and the Annual Convention in October at Trenton.

Methodist Ministerial Association.

The Central N. J. Ministerial Association of the M. E. Church will hold its fifty-first session in the Methodist church of this city Monday evening and Tuesday morning and afternoon. The meetings are public, and all are cordially invited to be present. A ten minutes prayer meeting will be held Monday evening, and addresses be given by Rev. J. N. Fitzgerald, D. D., and Rev. W. H. McCorndick. The following is the program for Tuesday:

Morning Session, ten o'clock:—Devotional Service, C. E. Wallin; The Sacred Numerals, J. H. Price; Lessons from Conference, H. K. Carr; Ill Fields Cure and Allied Movement, J. Dewitt Miller.

Afternoon Session:—A Masked Danger, E. Clement; Spiritual Life of the Preacher, C. B. Barnes; Individualism and Hobbies in Christian Work, H. V. King; Discussion:—Is Lay Delegation in the Annual Conference Desirable? Opened by J. Mead.

The Elizabeth Presbytery.

The Presbytery of Elizabeth held its opening session at 11 a. m., on Tuesday Oct., 7th in Rev. Dr. Rankin's church at Basking Ridge. After an anthem, "Praise the Lord" and Scriptures reading Rev. J. A. Leggett, of Rahway, the annual sermon was preached by Rev. Paul Stephen, of the 7th Church of Elizabeth, on "Ye are a chosen generation." I Peter; 2; 9. After the sermon the roll was called and some 26 ministers answered. The afternoon session was mainly for church business, the Synodical committee's Report, and discussion as to the feasibility of organizing a Presbyterian church at Bergen Point, a committee from that place being present.

The evening service was devoted to three addresses, by Rev's. Kerr, of Lamington, Leggett of Rahway, and Gillespie, of Elizabeth. Plainfield was represented at the meeting. The meeting next year will be held in the Crescent Avenue Church in this city.

The Westfield Parade.

The village of Westfield had its big Republican time last evening when a large some 600 strong, marched through the principal streets of the local clubs, together with those from this city and Springfield took place.

The Henry A. McGee Guards of North Plainfield, the F. A. Potts Mounted Guards the Fourth Ward Pioneers, the Colored Blaine and Logan Guards, the Boys in Blue and nearly a hundred horsemen from this place attended. The citizens arranged themselves in platoons, armed themselves with torches and joined the procession. They received cheers for their appearance.

After the parade refreshments were served, and the Plainfielders returned home about midnight.

A GRAND JURY CENSURED.

$7.27 are Told that They Have Violated Their Oaths.

PATERSON, N. J., Oct. 11.—Judge Dixon created a sensation in the Passaic county court by administering a scathing rebuke to the grand jury. The jury supported to assist and the prosecutor to sign a portion of his indictments. Knowing this we are even more leisurely Judge Dixon remarked that he saw no indictments against City Treasurer Ridgway, and asked if any had been presented. The foreman replied in the negative. The judge reminded the jury that in his opening charge he directed their attention to City Treasurer Ridgway's case and instructed them to investigate it. He is surprised they had done so. If such was the case why, he asked, was there no indictment? To this there was no reply, and the judge addressed the jury as laugh. He said the treasurer's report certified to the receipt of $8,654.90 from the bureau of licenses, which, as a matter of fact, had received not one such cent nor any money from that source for the period specified. This constituted a misdemeanor. There was no question as to the facts; there is certainly room as to the law. The offense may not be very serious, it may not call for severe punishment, but there is now before the jury a question that is a most serious. It is whether the grand jury of Passaic county shall observe its solemn oath in strict integrity. I cannot see how, with the facts before them the jury can say they find no cause for indictment against this officer. Gentlemen, it is no longer a question whether Mr. Ridgway is to be punished, but whether your honor as a jury is to be preserved. The jury were then directed to return to their deliberations. The jurymen were very indignant, and when they left the court house it is understood that they had not undertaken a reinvestigation of the case in question.

THE SOUTHERN EXPOSITION.

New England Takes a Lively Interest in Its Welfare.

MONTPELIER, Vt., Oct. 11.—At a joint session of the legislature was held, at which a large number of citizens from all parts of Vermont were present, for the purpose of adopting plans for a proper representation of the collective resources of the state at the world's exposition at New Orleans. Senator Howe presided, and after warmly advocating a fitting representation of Vermont at the exposition, introduced Commissioner General Morshead, who gave an interesting account of the rise and progress of the exposition.

Senator Morrill next spoke, giving a brief account of all the great world's expositions and the good they had accomplished, saying the World's Exposition of New Orleans would excel any of its predecessors. He strongly advocated appropriate representation by the state. After Senator Morrill, a number of specialists on agriculture, horticulture, mining, sheep husbandry, forestry, education and manufactures, who had been invited, made interesting addresses, when the session was adjourned. It is the general opinion that the state will subscribe $5,000. Commissioner General Morshead was a guest of the annual dinner of the New Hampshire club, composed of about 300 business men. The club voted unanimously to go to the exposition in a body.

Father and Son Both Defaulters.

BROOKLYN, Oct. 11.—About two weeks ago Thomas Hammond, postmaster at Patchogue, L. I., disappeared. It was believed, with $1,500 of government money, and his body has been found near Fire Island. His son Charles, a mere boy, has been arrested on the charge of opening registered letters. Charles says that he was tempted by an acquaintance, Jack White, to steal the money, with which he bought a bicycle, and the authorities are in doubt as to the comparative guilt of the live son and dead father.

Active Burglars.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 11.—During the absence of Mr. D. Alter Pierce, from his residence in Warwick, on Thursday evening, a week thief entered the house while the ladies were in the lower apartments and took property amounting to upwards of $1,000. The robbery occurred between the hours of 7 and 10 p. m. At Hill's Grove burglars entered the house occupied by Jasper Senter and took $100 in money and a silver watch.

New York Local Independents.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—A meeting of Independent citizens was held at Delmonico's for the purpose of appointing a committee to secure the nomination of a local ticket. The meeting was a secret one, but it is understood that it was agreed to nominate Edward Cooper for mayor, Roswell P. Flower for comptroller, A. S. Sullivan for district attorney, and Percy Chanson for president of the board of aldermen.

England Annexes New Guinea.

LONDON, Oct. 11.—It is officially announced that the Australian squadron has been ordered to New Guinea to proclaim a protectorate on the part of England over the coasts of the island to the east of the 148th meridian of east longitude, and over the adjacent islands to the south. The commander is instructed not to allow Germans to settle upon the island at present.

The Thurman Act.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Senator Edmunds is here with his client, Col. Hinmonitor messenger, both Vermonters. It is understood that he has come to stay and will at once lay himself properly before the subcommittee of the judiciary committee of the senate for the enforcement of the Thurman act.

A Young Fiend.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 11.—Leo Brigal, 12 years old, was arrested at Allegheny City for maliciously destroying both eyes of Harris Black, only 4 years old, by throwing carbon into her face. She also previously fired two other children by the same means. No cause is assigned for the fiendish act.

He Wanted Lots of Glory.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Oct. 11.—Justice Nash committed to the county jail John Ambrosingh for threatening to shoot three persons. The first was a young lady who refused to marry him, the second, her s ter, who ordered him to cease his attentions, and the third the officer who arrested him.

Sentenced to Death.

HENRYETTA, Ill., Oct. 11.—The motion for a new trial in the Dacy case was overruled by Judge Wilson this morning. The prisoner made a very violent and sensational speech in his own behalf, and was then sentenced to be hanged Friday, Nov. 21, between 10 and 2 o'clock.

A. M. Sullivan Better Again.

DUBLIN, Oct. 10.—A. M. Sullivan, M. P., who was supposed to be in a dying condition last night, has rallied somewhat in consequence of a successful surgical operation.

The Cholera.

NAPLES, Oct. 11.—There were [illegible] new cases of cholera here and [illegible] deaths. At Genoa there were [illegible] and [illegible] deaths.

A NEW PAVEMENT.
The undersigned has secured the exclusive agency for the sale of the
Diebold Patent Iron Stone,
which for elegance and durability, is unsurpassed, and is pronounced by experts incomparably better than any other pavement now in use. It is the most beautiful pavement known for walks and yards, gutter stone, floor tiling, etc. Also street blocks. Also for Roofing and Surface proof vaults; and for building purposes generally. It is impervious to moisture, and absolutely incombustible—They alone no perceptible wear; will not scratch nor corrode, as lead or oil will in all kinds of moisture. When dampness accumulates on the ordinary brick, this stone remains perfectly free from it. These blocks are not like those made from Slag and are the hardest of substances. STAGE AND ROSTRUM.

Portraits of Those Whose Names are Prominently Mentioned.

John McCullough, Alfred Ellsler, the Late Frank Chanfrau, Henry Irving, Ellen Terry, G. W. Cable and Wm. Blaikie.

JOHN MCCULLOUGH.

In all the range of the realistic and emotional drama no scene more profoundly affecting was ever spoken more thoroughly discussing and by more than the fact related of "The Gladiator" by John McCullough at McVicker's theatre, Chicago. To see this great strong type of manhood with his frame visibly shattered, and his mentally benumbed by the calamity that had befallen him, was a spectacle that made the strongest men weep. Mr. McCullough's acting throughout here is and unfailing, gave evidence of a brilliant conception. Born in 1837, near Londonderry, Ireland, he came to New York in 1853 and similarly drifted west to Philadelphia in search of employment. He began reading Shakespeare while working at their casting, and imbued with an unusual dramatic conception. In 1857 he assumed the role of Othello in the play of that name produced by the association at the Caldwell Street museum. The strong and the advocate memory of the young actor attracted the attention of Manager Prudential, of the Arch Street theatre, who was a spectator. He sought McCullough at the end of the play, and the actor made his debut in that house as Thomas in "The Bold's Stream." He afterwards played at the Howard Athenæum, Boston, and at the Walnut Street theatre, Philadelphia, during which he became acquainted with Edwin Forrest, who was then a member of his personal company. He remained with the great tragedian until after the California trip, in 1860. In the flush days of the honeymoon kings he opened the California theatre, in San Francisco, having Mr. Raising, the well-known banker of the bay, for his backer. In the middle of Mr. Falston and the financial excitement and failures resulting immediately after, Mr. McCullough withdrew from the management and returned to the stage as a star. He has of late been in failing health, and was troubled greatly with insomnia.

"Kit, the Arkansaw Traveler."

THE LATE FRANK S. CHANFRAU.

Chanfrau was a typical American actor. Large frame, large hearted, full of clean and wholesome humor, generous to an extreme, he was the last man in the list of new acquaintances that he did not at the same time win his heart. He was born in New York City in 1824, and, like New York boys of that period, his sole ambition was to run with the engine, and to be a deadhead of the Old Bowery theatre. Both of his ambitions were satisfied, and he imbibed so much of the spirit of the old fire-laddie that it subsequently led to his fortune. From a supernumerary behind the scenes he was given the part of Mose, a fire-laddie, in "The Streets of New York." This character of Mose, Chanfrau played so true to life, and was so thoroughly appreciated by the audience that the manager was compelled to have the play re-written, with Mose as the principal character, and it was this character, and, later, as Kit, in "The Arkansaw Traveler," that made Chanfrau's name almost a household word. He died worth $200,000 on Oct. 2.

The Great Austrian Painter.

THE LATE HANS MAKART.

Hans Makart, who died in Vienna on Oct. 3, was a painter noted as a brilliant colorist. He searched history and fable for the most common-place incidents in all their gradations of nudity on canvas. A decorative painting of his, entitled "Abundantia," attracted considerable attention at the international exhibition at Philadelphia in 1876. He married young a divorced wife, who was his guiding star. Five after her death he married an actress who brought on his bereaved [illegible] and [illegible].

CHRONOLOGICAL EVENTS.

Canova died in 1822.

JOTTINGS.

—To-morrow will be registration day.

—Read the Republican meeting notice for to-night.

—Hon. Thos. V. Cator who speaks at the temperance meeting to-night is said to be well worth hearing.

—The number of votes received at this office for the various presidential candidates, is so infinitesimal that we can't count them.

—There is a marked increase in the number of stylish turnouts to be seen on the streets since the recent rains have settled the dust.

—There was a boom in "ping" hats to-day. All the News advertisers in this line sold out their stock and had to get more to meet the demand.

—A private meeting of the Police Board is to be held this evening to consider charges made by Mr. Isaac I. Brokaw against Policeman McCue.

—One of the most highly esteemed lady contributors of THE NEWS wishes us to ask for opinions from our readers as to where rain goes when it rains.

—Here in New Jersey all actual citizens except criminals, paupers, lunatics and idiots can vote after a residence of one year in the State and five months in the county.

—Ladies of the Plainfield Art School were out making sketches from Nature Saturday afternoon under the direction of Principal A. H. Johnson. Their progress is simply wonderful.

—Professor Cook, of the Agricultural College, has received from the farm of William E. Conover, of Freehold, a mammoth potato of the Lady Hebron variety which is over ten inches inches in length, and six and one half inches in diameter.

—The Union County Prohibition Convention will be held in this city in the old Temperance Hall to-morrow, for organization, nomination of candidates if deemed best, and whatever other business may come up. Temperance organizations have been requested to send delegates without regard to sex.

—One of the most eloquent German orators hereabouts is said to be Mr. Adolph Schabehorn, who is to make an address to Germans at the mass meeting to be held at the Casino Skating Rink Wednesday evening. The English speaking audience will no doubt be as pleased to see this innovation, as the Germans will be to hear it.

—Tax Collector Johnson is visiting taxpayers with blue sheets of note paper, containing amount due on taxes. The number of cents rate of assessment on each $100 is as follows: County, 58, State School, 26, Judgments, 7, Library 2, City 25, poor 8, School and Bonds, 28. The total is $1.74 per $100, exclusive of poll tax, which will compare favorably with any other city in New Jersey.

—A Democrat was on Front street Saturday offering to bet $100 even that Cleveland would be elected President, but could find no takers. One Republican said that he had no change. In another instance a Republican bet $100 that Cleveland would not be elected President, $100 that he would not carry his own State, and $100 that he would not carry his own county. Betting is foolish—the loser will think after election.

—Edsall's store to-day has very much the appearance of a metropolitan establishment. Inside the various bargains displayed to the advantage of the throng of visitors that had been attracted thither by the announcement that his Fall and Winter opening would begin to-day, and the most attractive lot of bargains would be shown that this city has ever seen shown. The elegant and fancy goods house the bargains are going off rapidly.

—Miss Stevens, formerly of this city, whose mysterious disappearance from East New Brunswick a few months ago, caused notice in papers throughout the State, and whom we stated a few days ago had returned, on passing by visited the Chief Fitzgerald of the New Brunswick Police. She wanted to get some books from her trunk that a Mrs. Oxley had lent her. She further said that she would like to borrow some of her clothes that she might be enabled to go to church on the Sabbath. Chief Fitzgerald refused to let her have what she might take from clothes and when she received her money she could pay the express incurred by the transference of her baggage. Being asked why she went away in so mysterious a manner, she replied that she had left her and thought she might find a healthier place. The memory of the affair has evidently passed away from her mind.

TEMPERANCE MEETINGS.

The W. C. T. U. Meeting.

The four o'clock meeting in Reform Hall by the W. C. T. U. was largely attended yesterday afternoon as usual and the same spiritual interest and enthusiasm was manifest as heretofore. The addresses by the leader Mr. Benj. Estell and Rev. Mr. Clover were strong and powerful appeals to the unconverted to seek an interest in their spiritual welfare and escape the terrible wrath which follow the neglect so to do. Christian workers are expecting a revival of religion to result from these meetings.

Methodist Club Meeting.

Reform Hall was crowded last evening to its usual, and the services were quite an interesting as hitherto. President French presided. Rev. Dr. Jesse L. Hurlbut, made the opening prayer and read the scriptures, and Rev. Dr. K. P. Kaufman pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Mr. Thomas Clemiss of Jersey City, Mr. A. R. Wendell, editor of the National Temperance Advocate of New York, and Mr. Corydon E. Tyler of this city made interesting addresses. The Lincoln Glee Club, a quartette of male voices, led the singing, and in conclusion a number of young men signed the pledge, in response to an exhortation by the President and earnest appeals from the audience, who also warmly applauded the speeches and the Glee Club.

Meeting at Dunellen.

A large Gospel Temperance Mass Meeting was held in the M. E. Church, Dunellen last evening conducted by Mr. Seely Ensell, assisted by a large delegation of workers from the city, including Old Dunham Glee Club. The exercises were participated in by a dozen different speakers and were of the most enthusiastic and interesting character. At the close of the meeting a vote of thanks was tendered the assistants from Plainfield by the congregation rising to their feet.

Rev. M. Bendall of the new Seventh Day Baptist minister then made an eloquent address, during which he made some sweeping remarks, including in his temperance principles the non-use of tea, coffee and tobacco in any form. He also surprised many in the congregation by stating that in some parts of New Jersey the ladies indulged in the filthy practice of rubbing snuff and said that ladies who did this and were so strongly attached to their cup of tea needed reforming as well as the drunkard.

The State League Work.

Under the auspices of the Reform Club League of New Jersey, a large and enthusiastic temperance meeting was held in the Presbyterian church, Bound Brook, last evening. Addresses were delivered by R. R. Manning, Wm. H. Porter, Noah W. Pike and John H. Sayres, after which 108 names were attached to the pledge. The State League corresponding secretary says in connection therewith: "It is surely evident that the popularity sentiment of the people is in sympathy with this movement and should the efforts of the temperance advocates be continued, it is a self evident truth that in the year 1885, there will be a pledged temperance President and Congress."

Bound Brook.

At Bound Brook, Judge Quail, of this city, addressed a large audience in Reform Hall, which was filled to its utmost capacity. At the conclusion of the addresses forty signed the pledge. The club is in a prosperous condition.

Can't Become another Rude Club.

A number of Republicans met in Lawyer Baydam's office on Front street, Saturday evening and organized a Blaine and Logan Citizen's Club. It was originally intended by this organization, which numbers about seventy-five members at present, to have a gorgeous uniform to surpass anything of the kind in the State, and particularly the R. I. M. Club, of this city, the cost to be seven dollars, but the uniforms cannot be furnished inside of two weeks, and as that would not give the club time to fairly cut a shine in them, they have gone to the other extreme, and adopted as the club uniform, "ping" hats, over coats, canes and sombrero. Whether pants and boots are to be included is the uniform, was not stated at the meeting, but it is the general opinion that the club will not parade bare-legged and bare-footed, at least this evening, when the first parade is to take place.

Mr. W. B. Decker, the manager of the Casino Skating Rink, was elected Captain, as of course the best-looking man in the lot. Messrs. William Addis and J. R. Miller, the latter, the genial proprietor of Laing's Hotel, were elected first and second Lieutenants respectively, at the next best. The members are all well known and promising.

An Alleged Sleeper Arrested.

James Roll of Westfield, was arrested Saturday by New York officers charged by Mrs. Mary E. Long, to answer to a suit for $10,000 damages for the loss of the services and affection of her daughter, Miss Elizabeth Brown. Mr. Roll and Miss Brown are cousins. He gave bonds to answer.

Miss Brown resides in Bowne, who lived about a mile and a half east from Westfield, disappeared and at about the same time Mr. Roll disappeared also.

The girl who is about 15 years old, and the man who is over 30, were traced to a village on Long Island, where Mr. Roll is said to have purchased a carriage with money borrowed in and about Westfield, where his relatives are in good circumstances.

Mr. Roll admits that he is taking care of Miss Brown, but denies all wrong doing, alleging that the bell her home on account of ill treatment and is now with a respectable family boarding.

The Second Church of Christ, here organized and reported all their books should still have perfected no temporal system following them.

Rev. Dr. Hurlbut, pastor of Lenox Avenue Baptist church, New York, has been invited to preach in the Second Presbyterian church, this city, next Sunday morning and evening. Dr. Hurlbut is a very able preacher and a large audience will no doubt be present to hear him.

Shooting's Season at Trenton.

Twenty operating young ladies assisted in a new slaughter one of the trenton marts. Twenty charmed young men dangling over the low board fence just at their backs, exploding in them could initially the finer points of play. This was the aggravated view that met the gaze of a NEWS reporter as he passed the Trenton Gun Club grounds on Central avenue below Smith street on Saturday afternoon last, but with Spartan firmness he turned from this counter-attraction and joined a group of gentlemen who were giving their individual attention to the game.

Matches in doubles were continued. Mr. Cheesman and Mr. McCutcheon played Mr. White and Dr. Hedges. In the first set each side played a cautious game, rarely attempting to drive a ball from the back of the court, but sending high drop balls over the net near the back. Fatal gusts of wind from the south made this a dangerous play too, for what would be a safe ball at one time, at the next stroke might be carried far beyond the lines line. The score stood five all and "deuce" called on the eleventh. For six successive times was "advantage" gained by one side or the other only to have the score reduced to "deuce" by their opponents. At last the wind caught a high ball, threw it far beyond the chalk line and the score stood six to five in favor of Mr. McCutcheon and Mr. Cheesman.

In the second set they won by a score of six to one.

These same gentlemen then played Rev. Mr. Raymond and Mr. Herbert Johnston. In these games Mr. McCutcheon distinguished himself by his fine playing at the net. He seemed able to guard it from pole to pole and many a driven ball at a seemingly safe distance from him was dropped neatly over the net amid plaudits from the spectators. All played a strong game and the contest was close and exciting. Mr. Cheesman and Mr. McCutcheon won the first set by a score of six to three. The other two games fell to their opponents, each time with a score of six to five.

Personal.

Mr. A. W. Heighes, of Jersey City, is visiting friends in this city.

Editor Leonard, of the Central Times, and ex-Mayor L. V. F. Randolph were schoolmates many years ago, and have been fast friends for about a quarter of a century.

Mr. David Clare, of Coventry, England, a brother of the late John A. Clare, who formerly kept a jewelry store on Park avenue, is visiting his sister-in-law on Manning avenue.

Cards are out for the wedding of Mr. John H. Jackson, of the well-known law firm of Jackson and Coddington, and Miss Emily J. Wilter. The ceremony will take place at the residence of the bride's mother, No. 62 Dorr street, North Plainfield, on Thursday, Oct. 23.

Presentation.

Mr. David S. Pope, who has been for several years bookkeeper for Carney Bros., plumbers, 11 Somerset street, concluded his engagement with them Saturday to accept a similar position in the Scott Foundry and Machine Works, beginning therewith to-day. Mr. Carney, in testimony of their appreciation of his services to them, on Saturday presented him with a handsome gold pen and holder, and the employees to testify their esteem for Mr. Pope presented him with a gold-headed cane, each present being suitably inscribed.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

A praise service will be held in the Young Man's Christian Association Hall this evening at eight o'clock. The service will be led by Mr. Marvin Dunham of the "Choristers." Every man in Plainfield is invited to this service.

There will be a meeting to-morrow evening in the parlors to organize a "Debating Society." A cordial invitation is extended to all the young men to come in and join.

Robbery by Boys.

The till of the butcher shop of Mr. Charles Arnold was robbed Saturday at noon by boys, who, during Mr. Arnold's absence entered his store by breaking through the back door. The boys got over $10. They were afterwards discovered, and $7 of the money was recovered. The parents agreed to make up the balance, and Mr. Arnold declined to prosecute them.

Fire Board Meeting.

The Fire Board met in special session Saturday evening in the parlor of Esphyr Hook and Ladder Company to receive bids for the new stables. The following bids were received and opened: Mr. Young, $1,080.50; Mr. Johnston Johnson, $1,087; Mr. T. O. Dixon, $1,020. The contract was awarded to Mr. Johnson, his being the lowest bid.

—Mayor Mason has neutred the anti-Clevelanders projection from disturbance hereafter. He is determined that the right of free speech shall be enforced. If it requires every man of the half-dozen policemen of Plainfield to enforce that right. Warrants have been issued for the arrest of the men who recently disturbed the anti-Cleveland meeting at St. Mary's Hall.

—Messrs. Naylor and Dunlap have secured the contract for the carpenter work on the new brick building to be erected on Nos. 21 and 23 East Front street, from plans by Mr. W. H. Chase, the architect.

Stone Yards.

Wm. A. Skinner, of Portsmouth, received the first purchase at the Stockton Park Stone Yard here yesterday morning, and is getting speed with stone.

A Fortunate Discovery.

A gray horse is missing from the premises of Mr. Wm. Hoffman, on the corner of King's Highway for the finder and owner. A reward is offered for the finder. The horse was seen on Thursday morning last on Front street, this city.

—Miss Stevens, formerly of this city, whose mysterious disappearance from East New Brunswick a few months ago, caused notice in papers throughout the State, and whom we stated a few days ago had returned, on Saturday visited the Child Fitzgerald of the New Brunswick Fellon. She wanted to get some books from her trunk that a Mrs. Cubby had lent her. She further said that she would like to borrow some of her clothes that she might be wanted to go to church on the Sabbath. Chief Fitzgerald informed her that she might take clothes and when she received her money she could pay the expense incurred by the transference of her baggage. Being asked why she went away to so mysterious a manner, she replied that she had left and not thought she might find a healthier place. For except to say, in the most decided manner, that she was not married she would not answer.

TEMPERANCE MEETINGS.

The W. C. T. U. Meeting.

The four o'clock meeting in Reform Hall by the W. C. T. U. was largely attended yesterday afternoon as usual and the same spiritual interest and enthusiasm was manifested as heretofore. The address by the leader Mr. Emily Rinehl and Rev. Mr. Chen were strong and powerful appeals to the unconverted to seek an interest in their spiritual welfare and escape the terrible result which follow the neglect so to do. Christian workers are expecting a revival of religion to result from these meetings.

Reform Club Meeting.

Reform Hall was crowded last evening as usual, and the services were quite as interesting as hitherto. President Enoch presided. Rev. Dr. Jesse L. Hurlbut, made the opening prayer and read the scriptures, and Rev. Dr. K. F. Ensman pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Mr. Thomas Chalmers of Jersey City, Mr. A. M. Powell, editor of the National Temperance Advocate of New York, and Mr. Corydon E. Tyler of this city made interesting addresses. The Lincoln Glee Club, a quartette of male voices, led the singing, and in conclusion a number of young men signed the pledge. In response to an exhortation by the President and solicitations from the audience, who also warmly applauded the speakes and the Glee Club.

Meeting at Dunellen.

A large Gospel Temperance Mass Meeting was held in the M. E. Church, Dunellen last evening conducted by Mr. Sayly Ensell, assisted by a large delegation of workers from the Grace Methodist Church Glee Club. The exercises were participated in by a dozen different speakers and were of the most enthusiastic and interesting character. At the close of the meeting a vote of thanks was tendered the assistants from Plainfield by the congregation relating to their visit.

Rev. M. Beesley, the new Seventh Day Baptist minister then made an eloquent address, during which he made some sweeping remarks, including in his temperance principles the non-use of tea, coffee and tobacco in any form. He also surprised many in the congregation by stating that in some parts of New Jersey the ladies indulged in the filthy practice of rubbing snuff and said that ladies who did this and were so strongly attached to their cup of tea needed reforming as well as the drunkard.

The State League Work.

Under the auspices of the Reform Club League of New Jersey, a large and enthusiastic temperance meeting was held in the Reform Club House in this city on Sunday evening. Addresses were delivered by R. R. Manning, Wm. H. Perine, Noah W. Pike and John H. Sayres, after which 100 names were attached to the pledge. The State League corresponding secretary says in connection therewith: "This is thirty evident that the spirit and sentiment of the people is in sympathy with this movement and should the efforts of the temperance advocates be continued, it is a self evident truth that in the year 1888, there will be a pledged temperance President and Congress."

Bound Brook.

At Bound Brook, Judge Good, of this city, addressed a large audience in Reform Hall, which was filled to its utmost capacity. At the conclusion of the addresses several signed the pledge. The club is in a prosperous condition.

Can't Secede another Dude Club.

A number of Republicans met in Lawyer Bayden's office on Front street, Saturday evening and organized a Blaine and Logan Citizen's Club. It was originally intended by this organization, which numbers about seventy-five members at present, to have a gorgeous uniform to surpass anything of the kind in the State, and particularly the H. I. M. Club, of this city, the cost to be seven dollars, but the uniforms cannot be furnished inside of two weeks, and as that time will not give the club time to fairly cut a shine in them, they have gone to the other extreme, and adopted as the club uniform, "plug" hats, over coats, canes and Sambeaux. Whether pants and boots are to be included in the uniform was not decided at the meeting, but it is the general opinion that the club will not parade bare-legged and bare-footed, at least this evening, when the first parade is to take place.

Mr. M. R. Decker, the manager of the Casino Skating Rink, was elected Captain, as of course the best-looking man in the lot. Messrs. William Addis and J. R. Miller, the latter, the genial proprietor of Laing's Hotel, were elected first and second Lieutenants respectively, as the next best. The members are all well known and promising.

Drowned.

An Alleged Sleeper Arrested.

James Roll of Westfield, was arrested Saturday in New York on complaint of Mrs. Mary S. Long, to answer to a suit for $10,000 damages for the loss of the services and affection of her daughter, Miss Elizabeth Brown. Mr. Roll and Miss Brown are cousins. He gave bonds to answer.

Some weeks ago Miss Brown, who lived about a mile and a half out from Westfield, disappeared and at about the same time Mr. Roll disappeared also.

The girl who is about 18 years old, and the man who is over 50, were traced to a village on Long Island, where Mr. Roll is said to have purchased a secret with money borrowed of Mrs. Long of Westfield, where his relations are in good circumstances.

Mr. Roll admits that he is taking care of Miss Brown, but denies all wrong doing, alleging that she left her home on account of ill treatment and is now with a respectable family boarding.

The Second Church of Crockett have secured the services of Rev. Mr. Hall of Rockford, and have purchased an improved organ for holding them.

Somerville Gleanings of Tuesday.

Twenty charming young ladies united in a race alongside one of the horse cars. Twenty charming young men dangling over the low board fence just at the car-tracks, exhibiting to them could lustfully the finer points of play. This was the rapporteur view that met the gaze of a NEWS reporter as he meandered through the club grounds on Central avenue below Eighth street on Saturday afternoon last, but with Spartan firmness he turned from this contemplative and lustful a group of gentlemen who were giving their undivided attention to the games.

Matches in doubles were continued. Mr. Chapman and Mr. McCutchen played Mr. White and Dr. Hedges. In the first set each side played a cautious game, rarely attempting to drive a ball from the back of the court, but sending high drop balls over the net near the bank. A trial game of wrist from the south made this a dangerous play too, for what would be a safe ball at one time, at the next stroke might be carried far beyond the base line. The score stood five all and "advance" called on the eleventh. For six successive times was "advantage" gained by one side or the other only to have the score reclined to "deuce" by their opponents. At last the wind caught a high ball, drove it far beyond the chalk line and the score stood six to five in favor of Mr. McCutchen and Mr. Chapman.

In the second set they won by a score of six to one.

These same gentlemen then played Rev. Mr. Raymond and Mr. Herbert Johnston. In these games Mr. McCutchen distinguished himself by his fine playing at the net. He seemed able to guard it from pole to pole and many a driven ball at a seemingly safe distance from him was dropped nastily over the net amid plaudits from the spectators. All played a strong game and the contest was close and exciting. Mr. Chapman and Mr. McCutchen won the first set by a score of six to three. The other two games fell to their opponents, each time with a score of six to five.

Personal.

Mr. A. W. Hopkins, of Jersey City, is visiting friends in this city.

Editor Leonard, of the Central Times, and ex-Mayor L. V. F. Randolph were schoolmates many years ago, and have been fast friends for about a quarter of a century.

Mr. David Clare, of Coventry, England, a brother of the late John A. Clare, who formerly kept a jewelry store on Park avenue, is visiting his sister-in-law on Manning avenue.

Cards are out for the wedding of Mr. John H. Jackson, of the well-known law firm of Jackson and Coddington, and Miss Emily J. Wilbur. The ceremony will take place at the residence of the bride's mother, No. 69 Dorr street, North Plainfield, on Thursday, Oct. 23.

Presentation.

Mr. David S. Pope, who has been for several years bookkeeper for Carney Bros., plumbers, 12 Somerset street, concluded his engagement with them Saturday to accept a similar position in the Scott Foundry and Machine Works, beginning therewith to-day. Mr. Carney, in testimony of their appreciation of his services to them, on Saturday presented him with a handsome gold pen and holder, and the employees to testify their esteem for Mr. Pope presented him with a gold-headed cane, each present being suitably inscribed.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

A praise service will be held in the Young Men's Christian Association Hall this evening at eight o'clock. The service will be led by Mr. Marvin Dunham of the "Choristers." Every man in Plainfield is invited to this service.

There will be a meeting to-morrow evening in the parlors to organize a "Debating Society." A cordial invitation is extended to all the young men to come in and join.

Robbery by Boys.

The till of the bicycle shop of Mr. Charles Arnold was robbed Saturday at noon by some boys who were in the store. Arnold's absence attracted his store by breaking through the back door. The boys got over $16. They were afterwards discovered, and $7 of the money was recovered. The parents agreed to make up the balance, and Mr. Arnold declined to prosecute them.

Fire Board Meeting.

The Fire Board met in special session Saturday evening in the parlor of Engine Rock and Ladder Company to receive bids for the new station. The following bids were received and opened: Mr. Young, $1,080.50; Mr. Johnston Johnson, $1,087; Mr. H. O. Dunham, $1,135. The contract was awarded to Mr. Johnson, his being the lowest bid.

Mayor Mayor has warned the anti-Clevelanders protection from disturbance hereafter. He is determined that the right of free speech shall be enforced, if it requires every one of the half-dozen policemen of Plainfield to enforce that right. Warrants have been issued for the arrest of the men who recently disturbed the anti-Cleveland meeting at St. Mary's Hall.

Messrs. Naylor and Smalley have secured the contract for the carpenter work on the new brick building to be erected at Nos. 31 and 33 East Front street, from plans by Mr. W. H. Cline, the architect.

FATAL CARELESSNESS.

A Farmer Leaves a Can of Paris Green Lying Around.

CATASAUQUA, Pa., Oct. 15.—The entire family of Samuel Fenstermacher, living at Fogelsville, this county, were taken ill very suddenly, and a physician was summoned, but before he could arrive, one child, aged 11 years, had died. There were marked symptoms of poison, and an examination was held which showed traces of Paris green in the child's stomach. All the others, consisting of the farmer, his wife, and three children, showed the same symptoms, and at 3 o'clock the death of another child was reported. Four physicians were called to the case, and they labored to restore the sufferers. An analysis of the water that had been drank by all the family showed traces of the same deadly poison that had been found in the child's stomach, and another bucket freshly drawn from the well showed like traces. A can of Paris Green was found at the bottom of the well with the tin punched through by the action of the water. How it came there was at first a mystery, and for a time suspicions of foul play were entertained, but it was afterwards found that last season the farmer had used Paris green on his farm and that he had left a small canister containing the poison lying in the barn near the well, and that two weeks ago a number of children had been playing with it, unsuspicious of its contents, and cast it into the well. One of the children related the story and dispelled all suspicions of foul play. The remaining members of the family are in a precarious condition, but hopes are entertained of their ultimate recovery.

The Latest Swindling Device.

PALATINE, Putnam, N. Y., Oct. 13.—A swindle has been perpetrated on merchants, mostly druggists, in the counties of Fulton and Montgomery, by agents purporting to represent the Boston Chemical company. A gentlemanly-looking agent of the firm induces the druggist to receive on commission a handsome case of patent medicines, together with toilet articles and perfumery which he desires to introduce. The usual commission receipt is signed by the merchant and the agent departs. In a short time the case arrives and the goods found to be worthless. The collector of the firm soon appears and requires payment, producing a bill of sale which the merchant supposed was a commission receipt when he signed it. The amount appears to be $190. Several merchants have paid the amount reluctantly, among them one at Fort Hunter and another at Auriesville, in Montgomery county. A few merchants became suspicious and refused to receive the goods and demanded the receipt. It was found to be a bill of sale in very fine print, with printed heading like a commission receipt.

The Presidential Candidates All Together.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Governor Cleveland will arrive in this city on Wednesday morning next, and rooms are now being put in readiness for his use at the Fifth avenue hotel. The apartments will be on the second floor near those occupied by President Arthur. St. John, the Prohibition candidate, will stop at the Fifth avenue, and will speak in Brooklyn the following night. Ben Butler has also telegraphed for rooms at the same hotel. Mr. Blaine will come to New York after the Ohio election, and will also stop at the Fifth avenue. As the chief clerk happily remarked, the presence of one president and four presidential candidates under one roof at the same time is an interesting coincidence and without precedent. Mrs. Belva Lockwood will be handsomely entertained if she should decide to canvass and join the distinguished gathering.

Hog Cholera Alarmingly Prevalent.

PHILLIPSBURG, Oct. 13.—A dispatch from Easton says that hog cholera has prevailed the same time at Phillipsburg, N. J., and that during the past year one-half of the hogs in that neighborhood have died. From there the disease spread to South Easton, and as many hogs died there, in proportion to the number raised in the town, as in Phillipsburg. About two weeks ago the disease reached Catasauqua, Hokendaqua and Coplay, and is now raging to an alarming extent. Three, and sometimes four deaths are reported every day in each place. In the part of this town where the cholera made its appearance at Manch Chunk, Hazleton and Whitehaven, and the indications now are that before the time comes for preparing pork for winter one-fifth of the disease will have spread over the greater portion of eastern Pennsylvania.

Shot by a Detective.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Oct. 13.—Sibbatt Triplett, a Youngstown (Ohio) detective, shot and killed Samuel Keener, near McClellandtown, nine miles from here. Triplett had been hunting and was returning, when he met Keener, who was intoxicated, and berated him at sight. Triplett bade him be off, but the latter, disregarding the warning, attempted to close in upon him. Triplett instantly raised his shotgun and fired, the charge taking effect in his assailant's neck and killing him instantly. Triplett had been working up some barn burning cases here, and was disguised as a miner. It is believed that Keener suspected his real business and thought he was trying to convict him. Triplett gave himself up and was lodged in jail.

The Page in Marriage.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—The Sun's London correspondent calls in the marriage of weddings which have just taken place in England the page, in all kinds of pretty costumes and of both sexes, to be the chief figure. At the marriage of Lady Alice Nevill her youngest brother and sister were resplendent in violet velvet. Miss Mollard's dress, when she was married to Mr. John Dyson, an eminent Anglo-Indian, was borne by a nephew in purple velvet and Master Percy Bransby, a son of the great millionaire. The lady who wrote about the voyages of the Sunbeam officiated at the wedding of Miss Evarts with Capt. Wyld, of the Grenadier Guards, in costumes of white satin, slashed with deep red velvet, and stockings of the same hue.

Gambling for Millions.

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 15.—The answer of Mr. McGeoch, defendant in the suit of Daniel Wells, jr., vs. Peter McGeoch, has been filed in the circuit court. The suit is the outcome of the famous wheat corner of 1882 and the last deal of 1885, conducted by the Higgins, and involves several millions of dollars. The principal line of defence is that the transactions were of a gambling nature and illegal, and cannot be enforced in a court of justice.

CONDENSED NEWS.

Ex-Gov. St. John has written a letter stating he will not withdraw from the canvass.

Five large cotton factories in Petersburg, Va., have shut down, and over 1,000 people are threatened with loss of employment.

Charles D'Acres, the youngest son of an English baronet, and the editor of a London, Ia., paper, is suspected of being an incendiary. No reason assigned.

Mrs. Murrell, colored, of Philadelphia, got into the churches of no evangelical denomination and was ordered to anathematize all heresies. She rushed at every pastor at least once.

AN ARMY OF SPIES.

The Fundamental Principles of Russia's Political Police System.

Surprises and Plots by Which Secret Societies Succeed—Accusations—Mockery, Arguments, Suspicions and Persecutions.

[St. Petersburg Cor. London Times.]

Socialists consistently followed his policy of awakening the enemy by demoralization. He never aspired to the honor of exhorting the revolutionists. He knew full well that this was impossible, that they were the inevitable outcome of the existing order of things. Indeed, it is probable that, were he asked for their total suppression Orlow, in moments of confidential expansion, he would exclaim that some men must be allowed to go free so as to procure the spies, or else the police would be left without means of subsistence. He did not want to destroy the revolutionists, but simply sought to weaken them, and to direct the police by checking their efforts to become an organized force.

To guide him in this warfare, Socialistic and down as a fundamental principle, not only that there should be as few honest persons as possible, but that it was equally important to obliterate the belief in honesty. He therefore sought to implant by every means the conviction that honesty was merely a question of price. It was necessary, he maintained, that the police should cease to be ashamed of its infamy, and that it should be quite impossible for an honest man to make others believe in his incorruptibility.

Socialism made it a rule to invite everyone he met to become a spy. It was of comparatively little consequence to him whether the proposal was accepted or indignantly refused. Whatever might happen, he did not consider his labor lost. All overtures made by the police to an honest man rendered less suspicious those intrigues which the latter crowned with success. Outsiders also became more and more embarrassed in their efforts to distinguish between friend or foe. At last the public would become habituated to the idea that it was but natural for an independent man to hold conversations with officials for the purpose of intrigue.

For similar reasons Sondaikin did not hesitate to throw away money on persons who were evidently deceiving the police. From Sondaikin's point of view, this did not much matter. He wanted people to become accustomed to accept money from the police. This was his principal purpose, and it was rendered a success when men took money, even though they did not act as spies. Such transactions still further confused the spectators, rendering it more and more difficult to say who was a spy and who was not. It further enabled real spies to pretend that they were merely deceiving the police, so as to extort money from the authorities. It must also be acknowledged that these methods were most successful. Demoralization spread rapidly, tainting society more and more, and even the young and studentlike university students. At one time, for instance, over fifty students of St. Petersburg alone were in receipt of salaries from the police. Even the revolutionary party, called honest people—that is to say, students who took the money, but did not serve the police.

Sondaikin also willingly paid false spies, who, while denouncing their friends to him, were careful to first warn them whom they were about to betray. Nor did the fact that police spies were sometimes executed by revolutionists deter him. He was quite content if they were able to discover after Sondaikin's policy. These double traitors were very useful, for, in the first place, they sometimes unintentionally gave information, and always served as a good excuse for the faithful and true spies. Secondly, they were useful in circulating false news in public false or useful information to which the police deemed it advisable to give publicity. In such cases the police would pretend to be deceived

JOTTINGS.

—"Hie, lambii'ism" says he.

—The race at the skating rink begins this evening.

—The rivalry now is between the Flags and the Dailies.

—A special meeting of the Reform Club this evening for important business.

—Read the Independent Cleveland and Hendricks notice in another column.

—The average daily attendance at the Westfield Public Schools is 256 pupils.

—To-night the different Republican organizations will go to Dunellen to raise a Blaine and Logan banner.

—Notwithstanding a law to the contrary, the small boy still buys and smokes his cigarette.

—The Democratic Congressional re-Convention of this District will be held to-morrow at Elizabeth.

—At the Fourth ward polling place there were 131 names registered up to two o'clock this afternoon.

—The apple crop has been large this year, and quantities of them can be seen lying under the trees in the country.

—H. E. R. is what the Flags are dubbed, in contradistinction to the H. I. M's. Subscribe—and "Read the News."

—Every Monday evening Prof. Walsh, of Brooklyn, N. Y., gives dancing lessons gratuitously to the children of the guests at Hotel Netherwood.

—Modern prose in a modern journal: The News charges but one cent a word for all advertising under head of "To Rent," "For Sale," "Lost," "Found," "Personal," "Boarding," etc.

—Policeman Grant arrested Michael Kelly yesterday afternoon for drunkenness and disorderly conduct, on Park avenue, and Michael was taken boisterously and bleating he bore Judge Dood, who fined him $5.

—At Hotel Netherwood a telegraphic instrument has been put up, so that the returns may be received from Ohio this evening. Mr. S. V. Woodruff invites all who may wish to do so call at the hotel this evening for the returns.

—A correspondent from Scotch Plains writes that she has probably found the money advertised for in The News a few days ago by ladies who lost it. If them ladies will call again or send they may obtain the address.

—A meeting of men opposed to Blaine, irrespective of party, was held at Laing's Hall last evening, with Mr. Samuel McCutcheon as chairman. A number of those present organized into a club to be designated hereafter, at a future meeting.

—Republicans claim that the parade last evening was the finest ever seen in Plainfield, made up of purely local clubs. It was without doubt a very fine one, and reflects much credit on Mr. H. E. Case, the commander. Gen. Sterling will have to look to his laurels.

—McMahon who was nominated by the "Butters" at the last Democratic Convention has consented to a second trial of strength to-morrow, when the Courier is re-convened. If he should be nominated, it would be a mistake if the party organs which have stirred him out crow.

—Mr. A. C. Mulford has something important added to his advertisement about "Don't bring your shoulders," etc. Read it. Two prominent manufacturers were visiting the mines referred to therein with a view of locating their works there, and the stock of the company is liable to be at a premium in less than sixty days.

—The Grand Jury of Middlesex County made two presentments the other day to Judge Scudder, who, after some deliberation made their contents public yesterday. They charge the Prosecutor of the Pleas, J. Kearney Rice, whose salary is $6,000 a year, with receiving $1,750.61 for prosecuting Lord B. Jarrard, the late Republican Coroner, who defaulted in the sum of $40,000. It is said that his trial cost the county $9,000.16.

—Plainfield's new Music Hall will be formally opened next Thursday evening with a grand concert by Theodore Thomas. Several seat holders sent in their tickets through the mails, and the checks were sold the first day the box was open. Plainfield is a musical city and doesn't object to pay well for a good thing. Perhaps this will of the Philadelphia meeting for the third season does give the most popular price. Henry Lawrence's Dramatic Company, has brought the price down, over the Passaic town sold the first day the box was open. Plainfield is a musical city and doesn't object to pay well for a good thing. A Strong Republican Parade.

Flags, Cannons, Fireworks, Torches, and Genuine Enthusiasm.

The streets of this city were again crowded last evening by citizens as the Republican parade of the week took place. The parade formed on North avenue near the depot and the line of march was as follows:

Park avenue to Fifth street, to Pearl, to LaGrande, to Franklin, to Fifth, to Pearl, to Second, to Richmond, to Front, to Grove, to Emily, to Somerset, to Andrew, to Webster, to Cleveland, to Somerset, to Front.

The decorations were numerous and pretty. Colored fire was burned at various places along the line of march.

There was about three hundred and twenty-five uniformed men in line. The following are the different units that took part in their position in the line: The F. A. Force Mounted Guards, the Lincoln Guards, the Blaine and Logan Colored Guards, the Henry A. Hoffer Guards and a club of North Plainfield boys.

The Citizen's Blaine and Logan Club looked very neat in their uniform which consisted of "plug" hats, overcoats and canes. Their marching was very good considering that this was the first time they had been out and not having had much time to drill.

There was a number of banners and flags in the line announcing the name of the different clubs.

A skeleton light was placed on a box handsomely decorated, with flags and brought up the rear of the Citizens' Club.

The music was furnished by the Plainfield Cornet Band and several drum corps.

Of Interest to Lawyers.

There are six appeals from the United States Circuit court of New Jersey to the Supreme court of the United States, whose terms now opened to-day. The papers in the case of Princess M. Prauch, of this city, vs. Be Jamin F. Green, the driver will suit, are very voluminous, being over eighteen inches high, and contain a 2,300 sheets of legal cap paper. The other appeals are the mayor, etc., of the city of Hoboken vs. the Pennsylvania Railroad company; the North German Lloyd Steamship company and the American Steam Packet company. These suits are to enjoin and to compel the defendant companies to vacate the docks of certain streets in the city of Hoboken, on the Hudson river, which are now occupied by wharves and storehouses. Cable's Spring vs. the Domestic Sewing Machine company; Cleveland, appellant, vs. Lockwood, appellee, a patent suit; and Hamilton vs. Pullman's Palace Life Insurance company, plaintiff in error, vs. John Devyr, defendant in error, an appeal from a judgment of the Supreme court of Illinois, in favor of the defendant in error.

Personal.

Mrs. W. W. Corlett, of Front street, is visiting friends at Trenton.

Miss G. F. Webber, of East Second street, started last Friday on a visit to friends at Toledo, Ohio, where she is to remain about three weeks.

Mr. Dewey W. Hyde of this city is being congratulated by his friends on his engagement to Miss Clark one of the most charming ladies of Nethorwood.

Mr. Alfred B savior, representing the Madison Square Theatre Company, was in town this afternoon arranging with Corporation Council Marsh to produce Hazel Kirke at the Stillman Music Hall, and performances to be under the personal supervision of Mr. Mallory.

Dr. S. Titsworth who has been travelling for pleasure, has returned from his trip, having traveled some days in his own conveyance, and finished up by rail, visiting many points of interest in New Jersey and Pennsylvania. At Philadelphia he made a short stay with his Alma Mater, where he parted with on the very best of terms 21 years ago.

The Music Hall Opening.

The usual by element of Plainfield cannot claim to monopolize the interest in the opening of Stillman Music Hall. The wonderful skill as for pure that the staid and substantial middle classes and even those who are said too proud to economize in every way are fully represented. The view taken is that a portion of the price of tickets is a direct contribution to the public enterprise that will so greatly enhance the attractions of Plainfield as a place of residence and increase the value of property and labor as well. Public spirit in Plainfield is growing, and does the people honor.

County Sunday School Convention.

On Saturday afternoon the Executive Committee of the Union County Sunday School Association held a meeting in Elizabeth, and made arrangements for the next annual convention of the association. It is to be held at Westfield about the middle of November. Two sessions will be held, afternoon and evening. The addresses and suggestions for practical work will be interesting and valuable, and a large attendance of those interested in Sunday-school work all over the county is expected.

Another Democratic Crash.

Last evening a meeting was held in the Morris Hall of the wigwam in this city for organizing a Democratic Campaign Club. It is stated that this club will take the place of any yet organized. About seventy-five members were secured. No name has as yet been chosen by the club.

Temple Concert.

Only one month more in the appointment series was played yesterday. In that time, Mr. Raymond and Mr. S. Atkinson Stillman Music, Murphy and Conway will appear in concert. The tickets of sale on page 2, and the concert will be given in the Temple, Mr. Raymond and Mr. S. Atkinson Stillman Music, Murphy and Conway will appear in concert. Wedding Bells.

Last evening Van Doren Hall was more than half filled by an audience to hear speakers on temperance, notwithstanding the Republican parade.

Besides the principal speaker announced Rev. Thomas V. Cator, there were on the stage, Major Mahon, Rev. Messrs. Honeyman, Kelchner and Tuttle, Hon. Chester J. Schaffer, Judge P. P. Good, and Messrs. P. M. Prouds and Elias Longmore.

Judge Good called the meeting to order and, after prayer by a Rev. gentleman present, Hon. Mr. Cator was introduced and made the principal speech of the evening. Mr. Cator is a fine speaker and has no difficulty in holding the close attention of his audience. He held strong views on temperance and believes success in the cause can never be attained until their is an amendment to the Constitution prohibiting the sale and manufacture of liquor anywhere in the United States. He claimed that this could not be obtained from either the Democratic or Republican party, both of whom are maintained in office be said by the rum power. He was frequently applauded.

Remarks were also made by Rev. Messrs. Cleaver and McClimmon and the final address by Mr. Schaeffer.

Judge Green's Record.

Judge Robert S. Green, who was nominated and ran "all to pieces," as he says, by the Democrats of the Third Congressional District, and declined the closely honor, was born in Princeton, where his family occupied a prominent position in society for many years. He removed to Elizabeth when a quarter of a century ago, has been a Judge of the County Court, member of the City Council, etc. He is most favorably known to all the residents of Elizabeth. His family are largely interested in charitable work, and Mrs. Green has been the leading lady in a number of charitable entertainments that have been given at her home and elsewhere. The Judge is a personal friend of ex-Speaker Samuel J. Randall, of the House of Representatives, who has been a visitor at his hospitable mansion in Elizabeth.

The Eleventh Excursion.

The best of proof of the attractiveness of the Switzerland of America as a delightful resort for excursionists, is found in the fact that there have been so many excursions thereto. That which goes from this city tomorrow will be the eleventh this season, and at this time of the year the place is in its full autumnal beauty. There are but few weeks left for summery pleasures of this kind, and a day's outing at Mauch Chunk, Glen Onoko and the Switchback will be found very enjoyable. The advertisement elsewhere in this issue tells all about it.

In the Courts.

The case of Gottlieb Fritz vs. Michael Gevaney, who was arrested on Sept. 15 for using offensive language, came up for trial before Justice Hoch yesterday, but the complainant did not appear and the Justice discharged the prisoner.

Middlesex County Conventions.

The Democrats met at Masonic Hall, New Brunswick, yesterday and nominated Dr. C. M. Disch for County Clerk, and Patrick Cleary for Sheriff. The result is claimed as a triumph for the Rose faction.

—On and after to-morrow, the collections for THE NEWS will be made twice a month instead of weekly as at present, but by the regular carriers as usual, and will be twenty-five cents each time, or a fraction less than two cents per copy delivered. Many of our readers have expressed a preference for this method that we have decided to adopt it, especially as most of our paper routes have become so large by daily increases as to make it necessary in order to facilitate delivery. The boys will collect on or about the 15th and 1st of each month and the usual promptness on the part of our readers will insure mutual convenience.

—Members of the Reform Club entertain somewhat different views on the temperance question. Some of the members believe in effecting reform in the parties. Others say this cannot be done, and favor an independent attitude, a Prohibition party. President French believes the temperance cause will be ruined the moment it is made a party issue, and in accordance with the constitution of the club, that politics shall not be introduced into the Reform Club, refuses the Prohibitionists permission to meet in Reform Hall, as sked.

—A prominent Plainfield Democrat loaned his overcoat and rig last to a Republican to parade in and returned it this morning. The last Republican parade one of the Democratic officers carried a sword borrowed from a leading Plainfield Republican. There is such a fraternal spirit, the next thing to order will be for the police to black themselves so parade are to serve with the clubs in white. What a queer looking sight that would be.

Sudden Summons.

Mr. Christian Kolle, who for many years carried on the manufacture of corrugated in Rahway, died at his home in New York city the 4 th instant.

A number of the wealthy summer residents of Long Branch have a movement on foot to form a driving company and furnish a complete livery system.

Hank Hirsh Adams, who eloped with Annette Ayres, a natural girl of Bonnerville, Ky., on the night of the 4th inst., was married to her on the night of the 5th.

An effectiveness Jubilee was pulled in the Seventy-fifth district in order to be ready for the Republican parade in the evening. Both did it any of Public Safety.

A Runaway Occurrence.

A gay lark occurred on somerville on Saturday night. A number of young men had been out driving and were returning to their homes in the vicinity of Somerville. A runaway team attached to a carriage containing a number of young men came down the road at a rapid rate. The driver of the team was unable to control the horses, and they ran into the carriage in which the young men were riding, overturning it and throwing the occupants out. Fortunately no one was seriously injured.

FASHIONS.

Speckled gray ostrich tips trim many gray velvet bonnets and hats.

The stocking with a facing above the knee is intended to make the use of garters unnecessary.

Green is the prevailing color in felt bonnets and is seen in all the dark shades as well as the lighter cresson, olive and brown tints.

Trained dresses are de rigues for occasions of the highest ceremony, but they are worn only by married women or unmarried ones no longer young.

The lace dress as fashionable for summer out door wear is utilized for fall in-door dress this fall, and will be the dress of highest ceremony for midwinter as well.

Many bird's wings, of small size, are frequently grouped together on the front of a bonnet or hat in a panache to form the most conspicuous part of the trimming.

White satin embroidered with silver broche and trimmed with white Chantilly lace, caught up in festoons all over the front breadths with white silk and silver drops, is the latest in bridal robes.

Instead or the time-honored orange flower wreath, brides now wear the veil fastened with several large diamond or Rhine crystal pins, the orange flowers forming bouquets wherewith to loop the draperies and adorn the corsage only.

Circle cloaks, fur-lined, fleeced and silk-lined, appear again among midwinter wraps. The Russian circle is revived also, but the ordinary circle of the past ten years retains its old popular shape. The collar is made a little larger and sometimes falls like a coachman's cape over the curve of the shoulders and reaches almost to the waist line. The inside pockets and fur-lined slits for the hands are invariably seen on the new circle cloaks.

Braid is par excellence the favorite trimming of the coming season. Cords and braids appear on all the trimming counters, and in more beautiful designs, effects and combinations than were ever seen or dreamed of before. They come in all widths and sizes and of gold and silver threads, and mixtures of these with black, white and colored threads.

In addition to the new peak and gable-trimmed Mother Hubbard bonnets which have high tapering crowns and brims that sweep upward in a point above the forehead, there are high-puffed crowns given to Fanchons and capotes, and the feature in bonnets this season is the high crown much decorated with gold and silver thread or bead embroidery, put on in detached designs, scattered over the velvet that generally forms the dewiest bonnets and hats.—Cecil in the Newark News.

The annual news spray between the Hoboken and Pavonia ferries will be Printers' Day. There is a place on Monday evening for every three cents to be contributed for the Printers' Home. Don't forget it.

The polls of West Virginia are electing state officers and legislature, and voting upon a proposed amendment to their constitution to change the time of the general elections to November. Representatives to congress will be chosen on the day of the presidential election, in November next. For state officers there are two tickets in the field, one by the Republican Readjusters and Greenbackers, and the other by the Democrats. Their composition is as follows:

REPUBLICAN-GREENBACK FUSION.

Governor—Emanuel Wilson.
Auditor—J. H. Burt.
Treasurer—Spencer W. Bonn.
Superintendent of Schools—J. N. Kendall.
Attorney General—Samuel Hochheimer.
Supreme Judges—W. H. H. Price, J. H. Brown.

DEMOCRATIC.

Governor—E. Wilson Wilson.
Auditor—Patrick F. Duffey.
Treasurer—William T. Thompson.
Superintendent of Schools—B. S. Morgan.
Attorney General—Samuel Galt.
Supreme Judges—A. C. Snyder, Samuel Woods.

The legislature last chosen in West Virginia had a Democratic majority of 10 on joint ballot in a total membership of 91. The vote of the state in recent years has been as follows, Republican and Greenbacker having fused on supreme judge in 1882:

Year.	Office.	Rep.	Dem.	Oth's.
1880.	Governor	46,146	49,158
1881.	Supreme Judge	39,000	45,180
1880.	Treasurer	46,342	52,295	3,977
1880.	Governor	44,859	48,291	10,057

Both Sides Claim Victory.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 14.—Never in the history of Ohio has a political contest been so active and thorough as the present one, neither party leaving anything undone to secure victory for its side. Money has been plenty on both sides and used by both, each putting it where it would do the most good. Committees from both parties have been formed in each township and ward to protect the purity of the ballot boxes. It is perfectly safe to predict the vote of Ohio to-day will be the largest ever cast. Chairman Bergar, of the Democratic committee, and Chairman Ogleves, of the Republican committee, both claim the state by 10,000 to 20,000 majority. Chairman Hanna, of Toledo, of St. Louis, who has been traveling over the state, said that he felt absolutely certain the state would go 10,000 Republican, and the vote polled in the morning might increase it to 25,000.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 14.—There has been practically no change in the political situation here during the past twenty-four hours. Forum is in the lead for congress. Democrats are giving odds in his favor in town, and claim to have the city. Each Republicans as concede his election do not give him more than 1,000. The Republican party is working industriously for the electoral, and if so the State ticket will have a majority here. There will be a much lighter Prohibition vote than than there was two years ago.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 14.—The excitement in this city over the election is intense, and a heavy vote is being polled. At this hour it is too early to be at all definite in regard to returns, although both sides claim victory, and it is evident the figures will be close. Charges of fraud are made on both sides, but nothing as yet has been discovered, but there have been several brawls of a minor character, and it is probable that before to-night or to-morrow morning the feeling and political spirits may develop into something more serious. The police have taken ample precautions to check any riot in its inception, and the militia can be called out without delay.

A BATCH OF OPINIONS.

Editors, Governors and Others Give Their Views.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 14.—John R. McLean, editor of The Enquirer, says: "Last year Hamilton county, on a very large vote, gave Foraker 2,000 majority. The majority now Foraker, although the party which elected him had two local tickets in the field, and is withstanding the return of a large batch of Germans who were kept away from the November election. This year there has undoubtedly been a large German accession to the Democracy, and the independent local ticket will not divide the vote as it did previously. Under these circumstances I am confident we will carry the state by 10,000 majority following of Mr. Hoadly. If there will be a

New York Times, Oct. 14.—The World has the following special from Cincinnati: "The burning of half a dozen of the principal mines in the Hocking Valley a stupendous crime was committed on Saturday night, but it will require more or several days to get at the details to determine where the responsibility rests. I went there from Columbus on the first train after the fires started and saw enough to convince me that the mines were not fired by accident and the vote in the state will probably be close."

GOV. HOADLY.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 14.—Gov. Hoadly, in response to inquiries said: I am very confident of Democratic success.

CHAIRMAN OGLEVEE.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 14.—John F. Ogleves, chairman of the Republican state committee, says The Cincinnati Enquirer has been the most exciting one since the memorable Broughton-Vallandigham contest in 1863. The Republicans are confident of a decisive majority.

GOV. WALLER.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 14.—Gov. Waller, of Connecticut, who is here, said: I look for the Democratic majority to be 20,000 and regret it then I will have no more faith in Democratic management. We carried the state last year, we have had best organizations, a fair share of the election officers, plenty of money for legitimate use and every advantage necessary for victory. Now if we do not succeed, then I will have no more faith in the right.

RICHARD SMITH.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 14.—Richard Smith, editor of The Cincinnati Commercial says the Republicans are feeling good. The arrangements to prot ct the ballot-boxes are good. In regard to the vote Republicans majority less than 10,000 would surprise but more than a majority of 20,000.

EDWIN COWLES.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 14.—Edwin Cowles, editor of The Leader, says: The people have just ended in this state has been one of the most vigorous ever conducted by the Republican party of Ohio. The people have voted thoroughly across the line and will be brought out. The Republican lines have been somewhat broken during the past two years by the Prohibition and Greenback issues, but this has been offset by a break among the woolgrowers in the Democratic ranks. We expect many Democratic woolgrowers will vote the Republican ticket on account of the attempt of the Democratic congress to reduce the tariff on wool by the Mills bill. What the Prohibition vote will be is a mere matter of conjecture, but the prospects are that many Prohibitionists will vote the Republican ticket this year. The Republican vote will vote for Blaine in November. The canvass taken by the Republican State Central committee indicates that the state will go Republican by from 10,000 to 21,000 majority.

E. E. EGGLESTON.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 14.—M. E. Ingalls, chairman of the Democratic executive committee, gives his opinion as to the result. Democrats are claiming Ohio. During the last two weeks public sentiment has been steadily changing in favor of the Republicans. The result is doubtful, but the chances are in their favor.

The Prohibition Vote.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 14.—There is much uncertainty about the Prohibition vote. The Republicans claim it will be cut into the Democrats, on the other hand, assert that it will be sufficient to turn the tide of battle in their favor. All is left in the pure speculation in regard to its magnitude.

Forum in the Lead.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 14.—The result of the election in Ohio to-day is regarded as exceedingly doubtful, both the Republicans and Democrats parties claiming equally confident of success. Members of either party, however, do not seem inclined to make any very large wagers on the general result.

The interest centers principally in the contest for congress in this district, is pretty sure to be reelected. The county and state ticket will probably go Republican by small majorities. The Democratic boomers are on both sides, and a large vote will be polled.

WEST VIRGINIA.

The News Very Meagre—A Large Vote Polled.

WHEELING, Oct. 14.—Information received here from various points say the election is passing off quietly. A large vote is being polled, and the parties have reserved their majorities down to very fine points. The result is in doubt. No disturbances of a serious character have yet been reported.

WHEELING, Oct. 14.—The situation is much the same here, because local issues play no part in the contest. The Democratic boomers is to be the next governor of West Virginia. There are county-seat contests in half a score of counties, in others local options and the usual political issues have attention, but in these localities the Republicans and Democrats are giving odds in favor of their candidates. The majority for Gibbons is conceded by Republicans as conceds his election do not give him more than 1,000. The Republican party is working industriously for the electoral, and if so the State ticket will have a majority here. There will be a much lighter Prohibition vote than than there was two years ago.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 14.—The excitement in this city over the election is intense, and a heavy vote is being polled. At this hour it is too early to be at all definite in regard to returns, although both sides claim victory, and it is evident the figures will be close. Charges of fraud are made on both sides, but nothing as yet has been discovered, but there have been several brawls of a minor character, and it is probable that before to-night or to-morrow morning the feeling and political spirits may develop into something more serious. The police have taken ample precautions to check any riot in its inception, and the militia can be called out without delay.

Why Was It Done?

CONCORD, N. H., Oct. 14.—Moses Mower, who was arrested on the charge of setting fire to the Eagle hotel, was released on bail and returned to Canaan. Every one is glad to see him back. He was immediately surrounded by a crowd of his friends, who congratulated him on his return. Mower said: "I am innocent of the charge against me, and I can tell a little skeptical because of what I saw when the troubles occurred that I am not the guilty man."

"And what was that?"

"I refer to the occasion when the mining boys were brought to the city and the troops were called out. Now, the night that the hotel burned I was the first man to discover it. The building was all ablaze and I, knowing that I had a number of friends in the house, they were liable to be burned, ran to the house to try to get the cars shoved along out of danger. I knew that twenty-five Finlanders were asleep in the hotel. I found, of course, I was surprised that the fire could occur. I was more surprised, however, when I stood on the track in front of the burning building and saw a man in the building trying for help, and never a guard or anybody else could I discover. They were nowhere to be found. I saw the Finlanders hurriedly escape, and they appeared on the scene and were very active. It was charged, of course, that the strikers had burned the place, but from the circumstances I am inclined to doubt that theory. Now, in the present case, I am sure no man who has the miserable era, but there seems to be some investigation before the matter is dropped. I am sure that the strikers are men of intelligence. They have not families are here and their property is here. They have been living in this town for years and have always been

EDWIN COWLES.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 14.—Edwin Cowles, editor of The Leader, says: The people have just ended in this state has been one of the most vigorous ever conducted by the Republican party of Ohio. The people have voted thoroughly across the line and will be brought out. The Republican lines have been somewhat broken during the past two years by the Prohibition and Greenback issues, but this has been offset by a break among the woolgrowers in the Democratic ranks. We expect many Democratic woolgrowers will vote the Republican ticket on account of the attempt of the Democratic congress to reduce the tariff on wool by the Mills bill. What the Prohibition vote will be is a mere matter of conjecture, but the prospects are that many Prohibitionists will vote the Republican ticket this year. The Republican vote will vote for Blaine in November. The canvass taken by the Republican State Central committee indicates that the state will go Republican by from 10,000 to 21,000 majority.

E. E. EGGLESTON.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 14.—M. E. Ingalls, chairman of the Democratic executive committee, gives his opinion as to the result. Democrats are claiming Ohio. During the last two weeks public sentiment has been steadily changing in favor of the Republicans. The result is doubtful, but the chances are in their favor.

The Prohibition Vote.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 14.—There is much uncertainty about the Prohibition vote. The Republicans claim it will be cut into the Democrats, on the other hand, assert that it will be sufficient to turn the tide of battle in their favor. All is left in the pure speculation in regard to its magnitude.

Forum in the Lead.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 14.—The result of the election in Ohio to-day is regarded as exceedingly doubtful, both the Republicans and Democrats parties claiming equally confident of success. Members of either party, however, do not seem inclined to make any very large wagers on the general result.

The interest centers principally in the contest for congress in this district, is pretty sure to be reelected. The county and state ticket will probably go Republican by small majorities. The Democratic boomers are on both sides, and a large vote will be polled.

WEST VIRGINIA.

The News Very Meagre—A Large Vote Polled.

WHEELING, Oct. 14.—Information received here from various points say the election is passing off quietly. A large vote is being polled, and the parties have reserved their majorities down to very fine points. The result is in doubt. No disturbances of a serious character have yet been reported.

WHEELING, Oct. 14.—The situation is much the same here, because local issues play no part in the contest. The Democratic boomers is to be the next governor of West Virginia. There are county-seat contests in half a score of counties, in others local options and the usual political issues have attention, but in these localities the Republicans and Democrats are giving odds in favor of their candidates. The majority for Gibbons is conceded by Republicans as conceds his election do not give him more than 1,000. The Republican party is working industriously for the electoral, and if so the State ticket will have a majority here. There will be a much lighter Prohibition vote than than there was two years ago.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 14.—The excitement in this city over the election is intense, and a heavy vote is being polled. At this hour it is too early to be at all definite in regard to returns, although both sides claim victory, and it is evident the figures will be close. Charges of fraud are made on both sides, but nothing as yet has been discovered, but there have been several brawls of a minor character, and it is probable that before to-night or to-morrow morning the feeling and political spirits may develop into something more serious. The police have taken ample precautions to check any riot in its inception, and the militia can be called out without delay.

Why Was It Done?

CONCORD, N. H., Oct. 14.—Moses Mower, who was arrested on the charge of setting fire to the Eagle hotel, was released on bail and returned to Canaan. Every one is glad to see him back. He was immediately surrounded by a crowd of his friends, who congratulated him on his return. Mower said: "I am innocent of the charge against me, and I can tell a little skeptical because of what I saw when the troubles occurred that I am not the guilty man."

"And what was that?"

"I refer to the occasion when the mining boys were brought to the city and the troops were called out. Now, the night that the hotel burned I was the first man to discover it. The building was all ablaze and I, knowing that I had a number of friends in the house, they were liable to be burned, ran to the house to try to get the cars shoved along out of danger. I knew that twenty-five Finlanders were asleep in the hotel. I found, of course, I was surprised that the fire could occur. I was more surprised, however, when I stood on the track in front of the burning building and saw a man in the building trying for help, and never a guard or anybody else could I discover. They were nowhere to be found. I saw the Finlanders hurriedly escape, and they appeared on the scene and were very active. It was charged, of course, that the strikers had burned the place, but from the circumstances I am inclined to doubt that theory. Now, in the present case, I am sure no man who has the miserable era, but there seems to be some investigation before the matter is dropped. I am sure that the strikers are men of intelligence. They have not families are here and their property is here. They have been living in this town for years and have always been

MONEY AND MUSIC.

The Discovery of the Philadelphia Academy of Music Absconds.

And his Defalcation Leads to a Not Discussion Between the Directors in Regard to Business Methods and Carelessness.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 13.—Benjamin G. Cross, secretary of the board of directors of the Academy of Music, has absconded. The announcement will result in a meeting of the board of directors this afternoon when the announcement promised a tempest. After the Opera had disappeared on Thursday the matter had been whispered and the first discussion of the secretary's crime given to the directors was at Saturday night's meeting by President Baker. A member of the board, who is opposed to President Baker, spoke strongly of the president's act in "spreading the news to the public before the secretary without necessity. Several of the directors then learned for the first time the liberties rule of the board requiring secretary's trust deed to be filed in accordance with by President Baker—Mr. Baker answered angrily, declaring he was president of the board and proposed to do as he pleased. "I shall not resign at this meeting," he said, "as a former member now dead did on a similar occasion. I hold myself responsible for the acts of the secretary." Mr. Cross, and will reimburse the board from my own pocket."

A member of the board of directors, speaking of Mr. Baker's action, said: "Our President Baker and the majority of the board for the loose way in which the affairs of the Academy have recently been managed. Mr. Cross was not bonded because the secretary were only possible. "Secretary Cross," he said, "was appointed early in June after the Baker victory. He was formerly an assistant librarian in the Philadelphia library and was discharged for inattendance. Mr. Baker appointed him without any consultation with the board and without security. Cross's appointment was made Messrs. Pepper and Archer vigorously opposed it, but their opposition was frustrated, as they said the Peter A. Kell-r was appointed treasurer. As Mr. Keller was not given a salary in very naturally allowed his work to drift into the hands of Cross. The duties of the treasurer are the sinecures of the president gave him the opportunity to peculate.

"How was it done?" "Easily enough. When the bills were due for bills for the company he had their checks or orders made out in his own name and collected the money. He also carried out a small cash account of nearly $100."

The causes leading to Cross's crime are said to be intemperance. The prima donna's engagement at the Academy of Music have been magnificently remunerated, was said by him for a long while, unknown to the directors, as a paring to entertain his female friends. He is said to have left Denver with one of his female companions.

An Important Commercial Decision.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 14.—An opinion was rendered in the United States court by Judge Brewer, in the case of Victory against the State Savings association, which is a New York corporation. The plaintiff had given a draft with unrestricted endorsement. This passed into the possession of the bank of Indiana, which collected it in the ordinary course of business, the two institutions having correspondence for more than twenty years. They did not remit collections, but stood business with each other, and credited from time to time in process of further collections. The judge holds that under such circumstances, money collected on drafts sent by a remote upon credit or anticipation of remittance. The fact that he lost his money owing to the failure of the Indiana bank, into which it passed in the ordinary course of business, Judge Brewer to be the fault of plaintiff alone; for, by a restricted endorsement, he would have given notice of his title to every one who touched it. The plaintiff had given a unrestricted endorsement, thus permitting his paper to pass into an ordinary channel of trade, he accepted in blind faith the stability of the bank to which he sent it, and stands the result of his confidence. His endorsement "for collection" is immaterial, the simple question is whether in collecting bank has the right to look on a transmitting bank as owner of draft paper. It having done so in this case, judgment is entered for defendant.

Brighton Beach Races.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—The racing at Brighton Beach was the first of another stirring day programme and the seventy-third day of the season. The five events were well filled and the sport was fine. The first was mile; 2-year-olds, three-quarters mile—Cordelia first, Emmett second, Thunderbolt third; mutuals paid $23.85; time, 1:20 Second race, for all ages, one mile and one furlong—Harriet first, Clarence second, Charley B. third; mutuals paid $38; time, 1:56 Third race, all ages, one mile—Jim Fan first, Montrose second, Treasurer third; mutuals paid $42.85; time, 1:45. Fourth race, hurdle; seven hurdles—Wanderer first, Bonnie Lass second, Lizzie Eva S. third; mutuals paid $47.80; time, 1:58. Fifth race, beaten horses, seven-eighths of a mile—Fonta first, Nitor second, Vanblaicum third; mutuals paid $21.10; time, 1:34

Astonishing Superstition.

MACON, Ga., Oct. 14.—During the late drought in Georgia had given vent to such superstition among negroes, who are holding meetings for the purpose of turning away their wrath. Some of the negroes solemnly assert that a child was born with three teeth, lived three hours and died, after having spoken three words. "Three dry years." Others say that a child was born with a tail to mean three years of famine. On Saturday a black child was born in Trouse county, which died during the night. It is said to have spoken three words before death, "Five years without rain." These two incidents are firmly believed by colored people, who expect to be blessed childless.

Not an Ordinary Swindle.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 14.—In North Sydney, C. B., a few days ago, a gentleman on purchasing a ticket passed a bogus $5 note of the Commercial bank of Newfoundland. He was not aware, but as the redemption of the note and told where he obtained it, he was allowed to go. It appears that several parties engaged in manufacturing the notes and special bank were struck off in England and sent to Newfoundland by steamer, which was wrecked on the island of St. Pierre. Several thousand dollars, $5,000 to $6,000, were recovered by some unknown parties and put in circulation, the signatures being forged so cleverly that experts could detect them only by their numbers.

A Train Dispatchers Mistake.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 14.—Two trains collided on the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton railroad near Allen's station. The two trains were almost completely wrecked. Engineer Bell was killed outright and Fireman Kelly so badly scalded that he died shortly afterwards. The other trainmen escaped with slight injuries. The collision was caused by a mistake of the train dispatcher in giving orders.

A Great Crime Soon Committed—Who is Responsible for It?

Plainfield Arrest Detective Assists Coast Guardsmen.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—The World has the following special: Two men, one of them the hero of half a dozen of the principal mines in the Hocking Valley a stupendous crime was committed on Saturday night, but it will require more or several days to get at the details to determine where the responsibility rests. I went there from Columbus on the first train after the fires started and saw enough to convince me that the mines were not fired by accident and the vote in the state will probably be close."

GOV. HOADLY.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 14.—Gov. Hoadly, in response to inquiries said: I am very confident of Democratic success.

CHAIRMAN OGLEVEE.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 14.—John F. Ogleves, chairman of the Republican state committee, says The Cincinnati Enquirer has been the most exciting one since the memorable Broughton-Vallandigham contest in 1863. The Republicans are confident of a decisive majority.

GOV. WALLER.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 14.—Gov. Waller, of Connecticut, who is here, said: I look for the Democratic majority to be 20,000 and regret it then I will have no more faith in Democratic management. We carried the state last year, we have had best organizations, a fair share of the election officers, plenty of money for legitimate use and every advantage necessary for victory. Now if we do not succeed, then I will have no more faith in the right.

RICHARD SMITH.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 14.—Richard Smith, editor of The Cincinnati Commercial says the Republicans are feeling good. The arrangements to prot ct the ballot-boxes are good. In regard to the vote Republicans majority less than 10,000 would surprise but more than a majority of 20,000.

A LIVELY MEETING.

An English Political Gathering a Bloody Affair.

London, Oct. 14.—The Duchess of Marlborough and Lord Randolph Churchill were announced to speak last night at a large Conservative meeting to be held on the Aston grounds at Birmingham. A number of demonstrations, gotten up by the Liberals, was held in the same vicinity. After some pretty rabid speeches had been made at the latter meeting, denouncing the peers and the House of Lords, the crowd became boisterous, and breaking down the walls around the Aston grounds, they set off the fireworks prepared for the Conservative meeting. They then invaded the small corn hall, in which Mr. Hon. Edward Gibson, M. P. for Dublin university, was speaking. The mob stormed the platform, and a fierce hand to hand fight ensued between the intruders and the Conservatives, during which chairs and benches were used as weapons. Finally the platform collapsed, precipitating the combatants in a mass to the floor, several being injured. The mob then turned its attention to the larger hall, where similar scenes were enacted. Sir Stafford Northcote and Lord Churchill were hustled down, and finding it impossible to restore order they hastily quitted the hall. Many conservatives and Liberals were injured in the numerous brawls that took place before the police could succeed in clearing the premises.

Will Bear Investigation.

Concord, N. H., Oct. 14.—Sunday evening a young lady of about 20 years of age started on foot to go from the Penacook Mountain house to the house of Jeremiah Stevens, three-fourths of a mile distant. At 6:30 she arrived at her destination with her clothing covered with blood, which flowed from gashes on both wrists. All she could say was that she remembered passing a certain large oak tree beside the road, and the next she remembered she was sitting beside the road with gashes in the wrists copiously bleeding. She appeared greatly frightened, and could give no explanation of her wounds. There was no other evidence that any assault had been attempted. Upon the left wrist there were seven gashes, two of which were made through the dress sleeve, and upon the right wrist eleven. The gashes were parallel, about a quarter of an inch apart, and as deep as to bleed freely. There were also long scratches on each side of the girl's throat. She has no recollection of seeing or hearing any one passing, and the whole affair is shrouded in mystery. The young lady bears an excellent reputation.

Activity in the Iron Trade.

Pittsburg, Oct. 14.—All the departments of the mills of Oliver Bros. & Phillips are in full operation with the exception of the machine shop of one and the plate mill of another, closed on account of a break. There were rumors of a difficulty having arisen between the firm and the Amalgamated association, but the mills started as announced. It was also rumored that the reduction had not been proceeded in in the Standard Nut works and that it would be closed, but that establishment is also in full operation.

President Riddle Indicted.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 14.—The grand jury has been engaged since Friday last considering the charges of conspiracy against President W. N. Riddle, Cashier Reiber and T. J. Watson, and the charge of embezzlement against Riddle and Reiber in relation to the Penn bank failure. Before adjourning true bills were found against Riddle, Reiber and Watson for conspiracy, and against Riddle and Reiber for embezzlement of $1,194,152.50 of the bank's funds.

A Peculiar Accident.

Cincinnati, Oct. 14.—A peculiar accident occurred at the city hospital resulting in the death of Wm. T. Thomas and Chas. Taidoest, a patient. The former was attempting to remove the latter to the amphitheatre on a stretcher and fell through the elevator hatchway, a distance of forty feet, with the truck on top of them. Death was almost instantaneous.

A NEW PAVEMENT.
The undersigned has secured the exclusive agency for the sale of the
Diebold Patent Iron Stone,
which for elegance and durability, is unsurpassed, and in price will compare favorably with any other pavement now in use. It is the most beautiful pavement known for walks and yards, gutter stones, hitching posts and curb blocks. It is found to build fine and Burglar proof vaults, and for building purposes generally. These pavement blocks have many striking peculiarities.—They show no perceptible wear.—No sun-contractions; repel ice and snow, as well as all kinds of moisture. Are cleaned with one-fourth the labor of the ordinary brick, the material remains perfectly free from a growth of moss, and the surface is cool from Sun and are the hardest of substances. For prices call on the exhibition at Harper's Fancy Store, opposite Sellman's Music Hall. Or for further particulars call on or address

ENJOYING WEALTH.

The Sort of Satisfaction Wall Street Men Get Out of Life.

The Longest Railroad Passenger Accosted by the Shortest—Pure-sweetbee Enterprise, Wide-Awake, Shrewd Broker.

[New York Cor. Utica Observer.]

Wall street men know how to enjoy their money when they get it. They have more fun in the square inch than any other set of well-to-do citizens in town. There is a spirit of jollity among the members of the stock exchange which finds expression in a thousand ways. The Wall street man frolics, gambles, plays practical jokes, runs with the popular actress of the moment, and drives a fast horse up the road. Whatever is expensive becomes desirable at once. Society millionaires are content to live in flats on the avenue—or at magnificent country seats. They seem bored and oppressed, but are hampered by the cares of society and annoyed by a thousand social jealousies and quarrels.

Give a Wall street man a million and the fun begins to fly at once. I was struck particularly by this the other morning when returning to New York, after spending a night at Seabright, near Long Branch. I came to town on the regular business train. On the platform of the station, waiting for the train, were a dozen of the wealthy cottagers of Seabright—men prominent in trade and finance in New York. Most of them walked to the station and climbed with the other passengers into the ordinary cars. Some were obliged to stand on account of the crowd. Just before the train started an elegant victoria, drawn by a team of dashing grays, rolled up to the station, and a slight, elegantly-dressed and languid man rose from the cushions, and, attended by a footman, boarded a Pullman car. He is found a whole section reserved for him, with a special porter standing guard. The passenger did not trouble himself with tickets, but gazed idly out of the window.

The train sped on to Sandy Hook. Just as it came in sight a $100,000 steam yacht which lay a short distance off shore fired a salute, and dropped a boat with four uniformed sailors to the water. The sailors rowed to the dock, arriving just in time to meet the languid passenger, accompanied by the obsequious porter, stepped into the boat, the man in the stern-sheets touched his cap, and the sailors pulled away with the regulation man-o'-war stroke. The steam yacht picked up the boat without stopping, and sped like an arrow up the bay. In a beautiful saloon on board the owner ate his breakfast, while the yacht ran up the bay. He stepped into a cab at the New York pier and was in his office five minutes later. Then the languid air disappeared and the brisk, energetic and pushing manner of the shrewdest broker in New York took its place.

It was Mr. Washington R. Connor, the pet broker of Jay Gould. He is as sharp as a needle, and worth anywhere from one to five millions. While he was at work in his office the clumsy steamer which his fellow-passengers had boarded was making her way up the bay. There were on board a dozen men worth as much money as Mr. Connor, but they arrived with the crowd. Wash. Connor's money came through a positive stroke of genius on his part. He was a curbstone broker, with no position, no means or money when Jay Gould got control of the unfortunate "Black Friday" stump. Gould had bought orally about six times as much gold as he could pay for. He repudiated the purchases when the brokers went to him after the panic, and refused to settle the claims. His action nearly ruined five of the larger brokerage firms of the city. The brokers threatened, stormed, raved and prayed to no avail. Mr. Gould would not see them.

Then the unknown Wash. Connor went around to the different firms, and by various means got them to assign their claims to him. They did so, and with all the claims in his possession Mr. Connor went to Jay Gould and told the Wall street king that he was ready to bring suit or compromise—he would leave the choice to Mr. Gould. The great financier looked at Mr. Connor, talked to him for awhile, and then made up his mind that he needed the services of the unknown but shrewd young broker. A liberal compromise of the claims was made, Mr. Connor became an associate of Mr. Gould's, and was a millionaire within five months. Now he is head of the firm of W. R. Connor & Co. One of his partners is Jay Gould's son George, who went into the firm with $200,000, and the other two partners are Mr. Jay Gould and his stalwart secretary and body-guard, Morosini.

Had Graduated at Vassar.

[Chicago Herald "Train Talk".]

"Yes, sir, I do say it myself, my daughter is an exceedingly accomplished young lady," remarked a fond mother on a Pullman car, "as was also her sister, a great pride in education. She graduated after a through course at Vassar, you know, and we have since had her abroad. You think her refined? Oh, not. Not now. She once weighed nearly 200 pounds, but her drawing, languages, music and travel have reduced her so-ah-is now quite delicate, poor dear. Her teacher, Professor Costanaldi, of Milan, says she is so delicate and aesthetic and versatile. Now, what do you think of her?" "Really," replied the fond mother's chance acquaintance, a sleepy and gouty old gentleman, "I do not like to say, madame." "But I insist. We shall value your opinion so highly." "Since you will it, sue insist. I must say I consider your daughter wonderfully versatile and accomplished—there, don't thank me, she deserves it—wonderful, indeed. Why, will you believe it, madame, I could get scarcely a wink of sleep last night, being lost in admiration of your daughter's crescendo snore in seven languages! You're quite welcome—no thanks necessary."

Nick, but No Tick.

[Somerville Journal.]

"No, sir," said the barber to a suspicious-looking customer, who affably remarked, as the latter was being laid on, that he supposed there were a good many men who failed to pay their shaving scores. "No, sir; I used to give credit, but I never do now—in fact nobody ever asks for tick any more." "How's that?" "Well, you see," said the barber, trying the edge of his razor on his thumb nail, "I had a set of stiffs who used to ask me to charge it down, but I got tired of hanging books, and I adopted a new system. Whenever I shaved one of them old standbys I just as little as to his nose with my razor, and I generally let that over. They got so they didn't want to run bills." There was a scowl on the customer's face as he asked before leaving the barber: "Do you object to being put in advance?"

Mrs. Langtry Out West.

[Denver Tribune.]

Go and see her; it will educate you. If you believe in the Bible go and see her. If you believe that God made humanity in His own divine image, go and behold that image veiled by unlawful raiment is admitted to be more like the original.

SOUTHEAST BY E.

[Mrs. Minnie Cassell in Cincinnati Commercial.]

Ye yellow in the orange,
Far down the broad Delaware,
It is the time of year
When the shores of Cape-
And Yes is your latest love
That I sail for Rodney Day
Blessing the curse-ive of Adam
Alcon sweet Rodney Day.

O I had seen a true-love—
Love, I had seen ever,
And I had seen my treasure,
But I lose that them of;
My heart had my heart
Sleep I the mode this day,
I sit my lone among the rigs
Alcon sweet Rodney Day.

It's a bonnie bay at morning,
And I sail out on the ocean,
But it's homeier when the sun drops
And real comes up the moon;
When the mist creeps after the Cumberays,
And Arran peaks are grey,
And the great black hills of Arding
Alcon sweet Rodney Bay.

Then a bit eight sizes my bonnie,
And a wee bear bike's my oa-
And I think o' that far Countrie
That I may not see for a while,
But I rise content i' the morning
To work while work I may,
For the yellow hand Gold of Arding

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Some Bits of Information Worth Posting in Your Scrap-Book.

[Robert J. Burdette.]

Westward Ho—Certainly, you go to California by all means. Glorious climate. First six months of the year they pray for rain; t'other six months they climb trees and run away from floods.

Spiritual—No, we don't know who said: "The good die young." But if you are no better than your spelling you will have to cut short your days by a hard one a president elected without a scandal.

Melville—Your drama covers too much ground, like a Colorado cattle company. It reminds us of a "patent inside" newspaper, which contains in one column interesting and interwoven articles on "Spring Work in the Garden," "Summer Bathing and Directions for Treating Sunstroke," "Autumn Hop Picking," How to Collect and Preserve Autumn Leaves," and "Household Christmas Decorations."

Aristophanes—Your joke about the bathing suit being so small that it was carried in the pocket-book is good. It is too good to use. It will keep. Also that it has kept all summer, and that cold weather will not impair its vitality. What we particularly like about it is its air of newness—its unmistakable flavor of originality. There is no veneer or imitation about it. It is original. So was the ark, Aristophanes, so was the ark.

Dreamer—You must indeed be a dreamer. When you tell us where you will find a poem containing the line,

The melancholy days have come, the saddest of the year.

Never heard of such a poem, sad if the line you quote has any existence at all, it must be in the airy cobwebs of your own dreamy brain. Dream out the rest of it, and we will publish it for you. And the MS. to the business office, they're offering special rates for melancholy poetry in car lots this season.

Nicotine—The custom of making genuine imported Havana cigars of brown paper and wrapping them with leather had its origin among the Connecticut cigarmakers in the hard times of 1837-43, when specie was scarce, when the tobacco crop failed and the most rigid economy had to be practiced by manufacturers and consumers. As you say you have not smoked for years, it does not make any difference to you what cigars are made of. You can get just as sick on burnt leather as you can on tobacco, and you'll enjoy it just as much.

Young Theologue—Yes, we think you might class "gosh dum" and "dad blug" as profane swearing. The "dad blug" may also be considered a swear word. "I'm swizzled" is another. All these words bear the same relation to thoroughbred, sky-blue profanity that the parlor organ does to the real thing. The school picnic does to the raw whisky of the target company's excursion. They are the outgrowth of a terrible struggle, a theological compromise arranged by our pagan ancestors, who recognized with a faultless spiritual vision and worthily scorned the necessity of a pure life and a sinless vocabulary, and in search of the other impossibility of plowing a New England stone patch without a class of words designed to relieve the overburdened mind and emotions of fast logs every time the plow handles broke a man's ribs and extorted every last drop of vital breath from his panting body.

Lincolnshire Dialect.

[Hartford Courant.]

Our American custom of calling the prong of a fork a tyne is a Lincolnshire peculiarity, and came over with our fathers. The more general word prong is indeed driving it out, but a tyne is understood in Lincolnshire alone. The older tynes bent distinctly remember the pronunciation of nature and creature, natur and critter, just as they were pronounced in New England thirty years ago. Perhaps the most amusing of these local peculiarities is the old-fashioned Lincolnshire way of calling a cucumber a cowcumber, which the older readers of The Courant will promptly recall as common in their childhood. So, too, the quaint shrunken adjective in full force not only in Lincolnshire, but has extended throughout England, and may be called the accepted pronunciation of the word, is used not only in New England, but throughout the United States, so universally, indeed, that it is by England, and all her many colonies. In England, Scotland, Ireland, Canada, Australia, Nova Scotia, South Africa, it is made to rhyme with sinn and between, whereas in our country it is made to rhyme with sin and din. It was all explained when I came to Lincolnshire and found that the old local usage there was to call it him, and that it is not entirely driven out to this day. I have not been able to trace that other old-fashioned pronunciation of the same word, "hev'e" I could not find it in Lincolnshire, but the words which the older people will remember as now mostly gone by, such as put with a short a, pronounced as in the paltry 3rd party, word pronounced heard, I shall remember tered in Lincoln and Boston.

How Wealth is Worth.

[Sherlock-ves Herald.]

At the Philadelphia electric exhibition an organist plays an organ 120 feet away from the instrument, and the sound is heard by those manipulated, it would be much nicer for the Indian who splitted the sounds—but what would be the fun of his organ?

Opening Bull exposure his tongue on a shelf and also on it.

WHAT SHE SAID: "Good bye." What he did: Sent her a box of candy.

WHAT HE SAID: "Good bye." What he thought: There have been most when I would swear that you cared for me, but I know now you have treated me like a dog.

Perhaps This is True.

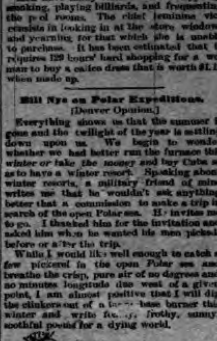
Men have many vicious habits—tippling, smoking, playing billiards, and frequenting the pool rooms. The chief feminine vice consists in looking at the styles, widows and yearning for that which she is unable to purchase. It has been estimated that it requires 129 hours' hard shopping for a woman to buy a sailor dress that is worth $1.15 when made up.

Bill Nye on Polar Expeditions.

[Denver Opinion.]

Everything shows us that the summer is gone and the twilight of the year is settling down upon us. We begin to wonder whether we had better rush the furnace this winter or take the money and buy Cuba so as to have a winter resort. Speaking about winter resorts, a publicity friend of mine writes me that he wouldn't ask anything better that a commission to make a trip in search of the open Polar sea. He invites me to go. I finished him for the invitation and asked him whom he wanted his men picked before or after the trip.

Well, I would like well enough to catch a few pickerel in the open Polar sea and breathe the crisp, pure air of no degrees and no minutes longitude the west of a given point, I am almost positive that I will dig the clinkers out of a base burner this winter and write for... frothy, sunny, soothful poems for a dying world.



The Giddy Whirl of Englishmen Society.

While no one would more cheerfully enter into the giddy whirl of Englishmen society, or lend his efforts with a cheerful will, and old harnesses and saddles with vinegar, in order that he might gratify a morbid curiosity as to whether the North Pole had a hot box or not, yet I shall not avail myself of the opportunity to go this winter.

While few could more joyously contemplate a life spent in the open air than I may note a liketime to mature, I am free to say that I would rather, at present, climb a tall tree until the payee gets by.

The Harvest of a Paragraph.

[Boston Globe.]

About now is the time when the wily rural editor proceeds to put into type, if he have just received at our office a most beautiful specimen of apple, which measures fully six inches in circumference. Who can beat it? Can be matched nowhere by his pears and harvests, aye, even his horse and stockmoose, for the rich harvest that will accrue to him from the emulous rustics.

The Great American Tuft Hunter.

[From Life.]

This illustrious philanthropist is said to be a lineal descendant of the famous Irish Bulls, although it has never been proved to believe that he was derived from one of the Papal Bulls of the twelfth century. Sitting up to see born in a wig-room forty-odd years ago, which he has carefully kept ever since. He authorized to the cattle and pair business when a mere lad, and has now one of the largest and most complete personal collections of cattle and several tags of the nature. He is the original Copper Bottom, and dresses exactly like a retail tobacconist. He has been a prominent figure in every political position upon the United States ticket, and is pursuit of him, he received his title. He is at present conducting the Big Show business, and sings at the rate of fifty cents per song.

New York Commercial Advertiser: At a recent marriage ceremony in one of the Presbyterian churches the contracting parties were directed to stand "three feet apart." The bridegroom, a tall man, and the bride, a short one, were so far apart as to be almost out of sight of each other. The bridegroom, however, was equal to the occasion, and, stepping forward, he took the bride by the hand and led her to his side.

The Sun.
THE SUN is, and will continue to be, a newspaper which tells the truth without fear of consequences, which gets at the facts, no matter how much the process costs, which presents the news of all the world without excess of words and in the most readable shape, which is working with all its heart for the cause of honest government, and which therefore believes that the Republican party must go, and must go in this year of our Lord, 1884.
About sleepy million copies of THE SUN have gone out of our establishment during the passed twelve months.
If you were to pause and to end all the columns of THE SUN printed and sold every year you would get a continuous strip of interesting information, common sense wisdom, sound doctrine, and sane wit long enough to reach from Printing House square to the top of Mount Copernicus in the moon, then back to Printing House square, and three quarters of the way back to the moon again.
But THE SUN is written for the inhabitants of the earth; this same strip of intelligence would girdle the globe twenty-seven or twenty-eight times.
If every buyer of THE SUN during the passed year has spent only one hour over it, and if his wife or his grandfather has spent another hour, this newspaper or all has absorbed the human race thirteen thousand years of steady reading night and day.
It is only by little calculations like these that you can form any idea of the circulation of the most popular of American newspapers, or of its influence on the opinions and actions of American men and women.
If you know THE SUN you like it already, and you will read it with uncommon diligence and profit, during what is sure to be the most interesting year in its history. If you do not yet know THE SUN, it is high time to get into the sunshine.

[SPECIAL TO THE NEWS.]

Although the Democratic Congressional Convention was called to meet at Elizabeth at twelve o'clock to-day to consider the declination of Judge Robert S. Green, it was nearly one before the delegates I fit the vicinity of the Court House, where an active lobbying had been kept up, and answered to the chairman's call for the convention to come to order.

The chairman handed the roll for the convention to one of the secretaries to be read, and in doing so said, "The secretary will now read the call."

George Sibley, Union county's secretary at the last convention, and also secretary of the lobbing convention, was on his feet in an instant, and protested against the use of the words "the secretary." He said it should be "a secretary."

After the reading of the call, Sibley resigned his position as secretary, saying that in self-respect he could not stand by the other two secretaries. His resignation was accepted, and Elmore D. Moffat, of this city, was elected to the vacancy.

Sibley then questioned the authority of Judge Wadsworth occupying the Chair. He said the Convention had adjourned sine die and there could be no new Convention of the same delegates. This was the signal for a series of shouts, hisses, and all sorts of motions, the hall becoming a perfect pandemonium for a time. Several delegates from Monmouth questioned the Democracy of Sibley. During the the confusion Sibley took off his coat in order to handle the subject more thoroughly. He again essayed to speak but was howled down. In a rage he cried "it have attended the last Democratic Convention I will ever attend, and being saluted with more hisses he howled, "go awards."

A delegate from Monmouth attempted to speak, but the crowd shouted him down. Another arose, mulled blandly, and waited for the hubbub to subside. After waiting some time he sat down.

The question was then put to the convention on the point of order raised by Sibley that the convention was irregular. The decision of the chair that it was regular was sustained, although both the viva voce vote and the standing vote were questioned by Sibley.

A motion to reconsider the rule of voting by counties was made and carried, one entha-dastic delegate from Union shouting, "We've got it, boss."

Mr. Edgar was elected the secretary from Middlesex, a delegate objecting to an unauthorized person taking the place of the regular secretary.

It was decided to take the vote by wards and town-ships, and the counties were called for nominations. Judge Harper, of Union, presented the name of Robert S. Green, in a short and appropriate speech. Another Union delegate seconded the nomination. Sibley, the irrepressible, then took the floor, and tried to whoop 'em up for McMahon. In the midst of his speech he proceeded to remove the work of the last convention. Several delegates called him to order, and the chairman sustained them. Biley repeatedly called to order, he lost patience and shouted, "I've no business to be interrupted," and finally concluded, "I will not stay here and hear such talk." But he stayed just the same, and concluded his remarks by nominating William McMahon. Monmouth then seconded Green's nomination, and said a ballot had been circulated guaranteeing 2,500 majority for Green. Stout, of Middlesex, the chairman of the lobbing Convention seconded McMahon's nomination, but said that he should endorse Green if nominated.

A ballot was then taken as follows: Middlesex, 23 for Greene and 20 for McMahon; Monmouth, 65 for Green, 7 for McMahon, and 2 blank, which were after given to Greene; Union 39 for Greene and 26 for McMahon; total Greene 110 and McMahon 63.

Before the vote was announced, Sibley moved to make the vote unanimous, but a number voting in the negative, the result was called for. Green was then declared the nominee, and was given three cheers. A McMahon man stepped into the aisle, and called for three cheers for John Kean, which were given.

A committee of one from each county was then appointed to bring the candidate before the convention.

FIRE BOARD MEETING.

A Number of Bills Ordered Paid—No. 1 Engine Co. Granted Permission to go to Somerville.

The Fire Board met in regular session in the Council Chamber at eight o'clock last evening.

Present—Messrs. VanWinkle, Jones, Morris, Living-ton, Carter and Dwyer.

The minutes of the previous meetings, special and regular were read and approved.

A proposition was received from the Mansfield Steam Fire Engine Works, offering to furnish the department a fire engine for $1,600. No action was taken on the proposition.

The Committee on Wills reported progress.

The Committee on Repairs and Supplies reported that they had purchased 1000 feet of rubber hose for the use of the department.

The following persons were proposed for membership in the different companies:

Gazelle No. 1—William E. Clum. No. 2—Chas. Krewson, Frank Krewson, Louis Laing and William Gosler. Zephyr Hook and Ladder Co.—Chas. A. Westerfield.

The following bills were audited and ordered paid:

Zephyr Hook and Ladder Co., $11.25; Wilson and Gardner, 17.80; Gutta Percher Manufacturing Company, $94.06; S. J. Robinson, $11; A. Astor-Love, jr., $1.00; J. R. Flannery, $8; John Kelly, $1.00; Jos. Noel, $1; J. N. Randolph, $9.75; T. W. Morrison, $14; W. F. Newman, $5; W. Gratton, $3; Chas. H. Smith, $9; C. L. Davis, $2.80; Henry Bilyeu, $1.50; F. Schurk, $53; J. V. Whitlock, $115; Peter Eckert, $110.66; J. McBath, $7.75; Adam Express Co., 99 cents.

A verbal proposition was received from Warren Engine Co., No. 3, offering to set their engine to the Board for $1,500. The proposition was rejected.

A proposition was received from Gazelle Engine Co., No. 1, asking permission from the Board to take their steamer and hose carriage to Somerville on October 23d, to participate in the firemen's parade. The proposition also stated that the steamer would be ready to return to Plainfield in fifteen minutes in case of an emergency. Permission was granted.

A communication was received from the Chief Engineer asking information in regard to the fire patrol. Mr. Morris stated that he had purchased 200 feet of rope to be stretched around corner fire plugs, the lasting for a short time. Referred to Committee on Repairs and Supplies with power.

A communication from Engine Co., No. 2, stating that they had the power of the house of W. S. Cozens from the Fire Department non-payment of dues. The Secretary was instructed to notify Mr. Cozens.

Engine Co., No. 2, presented the names of Peter Eckert, D. W. Rogers, and I. W. Pangborn for naturalization papers, they having served seven years as members of the fire department. The Secretary was instructed to look over the books and if found to be correct, the papers to be granted.

Engine Co. No. 2, dropped from the roll the name of Wm. Craig and Robert Manning, they having removed from the city.

Gazelle Engine Co., No. 1, presented a set of rules for the use of the steamer by the Board. The President and Secretary were appointed as a committee to examine the same.

Mr. E. L. Morris was elected permanent Secretary of the Board.

The meeting then adjourned.

Ministerial Meeting.

The Central New Jersey Ministerial Association of the M. E. Church held its sixty-first session in the Methodist Church of this city yesterday.

Rev. S. R. Bryan presided. Papers were read by Rev. J. E. Price, H. K. Carroll, Esq., Rev. J. D. Wilt, Miller, Rev. C. R. Barnes, and Rev. R. Clement.

That of Mr. Miller in which he attacked the vagaries of the modern faith cure mania was a particularly brilliant article and called forth a protracted and animated discussion.

Mr. Carroll's paper on "The General Conference" was free of valuable suggestions, and merited a large discussion.

Mr. Clement deplored the entrance of ministers into the arena of politics, and his argument elicited a heated debate.

The next session will be held at Bloomsbury, N. J., on the second Tuesday in March.

Prohibition Nominations.

The Prohibitionist Union County Convention was held here yesterday at 4 p.m. in the Rooms of Perseverance Hall. The following nominations were made:—

For State Senator—Judge Peter P. Good, of Plainfield.

For Assembly—H. D. Ogilvie, of Rahway.

For Sheriff—Edward Massett, of Westfield.

For Coroners—Ethan Lamphear, of Plainfield, and J. S. Gardiner, of Elizabeth.

Delegates were appointed to the Congressional Convention.

Gazelle Can Participate.

The Board of Managers of the Fire Department last night granted permission to Gazelle Engine Co., No. 1, to take their steamer and hose carriage to Somerville on October 23d, to participate in the Firemen's parade. This company have secured the Plainfield Cornet Band to accompany them. They will leave this city on the 2.06 train and expect to be gone about six hours.

The work of altering the gauge of the Philadelphia & Atlantic City Railway from a narrow to the standard system was completed last week.

THE BARTHOLDI PEDESTAL FUND.

The Hon. William M. Evarts, chairman of the Bartholdi Statue Committee, in a letter to the editor, has urged the necessity "to raise the gift of the people of Plainfield in the patriotic duty" of providing money wherewith to erect the pedestal on which is to be placed the colossal gift of the French nation to America.

As is well known, the cost of the statue was paid by the masses of the French people, and therefore has the rich? significance of the gift. The pedestal is simply an American who does not constantly respond to the sentiments of national friendship and esteem which inspired the action of the people of France. No one who does not recognize that true national self-respect requires of the people of American prompt action in providing for the appropriate reception of the noble gift, the universality of the obligation to do patriotic duty, and the honor of being the first to inaugurate the movement in this city which is named after the people of France, is adequate to the speedy completion of the pedestal. It is a verification of the maxim that what is everybody's business is nobody's business.

Personal solicitation of funds would doubtless accomplish the desired end, but that is impracticable and should be unnecessary.

To those national obligations which, deriving no sanction from positive enactment, reside in a sentiment alone, the true American should be keenly sensitive and quick to respond. Let every man, woman and child in Plainfield claim his or her privilege, and not leave the opportunity to others who have never before had so honorable furnishing a noble example for other communities, the city which is named after the people of France.

Contributions in any amount will be received at the office of the undersigned, or at either of the newspaper offices, and will be acknowledged in the public prints.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1884.

FRED RESSLING was mysteriously shot yesterday noon. He and his brother and uncle were strolling in Brill's woods, near Newark Bay, when they heard the report of a gun in the woods. Resseling fell to the ground, and his companions saw a well-dressed man run from the woods across lots to the swamp meadows. Dr. Ward gave hopes of recovery. It is thought that the shot was accidental.

It is expected that work will be begun during the present week on a new railroad from Cedar Grove to Morristown. The new road will pass through the townships of Caldwell and Hanover, and will open up a rich agricultural region. Connection will be made at Cedar Grove with the Greenwood Lake Railway, and trains will be run direct from New York to Morristown.

THE first year's experiment with the new rate of postage, which Postmaster-General Howe estimated might cause a deficiency of $7,000,000, and which Third Assistant Postmaster-General Hazen figured at $2,000,000 shows an actual decrease of $2,830,000 in the stamp accounts, and a falling off in the total revenue of the postoffice department of $2,212,000.

THE New Jersey Turn Bezirk met in Hong's Hotel, Orange, yesterday, with First Speaker Christian Stoellner, of Elizabeth, in the chair. A resolution was adopted establishing fencing schools in all the Turn Societies. In the evening the delegates were entertained at a concert by the Orange Turn Society.

FRANCIS BALL, age ninety-seven, went to New Durham on Saturday to visit his daughter. Yesterday morning his dead and frightfully mangled body was found on the track of the New York, Susquehanna and Western Railroad. It is supposed that he missed his way.

WHILE two Philadelphians were gunning in a skiff opposite the Surf House, Gloucester City, yesterday afternoon, their boat was upset by the rough water, and they had extreme difficulty in reaching the shore. They lost their guns and other articles.

A CABLEGRAM received from Rome last evening at the Benedictine Priory announced that the priory and another in North Carolina had been erected by the Pope into Abbeys. The Newark Abbey will have jurisdiction from Maine to Virginia.

THE BATTLE IN OHIO

How the Election Went in the October State.

A HEAVY VOTE POLLED.

Only a Small Portion of the State Yet Heard From.

BLAINE HEARS THE NEWS.

Some of the Incidents and Tragedies of the Day—The United States Marshals Make Several Arrests—How the Congressional Delegation Will Stand—Receiving the News in New York.

The indications are that the Republicans have carried Ohio by a majority of from 12,000 to 16,000, exact figures not being accessible at this time. It appears that the Germans voted solidly with the Republicans, particularly in Cincinnati, where the Democrats lost heavily in the German wards. The comparisons given below are with the election of 1883, when the Democrats had a majority of 12,329. There are 1,892 wards and precincts in the state, and it will require an average gain of seven votes to the ward or precinct for the Republicans to overcome the Democratic majority and carry the state.

CONGRESSMEN PROBABLY ELECTED.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 15.—The following is a list of congressmen probably elected in Ohio, compiled from the latest reasonable returns at Republican headquarters:

1st District	Thomas Ellsworth	Rep.
2d	Geo. E. Brown	Rep.
3d	Henry L. Dovey	Rep.
4th	Chas. H. Jackson	Dem.
5th	Benj. Leiverett	Dem.

Total—Republicans, 14; Democrats, 7. Only a few states in the 325 congress compared 5 Republicans and 13 Democrats.

FROM THE STATE CAPITAL.

A General Review of the Whole Situation—How the Day was Spent, Afternoon Reports Here.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 15.—The Republican majority on secretary of state in 1880 was 19,569. Comparing the 1236 precincts and wards received this year, a net Republican gain of 318 is shown. This would make a Republican majority of 19,000. Comparing the 1236 precincts and wards received this year, a net Republican gain of 3,670 is shown. The same ratio of gain throughout the state indicates a Republican majority of 19,000.

Colonel Forney, the correspondent of The New York World (Dem.), telegraphs from here: Business has been almost forgotten in this city to-day. The election upon which her whole people have taken in the state election. It was one of the loveliest days that ever marked an Indian summer, and was well adapted to the very hard work which had been done for the cause of public welfare. Columbus can be accepted proof-sheet as a sample city in the matter of election scenes, and may be for some years a general exhibition of intense interest in her history. At 6 o'clock in the morning, the four cardinal points of the city were already alive with people, and at each poll there was a large gathering of men of both parties, all intent on the election of as many votes of their own party as possible. At the polls in the Ninth ward, which is the largest in the city, and which is overwhelmingly Republican in complexion, there were gathered nearly 600 people before daybreak, and as only one alderman was on hand when the clock struck 6 the election was held by Democrats who the other two judges should be. One Democrat and one Republican were elected, which gave the Democrats the majority of the three. The clerk who marked this victory could be heard for miles. The Republicans, disgusted at being cheated in this manner, sent a committee to meet the missing alderman. He was finally prevailed on to go and take the place of one of the Democratic judges. On the whole, however, the Republicans secured a majority of the judges in more than half the wards, although the city is Republican in its majority.

The worst collisions between the police and deputy sheriffs did not occur, although one deputy sheriff was arrested and locked up on bail for assault and battery upon a citizen. Several arrests were made for illegal voting, but not nearly so many as had been prophesied. There is no doubt that a large number of illegal votes will be cast to-morrow. The judges did not begin to count the votes until after the close of the polls at 6 o'clock, and consequently any estimates of results made during the day were entirely speculative.

The headquarters of the Republican state committee, the Republican county committee and the Cleveland and Hendricks club were very popular resorts all day long, the pilgrims being very largely newspaper men, visiting politicians, and office seekers here after their campaign work, and local workers. Telegrams began to arrive at these respective headquarters quite early in the day, but were all very general in character, the only real information being that the vote polled in the forenoon was unprecedented in amount, and almost equal the highest total vote ever polled.

As was natural, the party managers grew very nervous as the day wore on. The first unwelcome news that the Democrats received was to the effect that in Cincinnati the United States marshal was conducting things on such broad bulldozing principles that there was a fear that the Republican crowd not be prevented from getting to the polls. It developed the success of their contest and party ticket and the possibility of Barnett's election over Payne to congress.

The Scioto river was the first heard from to have been carried by the Democrats, but it was not supposed that the majority would be large enough to overcome the Republican majority in the state. Soon after the first news came from Cincinnati stating that Hamilton county would certainly give 2,000 Democratic majority. The effect of this was very marked on the Newman men for a time and then Mr. Pliney announced that he was in receipt of dispatches that a prominent representative Democrat in Cincinnati had conceded the county to the Republicans by 1,000. Mr. Pliney refused to impart the information, showing that Campaigns was doing better for the Republican ticket than had been expected, and would probably carry it by 3,000. Republican majority within the western reserve, which is the great Republican stronghold, was rolling up a tremendous vote.

The session of the evening prior to the formal reception of official reports was occasioned by a telegram to the state Republican committee, signed by Hon Butterworth, announcing that Longworth and Owens were elected, and that Hamilton county had gone Republican by at least 1,000 majority. It was the first real set back the Democrats received. Immediately after dark the bulletin where the returns were to be read rapidly filled up with people of the respective parties, and the cheering on the return came in they were read aloud. At the Democratic headquarters John G. Thompson read the returns and right from the start the gains were decidedly in favor of the Republicans. The comparisons of individuals are being made with the returns of last year. The announcement of Longworth's election was a great disappointment save when a Democratic gain was shown, when they were enthusiastically received. The Republicans showed quite a very steady gain for the Republicans at a rate which would, if maintained, give the Republicans the state by from 10,000 to 15,000 majority.

At 10:30 Cincinnati was heard from, and the news left the Democrats little hope of victory, as the first forty precincts showed an average Republican gain of 52 to the precinct.

Mr. John G. Thompson stopped reading the monotonous report of Republican gains long enough to announce:

"I want to call your attention, gentlemen, to one fact. If you will remember, a year ago the returns were all very dark and dismal up to 11 o'clock, and then when the light began to break and we pulled through anyhow. Now, don't get discouraged, but keep up your courage. The Democratic returns that were calculated to freeze the perspiration that ran down my back, but I have kept at it and we came on all right."

Mr. Thompson, Mr. Jacobson, Dem., called out here to-day. During the balloting hours carriages and vehicles of every description were called into requisition, and the streets were unable to accommodate the party conveyed by humane samaritans. Democrats and Republicans vied with each other in performing this charitable work. At 6 o'clock last evening Chairman Barger, of the State Democratic committee, completed and sent a revised estimate of the state vote to the Democratic national committee. He reduced his guess on the Democratic majority to between 6,000 and 10,000.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 15.—A dispatch from Cleveland states that the entire Republican county ticket is elected in Cuyahoga county.

DEMOCRATIC HOPES.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 15.—The following dispatch has been received at Democratic headquarters: "Republic reports from Hocking Valley give large Democratic gains. News from over the state continues favorable."

COLUMBUS, Oct. 15.—A dispatch received at the Democratic headquarters from Toledo states that Congressman Frank H. Hurd is elected by 1,000 and that in the Tenth district by a small majority.

A Naturalized Chinaman Casts a Ballot—The "Workers" Have a Good Subject on Which to Operate.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 15.—The Republicans have carried this county by a majority that will reach 15,000 to 18,000. Also that Burnett (Rep.), is elected to congress in the twenty-first district, over Foran (Dem.) by a majority that will reach McKinley over Paige in the twentieth district.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 15.—Robinson's majority in Cincinnati will reach 1,000 and McKinley's 1,800. McKinley (Rep.) is elected to congress in the twentieth district over Paige (Dem.), by about 1,500 majority.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 15.—One of the incidents of the day here was the casting of a ballot by a naturalized Chinaman. It was the first Chinese vote ever cast in Cleveland. John set out for his polling place below the Kennard house, and he was shortly joined by a crowd of Democratic "workers" prepared his ticket for the starting, but some Republican rolled him at the first ticket box, and then took him in. The poor Celestial was surrounded by a crowd of Democrats were thrust at and upon him from all sides. He made a great effort to get through the throng, but never could he have been thoroughly overawed and headed down with more skill did he get to the window of the polling places. Then, being unable to read, he took a Republican ticket and voted it. The judges did not begin to count the votes until after the close of the polls at 6 o'clock, and consequently any estimates of results made during the day were entirely speculative.

The headquarters of the Republican state committee, the Republican county committee and the Cleveland and Hendricks club were very popular resorts all day long, the pilgrims being very largely newspaper men, visiting politicians, and office seekers here after their campaign work, and local workers. NEWS BY TELEGRAPH.

A Little Corner Not Run Over by Politics.

Frank Hatton Appointed Postmaster General—The Liberal Riot at Birmingham—Dr. Zink's Coachman Suspected of Assault.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 15.—In the money article of to-day's Ledger appears the statement of the chief officers of the Pennsylvania Railroad company in reference to the causes of the controversy betwe n that company and the Baltimore and Ohio road. It rejoices that notwithstanding the Baltimore company received from the Pennsylvania company the utmost possible facilities for transacting the business between Baltimore and Philadelphia and New York over the lines of the Pennsylvania company at a very cheap rate, the Baltimore and Ohio company determined to build a competitive line from Baltimore to New York. No less was given the Baltimore company by the Pennsylvania company last May than the existing traffic contract would be terminated in thirty days. This suspension of relations was not, however, carried into effect. A few days ago the Pennsylvania company renewed the notice of termination of the agreement, and fixing Oct. 19 as the time when the extraordinary facilities and rates granted to the Baltimore and Ohio company by the Pennsylvania should cease. The Pennsylvania railroad considers it as its own regular train services is fully able to take care of this business, and that, considering the full and frequent schedule of rain it provides between Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York, the public convenience will be completely served by it."

The Liberal Riot.

LONDON, Oct. 15.—The damage to the Aston grounds, in Birmingham, from the attack of the Liberals upon the Conservative meeting there is heavy. At daylight its serious nature was revealed. There is a gap eight feet wide in the wall where the mob rushed toward the town hall, the skating rink and the aquarium. The platform, which the rioters twice demolished, lies in the centre of the rink a confused mass of timbers. All the doors were smashed into atoms. The hall looks as if it had been the scene of a dynamite explosion. The refreshment bars were looted and the liquors drunk and the bottles thrown on the floor. The gas fittings were wrenched from the walls. The gardens and flower beds were also destroyed. The Conservatives propose to prosecute the Liberal leaders for inciting the riot.

Dr. Zink's Coachman.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 15.—A new phase in the attempted murder of Dr. Zink. Brandford's unpopular justice of the peace and physician, came about in the arrest on a bench warrant of David Beaudet, the doctor's coachman, charged with assault with intent to kill his employer. He is in jail in this city. Suspicion pointed toward him from the first, because the watch dogs made no noise about the house on the night of the assault. Beaudet is a small French Canadian, and 24, and by much opposed by the doctor's wife, who will not believe him guilty. Three years ago he was arrested for a murderous assault upon one of his companions in a lumber camp in North Guilford. The police refuse to say what evidence there is against him.

Mail Car Destroyed.

DEER PARK, Wis., Oct. 15.—Great excitement was caused on the Omaha passenger train bound for Lake Superior station, by the burning of the mail and express car between New Richmond and Deer Park. The car was fired by sparks from the engine, lodging in a lot of campaign torches and other combustible matter in the express apartment. These torches made such a dense smoke that it was impossible to save any of the express matter. Several boxes of cartridges and the torch lamps exploded. The registered mail was all saved, also some of the other mail, but the pouches for Superior, Ashland, Shell Lake, Bayfield, Spooner, Gordon, Barronette, Deer Park, Hayward, Drummond and Clear Lake were consumed. The loss is about $15,000.

Another Wonderful Gusher.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 15.—The wonderful flow of the Christie well has completely unsettled the oil market, and when the exchange opened there was a stampede to sell such intense excitement had rarely been witnessed, and as values tottered and fell and the heavy weight of large bunches of certificates thrown on it, brokers, who in times past have stopped to unravel the market, stood with blanched faces, powerless to check the decline. The market opened at 86, declined steadily to 61¾, rallied to 62, but fell off again, and at 12½ and 61¾ the Christie well put 253 barrels of oil in the tank between 7 and 8 o'clock. The latest gauge shows 220 barrels per hour. The Phillips well is doing 85 barrels per hour.

Fatal Railroad Accident.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 15.—Intelligence has been received here of a railroad accident near Monongahela City, on the Pittsburg, Virginia and Charleston railroad. One man was killed and two were badly hurt. The accident was caused by an empty coke train running into a steer, which was walking on the track. The engine and two cars were thrown from the track and totally wrecked. The fireman, George Jarrett, was instantly killed. Engineer Frank White was fatally scalded, and Brakeman Frank Hatton was seriously injured by being crushed and scalded.

Dynamite in Canada.

MONTREAL, Oct. 15.—Strict orders have been issued from Ottawa to the sheriffs of the different districts to have every precaution taken for the safety of public buildings, in Montreal all the entrances to the court house, with the exception of the police court and main door, have been ordered to be closed. The constable on duty there has also been instructed to let no one for any suspicious looking persons who enter the building. Since Sunday every train and steamer from Quebec has been searched by detectives before arriving here, with instructions to apprehend any suspicious characters.

Senator Morrill Re-elected.

MONTPELIER, Vt., Oct. 15.—In the balloting for United States senator, long term, in the house, Senator Morrill received 177 votes, Timothy P. Redfield 36, W. F. Dillingham 3, James M. Tyler 1, H. H. Powers 1, and P. Clough 1. In the senate Mr. Morrill received 29 votes and Timothy P. Redfield 1. Joint vote: Morrill 206, Redfield 37, Dillingham 3, Tyler 1, Powers 1, Clough 1.

Conant Sentenced.

NEW LONDON, Oct. 15.—Conant has been sentenced to state prison for life for the murder of Alfred McClellan. A motion for a new trial was made. Conant received the sentence stoically. His counsel will file exceptions between sentence and execution. If a new trial is not allowed the sentence will be carried out unless the board of pardons interfere.

A NEW PAVEMENT.

The undersigned has secured the exclusive agency for the sale of the

Diebold Patent Iron Stone,

which for elegance and durability, is unsurpassed, and in price will compare favorably with any other pavement now in use. It is the most beautiful pavement known for walks and yards, gutter stones, for filling and street blocks. Also used to build fire and Burglar proof vaults; and for building purposes generally. These pavement blocks have many striking peculiarities—They show no perceptible wear; are non-conductors of heat and cold, as well as all kinds of moisture. When desirous accumulations on the ordinary brick, this material remains perfectly free from it. These blocks stand 1 in the molders iron Slag and are the hardest of substances. PRESENCE OF MIND.

How a Plucky Newsboy Saved a Train at Muldraugh's Hill, Ky.

A Thrilling Incident Which Occurred During the War—A Score of Lives Saved by a Timely Act.

[Louisville Courier Journal.]

In conversation with a prominent physician the other day, the subject of railroad accidents and escapes came up.

"One of the most remarkable instances of presence of mind of which I have ever heard," said he, "was related to me by Col. John B. Wickliffe not long ago. It's a short story, and I don't mind telling you.

"The time the incident occurred was during the war. It was on the L. & N. railroad, near the Muldraugh's Hill trestle. At that time the science of running trains was in a very elementary state. The practice was to run them all one way at a time. In the morning the trains would be started from Nashville to Louisville, and in the evening they would be run back. They went in sections, as it were, from half a mile to two or three miles apart, a little nearer or a little farther, as circumstances might occasion.

"Col. Wickliffe one evening was one of a party of officers and others who made up a train to Nashville. They were preceded by another train, and at a distance of about a mile a third one followed. They pulled out from the depot at a late hour and made as good time as possible when fairly on the road. Everything went smoothly enough till the tunnel was reached, when the first train was halted by a signal just before entering. Upon investigation it was found that a freight train had broken down in the passage.

"Here was an awkward pickle. The second train halted, and the news spread among the passengers. A few got off the train and went forward to the wreck, others clustered on the platforms or crowded together in the cars. The pro pect of reaching Nashville soon grew smaller and beautifully less by rapid degrees. It was hardly as bad as being caught in a western snow storm, and there was no prospect of starvation, but the outlook was not comforting. How long it would take to remove the wreck was the problem. The prospect was that it would take several hours, and hungry were, a hungry lot of passengers, with no hope of a Tennessee breakfast or dinner, perhaps not even a supper. They fretted and fumed, and the more they fumed and fretted the later and more average duty became. Every grumbling story proceeded rapidly to growing, and if no air was not blue with profanity it was because that is only a figure of speech.

"They were in the final fidget of this chagrin when every man seized with the suddenness of an electric shock. Half-smoked cigars dropped from nervous fingers, and those between bloodless lips ceased to be drawn. A wild thrill of horror swept through every heart. Individually each looked at his neighbor and saw imprinted in his white face the image of his own mortal fright.

"Every one who has been over the road knows how steep is the grade of Muldraugh's hill. In climbing the ascent put on every ounce of steam and take off the brakes till the friction is reduced to a minimum. The summit is but a short distance from the tunnel, and a deep curve in the track hides an approaching train till within a few hundred yards.

"Up this incline, but hidden by that curve, was heard the puffing of the third train. The ponderous engine was laboring gallantly and drawing the long string of cars behind her as easily as a trotter the light sulky of his driver. The summit was reached, and then a wild shriek of delight the train sprang around the first curve and darted upon the track ahead. The momentum gained in the upward struggle carried it across with reckless speed, and the track quivered and stretched beneath its eager tread. The cold night air whirled with the puffs of the engine, and the hills echoed and re-echoed the shrieks of the whistle. The train was not two minutes distance from the second section when first heard.

"The horror-stricken passengers in front were caught in a trap. The rear train had been totally forgotten and it was now leaping down upon them, bringing death and torture nearer and nearer to their faces with each flowing instant. Not a man stirred to avert the doom, and it seemed that no aid could with the utmost efforts. They could remain there to be ground and crushed and jammed into a mass of bleeding, writhing pulp, or a few could spring off the platform over the mountain side on the left. On either hand death stared them in the face. Soldiers they were, nearly all of these men, and they were famed to scenes of violence, but this was too much. The mortal fright turned them to unreasoning animals, incapable of motion.

"At that awful moment, a newsboy, with a great bundle of papers, dashed like mad through the car to the rear. The men yelled at him as they swept on, and he was but a moment in reaching the rear platform. How he managed it no one knew, but he had whipped out a match and had a bundle of papers in flames just as the headlight of the advancing engine appeared around the curve. His entire stock flamed up, and he waved and shouted, his face and form lit up as perhaps was Cleopatra's on that fatal day at Trafalgar. The engineer saw him just in time. He reversed his engine and put on brakes so rapidly that his train simply bumped up red to come to a stop. The pluck and presence of mind of the boy had saved scores of lives.

"About five minutes after the passengers realized that they were saved a collection was taken up among the officers, and the newsboy was made richer by $500. I wish that I could tell his name, but it is doubtful if it will ever be known. Those were stormy times, and things were less noticed then than now, but he was none the less a hero."

A Horse that Likes Pie.

[New York Herald.]

A meditative horse in the grocery business was standing in front of a store on Third avenue, when a pie wagon stopped in front of him. While the driver was in the store the horse stretched out his neck, took a pie and ate it with every sign of enjoyment. Then he took a second pie, and was reaching for a third when the pieman discovered him and saved the remaining pies. Half an hour later the grocer and his aids were surprised at the connections of the horse. The pieman and the pies were beginning to be avenged.

A Profitable Story-Writer.

CLEOPATRA.

[Alexander Macauley, in The Current.]

Death parted within the velvet of her cheek,
As in the myriad facings of her bath,
And in her eyes, which drew men to despair,
And now her lips whose thrill made strong men weak.
Yes, all the honeyed accents she did speak
To meet death taken away but, unaware,
Except they listened, heeding not the snare
Which caught their manhood in wild passion's freak.
Brave Antony! whoever I pause to think
Of all thou were, and all thou might'st have been,
Thy soul somewhere and ever on the brink
Of careless woe, when bound by Egypt's queen
From tears of pity I can scarce refrain
That by her arms did melt such soul and brain!

WHO STRUCK BILLY PATTERSON?

The Sanskrit Gives a Clue to the Origin of The Phrase.

[New York Sun.]

Fortunately The Sanskrit gives us a clue to the meaning of what is now, in its English dress, an utterly meaningless question. In the Bhagat-Veda, which is, with perhaps two exceptions, the oldest book in the world, and which deserves translation at least as much as the better known Rig-Veda, occurs the question, "Hva harisankya balsha pathan?" or "Who strikes the sun". The balsha pathan is a personification of the sun is conceded by all Sanskrit schools, although Max Muller maintains that at the time the Bhagat-Veda was written balsha pathan included all nature, and that not until a later period was its meaning restricted so that it became merely one of the names of the sun god. In this opinion, however, Muller stands nearly alone, and that the balsha pathan of the Bhagat-Veda is synonymous with the Scandinavian Baldur is the opinion of the great majority of the leading Sanskrit scholars.

To the ancient Aryan seeking to grasp the meaning of the universe, that wonderful phenomenon, an eclipse of the sun, was one of intense interest. When the "Bhagat Veda" asks, "Hva harisankya balsha pathan?" it answers the question by suggesting a theory of eclipses. We have no knowledge of what that theory here, for it would be of interest only to the students of Aryan mythology. It, however, is sufficient to show that the Aryans believed that an eclipse was something striking the sun. The question, "Who strikes the sun?" was therefore equivalent to the question, "What is the cause of a solar eclipse?" The supernatural nature of this phenomena took a strong hold upon the Aryan imagination. The "Bhagat-Veda" evidently did not satisfactorily explain it, and we find the question, "Who strikes the sun?" in later Sanskrit, Hindu and Hindustani literature used to express the idea of an insoluble mystery. Gradually it passed into the common speech of the people, and was carried by wandering tribes to Europe and wherever the restless Aryan race penetrated.

Slightly perverted beyond doubt only a corrupted form of balsha pathan. The question "Who struck Billy Patterson?" is virtually the same that was asked ages ago in the Bhagat-Veda. We have kept the form of words more or less accurately, but have forgotten the meaning. And now after 4,000 years, an attempt is made to show that the glorious Indra-Surya, the magnificent sun god of the glowing Indian continent, was a prosaic person, living until a few years ago in Baltimore. Was ever the poetic mythology of the far past more unjustly and impudently translated into American prose?

The Preparation of Book Manuscripts.

[American Queen.]

"In reading MSS. for publishers," recently remarked one of the most experienced literature "tasters" of Boston, who reads for three of the New York houses of this city, "I frequently am obliged to decline for one firm what I would advise an other's publishing. A book must be in the line of a publishing house to be successful. In the channels which are supplied by one publisher a novel would be a dead failure, when, if placed in another house catering to a different taste and possessing a different clientele, it might achieve a brilliant success.

"The talk about the rejection of a noted book by various publishers may mean merely that it was some time in finding the man who could make a go of it. I fancy this is far more often the fact in regard to books which make a great success, and I have been said to have been refused by various publishers, than that their merits were not appreciated. It is from no want of insight on the part of these publishers or their readers, but from a close understanding of what fit in their line and what is not. A good many books, too, are much modified in MSS. A favorite 'idol' was cut down about a third; 'The Entailed Hat,' just out, was shortened still more, while many a book said to have been refused has been so re-written as practically to be a new work.

"It is astonishing, too, how many MSS. are almost good enough; and from this it follows that many new 'tasters' are apt to consume a far larger proportion than more experienced readers. It is necessary to train one's self to scrutinize any amount of goodness if it is below the proper standard, and this is not easy to do coldly, especially as the standard is rather indefinite, and easily moved down to fit especial cases, by inexperienced and tenderhearted 'tasters.' It is wearing and heartbreaking work at best, although, as in everything else, one gets somewhat hardened in time."

Fundamental Financial Facts.

[Brooklyn Club.]

"Ever since dis club had its fust nickel in de treasury," said Brother Gardner, "we hav recognized two fundamental facts. 1. De man who don't gib a chance to deal honest am obleeged to be honest. 2. De man whoam thoroughly honest won't object to sartin restrictions. Dar' nobber man been an' nobber will be a time when our treasury kin lay his hands on 'nuff money to pay his fare fifty miles by rail. While we respect him we removes all temptashun. While we hev confidence in his integrity we feel dat he am just human arter all. Fur de satisfackshun of de members of de club an' de friendly public I will make an explanashun.

"Our president am permitted to handle $1 per week fur current expenses. What he expends goes free de hands of de janitor. Beat of dese exhibits mus' submit sworn vouchers at de end of each week. Dem vouchers mus' agree or dar will be a rumpus. As to our large cash surplus, dat am deposited in a bank. To draw outen any portions of it a check mus' be signed by de president, secretary and treasurer, an' de pussun who goes to de bank mus' be accompanied by two pussuns of undoubted integrity, an' all moneys received am counted and sworn to by de committee on safety. As I said at de start, we believe everybody to be honest, but at de same time we believe it am cheaper to watch our step dan to hire detectives to run arter our treasurer."

Fatalism, the Opium of Nations.

[Chicago News.]

My grandsire, years and years ago,
To be a rich and famous foe to praise
Sweet Maggie Mitchell's pretty ways,
And her pet one that charmed him so.

Her tuneful voice and curly hair,
Her coquetry and subtle art,
Rendered my grandsire's willing heart,
And ever reigned supremely there.

In time my father felt the force
Of cunning Maggie Mitchell's smiles;
And, dazzled by our fathered wiles,
He sang her glorious, too, of course.

Quite natural, then, it was that I—
Of such a sire and grandsire, too—
Whom this dear spirit first met my view,
Should learn to rhapsodize as I sigh.

And now my boy, of tender age,
Indites a sonnet to the cart
Of this most fascinating girl
That ever reaped the mimic stage!

O prototype of girlhood truth,
Of girlhood glee and girlhood prank,
By what good fortune hast thou drank
The waters of eternal youth?

The Liars' Club Discuss Eggs.

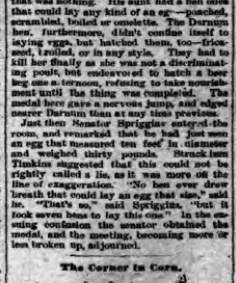
[Life.]

At the meeting of the Liars' club held at the residence of Struckdum Tinkins last evening the subject of eggs was broached. Sephirus Ikins remarked that he once owned a Cochin China that had been on his father's farm for twenty-five years and had the belt as champion eggster of the coop. "Why," said he, "that hen could lay twenty-four eggs a day and not half try, but she had one great fault. In summer she suffered from the heat so much and was so cold and tough that her eggs were all hard boiled when laid." Having delivered himself of this story, Sephirus leaned back in his chair and gazed calmly at the medal on the table.

Ananias Darnum smiled serenely and said that was nothing. His aunt had a hen once that could lay any kind of an egg—poached, scrambled, boiled or omelette. The Darnum hen, furthermore, didn't confine itself to laying eggs, but hatched them, too—fricasseed, broiled, or in any style. They had to kill her after she got a discriminating pouit, but endeavored to hatch a beefegg one a ternoon, refusing to take nourishment until the thing was hatched. The medal here gave a nervous jump, and edged nearer Darnum than at any time previous.

Just then Senator Spriggins entered the room, and watched the hen fail just when an egg that measured ten feet in diameter and weighed thirty pounds. Struck him Tinkins suggested that this could not be rightly called a lie, as it was more of the line of exaggeration. "No hen ever drew breath that could lay an egg that size," said he. "Chicken," replied Spriggins, "that it took seven hens to lay this one." In the ensuing confusion the senator obtained the medal, and the meeting, becoming more or less broken up, adjourned.

The Corner in Corn.



"Corn is too expensive, we are going to Dakota and eat wheat."

On the Chicago board of trade, on Sept. 30, September contracts for corn closed at from 90 cents to 81 per bushel, wheat 87 to 90 cents per bushel.

The True Reason at Last.

[Norristown Herald.]

The faculty of Vassar college has ordered the girls to discontinue pistol practice, on the ground that it makes them bold and brazen. But it is believed the true reason is that when the girls aim at the barn door they hit a cow in a field one hundred yards to the left, and the owners of wounded animals have entered complaint.

The Sun.
THE SUN is, and will continue so to be, a newspaper which tells the truth without fear of consequences, which gets at the facts, no matter how much the process costs, which presents the news of all the world without waste of words and in the most readable shape, which is working with all its heart for the cause of honest government, and which therefore believes that the Republican party must go, and must go in this year of our Lord, 1894.
About sixty million copies of THE SUN have gone out of our establishment during the passed twelve months.
If you were to paste end to end all the columns of THE SUN printed and sold last year you would get a continuous strip of interesting information common sense wisdom, sound doctrine, and sane wit long enough to reach from Printing House square to the top of Mount Copernicus in the moon, then back to Printing House square, and three quarters of the way back to the moon again.
But THE SUN is written for the inhabitants of the earth; this same strip of intelligence would girdle the globe between seventy and eighty times.
If every buyer of THE SUN during the passed year has spent only one hour over it, and if his wife or his grandfather has spent another hour, this newspaper in 1894 has received fifteen hundred thousand years of steady reading night and day.
It is only by little calculations like these that you can form any idea of the circulation of the most popular of all American newspapers, or of its influence on the opinions and actions of American men and women.
If you know THE SUN you like it already, and you will with economical diligence and profit during what is sure to be the most interesting year in its history. If you do not yet know THE SUN, it is high time to get into the sunshine.

THE WEATHER.

Signal Office Predictions—Fair weather, Frosh and brisk, and occasionally northwesterly winds, slightly lower temperature and higher barometer.

CHRONOLOGICAL EVENTS.

Knickerbocker died in the year 1817.

JOTTINGS.

—Storm doors have been put on the post-office.

—Rahway has a Belva Lockwood club, Plainfield hasn't.

—The H. I. M. are highly complimented on their marching last night.

—Workmen were engaged all last night in the Opera House preparing for this evening.

—The Vosseller Guards have accepted an an invitation to go to Bound Brook Monday evening.

—The different Democratic organizations have accepted an invitation to go to Somerville next Tuesday evening.

—The Republicans had "the Ohio smile" yesterday, the Democrats have got it to-day bad. They laugh because it isn't 30,000 majority, but only 10,000. It is a good thing when both sides are anti-fat.

—Is the Republican Assembly and County Convention to meet Oct. 24 in Library Hall, Elizabeth, Plainfield will be entitled to have eight delegates, of which the First ward will have three, the Second ward four, the Third ward four, and the Fourth ward five.

—Mr. Jones of New York and Mr. Decker his assistant, have been greatly delighted at the opportunity given by people of Plainfield to see their Casino last evening. That they will be heartily supported we have not the shadow of a doubt. That a weakness "we" Plainfield-ers have of giving hearty support to everything and everybody "a penny more in ourself." Hurry it up, gentlemen. People here just feel like rolling and skating.

The Democratic Convention.

The proceedings of the Democratic Convention at Elizabeth, after the nomination of Judge Green for Congress, with which our report was concluded yesterday, that being as far as the convention had progressed up to the time of closing our forms, were as follows:

Judge Wedsworth appointed Messrs. T. W. Morris, of Monmouth; Hon. E. S. Savage, of Middlesex, and Hon. F. Bascha, of Union county to inform Judge Green of his nomination and to bring him before the Convention, and Messrs. F. Hall of Monmouth, T. Elmer Stout, of Middlesex and R. M. Scott of this city, to bring Mr. McMahon.

The following were appointed an executive committee for the next convention; Middlesex county, Col. A. E. Gordon, Manning Freeman, Judge B. H. Brown; Monmouth county, J. T. Haight, D. S. Crater, Judge V. N. Wilis; Union county, Judge Nathan Harper, Thomas B. Budd and Dr. George A. Bayard.

Upon motion, the next convention will be called to meet at New Brunswick.

After speeches by several of the delegates present, including Judge Harper of this city, which were enthusiastically received, the Convention returned answering that they could not get either Mr. Green or Mr. McMahon refusing, but had received a telegram from Judge Green, who was engaged as counsel in a case on trial in New York. He accepted the nomination.

The convention then adjourned amid great applause for the nominees.

End of the Tennis Tournament.

The final match of the doubles was played yesterday. In this Messrs. Hednut and Wadsworth won two successive games from Rev. Mr. Reymont and Herbert Johnston, by a score each time of 6 to 4 to four. The playing on both sides was excellent and fully up to the standard that was naturally expected from these gen lemen.

One of Peck and Snyder's finest rackets was presented to each of the winners of this set, likewise to Mr. C. Johnston and to Mr. W. Murray, winners respectively of the first class and second class singles. The interest manifested in the games by the members and their friends has been remarkable, and the tournament in every way has been a success.

The Democratic Parade.

The Democratic clubs of this city paraded last evening. There was a large number of men in line. The Cleveland and Hendricks Cavalry turned out for the first time. The 1st proudest Cleveland and Hendricks Club The Cleveland and Hendricks Guards and the Boys in Red were also in line. The clubs paraded the streets of this city and North Plainfield for about two hours and presented a fine appearance.

STILLMAN MUSIC HALL.

Historical Sketch.

Those who attend the Theodore Thomas concert, this evening, will be interested in knowing something of the history of Stillman Music Hall, in which, as the inaugural entertainment, the concert is to take place.

The initiatory steps toward the erection of the Stillman Music Hall were taken some two years ago at a public meeting held in Assembly Hall, at which ex-Mayor Randolph presided. A committee was appointed by Mr. Randolph to devise plans and means for a suitable public building to commemorate the name of ex-Mayor Charles H. Stillman. That committee was later enlarged by a committee appointed from the Union Club.

This committee started a subscription to build a Music Hall on the present site to be known as the Stillman Music Hall, and managed by a stock corporation, the capital stock to be $40,000 divided into 800 shares of the par value of $50 each, which was afterwards increased to $45,000, the extra $5,000 being preferred stock. As a preliminary step the Stillman estate, on which the Hall is erected, deeded the land at a total cost of $5,000 cash and exchange.

At a meeting held in Jerusalem Lodge, F. & A. M., over Van Deventer Hall, April 30, 1883, with Mr. Mason W. Tyler as chairman and Mr. W. E. Lovell, as secretary, after the necessary legal steps were explained by Corporation Counsel Marsh, the following were elected to act as incorporators and to execute the requisite papers: Messrs. W. R. Potts, J. B. Dumont, C. T. Wering, Mason W. Tyler, A. Gilbert, George Chapman, B. A. Hagaman, Chas. Tweedy, A. Berry, George W. Opdyke, and Craig A. Marsh, under the corporate name of "The Music Hall Association of Plainfield," organization having been completed May 10, 1883.

At about this time the first mayor of Plainfield, the philanthropic Job Male, presented $1,000 to the association as a freegift.

On May 14, 1883, the present Board of Directors were chosen by the stockholders and were re-elected May 12, 1884. The officers of the association from its incorporation to the present time are:

Mason W. Tyler, President; Orville T. Waring, Treasurer; Craig A. Marsh, Secretary.

Building Committee—Messrs. A. Gilbert, Berry, Dumont, Opdyke, Potts, Tweedy and Tyler.

Executive Committee—Messrs. L. V. F. Randolph, Tyler, Chapman, Waring and Marsh.

The lot on which the building is erected begins 100 feet from Front street and is about 240x106 feet, the association owning a perpetual right of way from Front street, 19 feet wide by 16 feet high.

The contracts were awarded to the lowest bidders on September 10, 1883, the plans of the building having been prepared by Mr. E. L. Roberts. Mr. Isaac Melbourne secured the contract for the masonry, and Mr. Jeremiah Manning that of the carpentry. The work is of the most substantial character and impressive. Messrs. G. F. and C. E. Brown, who reside in this city, but have a fine establishment in New York, secured the contract for the interior decorating in their line, and these embrace the ceilings and walls and the wood work for the stage.

The audience room is 70x78 feet, and the ceiling at the center is 47 feet high: The stage is 32x70 feet, and has all the modern stage appliances. It is provided with ten shifting scenes and extra flats and borders. The drop curtain is very beautiful.

In the auditorium there are 948 chairs, each 22 inches wide and it is estimated that in the theatre may be seated about 1400 people.

The vestibule between the main entrance and the theatre is 12x38, and the entire building is 76 x 135 feet.

Corporation Counsel Marsh is the agent and business manager, W. R. Hatton the janitor and property man, Mr. Theodore P. Randolph the usher, assisted by Messrs. Cory C. Tyler, Jr., Herbert Stover, Leonard B. Mather, Elmer Runyon, Percy Runyon, Wallace Sorrell, J. Fred McDonald, William French, Harry Conuett.

The success of this evening's entertainment, which will be the event of the season, augurs well for the success of the enterprise from the outset.

The hall must prove a great credit to the enterprise of the people of Plainfield, as the grandest of several grand local institutions which mark the local history of the present year.

One of the most efficient members of the committee who worked for the success of the enterprise, the indefatigable Mr. A. C. Bellwin, has of late been more especially interested in the Public Library movement and is not on the Music Hall Board. Mr. George A. Chapman became interested in the Music Hall project through his active interest in the Y. M. C. A., which was greatly in need of a public hall for its lecture courses.

The building and furniture have cost a sum larger than at first estimated, on account of having been done to make the hall a credit as well as a benefit to the city. Toward this excess in cost, a contribution will be made by the profits of the grand opening to-night.

What "Cap" Says.

EDITOR EVENING NEWS:—I see upon the bulletin board of the Constitutionalists that Judge Green is nominated for Congress, and he is going to have a walk over John Kean, Jr., for "Cap" says so. This is another infernal Democratic lie, for I know they can't beat Johnny Kean, Jr.

"Cap," Old '60-er.

Shakespeare Club at P. M. S.

A Shakespeare Club has been organized by a number of the enterprising young ladies and gentlemen of the High School and also connected with it. The officers are as follows: C Hartland, President; H. S. Leonard, Vice President; Miss Case, Secretary; S. Adams, Treasurer.

REPUBLICAN MASS MEETING.

A Mammoth Building—A Large Audience—Plenty of "Whoopergup" Fine Speeches and Music.

An audience variously estimated at from 1,500 to 3 000 people gathered at the Casino last evening to Whoopergup for Blaine and Logan and to extend congratulations over the news from Ohio. The Casino will probably hold a larger audience than any building in the State of New Jersey, and if any of our contemporaries throughout the State think differently, we won d be pleased hear from them. The Casino will hold about 3000 people, and there is no other building of such proportions throughout the State of which we are aware.

About 1000 seats had been provided in anticipation of a large audience, but there seemed to be as many persons standing as there were seated.

A great many ladies were in attendance and appeared to enjoy the event fully as much as the men, and to applaud the speakers as gener usly.

The Republicans were very fortunate in the selection of speakers, who seemed to unite the entire audience with an enthusiasm that was contagious, infecting even the most phlegmatic.

A large platform for the speakers, officers and band, was decorated with the stars and stripes, a picture of the famous "Good Joke," with "An Ohio smile," printed at the bottom of it, (the Jolly Friar causing much laughter), and a board giving the results of the various recent elections.

The meeting was called to order by Councilman Frank E. Marsh, who started the "anthem" in grand style, evoking warm applause, as he introduced Hon. C. S. Place of North Plainfield in for President. Mr. Place accepted the honor graciously, and the following nominated by Mr. Marsh were chosen Vice Presidents amid applause, particular y when the name of Pastor O'Hanlon was reached.

S. A. Potter, John H. French, John W. Mowry, George Depew, Henry McGee, W. E. Jones, Chas. E. Horne, Isaac W. Pangborn, Benj. M. Day, Chas. W. McCutchen, Wm. McCutchen, A. B. Roswell, Benj. A. Hagaman, Isaac C. Yaegar, Rev. T. J. O'Hanlon, Wm. McDowell Corbett, C. S. Guion, H. D. Brittingham, M.D., Maj. L. A. Grimm, W. m. Thompson, E. M. Daniel, Charles Potter, Jr., Washington Litsinger, John Chandler, J. D. Shin, Wm. J. Leonard, Isaac W. Rushmore, W. L. Thompson, A. Berry.

The first speaker was the Ion John Brennan, of Ohio, an Irishman, whose wit, humor and eloquence generally seemed to carry the audience by storm, and made the accompaniment of his speech an almost continuous roll of laughter and applause. The interest in him never lagged, and he was repeatedly urged by the audience to "go on," when he attempted to finish, after occupying probably an hour.

Dr. A. Schabeborn of Hoboken was the next speaker and started by announcing that he was a full blooded Dutchman proud of his adopted country, the Republican party and Fatherland, as Judge Brennan had said at the opening of his address that he was proud that he was an Irishman, an American citizen and Republican. Dr. Schabeborn readily sustained the enthusiasm of the audience in both his address in English and that in German.

His impassioned eloquence and perfect gestures would have won applause from an audience of almost any political stripe. He concluded amidst a burst of applause of the most hearty character.

Hon. John T. Nolan followed with an array of dry statistics which seemed ill-timed, so late in the evening, but he nevertheless occasionally stirred up considerable applause.

Hon. Benjamin F. Howey, the Fourth Congressional District Republican nominee for re-election to Congress was next introduced and made a few remarks with which the greatest meeting of the campaign was brought to a close.

The speakers received three hearty cheers at the conclusion of each address, and cheers were frequently given for Blaine and Logan.

Mr. Marsh read a letter from Gen. Logan, accepting honorary membership in the Blaine and Logan Association of the Second Guards), which was received with cheers.

The Fanciful Corset Band favored the meeting, which was interspersed with brief address, and The Lincoln Glee Club rendered a number of campaign songs. Both received warm applause.

Outside the booming of cannon was heard in front of the Casino, and loudly "Cap" was to all intents and meanings her up" with a vengeance to the great amusement of the audience, which seemed to have caught the "Ohio smile," as they slowly dispersed.

Four Men Killed.

Messrs. Ford & Sellen, of this city, yesterday had four bodies at their morgue in Elizabeth, of men who were during the day killed on the Pennsylvania railroad, near the junction with the Central railroad. None of the men could be identified, but the bodies are embalmed to preserve for several days for identification. One of the men was killed on the P. & R. R. in the afternoon and the other three were killed early in the evening on the Penn. R. R. They are all respectable, well-looking men, and the three men had tickets from Philadelphia to Newark. They had got on a wrong train on the Philadelphia and Reading road, through from Philadelphia to New York, and had got off at Elizabeth to wait for another train to reach Newark. Learning that they were too late, they started to walk to Newark, and were ordered, near the Elizabeth depot by a P. R. R. through train. One of the men had $46 in his pocket.

The Jasper S. Vossler Guards.

The Jasper S. Vossler Guards was the name adopted by the new Democratic organization at their meeting last evening. They have a membership of about seventy-five. The uniform adopted by the club consists of a "swallow" tail coat, white leggings, a regulation cap, red sash and gun torch. The following were the officers elected:

Captain and President, Mr. George Brown; Vice Presidents, Messrs. Wm. Moore, Hiram Young, and Wm. Flare; Secretary, Andrew Kenny; Treasurer, Fred Bunker; Lieutenants, Wm. Flare, Fred Bunker, John Loughlin and Wm. Harding.

Personal.

Secretary Frelinghuysen returned to Washington last evening from Raritan, N. J.

Mr Griswold Harte, of this city, is about starting a daily paper in Morristown modeled after the Evening News. Mr. Harte is a son of the world-famed Bret-Harte, now Consul at Glasgow, the family residing on East Front street, in this city. Griswold has got the stuff in him for success, and the people of Morristown are giving him a hearty support in advertising patronage, he having secured two columns of advertisements to start with. New York newspaper men have advised him to adopt the Plainfield News as the best model in the country, for a local newspaper.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1884.

WHEN Horace Greely was the editor of the Tribune and Manton Marble the editor of the World, greater dependence could be placed in election estimates than is now possible. In those days every great newspaper had its "arithmetic man," but he disappeared when Greeley died and Marble retired. What has become of him? If he is not dead we hope he will be brought from the obscurity in which he now lives, and given his old place. There is need of him. None of the papers seem to have a good guesser even—much less a man capable of doing the additions and multiplications when the election returns begin to come in. Yesterday the papers were nearly all wide of the mark in regard to the result in Ohio. Which of them will provide themselves with an arithmetic man before November?

IF but brief career as a State, West Virginia has proved capricious in her political preferences. In her first Presidential election in 1864 she cast her vote for Lincoln. In 1868 she was for Grant, and again for Grant in 1872. In 1876 the new State went over to the Democrats, her electors being Tilden men. In the subsequent election she stood by the Democracy and general Hancock. Like the Irishman's flea, the prophets never can place a finger on the political position of that State until the vote is cast up.

A GREAT change has taken place in the last twelve month in the Parisian political press, which is attributed partly to the death of Cambetta, the death of the Comte de Chambord and the stability of the Ferry Ministry. The proportion of Republican to anti-Republican newspapers is still four to one, but since October last the latter have slightly increased, to judge by the fact that 329,000 copies of anti-Republican papers are sold, as against 1,173,500 copies of Republican journals.

THE decline in the traffic of the Suez Canal, which became apparent in July last, still continues. In July, 1883, thirty-eight vessels fewer than in July, 1883, passed through the canal, and the receipts of the company were £34,520 less than in the former year, although they were £73,800 more than in 1882. For the month of August the daily receipts came to £12,000 less than for July, but the comparison with those of last year has not yet been published.

IN Lancashire, England, according to the secretary of the Amalgamated Weavers' Association, there are 425,000 persons employed in the cotton factories. Of these 253,000 are females above thirteen years of age, 71,000 are males above thirteen and under eighteen, 29,000 are children below thirteen, and 305,000 are adult males.

MR. THOMAS STEVENS, the young man who has just ridden from San Francisco to New York on a bicycle, and expects to go around the world on the same vehicle, hopes to be in Constantinople by Christmas time, and will devote the whole of 1885 to traveling across Asia.

THE LATEST FIGURES.

Still Counting Ohio's and West Virginia's Ballots.

In the Former the Republican Gains in the State by 18,000, but the Democrats Console Only 10,000, West Virginia Democratic.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 16.—The correspondent of The New York World (Dem.) says: It is a curious fact that, notwithstanding the splendid machinery for counting a campaign, neither party has any system for the collection of returns or the ascertainment of results after the ballots have been cast. Both state committees rely almost wholly upon the newspapers for their information, and when the general fact as to which party has triumphed is known, all efforts to make any formal record or to determine definite results are abandoned by the committees, except as individual members choose to follow up the work. When it became evident that the state and gave Republican, Committeeman Dudley started for Washington. Before Chauncey I. Filley started for St. Louis he estimated that the majority the majority would be almost 17,000, or a decrease of 8,000 from the first enthusiastic estimate.

A few moments later I visited the Republican committee rooms and found Chairman Ogleve, the gentleman who was to have shouted over the victory, had left behind the party, and who escapes all credit for the success. He told me that he thought 15,000 was about the extent of the majority. I asked him if the committee could not get under instructions to forward the returns from the two-thirds of the precincts yet to be heard from, and he said that they were not. In fact he could not think the committee would receive any more information on that point. The state was all right, and they were content to wait for the minute details till official returns were made to the secretary of state. Going to the Democratic headquarters I found that Gov. Hoadly, Chairman Harper and Secretary Bosworth were engaged in an informal sort of way in trying to figure out the majority from all available information. Gov. Hoadly called attention to the fact that, two to the customs the Associated Press had succeeded in collecting returns from many more precincts than Republican party had made gains, but had met with no success in getting figures from Democratic precincts, and the result was that the papers were about even in this matter. With the majorities of from 17,000 to 20,000, giving the Republican party the prestige of a victory which it had not won. He then stated that the figures received had reduced the majority very steadily, and had gone a very long way towards sustaining the estimate of Mr. Harper, and he put it down Tuesday night. As the day wore on, and county after county reported, the governor was compelled to let out the lines a little, when the Democratic majority in Franklin had come in, and estimates had been received from the central committees of twenty-seven other counties, the governor had increased the majority to 18,000, and 5,000, where he still stands firmly. Making allowance, however, for the very sanguine nature of the governor, I am disposed to believe that he is still a little short of the mark, that the majority will reach somewhere between 10,000 and 11,000.

At a large meeting of delegates from the branch Cleveland and Hendricks clubs of the state at the Neil house, a reorganization of the central body was effected. John G. Thompson, of Cincinnati, who pushes the executive committee was appointed, consisting of the very best known workers in the state. Gen. Ewing, who joins the Democracy's fight are to be sought out immediately and the work of bracing up is to be inaugurated all over the state before Sunday. One fact will be sure to follow from what was the explanation of the rout in Cincinnati, and precautions will be taken against another. Hamilton county had been counted on for 4,000 or 5,000 Democratic majority, and instead it gives an official Republican majority of 2,822. Cuyahoga county has been expected, and on the assurances of Mr. Payne, to give a full 7,000 Republican majority, and yet it gave 2,218. Had these two counties done what they were relied upon to do, the state would have gone Democratic. It is this fact more than any other that makes the managers here sore, and Gen. Ewing and Chairman Bargar are open in their declaration that there has been treason in the Cincinnati camp.

"Tuesday morning," said Mr. Bargar, "I received a telegram from Cincinnati making the complaint that our voters were being bulldozed away from the polls. It annoyed me very much, not because of the bulldozing, but because the party had given Hamilton county in advance for unfavorable returns in the evening. The idea that our party, with the entire municipal and county government at its back, could be bulldozed or intimidated by a few hundred United States marshals, no matter how desperate a gang they might be, was preposterous, and I took very little stock in it. I don't know where the blame lies, but there has been treachery in Cincinnati. One fact is very plain, and that is that the Democratic Germans who had been considered as earnestly in sympathy with the Democratic party have left with the Republicans. This is especially notable in the Twenty-fourth wards of Cincinnati. In fact the greatest Democratic losses have all occurred in Cincinnati, where the German vote most easily purchasable and frauds are most easily perpetrated. A further explanation of the failure of Democratic estimates lies in the fact that in Cuyahoga county, who had been counted on from 16,000 to 20,000 votes a piece abandoned their ticket and voted with the Republicans. The tariff issue had some effect, especially in the Mahoning valley, but that was offset by the Hocking Valley. Although the official footings will not be made for several days, yet the belief is general that the total vote will reach somewhere near 820,000, the Republicans seeming to have benefited somewhat more than the Democrats by the registry law. The congressional returns, though incomplete, indicate almost certainly that the Republicans who formerly had but six of the twenty-one, have now elected twelve.

The Congressmen Elected.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 16.—The following is a correct list of the congressmen elected: First district, Ben Butterworth, R.; Second, Charles E. Brown, R.; Third, James E. Campbell, D.; Fourth, Ezra B. Taylor, R.; Fifth, Benjamin La Favre, D.; Sixth, W. D. Hill, D.; Seventh, George E. Seney, R.; Eighth, John Little, R.; Ninth, Wm. C. Cooper, R.; Tenth, N. Romeis, R.; Eleventh, E. F. Silsbury, D.; Twelfth, Albert C. Thompson, R.; Thirteenth, Joseph H. Outhwaite, D.; Fourteenth, Wm. Grosvenor, R.; Fifteenth, Beriah Wilkins, D.; Sixteenth, George W. Geddes, R.; Seventeenth, A. T. Ware, R.; Eighteenth, John R. Taylor, R.; Nineteenth, Ezra B. Taylor, R.; Twentieth, Wm. McKinley, R.; Twenty-first, Martin A. Foran, D.

The New York Tribune Claims 15,000 Plurality.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—The Tribune (Rep.) says: The latest reports from Ohio indicate that the Republican majority will be found to be over 15,000. The Democratic claim of 10,000 majority is now generally conceded by the Democratic managers to be impossible. The Democratic gains in the state are not sufficient to overcome the Republican majority of 18,000 in 1883. The Democratic gains in the state by a majority. Congressman Hurd defeated in the Tenth district by Jacob Romeis (Rep.) is conceded by the Democrats.

The Republicans of West Virginia indicates that the state is close. Republican gains are reported in all directions.

Washington and the Ohio Election.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—The result of the Ohio election was the chief topic of conversation everywhere here today. Republicans claim a victory, and Democratic generally disappointed. Secretary Gresham believes the victory in Ohio taken in New York, Indiana, New Jersey and Connecticut, places the fate of doubtful or Democratic states, and makes them certain for Blaine and Logan next November; that instead of being reduced Republican majorities in Congress and Secretary Lincoln are understood to share in this belief. Col. Dudley is equally, if not more confident of a Republican victory in Indiana and Gen. Secretary Gresham. Senator Beck expresses himself as neither surprised nor discouraged at the result in Ohio. New York he considers safe and Indiana he considers somewhat safe as Kentucky. He says that the Democratic candidate will surely win with or without Ohio. On all sides the belief is general that the next few weeks in the country will witness the hardest political struggle ever seen.

The London Times on the Election.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—The Times says that notwithstanding the result in Ohio, the Republicans have no reason to be disheartened by those of their rivals. It is a foregone conclusion that New York will show friends of Cleveland to be in the majority.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—A telegraph says that Ohio was really won for the Republicans by the intense hostility in that section to free trade. The peculiar features of the campaign has been Mr. Blaine's personal activity. He was vote daily by untiringly displaying his personal gifts and powers, and it is said to the presidency it will be due to this cause.

VERY SLOWLY

Come the Returns From West Virginia—Counter Speculations.

WHEELING, Oct. 16.—Election reports are very slow coming in. Returns indicate the state Democratic by 2,000 majority, while the Democrats claim it will not be less than 4,000. The returns come in very slowly and unsatisfactory. So far the gains favor the Republicans, with their strongholds to hear from. Correspondents who assume to give the majorities for either party in the state from the exceptionally meagre returns are daring probabilities. There is yet nothing on which to base an estimate even. But seven counties have been heard from. They show a net Republican gain of 600. Partial returns from Hampshire show a Republican gain of 700. Greenbrier indicates 700 Republican gain. Returns from Mason, Kanawha county give 400 Republican majority, which indicates a Democratic gain of 800 in the county. Putnam county, partial returns, show Democratic gains. Wayne gives a Democratic majority of 75. Of the 150 precincts in the state 40 only and 30,000 have been heard from. The net Republican gain in this number is 983. The same ratio would elect the Republican ticket by 2,000. But there is not the least certainty as to the final outcome. The Democratic State Committee claims the state by 10,000.

Chairman Lemon, of Parkersburg, of the Democratic committee, telegraphs that the state will go Democratic by from 10,000 to 15,000. He says however, give any good reason for his predictions. On the other hand the returns show Republican gains.

In Taylor county Maxwell's majority is 301, and the Republican county and state ticket is elected, a Republican gain of about 150.

Mineral county elects the Democratic county ticket by a small majority, and gives Wilson, Democrat, for governor, 81 majority.

BLAINE IN MICHIGAN.

Gen. Fremont Fires the Wolverine Heart—Twenty-Seven Speeches.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Oct. 16.—The Michigan committee have done all they could to help the cause along. The visit of Blaine might have felt over the result of the Ohio election. They kept him on the road carrying him 247 miles, and calling out one of the largest meetings in Detroit, Lansing and Northern road from Detroit to Grand Rapids. He was accompanied by a very large delegation of Michigan's most influential citizens. His special traveling companion was Gen. John C. Fremont. The latter is more popular and stronger in Michigan than in any other part of the union. Fremont carried Michigan by a large majority over Frederick Douglass, and period Fremont's name has been a household word in the state. Gen. Fremont received at the hands of the waiting crowds nearly as warm greetings as did the plumed knight Blaine. This touched the old general very deeply. In one place, where he was introduced as the Pathfinder, he said that he had never been called by that name before, and always for himself, but he was glad that he had at least the pathway to the hearts of so many friends.

Mr. Blaine made no set speeches. He merely called the attention of his auditors to the fact that Ohio had pronounced upon the question of protection and tariff, and that is now was the turn of Michigan to speak in equally decided terms upon the subject. At Grand Rapids Mr. Blaine had a reception, which consumed nearly two hours, and for this ambitious town promised it would do in the way of hospitality. Mr. Blaine's next stopping place is Saginaw city.

Whitelaw Reid and the Printers.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—A. D. Brock, a prominent printer and Washington delegate to the late convention of the International Union of the Federation of Labor, is out in an open letter addressed to all printers and wage-workers, in which he accuses Whitelaw Reid, of The New York Tribune, of "employing fictitious and inexcusable falsehood" concerning the attitude of the New York striking printers in their late attempts at a compromise with the proprietors of that paper. Reid, he asserts, might have stopped the boycotting of Mr. Blaine and the Republican party months ago. Next he states that Mr. Blaine's efforts with him (Reid) to reach the bottom of the troubles in The Tribune office.

The Second French Hassoe.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—Mr. Mintz, the veteran chief clerk of the first assistant postmaster general's office of the post office department, has been designated to act as first assistant postmaster general in the permanent appointment. Mr. Wallace, who is at present chief clerk of the department, is spoken of as the probable successor of Mr. Stanton.

A SPEECH BY BRECKINRIDGE.

At the Democratic Meeting in Wisconsin Gives Cleveland.

He Tells of the Principles Which Have Governed Him During His Long Life—A Letter From Samuel J. Tilden.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Fully 5,000 persons gathered at the merchants' and business men's meeting at the Academy of Music last night—held in honor of Cleveland and Hendricks. An overflow meeting was held in Irving hall. Ex-Mayor Grace presided. The curtain down from the stage and speakers were each represented by twenty-five presidents, who sat in full view. Signal seats on the stage. The entire building had been beautifully decorated for the occasion with flags, banners, streamers, shields and mottoes. Portraits of Cleveland and Hendricks were suspended in front of the stage. Among the distinguished persons present were Gov. Henry Watterson, Rescher, Horace H. Dudley, De Witt J. Seligman, Wm. R. Travers, Hon. Roswell P. Flower, Mayor Edson, Ex-Mayor Cooper, Col. Oakley, Thurber, Jno. F. Sherman, John Bloodgood and others.

Ex-Mayor Grace, in opening the proceedings, said that it was meet to be regretted that the usual personal questions had been made so largely predominant as almost to force all other questions out of view. Gov. Thos. H. Waller, of Connecticut, was then called upon to preside. Gov. Waller and Henry Ward Beecher was escorted to the stage. He received an ovation which lasted several minutes. Such an enthusiastic scene has never been witnessed in any public building in this city. He said: "Take your time, gentlemen, we have got the whole night before us. I am quite familiar with large audiences, but this is one of the largest I ever saw. You may ask me why I am here. I think there has been no great movement in my country for the last forty years, which some one has not dragged to the ground principles, that I had not, according to the nature of my strength, had a part and lot in it. I was born because abolitionist the moment I was born (cheers). I am not unacquainted with the quality of eggs (cheers and laughter). I was a Whig, and I was a Whig because I knew that the old Whig party went down on its knees before the Moloch of slavery. I would would not go down. I should have been perfectly willing to have been a member of the Democratic party, but they were all on their bellies (cheers); and then when the great conflict came, I joined those who started for the front. The people of this campaign has been Mr. Blaine's personal activity. He was vote daily by untiringly displaying his personal gifts and powers, and it is said to the presidency it will be due to this cause.

RESCUED FROM A FIRE.

Thirteen Persons Taken Out of a Burning Building.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Twenty men left their half finished lunch on the tables in Theodosk John's restaurant at No. 241 Bowery last night, and two or three nearly choked themselves in trying to yell "Fire!" with their mouths full of food. Thomas Ehlen, a brother-in-law of the proprietor, John Rudolph Hoeffle, better known on the Bowery as "Theodosk John," followed with his cash box, the men and some of the kitchen maids, and as they reached the street fire shot out of the open door.

The flames came from a rear extension, and as a kitchen, where a pot of pigs' feet had boiled over and caused the fire. Suddenly was the outbreak and spread of the fire that before the families of Ehlen and Hoeffle and their servants, thirteen in all, could escape, the stairway was ablaze. Hoeffle managed to rush into the street by leaping down the blazing stairs. His face was slightly scorched. An alarm had been sent from a neighboring box, and in less than two minutes Hook and Ladder No. 1 reached the fire from their quarters in Elizabeth street. Foreman Bradley lost no time in throwing up a ladder against the side of the building, and half a dozen firemen scrambled up the rungs and assisted down the frightened people who were standing at the window clamoring for help. From the second story the firemen carried down Mrs. Gertrude Euler, her three children, and Mary Schwenk and Mary Brady, two servants. On the floor above lived Mrs. Hoeffle, her two children, and Frederick Kraut, Mary Layman and Susan Redmond, three servant girls, who were asleep in a attic when the fire broke out and had fled in the next floor. Hardly had the last of the frightened women and children been brought to the sidewalk when the fire shot from the windows of the room they had just vacated. A second alarm brought additional engines, and the fire was not quenched until the first and second floor had been completely burned out. The loss is estimated at $5,000 to the building and $4,000 to Hoffle's fixtures and furniture.

A MEDICAL MURDER.

While Under the Influence of Ether the Patient Dies.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 16.—The Medical News reports a case of death from the effects of etherization, three weeks ago, at St. Mary's hospital. The victim was the driver of a beer wagon who had received a deep laceration of the right thigh by slipping while trying to jump from his vehicle. All the symptoms were favorable. He was rational, had a good color, and was losing comparatively little blood. It was decided to give an anesthetic, and ether was chosen. Before the wound was washed and stitched, being reapplied whenever signs of consciousness returned. In a short time the attendant noticed weakness in the action of the heart. The surgeon, to his astonishment, observed a deathlike pallor on the patient's face. Respiration had nearly ceased, and was only kept up by artificial means. This was followed in half an hour by greater depression. Unconsciousness finally returned, and death occurred about an hour and a quarter after the first sign of danger. The physicians attribute death to failure of heart action, due to the poisonous effects of ether. This case shows the importance of watching the pulse, as well as the breathing, during the finalation of ether. The dangerous symptoms are usually respiratory, but sometimes, as in this instance, are circulatory.

1,000,000 Spindles to Stop.

FALL RIVER, Oct. 16.—A written agreement has been circulated among the mills to close for one week, beginning on Saturday night. It was signed by thirty-one mills, and will stop over 1,000,000 spindles or a total of 1,900,000 employed on print goods. It will throw 10,000 persons out of work for a week, and the prospect is that, unless the market improves, the shut down will continue indefinitely. The shut down includes every cotton goods mill in the city, except those making fancy goods, and a few large print cloth mills controlled by a combination of capitalists, which can afford to run during dull times. The loss in wages by the stoppage of these mills will be $75,000 weekly.

Eight Men Probably Drowned.

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 16.—The deep sea fishing schooner Lottie sailed from Astoria on a cruise over a week ago. She had on board eight men. She expected to lie off the mouth of the Columbia river only two days. She has failed to return and inward bound vessels report at Astoria that nothing whatever has been seen of the Lottie. Down the coast very rough weather has prevailed for several days. It is feared the schooner and all on board are lost. There are some hopes that the vessel may have been driven into Shoal Water bay during the storm.

Killed by a Blast.

SOMERSET, Pa., Oct. 16.—A fearful explosion took place in a cut on the South Pennsylvania road a few miles north of this place, resulting in the instantaneous death of two Hungarians and the wounding of several others. A blast consisting of three charges was placed and two of them failed to explode. The men were ordered to remove the unexploded charges. This work was about accomplished when a spark from the drill ignited the powder, and the explosion followed. The victims were new arrivals in the country, and both leave large families.

Indorsing St. John.

MONTPELIER, Vt., Oct. 16.—The Vermont Prohibitionists met in convention here, with 250 delegates present. The committee on resolutions reported resolutions declaring that the prohibitionists had nothing to hope from either the Republican party or the Democratic party on this issue, and therefore indorsed St. John and Daniel. The following electors were chosen: R. C. Harlow-Jones, G. W. Wyman, C. S. Parker and J. B. Sackett. A state committee of one from each county was appointed.

Selling Part of Our Navy.

LIMA, PERU, Oct. 16.—Proposals have been solicited for the purchase of the United States steamer Onward, the name of which was stricken off the navy list by order and authority of an act of congress passed March 5, 1882, it having been deemed in the interest of the United States government to sell her. Proposals will be received up to Nov. 13 on board the senior United States vessel.

Nothing but Gas.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—The American Gaslight association convened at Willard's hotel for its twelfth annual convention. Col. Stedman, of Newport, presiding. There are 178 delegates in attendance. The proceedings will be mainly of technical interest to gas men.

Minister Lowell is Busy.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—United States Minister Lowell has written that he will be unable, on account of pressure of business to accept an invitation tendered him to be present at the annual cutlers' feast at Sheffield.

A NEW PAVEMENT.

The undersigned has secured the exclusive agency for the sale of the

Diabold Patent Iron Stone,

which for elegance and durability, is unsurpassed, and in price will compare favorably with any other pavement now in use. It is the most beautiful pavement known for walks and yards, gutter stones, curbings and street blocks. Also used to build fire and burglar proof vaults; and for building purposes generally. These pavement blocks have many striking peculiarities. They admit no perceptible moisture; resist ice and snow, as well as all kinds of moisture. When ordering, measure from the ordinary brick, the material required positively free from it. These blocks are cast 4 1-2 inches wide, 9 inches long and are the hardest substance known. EMBONPOINT.

A Wrinkle-Destroyer Which Defies Time and Preserves Beauty.

A Blessing to Singleton—The Advantages and Causes of Adipose—How the Lean May Grow Fat.

[Chicago Tribune.]

While there is little beauty in obesity there is a great deal in a limited amount of fat, which, like charity, covers a multitude of imperfections. Fat is a veritable godsend to homely women, for it covers up the bones, counts of the sharp angles and gives a solidity to the figure that is at once commanding and attractive. A plump woman may require a 6½ glove, but her hand looks very much smaller than that of a lean woman which may be covered with a No. 6. Another advantage of fat, and a condition, too, of vital importance to womankind, is the resistance it offers to age. Fat people never look old, and positively refuse to get wrinkled. A fat woman at 45 is brighter and fresher looking than a leafy Brown at 25, for she has not that pleasing rotundity which, charming the purely artistic eye, is refreshing to contemplate.

Fat people may not live any longer than their skinny, bony neighbors, but while they do live they are healthier, happier and handsomer, if not wittier and wiser. By fat here is not meant that superabundance of animal tissue which prevails among the butchers and beer-leaders of the city. In such instances fat is not only attended with high color, lazy and indolent disposition, and sluggish emotions, but is a burden that two legs seem insufficient to support.

LOSS OF ADIPOSE.

It is one thing to get fat, but it is quite another problem to retain it, that blissful condition and neither subside into leanness nor run up into corpulency. Between the two evils it is difficult to choose. Unlike man, fat is not always the result of idleness, for from the fact that they can do little muscular work and will not exercise. On the other hand, the fat woman who permits her grocer now to deposit eight just as well bury herself; for, like Lady Jane, little will be left of her the coming by and by. While her fat buried she was wrinkle proof, but the excitement her lymphatic temperament drops she becomes one big wrinkle, and the loose, empty skin hangs like a dried drapery from length to toe. Not to study their glass intelligently are aware of this and will risk their fortune and their very lives to avoid any such reaction, there being only one thing that could worse than fat, and that is wrinkles—and that is the small-pox. The first thing a woman of the world does after the Something sweet.

That follows youth with flying feet is gone, is to get fat, and, as in every scheme at which she would her wishes, she succeeds.

DIET FOR THE LEAN.

In the process of flesh-building everything depends upon the food, which must consist largely of carbonaceous, as, for instance, meats, wheat, rye, butter, cocoa, rice, potatoes, and milk. Eat abundantly of fat meats, vegetables, with rich gravy and sauces, add sweet to drink and to the good milk you can get and worm tea and coffee. It is quite a well-known fact that with a life of ease and plenty of ale one can fatten up in three months' time. Where there is an antipathy to such beverages, depend on milk and cream, of which drink a gallon a day, combining a quart of cream with the milk. Avoid acids of all kinds, also pickles, spiced food, table sauces, mustards, and like condiments. For dessert scorn all pastes, such as pie crust, rolls, tarts, and the indigestible variety of biscuits, puddings, blanc mange, marmalades, sago, raw, tapioca, and boxed puddings will be found nutritious; likewise raisins, figs, candied fruits, apples, grapes, all kinds of preserves and jellies, and sugar in any shape. Cod-liver oil and fresh-drawn blood are also incentives to fat when obtained. The latter should, for a glass of the former on retiring and a quart of warm blood right from the slaughtered cow before breakfast would cause Sarah Bernhardt herself to puff out like a cotton-boll in three weeks.

DRINKING AND BATHING.

Let it be remembered that it is quality rather than quantity that conduces to fat. Gormandizing not only is unnecessary but absolutely pernicious to anybody desirous of being healthy. The digestive organs must be kept in a state of perfect activity, which cannot exist when the stomach is overloaded. Drink abundantly, whether of broths, soups, water or milk. Never drink tea-water at meals, as such a drink chills the system and arrests digestion. Bathe freely, but avoid extremes of temperature—since cold water shocks, and hot weakens. Never. Always take a warm bath before retiring; sleep enough, and on a soft bed, and look well to the perfect ventilation of the room. If the weather is cold, sponge the entire body with glycerine, almond or olive oil, and keep the feet warm by the same process.

REDUCING AND OTHER REASONS.

Flesh-reducing is another good thing used by the old stage-doolers and still practiced by the Arabs, who dog their slaves to make them plump for market. If this treatment does not exercise the flesh it is the process of exciting the circulation at the surface and giving force to the languid muscles. Live much in the open air, but let the exercise be light; refrain from all violent active labor, moderate the pleasures, adopt a simple and regular mode of life, keep the mind trained and contented, and if you will do this and yourself expanding abandon the schools and prepare to take your place among those who are lean and lank through the laws of heredity.

In a little book on digestion Dio Lewis says:

"If you want to get fat, here is the secret in a sentence: Go to bed early, eat no late, drink water on retiring, before retiring, and gallons during the day."

Mary Anderson's Girlhood.

[Kansas City Journal.]

"Mary Anderson's wonderful career has been a perpetual source of astonishment to me," said a Louisville girl. "She certainly never gave the slightest indication of kindergatic ability when she was a young girl. She was not even studious, but was always regarded as a good-natured clatterbox, rather inclined to be wild and certainly thoughtless. She was gaddy and frolicsome at school, where she manifested no particular aptitude for any of her studies, being vain and rather inclined to flirt. Her family were Catholics, and as she grew up she attended a small school. Nobody ever thought her a pretty girl any more than that she was a bright one. She was tall, awkward and dressed with little taste."

A Story of Western Justice.

[Exchange.]

"An Atchison negro had a melon patch. Boys robbed it. Negro caught them. Brought them into court. Boys released. Costs $25. Assed against negro. Had no money. Sent to jail to work it out. Found court that fined man $1 for beating his mule-ox, and took $25.99 for committing the dollar.

Jokes Evoked from the Inner Consciousness of Our Funny Men.

Self-Sacrifice—A Slang Phrase—Rounds and Pars—A Cellar-Button—Stumped Him at Last—Items.

[Detroit Free Press.]

The other day several acquaintances of a Detroiter, who is noted for his almost-animal odness, determined to see if they could get his paying off on this trait of his without discovery. One of them enrolled in a position seeking the common council to appoint Sarah Jane Blank a city physician, Sarah being the almost-maiden man's wife.

"Petition—petition," he replied as he was asked to sign it—"O, certainly. Sarah Jane Blank—common council—city physician—of course."

The next who entered had a document in his hand, which he explained by saying:

"Those brave young fellows on the board of public works to shave the front steps of the house at No. — Woodward avenue. Will you sign it?"

"Of course—of course. Board of public works—projecting steps—ever pray—there she is."

It was the front steps of his own house, but he was ready for the third man, who dropped in to observe:

"Say, Blank, we propose to open a new street to strike Woodward avenue, between and streets. Will you assist us?"

"Certainly—certainly—ought to be a new street there—certainly will," was the reply, although the projected new street would run plump through his house.

In the course of three or four days he signed a petition in favor of two-house built on the rear end of his lot—to have his son appointed assistant sewer-sweep—to have a guardian appointed for his children, and to permit him to establish a painting house in his residence; but when an acquaintance came in and asked him to sign a confession that he (Blank) was a counterfeiter he —Has 1 Kicks is the next great event to be at Stillman Music Hall.

JOTTINGS.

—A meeting of the Independent Germans was held in the Forth Plainfield wigwam last evening.

—We publish on our second page Judge Green's letter accepting the Democratic nomination for Congress.

—The Stillman Music Hall originated in desire to memorialize Dr. Charles B. Stillman, the founder of New Jersey's public schools.

—There was a total of 1,476 names of voters registered last Tuesday, divided as follows: First ward, 394; Second ward, 396; Third ward, 309; Fourth ward, 377.

—Plainfield in the vicinity of the Music Hall presented a rather metropolitan aspect, last evening, on account of the hundreds of carriages and the large number of people on the street.

—Plainfield Engine Co. No. 2, have secured another trained horse, making three of the splendid animals possessed by this wide-awake Company. The third horse is for the down stringer.

—Chief Carney appointed Mr. George Boker, foreman of Engine No. 2 and Mr. B. R. Mumford, foreman of Hook and Ladder No. 1, as stand last night's performances at Stillman Music Hall as an extra caution against fire.

—At the Republican primary held in the old school house, North Plainfield, last evening, including the First and Second Districts no delegates to vote on, because of disagreement. The meeting adjourned without day.

—The Belva Lockwood Club of Rahway paraded the streets of that city last evening in poke bonnets, Mother Hubbard dresses and baby carriages. The town was in an uproar, and the club has been invited to come to Plainfield.

—Barry Billy still muddles that an independent newspaper cannot be anything but Republican. Democrats and Republicans alike of this vicinity recognize the independence and impartiality of THE NEWS, which never knowingly is unfair or untruthful.

The Orange Volcano.

Plainfield, Oct. 15, 1884.

EDITOR EVENING NEWS.—In your paper of the 11th, you poke a little fun at Orange but I see you have been misled by some exuberant description.

There is no volcano there either active or extinct. Perhaps as "crater" means something to be put into a cup it is possible your informant may have seen more than one volcano there, but it was only in his mind's eye.

The curiosity on Orange mountain to which Professor Cook has lately called attention consists of a cliff about 100 feet high composed of natural pillars, mostly upside-down, and fitting closely together like the cells of a honey comb.

This column formation is a peculiarity of the trap-rock or basalt of which the cliff is composed, and is often traceable in large masses of this rock. But in only a few will known places in the world is this formation found in such mark at distinctness and regularity as on Orange mountain.

Among these well known places are the Giants' Causeway in Ireland and Finga's Cave in Scotland. These are celebrated because of the remarkably regular formation, and Mr. O'Rourke's quarrying has brought to light a similar curiosity on Orange mountain.

As the hills behind North Plainfield are a part of the same range and as Mr. O'Rourke has begun, I believe, to quarry the trap rock in that place, it is possible that something of the same kind may be found here.

PLAINSMAN.

Another Incendiary Fire.

About three o'clock this morning a fire was discovered in the barn on the property No. 88 East Second street, between Washington and Richmond streets, occupied by Mr. George Marshall, the proprietor of a large fashionable restaurant on Sixth avenue, New York, and of another in Jersey City. The barn was totally destroyed. The firemen were on hand, but could not save the property. There seems no doubt but that the fire was of incendiary origin. The contents of the barn were saved. The loss is put at $100.

STILLMAN MUSIC HALL OPENED.

Plainfield Society at the Stillman Memorial Concert.

The opening concert in the Stillman Music Hall, a memorial by Mrs. Stillman, was rendered last evening by Miss Rowena Jack, soprano, last evening, was fondly, as was announced on the program—grand. It was indeed, the grandest event of the kind ever seen in Plainfield, fairly representing in the attendance the culture and wealth for which this beautiful city is noted, and the spirit of enterprise which has purchased such a theatre.

The concert passed off as all Theatre concerts do, a musical treat of the highest classical order. There were 30 performers, and the choice productions of the great composers were rendered in the program, which is hereunto annexed:

PROGRAM.

PART THIRD.

1. Overture—Tannhauser ..... Wagner
2. Andante—Symphony, No. 5, Op. 67 ..... Beethoven
3. Letter Aria—(Don Giovanni) ..... Mozart
By Miss Emma Jack.
4. Solos—Ballet Sylvia ..... Leo Delibes
1—Prelude—Les Chasseresses.
2—Intermezzo et Valse lente.
3—Pizzicati.
4—Cortege de Bacchus.

PART SECOND.

1. Overture—"William Tell." ..... Rossini
2. Largo—Viella obligato ..... Handel
By Mr. H. Brandt.
3. Scherzo—"Midsummer Night's Dream." ..... Mendelssohn
4. Ave Maria—Viol a obligato ..... Bach-Gounod
By Mr. H. Brandt. Bach-Gounod
Miss Emma Jack.
5. Hungarian Rhapsody, No. 2 ..... Liszt

Two soprano, Miss Jack, is a lovely blonde, young and pleasing, whose fine voice and charming manner evoked most hearty applause, particularly in the rendering of Ave Maria, which the audience insisted on her repeating by persistent applause. She was attired in creamy white satin, en train, relieved with one crimson rose in a low close-fitting corsage, and by diamond ear-sparklants and a lace pin, her hair in Langtry style. She has superior personal attractions, including a not is figure.

There were 900 reserved seats taken for the entertainment at $2.50 each, yielding $2,000, of which $1,000 goes to pay for the concert.

The theatre, a description of which we published yesterday, was, in its completed state last evening, gorgeously adorned. The scenery on the stage represented a summer wood-land, and had a sunny aspect that was enhanced by skilful lighting.

The first seats counted were Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Bowar, 60 West Seventh street. Mr. Stewart is a New York broker, and a very popular Plainfielder.

Among the audience accompanied with ladies were: Messrs. E. L. Welz, J. W. Murray, A. D. Shepard, R. M. Errickson, H. E. Brown, H. P. Talmadge, C. J. Ake, J. S. Voorhies, D. M. Demarest, T. R. In order to accommodate the increasing demand for first-class entertainments, we have arranged for an opening performance to be given on the 5th of November, on which occasion there will be presented the grand opera of "The Bagpipe Player."

The audience greeted the announcement with applause.

Princeton College Petition.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Oct. 14, 1884.

EDITOR EVENING NEWS:—In your issue of the 8th inst. there appeared an article from the exchange purporting to give an account of politics at Princeton.

It says there stated that out of eighty eligible voters in college forty-two had declared for Cleveland, that of the forty Protectionalists but four favored the Democratic nominees for President, that a Cleveland and Hendricks club of one hundred and twenty-five students was organized and fully equipped for the campaign, and that there was great dissatisfaction with Blaine among the third year students.

To say how different this was from the state of affairs a few years ago, when in the Hayes-Tilden campaign, notwithstanding a large contingent of Southern students who were naturally Democratic, the Republicans outnumbered the Democrats two to one, and notwithstanding that there was every member of the class of 1877 was one a Republican, I mailed the above article to a friend of mine now a student in the college, with the requests that he would give me the facts in regard to the statements there made.

He sends an indignant reply, branding the article as an "atrocious lie" and makes the following statements:

First that no vote at any time nor in any way has been taken by the students eligible to franchise. That the Professors following a uniform custom take no active part in the election, but that they have not declared for Cleveland as stated and that he happens to know personally six of their number who are very decided in support of Mr. Blaine. That the Cleveland and Hendricks club among the students may number one hundred and twenty-five, but not more than fifty have ever appeared in parade, and that the identification among the Seminary students with Mr. Blaine is a myth. Some few did try to start a St. John club, "but the Blaine element was so overwhelmingly strong, that the club proved a complete failure."

He writes that on Saturday last over hundred and forty-nine uniforms sported for the Blaine and Logan club in full rig, that many were having joined the organization. That every point in the above indictment is shown to be false, and I trust that you will accord to me the same space in your columns for reply, so that the people of Plainfield will no longer have reason to believe that the students and professors in those honored seats of learning at Princeton, have turned apostates from the faith and traditions and principles of men and from Republican party, and gone over to that party whose ruling cry is free trade, free rum and free love.

A PRINCETON REPUBLICAN.

The Break in Jersey Central.

A fact which has appalled the street in Panic lights for a long time—that Jersey Central stock certificates belonging to the Reading Railroad Company, a part of the 50,000 shares on which Mr. Vanderbilt advanced $60 a share and agreed to carry for the company, had appeared on the street—was made clear Friday when it became known that Mr. Vanderbilt had notified the Reading Company that he had sold the 50,000 shares of Jersey Central stock for the account of the company. This stock cost the Reading Company an average of $72 a share. When it began to fall, the Reading Company margined it down with the bankers and brokers who were carrying it to $45 a share, and then Mr. Vanderbilt took it up agreeing to carrying it for the company. He sold it for 39¾ cents, it is said, receiving an average of $39 a share. This amounts to a loss for the Reading Company of $26 a share, or a total loss of $1,450,000.

Incidents on whose sales Jersey Central was broke: down this week from 50 ¾ to 44 7-8 to-day, have been for some time in possession of the information here given, and which was not allowed to leak out until Friday.

Personal.

Miss Mamie DeCamp, niece of John W. Laing, of this city, is to be married tomorrow to Mr. Clifford Mott of New York city.

Chief John Lawrence and Foreman Kanks of the New Brunswick Fire Department, were on a visit to Chief Carney in this city Wednesday.

Mr. Edwin Hartland, of Second street, is at Swarthmore College, Delaware Co., Pa., on his last year. He graduated last year, but concluded on another course.

General Frederick Lithgow, a brother of ex-Councilman Washington Lithgow, of this city, is a member of the cabinet of San Domingo, being the minister of police and of the interior.

Our friend of many years, editor John H. Mattison, proprietor of the Somerville Messenger, the leading Democratic weekly of New Jersey, was among the Stillman Hall audience last evening.

JUDGE GREEN'S ACCEPTANCE.

ELIZABETH, OCTOBER 15, 1884.

TO MESSRS. THEODORE W. MORRIS, EDWARD S. SAYAGE, FERDINAND BLANCKE, Committee:

GENTLEMEN—

I am in receipt of your favor, communicating the fact of my nomination to-day by the convention as its candidate for member of the National House of Representatives from the Third Congressional District of New Jersey.

I heartly endose the resolutions adopted at a former meeting of the convention. They truly declare that we are in the midst of a campaign, the true issue of which is honesty in the discharge of public duty. Deep, at the very root of this issue, is the preservation of the purity of the ballot. The free, deliberate, uninfluenced judgment of the people will always be right and just, but corruption at the primary, in the convention and at the polls, stifles freedom of thought, debauches public morals and poisons the very fountains of political power.

The theory of our system is, that its legislative and executive officers reflect the honest judgment of the people; that they represent, and are to carry out, within constitutional limits, that judgment upon controverted questions of principle or policy, as expressed at the ballot-box. But, if election results are becoming "largely questions of finance;" if the employee is to be influenced by the threats or commands of the employer; if the canvass is to be carried on under the shade of governmental influence or the elector menaced at the box by partisan officers; if the wants of the needy and vices of the unfortunate are made the prey of the principled, the system is virtually undermined. The English language has been exhausted in our statute book, to reach and punish every person and conceivable form of bribery, yet, if report be true, we have had, right here, corruption barefaced, shameless and defiant, plying its trade within the very shadow of the Court house, engaged in traffic and barter of votes, in open day upon the public streets, and brazenly boasting of its ability and intention to control the election by the lavish expenditure of money.

It is time a halt was called in this procession of public debasement, and a free, unsolicited, unpurchased nomination is a step in the return to the purer and better methods of the past; it confers not only an honor on its recipient, but imposes on him a duty, even at the expense of personal sacrifices, to respond to the call and assume the candidacy with all its labors and responsibilities.

With grateful acknowledgements to yourselves and the convention which has honored me, I accept the nomination, pledging myself to every active, honest, legal effort for the success of the ticket.

Very truly yours,

ROB'T S. GREEN.

THE OCTOBER STATES

Returns Coming in Very Slowly and Scattering.

The Latest Figures Cut Down to Republican Majority in Ohio.

West Virginia's Democratic Majority Not Settled.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 17.—The official return from Tuesday's election are coming in slowly, at both Secretary of State's and Auditor Smith's, and estimates are made with difficulty. Official figures received, subject to revision, indicate a majority for Foraker of 1,500. The Democratic vote on the state ticket is now put down at 19,607, while the Republicans estimate the majority at 19,792. The Democratic committee claim eleven of the twenty-one congressmen, while the Republican committee still consider the Eleventh district doubtful and say it will require the official returns to decide it.

Official returns have been received at Republican headquarters from Ashtabula and Wood counties, these being the last to report and completing the list. The twelve figures give Robinson a plurality of 11,421 This shows a Republican gain of 28,058, and a Democratic gain of 2,102. In sixty-six counties the Republicans gain on the fall, and the Democrats in the rest. The Republican gain in the rural districts is equal to their plurality. Chairman Ogilvee conceded the election of Ellsberry in the Eleventh district. The delegation to congress will stand: Democrats, 11; Republicans, 10.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 17.—The Democrats cite as indications of fraud that in the Eighth a strong Democratic ward, 100 more votes were cast for governor than for the state ticket, show, and there is some talk of contesting the vote in this and one or two other strong Democratic wards. On the other hand, the Republicans say that they were swindled in the Fourteenth ward, which gave a large Democratic majority. The ballot box is missing. The ward gave a Democratic majority of 250. The Democrats say that Jewett, one of the judges, has it, and will deliver it up in due time.

A local Democratic paper publishes a rumor that a fusion between the Ohio Democrats and Greenbackers was contemplated, and that as the Greenback vote was 29,000, such a fusion would elect Democrats by a majority of the electoral vote. In another column of the same paper the fact is recorded that Ohio Greenback vote amounts to next to nothing. Either Arter strong, of The Plain Dealer, a member of the national committee, was in attendance on a congressional convention when Congressman Foran at the latter's humble residence on State street, and is said by a correspondent that the Democrats sought to enter into a fusion with the Greenbackers even if it would defeat them any good. Congressman Foran said in an address to the people: "We will keep up all our Democratic organizations, and go into the fight in November with greater advantage than in October, because in October we had to go into the Republican camp, including officeholders and all, while in November those outside aids will have all they can attend to in their own states, and it will be a regular fight between the two parties."

TOLEDO, Oct. 17.—It is said that Frank Hurd will contest the election of his opponent for congress on account of fraud.

WEST VIRGINIA.

WHEELING, Oct. 17.—There was never an election in this state after which the returns came in so slowly and so unsatisfactorily. Returns in full have been received from thirteen counties, which give a net Republican gain over Jackson, Democratic candidate for governor, of 1,877.

Returns have been received with considerable fullness from nineteen other counties which show, according to Democratic figures, a gain of 2,000 for the Republicans. Republican figures of 1880. Republican claims that the same counties, show a Republican gain of 3,146 over Jackson, and a Republican gain of 402 giving a total gain of 3,548.

Estimates and complete returns from thirty-two counties give a net Democratic majority of 1,671 in 1884, a Republican gain of 1,765 over Jackson, Democrat, for governor. The real majorities is simply guess work. There is absolutely nothing on which an intelligent estimate can be based.

Reports of majorities sent out are merely guesses. As an instance of the mixed condition of affairs, the two counties of Hampshire and Hardy are striking examples. Advices received from the former county by Republicans show a Republican gain of 1,000. Democratic claim a gain of 100. In Kanawha county Democrats claim 800 gain, while the Republicans claim 200.

CHARLESTON, Oct. 17.—Kanawha, in this county, has a majority for Fulton ranging from 800 to 1,000. Maxwell, the fusion candidate, leaves the county with fully 1,200. Wilson, the Democratic nominee for governor, is said by Republicans that it will Democrats in the county lose all the offices except a few constables and justices of the peace.

WHEELING, Oct. 17.—Maxwell's majority in Putnam county is 570; in Wood, 410; in Fayette, 170. In Tucker county Wilson gets 115 majority. It is now claimed that Wilson will have 5,000 majority for state ticket.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—The World's special from Wheeling says: The figures published by The World on Wednesday morning will be verified when the full returns are in, and Wilson's majority may be put down as a round 10,000. The vote in the fifty-five counties not yet heard from is Democratic the result will exceed 10,000, using the 1880 vote as a basis. They are Boone, Calhoun, Clay, McDowell, Mercer, Pocahontas and Tucker. Ohio county elects a full set of Democratic officials for the first time in sixteen years and by gains ranging from 200 to 700 votes. Democrats will elect assembly and one senator. The lower house will stand: Democrats, 42; Republicans, 28; and the senate, Democratic, 18; Republicans, 11; giving the Democrats $5 on the joint ballot.

Wrestling in Boston.

BOSTON, Oct. 17.—H. M. Dufur, of Marlboro, and John McMahon, of Fairfield, Vt., wrestled best two in three at the Music Hall theatre before 1,800 persons last evening for $500 a side. Dufur won the first fall, and McMahon the second, third and match, by good and fair wrestling. Other exciting contests over witnessed in Boston.

Firemen's Convention.

FALL RIVER, MASS., Oct. 17.—In the third and last session of the State Firemen's association, after several essays had been read, a vote of thanks to Chief Durfee and the city government was passed, and President Damrell was chosen delegate to the National association. The convention then finally adjourned.

THE BLAINE TOUR.

In the Michigan Lumber Districts Yesterday.

MUSKEGON, Mich., Oct. 17.—Mr. Blaine did not arrive at Grand Rapids as announced, at Grand Rapids, and when he did get up he was still tired, worn out and nervebroken. His special train, however, was boarded about 9 o'clock, after a ride of 30 miles from Michigan, stops being made at Grandville, Zeeland, Holland and Grand Haven, at which place large and enthusiastic crowds were in waiting.

Mr. Blaine was received by the most distinguished people. Mr. Blaine kept his compartment very closely and did little or no talking with the people. Mr. Blaine, Gen. Fremont, Gen. Alger and others, the delay in starting so abbreviated the time that the stops were very brief, and a good many did not get to see him at all. Many of those got at some of the stations though the enthusiasm was very great.

The noon halt was made here. There was a large and well-organized demonstration, the party being received by seven uniformed companies and as many as 6,000 people. The party left for Muskegon at 1:30 p. m. Carriages to the Occidental hotel, where speeches were made by Maj. Davis, of Muskegon; Gen. Fremont, Senator Palmer, Mr. Blaine, Senator Conger and Governor Alger. Many of all the speeches was in favor of protection and against free trade, as it especially applied to the lumber interests.

THE DEADLY CARTRIDGE.

The Terrible Effects of a Boy's Plaything.

HAWLEY, Pa., Oct. 17.—A little son of Owen Reilly, living on the line of the new Delaware, Lackawanna & Western road, one side of Pittston, found a detonating cartridge on the railway track. It was one of the kind used for blasting purposes, containing a large and small charge, being an inch and a half long and resembling the metal cap of a load pencil. One-half of the cartridge was empty, and this end was filled with the usual powder and fulminating compound. The boy took the cartridge to his mother and asked her to clean the dirt out of it so he could slip it on his pencil. She took it to a stove, which in her arms. Placing it on a chair she knelt down by it, and with a darning needle began to take out what she supposed was dirt in the cartridge. A spark from the needle on the fulminating powder the cartridge exploded. Mrs. Reilly's thumb and forefinger on her right hand and all of the fingers on her left hand were torn off. A piece of the cartridge buried itself in the baby's cheek, just below the left eye, making a serious wound. Another piece went clear through the baby's cheek and lodged in the opposite cheek. The little girl received a piece of the metal in the forehead, which cut a gash in it. The mother on the fulminating powder the cartridge exploded. A $280,000 DEFALCATION.

The Junior Partner of a Large Chicago Firm Speculates Heavily.

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—The Continental National bank has begun a suit for $280,000 against the large wholesale provision commission firm of Davies, Atkinson & Co., which is the Chicago branch of the Liverpool pork house of John T. Davies & Co. The statement will be published that this suit and one by Mrs. Atkinson, the widow of the junior member of the firm, for $80,000 grew out of an alleged serious defalcation by John A. Atkinson, aged 24, son of the latter, who managed the Chicago house since his father's death. On October 8 Mr. Davies arrived from Liverpool on his annual trip of inspection into the condition of the branch house. After going to his hotel, one of the employes brought him an unsigned and unaddressed letter in what appeared to be young Atkinson's writing, confessing that he was a defaulter to the firm to the extent of $150,000; that he began speculating on the Board of Trade, and, having made money at first, went in deeper, getting on the wrong side of the market in both buying and selling; that at one time he was within a few thousands of being even, when a collapse in prices made him worse off than before.

On the following day Mr. Davies declared the dissolution of the brand firm and began an investigation, which thus far, it is stated, shows a shortage of $280,000 in young Atkinson's accounts, and Mr. Davies believes it will exceed that sum.

A Slave's Horrible Life.

MACON, Ga., Oct. 17.—There is a woman in this city who asserts that she is an escaped Cuban slave. She has a dark brown skin and a peculiar dialect. She said in conversation with the News: "My name is Mollie Young. I was stolen from my home in Louisville, Ky., about twenty years ago by 'Dan' Rice's circus. I was taken to Cuba and sold to a wealthy Spaniard, Jose De Lozada, and was his slave. He owned over 300 slaves. While a slave I was subjected to cruel tortures and atrocious punishment. I was made to draw a plough like a horse, with a harness, and was whipped three times a day, and rubbed with salt and pepper. My food was horrible. I was put into a dungeon that was filled with rats. I have fought for my life in that subterranean tomb, and had over me my cruel master laughing at my frantic efforts. I escaped by a ship going to England. I packed myself in a box of fruit and was days without daring to let people know me. I nearly perished with thirst, and but for banana juice I should have died."

Protection in England.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—The Tories have started a new crusade in the north of England. The chief promoters of the movement are of the extreme protectionist school, whose dogma is that compulsory measures should be adopted against every foreign government in which protection is employed in any shape. Deputations of workmen representing the new propaganda are stumping the mining and iron manufacturing districts, and pointing out the disadvantages to England of the system of bounties given by the governments of continental Europe to manufacturers in those countries. They claim that foreign products are crowding out home manufacturing industries, and berate the English government for its supineness and inaction. They favor retaliation by means of protective tariffs, and point to the distress among the miners and makers as proofs of their assertions.

Murdered Without Cause.

LANCASTER, Wis., Oct. 17.—Frank A. Burton, a broker and commission merchant, and president of the Blaine and Logan club of this city, was shot and killed on Main street last evening by a river ruffian called "Scotty." No motive is known for the cowardly murder. The murderer was at once taken to jail. Burton was shot in a crowd while the Republicans were forming for a grand parade. It was some time before the crowd could realize what had occurred, but as soon as it became known the people rushed toward the jail in a spirit of desperation and revenge. The work, finding that they could not prevail upon the authorities to surrender the prisoner, at 10:45 o'clock procured coal chisels, forced open the doors, and, putting a rope around the murderer's neck, lynched him.

A Female Outlaw.

READING, Pa., Oct. 17.—Emma Graham has been arrested and taken to the Lancaster jail. She has confessed that she has been in the company for some time of the celebrated outlaw, Abe Buzzard, in the Welsh mountains. She also gave the officers a description of the locality in which was a cave, containing silks, satins, velvets, etc., stolen by the band of burglars from various stores. She also says that the majority of the escaped jail-breakers are in that mountain.

The First Snow of the Season.

AUGUSTA, Me., Oct. 17.—A brisk snow storm, the first of the season, visited this place. There was a lighter fall at Portland.

EXETER, Oct. 17.—A snowstorm occurred here about 6:30 this morning. Snow fell quite thick. This was the coldest morning yet.

NORTH BRETTON, Vt., Oct. 17.—The ground is covered with snow to the depth of an inch this morning. The weather is decidedly wintry.

The Republican Campaign.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Several members of the Republican National committee and local committees held a long conference at the Republican headquarters last night. It was understood that the conference was held for the purpose of arranging a programme to be carried out in this city and vicinity during the next two weeks of the canvass.

A Peculiar Cause of Suicide.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 17.—Miss Georgie Peck, who lives in Pearl Snow's house, in this city, hanged herself while Mrs. Snow was last July, committed suicide by taking cyanamm. Ten days ago, a prominent business man of Baltimore struck her in the face, causing a swelling, and the disfiguration and pain drove her to taking her own life.

The Paradise of Absconders.

MONTREAL, Oct. 17.—It is rumored that Blenkiney, the absconding teller of the New York bank, was in Montreal recently. It is said that he was closely watched during his stay. He, however, was notified of the fact by several New York friends, and he left the city hurriedly.

Dynamite on a Race Track.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—Sixteen charges of dynamite and a half formed wire connected therewith were found underneath the grand stand of the race track at Houghton-le-Spring. The stand had been crowded by a large crowd of spectators, the races having been concluded.

China Loses 5,000.

PARIS, Oct. 17.—The official report of the battle of Tamsui give the Chinese loss at 5,000, while the French lost very few men. This fact is dwelt upon by the government organs in order to lessen the effect of the French defeat.

A NEW PAVEMENT.

The undersigned has secured the exclusive agency for the sale of the

Diebold Patent Iron Stone,

which for elegance and durability, is unsurpassed, and in price will compare favorably with any other pavement now in use. It is the most beautiful pavement known for walks and yards, gutter stones, door lining and street blocks. Also used to build fire and floor arches and for lining sewers and for building purposes generally. These pavement blocks have many striking peculiarities—they show no perceptible sag, are non-conductors, repel ice and snow, as well as all kinds of moisture. When dampness accumulates on the ordinary brick, the material remains perfectly dry. Iron 6 inches by 12 inches, weighs 75 pounds. Iron 8 inches by 12 inches, weighs 100 pounds. ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

The Scotch Cap and Military Cloak Story a Fabrication.

Joe Howard Confesses That He Evolved It from the Spectacular Depths of His Journalistic Imagination.

[Joe Howard in Philadelphia Press.]

I had been delegated by the paper I represented to accompany Mr. Lincoln and his family from Springfield, Ill., to Washington, and, of course, I did so. I stood within a yard of him when, in Trenton, he made the memorable assertion that it was time the government got its foot down firmly, and I was with him in Philadelphia when he was comfortably housed in the Continental hotel, where the best people in the city vied with each other to do him honor and pay him the respect so honestly his due. And, by the way, this is about as good a time as any for me to explain the Scotch cap and military cloak story, which long since passed into history, and can be found in all the cyclopedias of the day.

There isn't a word of truth in it. The intention was, after the reception and parade in Philadelphia, Mr. Lincoln and his party reviewing the forelight wide-awakes and bands of music, and attended by thousands, from his rooms on Chestnut street, to go by the early train to Harrisburg, where, on the big plaza, a reception was to be given, and a procession had in his honor, and thence direct to Washington. This plan, however, was thwarted by information brought to the Continental, and communicated, I think, first to Mr. Kingsley and subsequently intrusted to Mr. Lincoln, although the wisdom of that step was then and has ever since been doubted. The information was to the effect that the train from Harrisburg was to be thrown from the track in the hope of killing the president-elect, without regard to the lives or safety of his wife and children and a large number of notables who were accompanying them. Mrs. Kingsley and Lincoln and gentlemen in charge of the party, who were Col. Wood, subsequently superintendent of buildings in Washington; Ward Lamon, subsequently marshal of the District of Columbia, and detective in the secret service by the name of Burns, brother of the Burns who used to keep the Pierrepont house in Brooklyn, kept it all to themselves. It was an anxious night with those people and with Mr. Seward, Jr., who accompanied the detective from Washington and brought the information to the parties interested. The next morning the presidential group started, and a continuous ovation greeted them all the way to Harrisburg, where a very creditable turnout was had with a speech, band, and fireworks accompaniment. I went to my room in the hotel at night, and was preparing my dispatch to wire to Horace when Detective Burns entered the room and locked the door.

I looked at him in amazement, and asked him what he meant. He told me I couldn't leave the room until the following morning. I asked why, and to make a long story short, in spite of my threats and representations of serious embarrassment to me personally and professionally, the conclusion was that I was not to leave until the following morning, as it was for the public good, which he, upon my promise to hold it sacred, explained to me that Mr. Lincoln had already left by a special engine and car, and had gone back over his track in time to catch the evening train from New York, while his family and the rest of the party would continue their journey in accordance with the prearranged programme. He also informed me that the wires had been cut, and that communication with New York was a physical impossibility, but that nevertheless his orders were that none of the newspaper men should leave their rooms that night. I at once wrote a dispatch beginning as follows: "Abraham Lincoln, president-elect of the United States, arrived in the city of Washington," and then proceeded to narrate the circumstances, as unfolded to me by the detective, who, with considerable mystery, said that no one would recognize Mr. Lincoln at sight, and that the plans of the conspirators were fortunately foiled.

I asked myself what possible disguise could Lincoln get in Harrisburg, and, as I pondered, I thought him in a Scotch cap, which would be about as marked and opposite to his high silk hat as one could imagine, and a military cloak, which I borrowed, in my imagination, from the shapely shoulders of Col. Sumner, who was traveling with the president-elect. My dispatch was sent very early in the morning, and, by good luck, reached The Times office just as the day editor had left the room. His first thought was: "Well, this is a pretty time of day for Howard's dispatch to arrive," and, taking it up, mechanically glanced at it. The first sentence hit his attention. Hurriedly reading it, and seeing its importance, he ordered it put up, and an extra gotten out at once. The first thing known in the city by our esteemed contemporaries in special and the public in general was when 1,000 newsboys electrified the town with the extra Times and its astounding revelation of the 6 dollar fool against the choice head of the nation. Immediately the illustrated papers took the matter up, and one and all printed pictures of Mr. Lincoln riding front Harrisburg, arrayed in the aforesaid garb, a Scotch cap and long military cloak. The story was absolutely correct, the trimmings were pure imagination.

Marriage by Mirpence.

[Pall Mall Gazette.]

The future, Mr. Mallock recently reminds us, is all with the large states, and none enterprising people in Berlin have just devised a patriotic scheme for "increasing the German race." A "marriage chamber" has been instituted to "facilitate acquaintance between persons of both sexes with a view to wedlock," and "without regard to position, fortune, age, or creed." If the acquaintance leads to marriage both parties have to engage to pay to the chamber 1 per cent of their annual income. "Parties will do well," the circular adds, "to examine carefully if they possess those qualities that make marriage desirable." The fee demanded by the chamber is strictly moderate—1 mk. for Berliners and 2 mk. for provincials—and if the first acquaintance leads to no result, clients may try again without extra charge. Decidedly, the Germans are a practical people.

From a Magic Grain.

[Chicago Herald.]

A Dakota farmer, in 1861, planted a single grain of wheat in one of his cat fields. From it grew twenty-two stalks, each one bearing a full head. These yielded 680 grains, 720 of which were planted the next year, producing one-fifth of a bushel of splendid wheat. This was planted last spring, yielding an eighth bushel, making 1,000 pounds of wheat from one grain in three years.

Psychological Phenomena.

"What influence has the moon upon the tide?" asked the professor. The class was roused that he did not know exactly what influence it had upon the tide, but that it had a tendency to make the tadpoles restless by day.

IN THE PRINTING OFFICE.

[London Spectator.]

August, your quicksown; time, Six o'clock in the morning;
Date in a line six Ages; irrational; nothing as Raw; no cards as yet, no house, no shred of a Soul, a blank; taste, nil; a thumb but slowly beginning;
Warranted wholly an Ape, a great Jack-ape o' the forest,
Jabbering hairy, grim, arboreal wholly in habit.
So he sate on till Noon, when, hushed in slumber around him,
Everything lay dead; all save the murmurous ring in ear,
Whose small voice still spake, proclaiming silence, awaking
Suddenly then he rose, and thinking scorn of his fellows
Longed to be quit of them all, his Apeus speciality. Slow, dear,
Knew no dream, no vision; her Apeist playing about her
All her thought, her care! At Four he finally left,
Went to live by himself, but felt a pang—
Twas a conscience!
Building, in Small Court went; then stopped to bathe in a fountain;
Wow! What an ugly pair! He saw and shuddered; a Simian
Stirred in his breast. Taste born!—the seed of a mighty idea!
Rafflesiopus, Titanis! Erect he strode through the jungle,
Cleaving his course with a stick;—Art's rise.
At implement maker,
Parent of Armstrong guns, steam rams, et cetera! Still on Plucking the fruits he went; felt pain, no matter the region;
Said it was not the apple, or crab, or cranberry, no! nor
Even the sloe, like a child. He caught it there in the fountain,
Bathing, still in a boat, the water cold o' the coldest.
Glorious Ape!—Logician! not yet a perfect Inductive.
But good, since that way, as good as many among us!
So he went on till eve, when, reached the haven he sought for,
Just where the opening paths sloped westward; then I' the gloaming,
Mounding a nest, facing Him who at the sea in his glory
Set over land and felt; and joining, as in duty bound,
Earth to heaven draw near; he saw, and suddenly trembled;
Sudden his shadow shrank as a rake, and fell from off him;
Sudden a mate was born. He owned a greater above him,
Near him, round him, in him, far away in the silence,
Having a right to rule, and he a duty to serve it.
And this happened at Eight—at Eight p. m. precisely—
On that August day; and if you cannot believe it,
Go to your Darwin; read how an Ape grew a man; and—I will not be insulted,
Was when his soul was not, another, his soul was quickened.
And this made he true, or else—unhappy dilemma—
Men and monkeys both have souls, or Souls have neither. Which
So farewell, Ape-man! Lo we, your progeny, greet you;
Thank you much for such a soul, and—may we never forget it!

Clarified Butter in India.

[Chicago Times.]

An interesting note has been issued by T. N. Mukharji, of the revenue and agricultural department of the government of India, on the manufacture of ghee or clarified butter in India. Mr. Mukharji gives a lucid description of the various methods in preparing ghee in different parts of India, and shows how extensively the product is used by the inhabitants of the country. Ghee ordinarily sold in the bazaar is chiefly derived from buffalo milk, which is usually greater in quantity, thicker in composition, and richer in butter than that of the cow. One quart of buffalo milk will produce the same amount of ghee, while the same quantity of cow's milk does not yield more than half that amount. In the Punjaub and Bombay it is stated that the difference between the quantity of ghee obtained from cow's milk being only one-fourth less than that obtained from buffalo's milk is due to a difference in the nature of the food given to the cow, cottonseed and oil-cake being considered the most nourishing, and producing a larger quantity of butter.

In Bundlecund, Rajpootana, and other wild tracts ghee is made from sheep's and goat's milk, but that of the latter is not liked owing to a disagreeable smell. Undoubtedly ghee made of cow's milk is considered superior to the buffalo ghee for its fragrance and better taste, and from a religious point of view for its greater purity; but it is dearer, not easily procurable, and it is said to be liable to deterioration in a month or two, while the buffalo keeps its good condition for more than a year. Amongst other uses ghee plays an important part in religious ceremonies, burnt offerings of the artificial being made to the fire-god Agni. It is also used by native physicians for medicinal purposes, and is said to possess cooling properties, but it is difficult to procure pure cow's ghee, especially in large towns. Some idea of the importance of the manufacture may be gathered from the fact that it is estimated that 307,000 tons of this product, valued at 8,000,000 pounds sterling, are consumed annually. Ghee is chiefly produced for consumption in India, but a large quantity is exported to countries to the west, such as Persia, Arabia, Zanzibar, China, and other countries in Asia, and even to South America, and to England.

The Omnivorous Goat.

[Atlanta Constitution.]

"Where are my slippers?" yelled Pete as he jumped out of bed and cast the offensives and of a tack, "where are they, I say?"

"I'm sorry, honey," said his wife, "but they were in the back door this morning, and Pinder's goat got hold of them."

"Its old dad he! Well, where are my pants, then?"

"Yes, see Pitsy, I cleaned them up last night after you had retired, and to dry them I hung them in the back yard. This morning I went out there, and, and—

"The goat again, hey?"

"Yes, yes," said she, "he was just getting on the outside of the last stitch."

"Where is my shirt? Is that gone, too?"

Before Mrs. Pete could answer, the door opened, and the reply to his question struck him painfully.

There was a rustled cry, a scrambling, and from on the bed a voice cried:

"And—and—here is my Pitsy!"

"I'm sorry," came the agonized tones of Pitzgober from behind the washstand, "but—but—that goat." Here a dead silence ensued.

On the Beaconsfield Statue.

[Chicago Herald.]

When the inscription, "Twice Prime Minister of England" was devised for the Lord Beaconsfield statue in Westminster Abbey, it was considered very appropriate. They say that the inscription would be better if it had been made to read: "Once a laborer's duck. Twice Prime Minister of England."

At Church in Maine.

At church in Maine the men stand, but the women kneel. Bonnets are not allowed. The women must not gaze at each other's costumes, nor at the brethren. And yet the women attend.

A distressing scene which occurred at the Opera House the other night. Let us hope that he was merely absent-minded, and not malicious.

I Cannot Sing the Old Songs.

[Louisville Courier-Journal.]

I cannot sing the old songs;
The new I learn, you know.
If I should underrate them once
Your tears would overflow.

When bygone hours come o'er my heart
Or present ones inflame,
I thump and thump the ivory,
And shake the picture frame.

But I don't sing the old songs;
I do not howl the new;
I would not raise your dander high
Nor leave you feeling blue.

If I should sing the old songs,
Or new ones agitate,
Who'd keep policemen off from me?
Who'd stay my bloody fate?

The Best Water Cure in Divorce Cases.

[Arkansaw Traveler.]

They were discussing divorce. A colored lady, whose verbosity much dustless of character, said: "Well, I knows dat yer haint allus gib er 'vorce, for sometimes de jedge he jes' look at de case an' say, 'Go home an' gone fishin', but yer ken now' allus git a seperation."

"How?"

"In different ways. I 'spoted de hot water cure. Daniel, my husban', got so strepulous dat I had ter try it on him. I scalded de gineerman, an' he ain't been back sence."

The Sea Yet.

[Texas Siftings.]

"Are you the young widow who advertised that she desired to form the acquaintance of a young gentleman of culture and refinement?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, how long have you had that advertisement in the paper?"

"Ever since you were a young gentleman of culture and refinement."

His Last Scrape.

[Texas Siftings.]

A young man who had "led a rather fast life finally got married to a wealthy but rather warm tempered young lady. After the ceremony was over, his father-in-law said:

"I hope you will not get yourself into any more foolish scrapes."

"No, I guess I'll not get into any more scrapes. I reckon I'll never get out of this one."

A Loud Reason.

[New York Graphic.]

"Let me see, you have two old men, 'our daughter Mary is nearly 30, isn't she?"

"Alas! yes," sadly replied his wife. "I am afraid that Mary is passed by, unfortunately."

"Unless what?"

"Unless you are willing to go to the expense of a coachman."

And Now the Weary Maiden.

[Rutland Herald.]

This is the season of the year when the young lady who is so delicate that she can't do nothing to assist her mother about household duties, can trump about over the hills half a day at a time in company with a broken-down dude in a search after good leaves and yellered trees.

How Ted Found the Father.

[Life.]

A fellow named Teddy Magee, rolling home very late one night from a game of euchre, saw and: "Ah! drunk again, Ted!" "Sho'm I, parson," gurgled Magee.

All the Symptoms.

[Philadelphia Call.]

"In a single game of lacrosse at Toronto, an Indian was knocked down by a player and had a thumb broken, a third injured his collar bone and a fourth his arm. Scrapping several out-and-out fights." Lacrosse must be something like croquet.

The Secrets of Success.

[Transcript.]

Forty years ago a woman opened a needle and thread store in Philadelphia. She is worth $250,000. There is nothing like plain, enterprise, shrewdness and selling brown paper and meat boxes at thirty cents a pound.

Providence News: "Do you are the new girl," said the lady to the new waiter. "And by what name are we to call you?" "Tessie," said the maid, with a saucy toss of her head. "Oh!" said the lady, in a tone that says you the part of great poker: "Yes, I'm the proof that we come between parties." There was a long silence, broken only by the hum of the flies in the milk pitcher.

The Sun.

THE SUN is, and will continue to be, a newspaper which tells the truth without fear of consequences, which gets at the facts, no matter how much the process costs, which presents the news of all the world without sense of ownership for the most reckless share of which it worships with all its heart for the cause of honest government, and which therefore believes that the Republican party must go, and must go in this year of our Lord, 1884.

About sixty million copies of THE SUN have gone out of our establishment during the passed twelve months.

If you were to paste end to end all the columns of THE SUN printed and sold last year you would get a continuous strip of interesting information, common sense wisdom, sound doctrine, and sane wit long enough to reach from Printing House square to the top of Mount Copernicus in the moon, then back to Printing House square, and three quarters of the way back to the moon again.

But THE SUN is written for the inhabitants of the earth; this same strip of intelligence would girdle the globe twenty-seven times with a belt of paper.

If every reader of THE SUN during the passed year has spent only one hour over it, and if his wife or his grandfather has spent another hour, the newspaper in 1883 has afforded the human race thirteen thousand years of steady reading night and day.

It is only by little calculations like these that you can form any idea of the circulation of the most popular of American newspapers, or of its influence on the opinions and actions of American men and women.

If you know THE SUN you like it already, and you will read it with increased diligence and profit during what is sure to be the most interesting year in its history. If you do not yet know THE SUN, it is high time to get into the sunshine.

JOTTINGS.

—Read the Ratzger Club notice among our notices.

—The Music Hall opening programme was from THE NEWS job printing department.

—The R. L. M.'s have undertaken to go to Bound Brook Monday evening. Trade is said to be spreading.

—An excellent house for little folks is offered by a lady on Byron, whose address is K., B 2 box.

—John King, of Chimney Rock, is using his power to operate a stone crusher at Pine Ridge Station.

—The Elizabeth Herald says that McMahon of Rahway attempted to get the Greenback nomination and got defeated.

—According to the Trenton State Gazette the Bound Brook Fire Department will take part in the Firemen's parade at Somerville next Wednesday.

—As no attempt has been made to lynch the young man who is said to have attempted to kiss Mr. Lumley's daughter, it is evident that this a legal law-abiding community.

—We understand that it costs the owners of the steam worked quarry at the north, $1 25 for every ton of stone they crush, for which they receive from the city, $1 per ton delivered.

—The Philadelphia & Reading Railroad steamboat excursion to Cape May on Thursday morning. The building was a dilapidated affair, and $1,000 will probably cover the loss.

—At a meeting of the Classis of Newark, held in Newark on Tuesday, the German church of Plainfield was admitted to that Classis, having previously withdrawn from the Classis of Paterson.

—The next convention in Middlesex county takes place next Monday, in Greer's Hall, New Brunswick, at 11 o'clock, a. m., when the Republicans will nominate a County Clerk, Sheriff and Coroners. The following are aspirants for the nomination for County Clerk: Lewis E. Dunham, of New Brunswick, ex-Sheriff Campbell, of Metuchen, and ex-Assemblyman James H. Goodwin, of Cranbury. As the Democrats have a doctor as a candidate for County Clerk, it is proposed that the Republicans put against him Dr. D. C. E glish, of New Brunswick. For Sheriff the candidates are ex-Sheriff Campbell and Clinton F. Rudolph, the latter of Shelton. James H. Goodwin, and Abraham S. Myrick of South Brunswick township.

Music Hall.

The Music Hall Association deserve credit for having arranged with Mr. Mallory for the original Hazel Kirke Company as the immediate attraction at the Hall. The company is the representative of the Madison Square Theatre of New York, the foremost dramatic organization of the United States. It comprises all of the highest cal t. Mr. C. W. Couldock, the veteran Danbian Kirke, has been before the American public for years, and is without a rival in his line. There are many other well known names in the great cast of Hazel Kirke, such as Mrs E. L. Davenport, wife of the late tragedian. Miss Annie Russell, the original Esmeralda at the Madison Square Theatre, Mr. Charles Edmonds, Mr. Wm. Morris, Mrs. Dolly Pitt, Mr. E. M. Holland, W. B. Cahill and others. Hazel Kirke is without doubt, one of the greatest plays of the country, and its success throughout the United States and Canada for the past several seasons verifies the assertion.

Commemorative of the opening a souvenir will be given every lady attending next Monday evening.

Father Hough on a Couple of Recent Cases.

Plainfield, Oct., 18th, 1884.

EDITOR EVENING NEWS:—The high tariff which locked so fine in the parade of Monday night last, was not all borrowed. The one "worked" by "Barry Billy" or Brainless Dolly," notwithstanding, may have gone to its rightful owner, the seller. "It cried take but owner" is applicable in this case, perhaps. NON BORROWER.

A Democratic Primary.

The North Plainfield Democratic primary was held in the wigwam yesterday to elect delegates to the County Convention. The following were chosen: Messrs. John Bevier, John Bedine, John Wendland, John Bilson, and L. L. Martin. The Convention will assemble in the Court House, Somerville, Monday morning ten at o'clock, to nominate candidates for Senator, Member of the Assembly and Coroners.

Home in the Family.

One of the most popular men in this vicinity is Colonel Julius Scott, the artist. His brother, Dr. Charles W. Scott, of Kansas city, appears by the following from the Kansas City Journal, to be equally popular there. Dr. Scott is a Republican, Col. Scott a Democrat, but all the same, no one thinks any the less of either on that account. The Journal says:

Jackson county is the first county in the State, and has within its borders the second city in the State in point of wealth and population, while it is without a rival in commercial importance. With these attributes, population, wealth and an enterprising commercial metropolis, Jackson county, of course, has a multiplicity of interests that must be legislated upon and that must be looked after with scrupulous zeal and energy at the State capitol, or when the State Legislature is in session.

In other words, Jackson county ought to be represented in the next State Legislature by a people and in the manner that will secure this year of electing a proper delegate to the Legislature by electing the anti-ring candidate for the state Senate and the anti-ring candidate for the House of representatives.

Dr. Charles W. Scott is the anti ring candidate for the State Senate, and he is opposed by that office-seeking barnacle, Judge A. M. Allen. Dr. Scott is a young and vigorous man, he having been born in Vermont in 1849. He is a graduate of the grammar school of his native town, Johnson, Vt., and the normal school of the State, completing his education after the war in the medical department of the University of New York and Bellevue Hospital. During the war, he having enlisted as a musician at the age of 13, he served in a Vermont battery and then in the famous Irish regiment of Massachusetts. He came to Kansas in 1869, becoming in a short time chief bugler of the Irish brigade commanded by the late General Thomas Meagher. He afterward became a bugler in the Army of the Potomac, and was wounded at Spotsylvania, North Anna, and Cold Harbor, the wound of the last named battle necessitating him for service for several months.

After the war the doctor returned to Vermont, began the study of medicine, and after completing his course settled in Boston and established himself in practice. From there he removed to Hartford, Conn., establishing himself in a lucrative practice and became a member of the court of common council at Hartford in which body he served as a city legislator for several years.

The doctor has been a resident of Kansas City for several years and as a State senator he will represent our interests in the leading, as he does, to the prosperous era of Kansas city and Jackson county, and not to the times that his opponent Judge Allen, when Westport was the metropolis of this region of country, and Kansas City, was Westport's landing.

Now Kansas city and not Westport Landing represented in the state legislature, and therefore Dr. Charles W. Scott ought to be sent to the state senate instead of the Democratic candidate, A. M. Allen.

Dr. Scott belongs to the present prosperous era of Kansas City, is a live man, experienced as a legislator, having served for years in the city council of Hartford, Conn., with credit to himself and notable satisfaction to the whole city. He has established for himself an eviable professional reputation, and besides is known as an enterprising, wide awake citizen. Judge Allen belongs to that era when dirt roads were regarded as superior to iron roads and when the clay of Missouri was regarded as a better road bed than cedar blocks on concrete foundations, or imperishable stone pavements like unto the Appian way, for instance; and the judge in his services in the very many offices he has from time to time held, has shown he has never gotten over his early predilections. He might have been suitable as a representative for Westport Landing in 1848, but not for Kansas City of 1884.

The rest of the Democratic legislative ticket is on par with Judge Allen's candidacy, and along with every Democratic candidate for office in Jackson county should be defeated, if the people will regard their interests as they should.

The Democratic Meeting.

Nearly all the seats in the North Plainfield Wigwam were occupied last evening when Mr. Norman, of Jersey City, address d a Democratic meeting. He called on the various members of the campaign, and presided a number of assistants. Mr. Norman was an el quent speaker, and to judge from the applause he received, his remarks were well adapted to those present. Mr. Fred Slater was chosen as Chairman, and D. J. Carney and Wm. Hoffman were chosen Vice Presidents. The meeting was brought to a close about ten o'clock.

Sunday Services.

The four o'clock Gospel temperance meeting in the afternoon under the auspices of the Women's Christian Temperance Union will be held in the Methodist church, Front street. Rev. Mr. Cleaver, Rev. Mr. Tuttle and other interesting speakers will deliver brief addresses. Mr. Dunham's Glee Club will render special attractive music, and it is intended to make this one of the most interesting meetings yet held. A special revival effort will close the exercises. Subject: "What must I do to be saved?"

A Fortunate Discovery.

A new light is thrown on consumption also by Dr. Wagner's Cough Cure. Discover of Kemp's Balsam for its cure is at hand to-day. A person must be proved dead to be a remarkable exception to the rule. Consumption is surely sweeping a hundred victims instantly. Sold by R. J. Stone, Front street and corner Park place.

How to Buy a Horse.

[Rural Record.]

An old horseman says: If you want to buy a horse don't believe your own brother. Take no man's word for it. Your eye is your market. Don't buy a horse in harness. Unhitch him and take everything off but his halter, and lead him around. If he has a corn, or is stiff, or has any other failing, you can see it. Let him go if he is sound a way, and if he staves right into anything you know he is blind. No matter how clear and bright his eyes are, he can't see any more than a bat. Don't bite, too. Some horses show their weakness at tricks in that way when they don't in any other. But, be as smart as you can, you'll get caught sometimes. Even an expert gets stuck. A horse may look over so nice and go a great pace, and yet have fits. There isn't a man could tell it till some thing happens. Or he may have a weak back. Give him the whip and off he goes for for a mile or two, then all of a sudden he stops in the road. After a rest he starts again, but he can't step far or long, and pulling but a derrick could move him.

The weak points of a horse can be better discovered the while standing than when in motion. If he is sound, he will stand firmly and squarely on his limbs without moving them, lest flatly upon the ground, with legs, joints and tendons all right. If the fork is lifted from off ground and the weight taken from it, disease may be suspected, or at least tenderness, which is a precursor of disease. If the horse stands with his hind legs apart, or straddles with his hind legs, there is a weakness in the loins, and the kidneys are diseased. Heavy pulsations in the heart, dullness, milky color of eye in horses indicate moon blindness or kidney disease. A bad tempered horse keeps his ears drawn back. A kicking horse is apt to have sacred legs. A stumbling horse has blemished knees. When the skin is rough and harsh, and does not move easily to the touch, the horse is badly cared for, and digestion is bad. Never buy a horse when breathing organs are at all impaired. Place your ear at the heart, and if a wheezing sound is heard it is an indication of trouble.

Hunting Jay Gould.

[New York Graphic.]

Nelson Morris, of Chicago, is the Hebrew tea millionaire of that city. When a boy he was a laborer on a farm. Some years ago Mr. Gould was in control of the Erie road, and wanted to get every pound of freight on eastern cattle shipments. He sent for Nelson Morris, then a powerful but not a well known cattle shipper as to-day. Morris said that Gould had the best of the Eastern terminal facilities for the cattle. Mr. Gould remembered that a particular burden on his hands were thirty acres of swampy, good-for-nothing land in Jersey City. He converted this into cattle yards and bonded it for $200,000, making the Erie road guarantee the bonds. These he issued as needed each year, which, having no value, was practically distributed free to the cattle shippers through out the west.

He made an agreement in which Mr. Morris was entitled to ship cattle to New York for one year, at the rate of $1 per car. Mr. Morris sent his letters extensively, and soon 1,000 cars were in the yards over the Erie road, at a profit of about $800,00 for the year, which went into his own pocket. At the termination of the contract he sued the road for $500,000 damages for delayed cattle, which Mr. Gould gave him rather than undergo the procedure which the road had secured in the subpœnas. It is said Mr. Gould gave up bonds for cash, but remembered with joy that he had sold his poor land at a clear profit of all it brought.

A PERILOUS SITUATION.

Adrift at Sea and Alone on a Small Yacht.

Kept Busy at the Pumps all the Time—Rescued from a Watery Grave Not a Moment Too Soon.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Mr. Ernest Haug, of Paris, L., the owner of the sloop yacht Ida, and Mr. Eliot Hazard, of Benjamin Franklin, of this city, last week to join him in a three weeks' duck shooting cruise along the Jersey coast. On Tuesday morning as they were both crossing the bay at Barnegat inlet, Franklin, who is only 21 years old, and who studied navigation on the schoolship St. Mary's before he became a clerk in his grandfather's store in William street, took the helm. He carried the yacht ten miles an hour under reefed mainsail and jib until he thought he could get out of the inlet and was standing in the heavy white caps that were breaking with a roar on the Barnegat shoals. Franklin, seeing the end of the gaff, and flung himself against the helm to turn the yacht away from shore. He bore too heavily on the rudder, and the next instant the yacht was broadside on to the breakers, including the yawl boat, the water cask, the two sportsmen and Franklin himself, were tumbled indiscriminately into the Atlantic.

Directly after-ward the yacht righted and started off to sea of its own accord on a starboard tack. Both men could swim, but the water was as cold as ice and the wind blowing like a steam whistle. Hastings and Smith struck out with shivering vigor, and after an exhausting struggle with the big waves caught on to the overturned yawl-and bag. After being unscientifically used by the angry breakers for half an hour, they were finally washed ashore with a rising tide wave. It was near Life Saving station 24 at Barnegat, and they were hospitably received by Capt. Allen Allen. The whole life-saving crew made a search along the beach for young Franklin's body. They came back at dawn unsuccessful.

At 9 o'clock on Tuesday morning the lookout of the steamship Rio Grande, bound for Galveston, caught sight of the Benita tossing the waves. The officer of the watch who was wearily working a pump with one hand, waved a white handkerchief wildly with the other and hoarsely shouted for help. A boat quickly put off to it. As it bumped against the gunwales, Franklin, in his clothes, with two handsome bowing pieces under one arm and a valise under the other, leaped aboard. He turned over his prizes to the steward's horror, and was wrung it for about two minutes.

"You've saved my life," he said. "I thank you, and I'll not forget it."

These hours later the Rio Grande sighted the San Marcos, of the Mallory line, bound for New York city. Franklin hade the Rio Grande boiler put to rights, and, being a good navigator, was transferred to the inbound steamship. Quartermaster Howard, Fey stood on the bridge with Franklin, each leaned his again laden with his arms bowing pieces and his valise. He started back in amazement. Then he rushed forward and seized Franklin's hand.

"Why, Les, I'm glad to see you," he cried; "we haven't seen each other since we were on the St. Mary's together."

Franklin told briefly of the adventure.

"I caught a rope attached to the sail as we went overboard, and clambered aboard when the yacht righted. I tried to beach the yacht, but she shot by me like a bird in the squall. I was swept further out to sea every minute, and soon the yacht began to fill with water from the waves that broke over her stern. It kept me constantly at the pump pretty nearly all the time for almost two days and nights to keep things from going under altogether. The water gained on me, spite of my efforts. It began to look desperate on the last day. Then the engine came faster than I could pump, and the feeling of relief that I had when I saw that steamship for Galveston loom up is a bigger thing than I can express. I'm a happy man."

The yacht from which he was rescued went down while she was yet within sight of the steamship.

Two Women Arrested for Arson.

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—Mrs. Anna Moss and Mrs. Anna Turner, mother and daughter, are in the South Chicago jail charged with arson. They kept a small variety notion store on Commercial avenue, between Nineteen and Ninety-first streets. About 1:30 A. M. Officer Frank Callahan was passing back of the store and noticed a red glare of the two women. "You stand back," said she peremptorily, presenting a revolver as she spoke. "If you don't I'll put a bullet through your head." The smell of burning leather was strong enough to induce him to turn on the alarm. Coal oil had been poured on the floor and ignited. Nearly a milky white eyes in horses indicate moon blindness or kidney disease. A bad tempered horse keeps his ears drawn back. A kicking horse is apt to have sacred legs. A stumbling horse has blemished knees. When the skin is rough and harsh, and does not move easily to the touch, the horse is badly cared for, and digestion is bad. Never buy a horse when breathing organs are at all impaired. Place your ear at the heart, and if a wheezing sound is heard it is an indication of trouble.

DOES THE HAIR GROW

After Death, When It Has Been Severed From the Body?

An Apparently Well Authenticated Case Which Seems to Definitely Settle This Interesting Question on His Own Behalf.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 14.—That hair grows upon the human body after death is a fact as to which but many prominent physicians and scientists have long been agreed. Experts who follow the various ghoulish practices of dressing and laying out the dead bodies for burial, and coffining the professional subjects, have long noticed that a crop of hair growth after death are frequent, and often so palpable that even a novice would not fail to detect them.

A very famous relic in the possession of a Pottsville bookkeeper, a veteran of the late war, was examined by several Philadelphia doctors recently, and appears to furnish conclusive proof that the hair and beard of a dead person does grow after death. The relic was got an end to the growth of hair upon portions of the human body, even after the vigor of the human life has fled. The owner of the famous relic, Mr. Joseph Ward, was a good soldier during the war, and was at the front in some of the hottest engagements of that great struggle. As a member of Company K, 48th Regiment Pennsylvania volunteers, he was in the fight at Cold Harbor. On May 26, 1864, he was struck down by a bullet, which entered the back part of the head. The ball passed through a portion of the brain, and was taken out above the forehead. The operation was performed by Dr. Bell, who was then the medical inspector of the division, who now lives at No. 260 North Twentieth street, in this city. During the progress of the operation a piece of the brain, weighing about an ounce and a half and as large as an egg, escaped. The bullet, to which some of the brain matter and a piece of the skull adhered, was preserved, and upon his departure from the hospital was given to the wounded man, who, in the absence of the surgeon, recovered. He has suffered no inconvenience, and now occupies a responsible clerical position in the Reading railroad office at Pottsville. The piece of brain presented to him twenty years ago at the hospital drew the brain matter and the little patch of scalp had dried up, but a few short weeks ago a small lump began to appear on the latter. The bullet had been considerably flattened, and somewhat resembled in shape a pickaninny's shoe.

As time thus passed Mr. Matthews, who greatly prized this relic, noticed an astonishing fact. The hairs, which at first were scarcely perceptible enough to be noticed, were quite long. Other hairs grew out also until a thick black bunch appeared at the back end of the bullet. At first his friends thought it was a joke, but although he showed the previous relic in June, none of twice he cut off the ends of the growing hair. It continued to grow. About a year ago Mr. Matthews visited Dr. Bell's office and sought out Dr. Buckwood, to whom he exhibited the bullet with its bunch of apparently healthy hair. The surgeon, in the presence of several friends, pulled the hairs as lack of the hair, measured that which remained, bound and sealed up the bullet, and placed it in trusty hands for safe keeping. Recently the package was opened. A careful measurement showed that the hair had grown over an inch since the last had been taken, and Dr. Buckwood said yesterday: "The case is beyond dispute. Apparently without nutrition, upon the dried up particles of scalp and brain, the hair has grown. The fact is interesting, if not so luxuriantly, as it grew upon Matthew's head when he was shot. I recollect the wound, the operation, and the removal of the bullet. He injured my pencil after his remarkable recovery. It seems to me to settle beyond doubt that hair can and does grow upon dead bodies. The fact has stood for years. I have handled it myself, and medical men generally, but the men who have charge of the medical college have never had an opportunity to know. I have every opportunity to know, nearly all declare that they continually witness the proof of it."

Science and Smuggling.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Mike Donovan and Walter Watson, the English boxer, fought with three-ounce gloves for $500 a side at Turn hall, 820 persons being present. The first five rounds showed some very scientific sparring, Watson leading with his left and Donovan apparently sparring for points. The spectators, having seen enough of such work, became clamorous for something particularly after a slugging match in the fourth round the men warmed up to their work, and some heavy hitting was indulged in, Watson forcing the fighting and having decidedly the best of the round and the severest shot far. When time was called Watson was manifestly a defeated man, but the referee declared the fight a draw. In the seventh round Watson, exhausted as he was, showed himself a game and scientific fighter, but the superior generalship, stamina, and science of Donovan were too much odds for him, and Donovan was declared the winner. Blood was drawn in the last round by Donovan's swinging his right and causing Watson over the eye, cutting a gash two inches long.

Gen. Custer Still Busy.

UTICA, N. Y., Oct. 13.—Gen. Butler reached Utica at 7:25 last evening and proceeded at once to the opera house, where he spoke to a large audience. The house was packed, 2,000 people. His points were the same that he has made in several other speeches in several other parts of the country. He was introduced by Mr. H. H. Fish. Several of the most prominent men in the city occupied seats on the stage. It ought not to be necessary for Gen. Butler to appeal to the better, for such is not the case. They represent both the leading parties.

The Week's Failures.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—The business failures throughout the country occurring during the last seven days, as reported by R. G. Dun & Co., of the Mercantile Agency, by telegraph, number for United States 194, against 190 last week, 192, and for Canada, 26, or a total of 218, as against a total of 220 last week, 215, and 208 the week before. There is a fair demand generally, and in the Pacific states, but rather below the average in the other sections of the country.

A Specific For Alcoholism.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—The annual report of the superintendent of the Hot Springs, Ark., the secretary of the interior, states that a new spring, with a temperature of 109 degrees, or three degrees higher than any other known, has been discovered on the reservation. It is claimed that the waters of these springs is a specific for alcoholism and disease resulting from the excessive use of tobacco and opium.

Gen. Logan in Iowa.

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—Gen. Logan will leave this city on Sunday night for Tschumseh, where he will begin his western speaking campaign, covering the states of Iowa, Illinois and Indiana.

Lansing, Oct. 16.—The death of Mr. Lincoln's half-brother, although not wholly unexpected, gave a shock to his friends here. Later reports from Dublin let fall the hope that he might recover. Although his death is deeply regretted in many divergent circles. He was thoroughly trusted and warmly admired by all classes of the Irish nationalist party, and was looked upon by a few members of the small clique which believes in armed resistance and aggressive reprisals as counsel and out of season. He was the author of the Land League Plan. His further acts of violence brought them into the power of the law but kept legal skill and all the eloquence of his tongue and pen at their service in their behalf, generally without pay. His position at the English bar was already enviable, and was daily improving. Among his legal brethren, Mr. Parker Lillerton is his bosom friend for his geniality and humor, while he was always respected for his honesty of purpose, and his fearless devotion to the interests of his client. During the past few months he was repeatedly urged to re-enter political life, but he steadily refused. His former connection with the London Times, however, returned him to parliament at any moment if he would have consented to sit, and at the time of the last election the people of Derry had determined to return him by acclamation as the next general election, despite his repeated protests. Elaborate preparations are in progress for the funeral, the date of which is not thoroughly known. Mr. Sullivan's sister, Ellen Sullivan, is now in Dublin, and will be present. Lord Carlingford

AN OPERA HOUSE BURNED

In a Michigan City—A Steamer on Fire—Other News.

MORTARCH, Mich., Oct. 18.—An theatre, formerly Bigelow's Opera House block, causing a loss of over $60,000. L. L. Bigelow, druggist, loss $30,000; Burroughs & Jones, grocers, $20,000; Mayo & Bell, $15,000. The Lumberman newspaper office, post office, express office and a dozen other places are either burned or badly damaged. The burned block was removed from one-half to two-thirds of the loose.

DETROIT, Oct. 18.—The steamer James Fisk, jr., owned by the Union Steamboat company, of Buffalo, and running in connection with the Erie railroad, between Chicago and Buffalo, caught fire while lying at her dock here. The fire originated among cotton in the staples room, and is not yet under control. The steamer was a freight carrying propeller; was built in Buffalo two years ago, and had a cargo valued at $60,000. She is insured for $40,000 and promptly merchantable. She is valued at $70,000.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 18.—J. T. Card, of this city, a member of the coal mine firm of Card & Upson, has received a special dispatch from Mr. Upson, who is at Shawnee near which the coal mine is situate, that the mine had been fired last Saturday and is still burning, and that the miners who struck when their wages were cut down to fifty cents had held a meeting and notified the owners that they would not allow the fire to be extinguished unless they could be assured that they could be given work at the old rate of seventy cents a ton.

HAMMONDSON, N. J., Oct. 18.—The forest fires are still raging with unabated fury, and unless a heavy rain extinguishes the flames the damage to timber will be enormous, and cannot be repaired by growth, for over a generation. The inhabitants say they have never known so great a drought. For twenty years, and streams through the cedar swamps that were never known to fail are dry. The loss on the bogs is reported as $15,000 to the Atlantic Cranberry company's 275 acres of berry bog burned over. The Lake cranberry bog was also burned.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 18.—The town of Barnesville, on the Central railroad, was laid waste by fire. The depot, the hotel, the telegraph office and the cotton house has been swept away. The telegraph offices with their instruments have been burned up, and connection is cut off. The loss will not be less than $500,000.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The cigar manufactory of Jacoby & Bookman was damaged by fire to the extent of $60,000. The fire will temporarily throw out of employment 400 cigarmakers.

THE NEW CABLE

Not Yet Reached—Its Current Almost a Perfect Acceptance.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The commercial cable is not landed yet, and probably will not be for a day or two. An effort was made to get it ashore last night, but the effort was a failure and came very near being a dire disaster. The coil that was to be landed from the Faraday to the landing place was put on the raft and the tug started to take it in, about 9 o'clock Thursday night. When within a ship's length or two of the shore the raft capsized and everything and everybody was thrown into the water. A number of men were on the raft, but, as usual, were provided with life preservers. If this precaution had not been taken some of them would certainly have been drowned. They were all picked up by the tug and taken back to the Faraday. The two boats supporting the raft floated off and have not been seen since. Nothing more was attempted that night, but the cable was taken up yesterday morning and the work of recoiling it immediately proceeded with. The raft experiment will not be attempted again, but the shore end will be landed on the shore of the bay and left there to-day. Quite a party of gentlemen assembled again yesterday expecting to see the work completed, but waited all day in vain. It excites some surprise that the owner of the Faraday should be so awkward about the landing of the cable, when they had so much experience.

Local Politics in New York.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Senator Gibbs presided over the convention of the county Republicans last night. All the lights of the party were present. On calling the roll of delegates contests were developed in the 3d, 10th, and 16th districts, and a committee was appointed to adjust them. An adjournment was then taken, presumably to await the action of the county Democracy, without any nominations having been made.

A Lesson in a Small Space.

MONTREAL, Oct. 18.—The Montreal Herald, the oldest morning paper in this city, having been established in 1826, is for sale. Under the management of the late Senator Penny it was the organ of the Liberal party, but proved a great financial success. Two years ago it became the organ of the Canada Pacific railway, and to-day it is hopelessly insolvent.

$12,000 for an Arm.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 18.—Christopher Dougherty, manager of the Postal Telegraph company, has an arm in 1877 through the carelessness of the employes of the Missouri Street Railroad company. He brought suit against that company for $50,000, and a special jury in the circuit court awarded him a verdict of $12,000.

Chloroformed in His Bunny.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 18.—George D. Baker, a boarder at Pawtuxet, was chloroformed by two men who overtook him in a buggy at 11:30, robbed of $200 and robbed him of $200. He came out of his stupor in time to flag two of his assailants' team, without effect. Wm. H. Tonge, a railway crossing tender, has been arrested on suspicion of complicity.

Sport.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 18.—The attendance at the national breeders dog show was quite large, and with 324 dogs on the benches of every description, there was much to look at and appreciate. The list included St. Bernards, bull-dogs, fox-terriers, setters, greyhounds, pointers, pugs, spaniels and others of all classes.

Gov. Cleveland Welcomed to the Capital

ALBANY, Oct. 18.—Gov. Cleveland and party arrived here on the 7:45 P. M. train. The governor immediately drove to the executive mansion for dinner, after which he went to the capital for an hour or two's work. He is feeling well, and is much pleased with his visit to New York and Brooklyn.

Perhaps Fortified.

SNOWDRAM, Me., Oct. 18.—The trial of J. F. Walker for the murder of A. R. Dingwell in June last was brought to a close here. The jury failed to agree. Walker, who had just been married, fired out of a window at a party who were serenading him and his bride and killed Daggett.

Fatal Hog Cholera.

LANCASTER, Pa., Oct. 18.—Hog cholera is prevalent in East township to an alarming degree. Samuel Coldren had twenty-five animals. Jack Richmond three, and many others have suffered loss.

A NEW PAVEMENT.

The undersigned has secured the exclusive agency for the sale of the

Diebold Patent Iron Stone,

which for elegance and durability, is unsurpassed, and in price will compare favorably with any other pavement in the market. It is the best pavement known for walks and yards, gutter stone, door sills and street blocks. Also used to build fish and freight proof vaults; not for building purposes only, but for keeping meats and provisions in. Peculiarities—They show no perceptible wear; no sun-cracks or frost; are not affected by acid in any kinds of manure. When dampened with oil the colors of the natural remains perfectly fast from all. These stones are about 1 1-2 the size of iron ing and are the lowest of minimum 3-pc-inch on application at Warner's Fancy Store, opposite Stillman Music Hall. PROMINENT PERSONS.

How They Look and How they Acquired Fame.

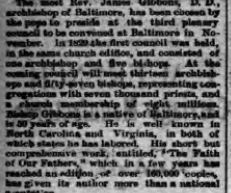
Archbishop Gibbons, W. W. Corcoran, Joseph Harkness, C. W. Goulduck, Admiral Porter, Frank Hatton and Others.

ARCHBISHOP GIBBONS, OF BALTIMORE.

The most Rev. James Gibbons, D. D., archbishop of Baltimore, has been chosen by the pope to preside at the third plenary council to be convened at Baltimore in November. In 1829 the first council was held in the same church edifice, and consisted of one archbishop and five bishops. At the coming council will meet thirteen archbishops and fifty-seven bishops, representing congregations with seven thousand priests, and a church membership of eight millions. Bishop Gibbons is a native of Baltimore, and is 50 years of age. He is well known in North Carolina and Virginia, in both of which states he has labored. His short but comprehensive work, entitled, "The Faith of Our Fathers," which in a few years has reached an edition of over 100,000 copies, has given its author more than a national reputation.

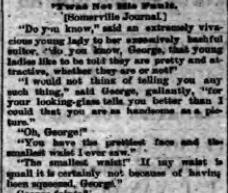
WILLIAM W. CORCORAN.

Mr. W. W. Corcoran, who founded the gallery of art at Washington, is nearly eighty-five years old, but he walks with a firm step and his eyes are as bright as when he was President Polk's financial agent at the time of the Mexican war. Mr. Corcoran's father was born in Ireland, emigrated to Georgetown, but in time shoemaking prospered with him and he became mayor of the place, and his son, William W. Corcoran, married the daughter of Commodore Morris, of the navy. Mr. Corcoran, the millionaire, made his first big stroke, as far as money is concerned, in supplying the United States with funds to fight the Mexican war. Since then he has been one of the rich men of Washington, and he counts his money now, it is said, by tens of millions. He owns property all over Washington, is the proprietor of the immense Corcoran building just opposite the treasury, and is the owner of the Arlington hotel. He has a fine mansion just opposite the White house and within a stone's throw of the Corcoran Art gallery. He gives away, it is said, not less than three million dollars in public benefactions and one million dollars in private charity.



FRANCIS HATTON.

Mr. Hatton who has been so frequently mentioned for the office of postmaster general, received his commission as first assistant postmaster general while postmaster at Burlington, Iowa, in 1881, he being a prominent "Stalwart" in the politics of that state. He is proprietor and was nominal editor of the well-known Burlington Hawkeye. Since his advent in Washington he has been interested in The National Republican. He was appointed by President Arthur on Oct. 14th to his present position.



JOAQUIN MILLER.

A more amazing combination of great ability, eccentricity, vanity and other failings could scarce be found than is developed in Cincinnatus Hiner Miller, better known as Joaquin Miller. As a writer few excel in the quaintness of conception, brilliancy of imagination and fluency of diction. Both in prose and verse he displays an original style which is exceedingly pleasing. The stories of his eccentricity are often incredible. Long after he had acquired fame and fortune he cultivated a tramp-like appearance, his red shirt, long hair and unpolished cowhide boots being a source of much annoyance to his admirers. The recent cutting of his hair and beard has been announced, and we present his portrait as he now looks. He married Miss Minnie Theresa Dyer, a western poetess, in 1863, but they were divorced in 1870. He is at present married to a lady of the Leland family, of Scotch fame, and has a most beautiful daughter. Home life has little attraction for him, as he has constructed a log cabin on the heights, near Washington, and lives there alone.

CHARLES WALTER COULDOCK.

Mr. C. W. Couldock who will shortly celebrate his seventieth year and the fiftieth of his stage career, was born in Long Acre, England, in 1815. He first appeared in Othello, at Saddlers Wells theatre, London, in 1833, came to America and played in 1850 at the Old Broadway theatre, New York, since which time he has been a constant follower of the stage. About five years ago Steele Mackaye found him playing the character of Duncan Kirke in a play called "The Iron Will." Mackaye remodeled the piece, calling it "Hazel Kirk," with Mr. Couldock still in the ascendant of "Duncan." He played it for at least 250 times each year, during the past five years.

He Was Too Near the Grave to Lie.

[New York Sun.]

A feeble old darkey shrieked painfully in.

"Boss," he said, "I'se an ole, ole man. I was born on Washington's ribbed dar mos' on to ninety-eight year, an' I want yo' ter sarch my ole mattrick, boss, at yo' pleas, sah."

"You knew George Washington, of course?"

"No, sah, I nebber said him."

"What! You lived in Virginia ninety-eight years and never saw George Washington?"

"Dat am er fac', boss. I'se a house ole man, an' am too far gone in dis worl' for to tell er lie. I nebber seed young George, but Lor, sah, he got ole grandfather an' grandmaddor yeas ter think a pow'ful sight ob young boy."

Not in Charges, We Hope.

[Philadelphia Call.]

Mary Elles Chase says there will be three women to one man in heaven. Something like a fashionable summer resort, perhaps.

ADMIRAL DAVID D. PORTER.

A quiet, reserved gentleman of 78 years is the admiral of the United States navy. His eyes are still bright, his voice is soft and his body destitute of the bodily injury ordinarily supposed to attach to jolly old sea dogs. His face is bronzed and his hands large and knotty, but soft in texture. To relieve the monotony of the not over-burdensome duties of a present naval commander, the admiral has written a society novel, which is said by those who have read it "will be but another illustration of his versatility, he having already achieved a reputation as a brave naval officer, a historian, an inventor, an engineer, a writer of scientific and naval explosives, the designer of an ingenious and formidable submarine torpedo boat, besides being somewhat of a politician. Admiral Porter is the son of Commodore Porter, was born in Philadelphia, served in the war with Mexico and the war of the rebellion; for distinguished services in the latter war he was made rear-admiral in 1865, was promoted to vice-admiral in 1866, and succeeded Admiral Farragut as admiral in 1870.

[illegible] What a flash a cab's boot paint on the town rut, he very seldom sees water colors

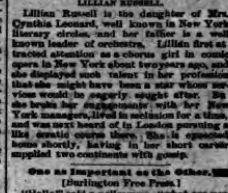
LILLIAN RUSSELL.

Lillian Russell is the daughter of Mrs. Cynthia Leonard, well known in New York literary circles, and her father is a well known leader of orchestras. Lillie first attracted attention as a chorus girl in comic opera in New York about two years ago, and she displayed such talent in her profession that she might have been a star whose services would be eagerly sought after. So she broke her engagement with her New York manager, Edward Harrigan, and a time and was next heard of in London pursuing a like caustic course there. She is expected home shortly, having in her short career supplied two continents with gossip.

One as Important as the Other.

[Burlington Free Press.]

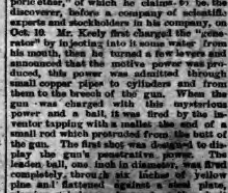
"Hallo!" said a policeman, "what are you sitting out here in the cold for? Why don't you go in the house? Have you lost the key?" "No," replied the benighted citizen, "I—I—haven't lost the key. I've—he—lost the keyhole."



THE KEELY MOTOR GUN.

We present herewith an accurate picture of the gun Mr John W. Keely, of Philadelphia, constructed to exhibit a power, "vesporic ether," of which he claims to be the discoverer, before a company of scientific experts and stockholders in his company, on Oct. 10. Mr. Keely first charged the "generator" by injecting into it some water from his mouth, then he turned a few levers and announced that the motive power was produced, this power was admitted through small copper pipes to cylinders and from them to the breech of the gun. When the gun was charged with the mysterious power and a ball, it was fired by the inventor tapping with a mallet the end of a small rod which protruded from the butt of the gun. The first shot was designed to display the gun's penetrative power. The leaden ball, one inch in diameter, was fired completely through a solid oak plank, yellow pine and flattened against a steel plate, plowing a hole as clean-cut as though it were bored with a auger. The wave shots were fired at the same receiver to illustrate the [illegible] rather than the penetration. Even the bullets was flattened out against the receiver, as this was a better cake. Mr. Keely has either discovered a wonderful motive power, or he is the most skillful juggler of the age.

The Drummer's Candidate for President.



ROBERT MCLEANTOCK.

The candidate nominated for the presidency on October 3 by the drummers assembled in national convention in Louisville, Ky., is a native of Pittsburg, Pa., and has 20 years of age through connection to Mrs. Belva Lockwood he does not claim to be the youngest candidate. Mr. McLeantock enjoys his reputation seriously, of being a very successful drummer, and humorously of being the champion liar of the United States. He enjoys this distinction from the fact, as he himself states—"that no one else wants to be a liar," and it was the only niche he could find unoccupied in the great temple of fame. That he has ostrivalled Thos. P. Ochiltree, Eli Perkins, and all the other noted liars in this country, he has to the task that he will not yet set forth in all seriousness, backed up with scientific facts and figures; the time and place being so admirably arranged as to deceive the sharpest editor. His wonderful stories of caves, mastodons, subterranean rivers and seas, of strange wild animals, have been published and copied in the story papers of the country, ranking in Texas, barring a village of Mexicans and imbedding itself, red hot and steaming into the earth for 900 feet, and sending up a column of fire and smoke (natural) over the whole civilized world; and brought together from scientific bodies everywhere, for fighting facts, and samples of the great meteor. Mr. McLeantock's fictions are composed while traveling and inflicted on the paper of the next town he visits. Socially Mr. McLeantock is highly esteemed and popular; a member of the Presbyterian church, and one of Louisville's most useful and respected citizens.

STORE TO LET.

The Sun.

THE SUN is, and will continue to be, a newspaper which tells the truth without fear of consequences, which gets at the facts, no matter how much the process costs, which presents the news of all the world without waste and in the most readable shape, which is working with all its heart for the cause of honest government, and which therefore believes that the Republican party must go, and must go in this year of our Lord, 1884.

About sixty million copies of THE SUN have gone out of our establishment during the passed twelve months.

If we were to paste end to end all the columns of THE SUN printed and sold last year you would get a continuous strip of interesting information, common sense wisdom, sound doctrine, and sane wit long enough to reach from Printing House square to the top of Mount Catskill on the Hudson, then back to Printing House square, and three quarters of the way back to the moon again.

But THE SUN is getting for the inhabitants of the earth this year 365 times as much as that. The globe twenty-seven or twenty-eight times.

If every buyer of THE SUN during the passed year has spent only one hour over it, and if his wife or his grandfather has spent another hour, this newspaper in 1883 has afforded the human race thirteen thousand years of steady reading night and day.

It is only by little calculations like these that you can form any idea of the circulation of the most popular of American newspapers, or of its influence on the opinions and actions of American men and women.

If you know THE SUN you like it already, and you will read it with acrimonious diligence and profit during what is sure to be the most interesting year in its history. If you do not yet know THE SUN, it is high time to get into the number.

CHRONOLOGICAL EVENTS.

Battle of White Plains, 1776.

JOTTINGS.

—Hans I Kirke to-night.

—Is Uncle Billy any relation to Beery Billy?

—There is a great demand for tickets for the performance this evening.

—The Vomsller Guards received their new uniforms Saturday night.

—Committees have been appointed to provide refreshments for the visiting clubs in the Republican parade next Thursday.

—Mr. R. H. Perkins of Park avenue, has a crazy quilt, presented to him by his sister the silk in which is said to have cost $70.

—At a Democratic meeting in Hotel Hall Westfield, Saturday evening, Judge Wadsworth and J. E. Martine of this city made ad dresses.

—Michael Gallagher was arrested by Policeman Kelly and McCue, for drunk and disorderly conduct Sunday evening. His was $4 and $10, which he paid Judge Good and was released.

—A shooting match between Plainfield's local sportsmen took place at Campbell's Club House on Saturday afternoon at which one hundred and fifty pigeons were shot.

—James Tyrrell, for drunkness and disorderly conduct and breaking window glass, was arrested by Policeman Kelly and McCue, Saturday evening, and was given sixty days by Judge Good.

—Charles Borden of Doylestown, Pa., at present stopping in North Plainfield, won the half mile race at the Oxford Rink Saturday afternoon. Time, 2.45. He captured thereby the prize—a pair of roller skates.

—Ex-Sheriff Disbrow can probably show a lower record as Postmaster than any in Middlesex county, if not in the State. He was appointed Postmaster of Old Bridge by Andrew Jackson, and has held the office ever since.

—The widow of "Pet" Halstad, who was murdered in Newark about six years ago in a house of questionable repute and made such a sensation because of his prominence as a politician, died in Rahway last Tuesday.

—The slate roof of French's carriage factory is undergoing repairs. As this factory are made as elegant conveyances as can be found any where in New York or this State for the prices, in many instances the price being much less.

—Mr. H. S. Bilyou, of North Plainfield, is about leaving for South Florida, where he will make his home for some time to come, he having formed a partnership with a gentleman there for the extensive cultivation of tropical fruits and vegetables.—Somerville Messenger.

—The Belva Lockwood club of Rahway, whose uniform consists of polka bonnets, Mother Hubbard dresses, and striped stockings are to have another parade this evening in that city. They are receiving many invitations from other cities but feel now that do not contain definite proposals. No flirting for them.

—"Our" banner was swung to the breeze this morning. It is said to be the most handsome in town. It is another evidence of our prosperity. It reads thus: "The Evening News". Job Printing. It is a sign 4x8 feet, with a circular top, gilt old style R-man letters, with a maroon border on one side and Gothic Tuscan letters with a maroon Japanese border on the other. It was painted by Mr. David Runyon, a leading Plainfield sign writer.

"Cap" Don't Like Independents.

EDITOR EVENING NEWS:—I received an invitation to attend a meeting in Van Deventer's Hall on, Saturday evening. I went. I found the door shut, opened it wide, and lo and behold! I saw a motherless crowd there. They I closed as though they were about to visit somebody's home soon. All eyes were on me in a moment. Great globules of sweat broke out on their foreheads. Their teeth chattered like the bones of a grave yard. One of them rushed forward, and slammed the door in my face, saying that they had private business. I should think they had, dividing up the spoils I suppose. I turned to go down stairs and I saw a colored gentleman, and he laughed out and said, "Golly" B se, dey served you worse dan me, for dey invited me in. I asked him why he didn't go in, and he replied, "what, me go in dar among dat lower middle crowd. They would spoil and demoralize the worst negro that ever come from the South." I whooped-em-up and told them that they couldn't beat James G. Blaine, John A. Logan and John Kean, Jr., and departed.

Temperance Matters.

A large and interesting meeting was held in the Methodist Church by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union on Sunday afternoon. Excellent addresses were made by Rev. Mr. Chaver, Rev. Mr. Raymond, Mr. Seely Edsall who also conducted the meeting, and others. These meetings are productive of much good and highly enjoyed by those who attend them.

The Reform Club meeting at Trinity Reformed Church Sunday evening, is considered one of the very best ever held. President French presided and addresses were made by Rev. J. L. Hartlon, Rev. Dr. D J. Yerkes, Dr. Pints and Secretary Frank Dodge, resulting in twelve persons signing the pledge, among them Judge Runyon. The church was packed to its utmost capacity.

A song and service temperance meeting was held at the Methodist Church, at Bonnardsville last evening. The music was under the charge of the Rev. F. A. Mason, the pastor, and was truly very impressive and showed much culture and practice on the parts of the participants. The speaking was under the auspices of the Reform Club League of New Jersey. James R. Perrine and the Secretary R. S. Manning spoke and 10 responses received the names of 74 to the pledge. Although the meeting was a success and gave a fine impetus to the temperance. A large number was present from Liberty Corner, where 105 persons were secured at a meeting on the preceding Sabbath.

A large and select audience attended the temperance meeting held in Masonic Hall, Westfield, on Monday evening. Rev Dr. Martin presiding. The speakers were Messrs. Thomas C. Price, Jas. Johnson and Mark Lowe of the Reform Club of this city, who had been invited by the President of the Woodbridge club. The audience felt deeply interested in the remarks of the speakers, and twenty-five adults signed the pledge, among the number a very hard drinker, formerly of Plainfield. The speakers were cordially invited to visit Woodbridge again at some future day.

Plainfield Independent Republican Club.

A circular with the above caption was quietly circulated about town last week and pursuant thereto a silently attended meeting was held in VanDeventer Hall Saturday evening to complete the P. I. R. C's. organization.

Annexed is a copy of the circular:

To Republicans and Independents, not members of the Democratic party:

The following call for a meeting of gentlemen held at Laing's Hall, October 13, 1884:

The following officers were elected:

President, Messrs W. Tyler, Vice President, S. St. J. McCutcheon; Secretary, E. F. Miller; Treasurer, Charles A. Ayres; and an Executive Committee consisting of the following gentlemen: E. G. Pearson, J. F. Judge, C. O. Wyckoff, S. Chapman, Jr., W. S. Revell, L. L. Miller, H. F. Talmage, Augustus Van Deventer, W. D. Murray, J. E. Christman.

The Executive Committee was instructed to prepare an address to be submitted to the Club at a meeting to be held at Van Deventer Hall on Saturday evening October 18th, at eight o'clock p. m., at which time and place you are invited to be present.

By kindly extending this invitation to such of your friends as may deem it worthy to think favorably of it, you will confer a favor.

Any person becoming a member of this Club, shall not thereby be deemed to pledge himself in toto for any particular candidate. Extract from Constitution.

For the Club,
Rew. F. Milleken, Sec.

Personal.

Miss Louisa Giller, of Westfield, aged 20 years, daughter of George and Emily Gilby, died of consumption last week.

To-morrow, Mr. George E. Sanders of North Plainfield is to be married, the happy bride is to be Miss Kate Riley, of Flatbush, L. I.

The family of Dr. Schabsberg, who made such a glowing address at the Republican meeting on the 4th of last October last Wednesday, are at present staying at 11 East Front street.

Mr. Manning Vermeule is still an invalid from the effects of an accident by which one of his legs were fractured last March. A week or so ago he had another fall in front of his store on Front street, which somewhat aggravated his suffering. He remains by the assistance of his attendant to get to his store a few hours every day and meet his old friends.

Miss Annie B. Orton, of Westfield, has been selected by the committee of citizens as principal of the new private school of that place, and the school will open at once. Miss Orton is a graduate of Vassar College, a daughter of the late Prof. Orton of that college, and she has been a highly successful teacher. Prof. Orton was killed while on a scientifical expedition in Brazil. Miss Orton's assistant will be a graduate of Wesley College.

The World has evidently made some mistake. It would be about as easy for THE NEWS to get any accurate information in Plainfield such as is requested, as it would be for The World to get it about New York.

Misleading.

EDITOR EVENING NEWS:—A statement in this last issue of the Central Times in regard to the action of the W. C. T. U. of Plainfield may be calculated to mislead the public. The W. C. T. U. are to full sympathy and always endeavor to use their influence with any movement, which shall tend to suppress intemperance and most promote our homes.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

[SPECIAL TO THE NEWS.]

Somerville, N. J., Oct. 20.—The Somerset County Democratic Convention met here today. Although called for the o'clock, it was delayed before Chairman Voorhees, of the county committee called the delegates to order and the convention organized by the election of George E. Pace as chairman.

Mr. Pace made a somewhat lengthy speech, thanking the convention for honor conferred and counseling harmony.

Mr. T. W. Frack was elected Secretary, and the townships were called for the list of delegates. Those from North Plainfield were John Bilsan, John Becker, Jr., John Bodine, L. L. Martine and Henry Woodland.

Committees on rules, resolutions and credentials, consisting of one delegate from each township, were on motion appointed by the chairman.

A motion to take a recess until 1:30 was made and lost.

Nominations for State Senator were then called for and made, as follows: John N. Bartles, Andrew Laing, James J. Bergen.

A resolution to close the nominations was made and discussed at some length. It was finally withdrawn, and George W. Vroom was placed in nomination.

A motion to recall the townships for further nominations was lost.

The convention then adjourned until two o'clock.

MIDDLESEX REPUBLICAN CONVENTION NOMINATIONS.

[SPECIAL TO THE NEWS.]

New Brunswick, N. J., Oct 20, 2 p.m.

The Republican County Convention was called to order by Howard Valentine, chairman of last convention, in Greer's Hall, at 11.30 o'clock, a full delegation being present. Milton Edgar of Perth Amboy was elected permanent chairman.

After the transaction of routine business, Willard P. Voorhees of New Brunswick was nominated for County Clerk, and ex-Sheriff Charles C. Campbell of Metuchen for Sheriff.

Both nominations were by acclamation and were unanimous.

Resolutions were adopted endorsing Blaine and Logan for the Presidency, and John Kean, Jr., for Congress. Also condemning the Board of Freeholders for recklessness in expending public money, particularly in the case of the prosecution of Levi D. Jarrard, which cost the county nearly $10,000, in addition to the $60,000 stolen.

The convention took a recess at 12.30 until two o'clock this afternoon when nominations for coroners will be made.

A Prohibition Meeting.

EDITOR EVENING NEWS:—At the Prohibition and St. John meeting at Rahway on Saturday evening the large opera house was packed to overflowing, there being about three thousand people present, made from all parties, and a more orderly meeting I scarcely ever saw for a meeting of the kind. St. John made one of his telling speeches in a most gentlemanly way, not abusing any party or person. In the midst of his speech he halted and said: "Is there any person in this audience that voted for James G. Blaine; if so, will he stand up on his feet?" One man on the rostrum, from Plainfield, arose, and then three more in the audience. "Please stand a few moments. Did you throw away your vote in so voting?" An emphatic "No" was the response. "No, you did not; but you elected a principle, and from that principle came the Republican party, and had it not been for that principle there never would have been a Republican party, and slavery would not have been abolished to this day. So with us Prohibitionists, if our candidates are defeated, we elect a principle that will live and finally triumph, vote."

There is the matter in a nut-shell; and if partisans cannot see it now, they must eventually; for right principles never die; but must eventually prevail. So don't be unsettled over this question, dear partisan friends, but let your valued drink a little deeper at the fountain of pure knowledge of justice, humanity and the principles of Jehovah, and all will in the end come out well. So mote it be.

The Hon. Mr. Cater, the Hon. Mr. Schafer, the editor of the New York Witness and others followed Mr. St. John, making telling speeches that brought forth cheering and acclamations that seemed to sanction the truths by them established.

One Present.

Vote of Thanks.

EDITOR EVENING NEWS:—We desire through your columns to thank those who assisted at the Plainfield Turn Verein's Fair, recently held at Ryder's Hall. Through their efforts, we were enabled to make the fair a great success.

"NOW I LAY ME."

When I pass from earth away,
Pulsed the' I be and gray,
May my spirit keep as young
That my failing, faltering tongue,
Lisp that prayer so dear to me,
Whispered at my mother's knee:

"I lay me down to sleep"—
Passing to eternal rest
On the loving parent breast.

"I pray the Lord my soul to keep"—
From all danger safe and calm,
In the hollow of His palm.

"If I should die before I wake"—
Drifting with abated breath
Out from slumber into death,

"I pray the Lord my soul to take,"
From the body's chains set free,
Sheltered in eternity.

Simple prayer of trust and truth,
Taught me in my early youth.

Let my soul its beauty keep
When I lay me down to sleep.
—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

THE WISH-BONE.

Slender and shining, prophetic bone,
We pulled it the future to divine;
Her bare pink palm, the bit in my own,
Told that wish and wish-bone both were mine.

"What did you ask for?" whispered my Rose.
Looking up shyly with eyes so true.
"I asked," I answered, drawing her close,
"The woman I win might look like you."

Her eyes as brown as a forest brook,
Her cheek as pink as a sea-shell's tint,
A lover so true, and a nature of spirit,
And pale brown hair with a golden glint:

"In short, that my future wife might be
You, dear little Rose, and only you."
Hiding her face in my breast, said she:
"Isn't it funny!—I wished that too."

GOOD-BYE SWEETHEART.

Good-bye sweetheart! The quaint old phrase,
We jested at in olden days;
When Faith was fresh and hope was strong,
Before we knew Love could be wrong.
Or not our feet in Sorrow's ways.

Now we have learned how Trust betrays;
And bitter doubts and terrors throng
The words half dear when all were young
Good-bye, sweetheart!

Oh, soft refrain of idle song,
What memories lurk in you among!
For we no hope in you can see,
With eyes all dim with boding haze,
Our faltering lips delay it long,
"Good-bye, sweetheart ——

PUTTING IN THE KNIFE.

The Latest Phase of the War of the Trunk Lines.

Erie Attempts to Stem the Current. The Pennsylvania Grows Loud Move—Fears that a General War is Imminent.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Efforts were made by the officers of the Erie railroad to secure action on the part of the other trunk lines that will confirm the cut on local passenger rates between the West Shore and the New York Central which limits that would not affect through rates to the west. General Passenger Agent Abott, of the Erie, consumed with the managers of the other lines, but he declined afterward to say what was the ultimate decision reached. It is understood, however, that no definite answer was given by the West Shore or the Central to the basis for the proposed cut that had been figured upon. It is claimed in behalf of the Erie that it wishes to eliminate as far as possible the element of local warfare from the conflict with trunk competition. A friend of the company said: "We want to conserve revenue, and there is no reason why a slaughter of local rates by the Central and West Shore should demoralize through fares to the West. Let us aim to fix a rate to the west which shall be uniformly in may be the privilege of those who have anything you please—but let it be a figure that all lines with abilities, without regard to the present cutting within the limits of the local competition."

A considerable doubt was expressed by experienced railroad men of the success of the Erie's negotiations. It rests upon the question whether the Grand Trunk of Canada will refuse through facilities to the West Shore if necessary to compel it to adopt the proposed "local cut." Should the Erie withdraw such a radical step by the Grand Trunk, there is no reason why the West Shore should not sell tickets to Chicago for $10, provided it has proportionate rates to the west through rate due to its western connection. The West Shore managers are satisfied that the ticket brokers have not done the business for them in the last day's war, but are also pushing of trade at their own offices, and they think they can get as much business as they can handle. Independent policy as by dealing with brokers. Every ticket sold over the West Shore counters is a clear gain; to meet the rates made by the West Shore, the Central competition will sell "scalpers" the other trunk lines have to allow the latter a commission, which reduces their net receipts.

[1] Pending the negotiations begun by the Erie the rates to Chicago were not cut below $14 for first class, and $ 275 rate as far as possible was obtained from customers at the office of the brokers. Rates to other points were proportionately maintained. The New York Central, however, met the 50 per cent. reduction made in New York local rates by the Central, and the passenger business was done as all the competing offices. It is understood that the New York Central will follow the West Shore in any excursion into Africa it chooses to make, however, and that the cutting on both local and through rates is confined by the roads affected, excepting the West Shore, to "scalpers" opinion. The Pennsylvania railroad is still maintaining its tariff. The reason for its firm stand is said to be the fear that a cut in New York would demoralize Philadelphia rates to Chicago and Baltimore, while it is sure of a certain volume of travel at almost any rates against competition.

The New York Central and Hudson River railroad company announced that, in order to afford its patrons as low rates as are offered by competing lines to the west, it will commence on the to-day, as a test of its rates in this city, of first and second class tickets at reduced rates to all points in the west, the rates to Chicago to be fixed at $10.00 for first class and $14 for second class; to Cincinnati $15 first class and $14 second class; to St. Louis, $19 first class and $16.50 second class, with corresponding reductions to other points.

The Troy boats reduced the fare to Troy to $1, berth included.

Rates Not Cut to Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 20.—What about the $3 passenger rate between this city and New York?" was asked of General Passenger Agent Hancock, of the Philadelphia and Reading railroad company.

"What is nonsense," he replied; "we have not made such a rate, and there is none such in existence."

"But it is announced that the Baltimore and Ohio company is selling your tickets at that figure. Can't it do what it pleases with them?"

"Indeed it cannot. The Baltimore and Ohio company is simply our agent, and must sell tickets at our rates."

Upon application at the Pennsylvania railroad main office it was learned that there had been no cut in that quarter, and there was not likely to be.

An Open War Expected.

BOSTON, Oct. 20.—An open railway war is considered inevitable. The impression is well posted says that he thinks rates to Chicago will, within a few days, drop to $5. The West Shore, it is said, allows "scalpers" a commission of $7. This price now means all the lines really depends upon the buyer. If a number enter an office to get the lowest figure, they will not be allowed to leave on account of price.

Low Rates as Missiles.

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 20.—In the chancery court room, during the progress of a litigation in which Judge Thomas F. Hargis, ex-chief justice of Kentucky, was counsel of appeared for the defence and Col. Bennett H. Young, president of the Southern exposition, was introduced to Judge Hargis by some one. Col. Young the inspiration of a certain paragraph in a morning paper. Col. Young called Judge Hargis an infamous liar. Judge Hargis, in reply, called Col. Young a coward. Blackstone at the colonel's head. Col. Young returned the fire, and after a vigorous fusillade of law books had caused a stampede in the court room, the belligerents and spectators came together and fought a sharp and close mill for ten minutes. Then they were separated by an officer of the court. Neither was seriously hurt. The fight created a great sensation on Main street and at the clubs.

A Peculiar Method of Revenge.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 20.—Proceedings in the Bigelow will contest began by the scheme of the eccentric Welch millionaire to set up as an author and refute the doctrines of Henry George as brought out in "Progress and Poverty." Bigelow's idea was that a federation of English speaking people in all parts of the world could be formed, and he wanted to edit the organ. He got such a movement. The two could not agree, so in revenge Blythe determined to expose the sophistries in George's book. He hired two journalists to succeed to write a book of which he was to claim authorship. He quarrelled with one, and his death probably prevented disagreement with the other. He caused cards out in the application of the latter for $10,000 for literary services rendered. The publication of the book attracted much attention to the work, awarded him $200, and added that this was generous pay.

A MYSTERIOUS AFFAIR.

A Woman Claims to Have Been Abducted in Boston.

BOSTON, Oct. 20.—The police authorities are investigating a very mysterious affair in East Boston. Mrs. Sarah E. Spaulding claims that the business of a dressmaker at No. 63 Meridian street, occupying four rooms, where she had stored a valuable stock of silks, cloths and other fine dress goods. Mrs. Spaulding has been a resident of that section for the past twenty years, and is widely known and respected. A few days ago an elderly lady called to see her and said she wished to select goods for her daughter's trousseau. After examining the articles she left, saying she would return in the afternoon. She came back with a young lady, who gave the name of Miss Mason, rang the bell, accompanied by two gentlemen. They ascended to the room and examined the goods. Mrs. Spaulding, telling the story of the outrage, said:

"I turned to go out of the room to get a new piece of cloth, and just as I turned, one of the men seized me and then they carried me out into the kitchen, when they threw me down on the floor. My mouth was filled with a handkerchief and my hands and wrists were tied with a piece of rope yarn. The woman tied my ankles with a piece of rope yarn and then they passed a shawl around my head and under my chin so I could not cry out. They held me with my face down to the floor, and one man held me while the others went out and carried the goods off. They took my pocketbook out of my pocket and took out $25 and left in it $1.20. Then one of them said: 'Let's give her a good scrubbing,' and when they turned me over on my face, after they had tied me, one of them said, 'She will never know what sized floor,' and they left me. They were gone at a time, and the one that had held me went out last.

"As soon as they went out I tried to get myself loose, but could not make much headway, and soon found that the cord on my ankles was loosened, and I reached down and untied it. Then I took the saw in the shed and cut the rope that bound my hands, thinking in doing it," and she showed her right wrist. The skin is two small spots.

"In a moment I got through. I ran out through the room and saw all my things piled up on the floor here in a heap, and the fire was hurning out of it on all sides."

Mrs. Spaulding then ran across the street to the house. They found a mass of costly dress goods piled in the middle of the floor in flames. The articles had been saturated with kerosene and set on fire. Mrs. Spaulding said she had been separated from her husband for some years and thought possibly he might have planned the outrage. Insurance on the goods for $1,200 by Bates.

The police do not credit her story.

A NOTED HOTEL KEEPER.

James Wormley, the Washington Restaurateur, Dies in Boston.

BOSTON, Oct. 20.—James Wormley, the celebrated hotel proprietor, of Washington, died at the Massasoit house, Nantasket, of paralysis. He had been ill for some time and an operation was performed.

Mr. Wormley was one of the most remarkable colored men of his race. He was one of the most widely known stewards and hotel proprietors in the country. He was born in Washington sixty-four years ago. His parents were also from Virginia. In 1814, and Wormley, sr., kept a livery stable near Willard's hotel. The mother of James Wormley was also scarcely distinguished from a white person. His father was quite dark, but had straight hair, and the children for many years looked upon themselves as Portuguese. They brought up to Washington, the older Mr. and Mrs. Wormley lived with a wealthy Virginia family, but were never slaves. James was employed in competition with Marion, a carriage for his father. In this capacity he made the acquaintance of many public men, and thus became selected to take charge of the dining rooms which he opened on G street, near the war department. He became quite famous as a steward. He was steward for President Lincoln's obsequies boat, and finally opened Wormley's hotel. When Beverly Johnson went to England on a special mission he took Mr. Wormley with him as his valet. On his return Mr. Wormley turned and resumed personal charge of his hotel, which he made popular and famous throughout the country.

The Course of a Broken Wheel.

BOSTON, Oct. 20.—An iron fly wheel, weighing 120 pounds, attached to a wood-sawing machine in a coal and wood yard, burst into many pieces, which flew in all directions, smashing wagons and other objects, but injuring no one. One piece, weighing about 50 pounds, took a singular journey. It was propelled straight into the air and descended in the front entry, just inside the door, of a dwelling house, standing a distance of 400 or 500 yards. The piece crushed through the flat roof of the dwelling, which is a two and one-half story structure, carrying away plastering and lathing. It then went through a feather bed in the room, and taking an oblique course, went through the wall, and then through the floor, dragging with it a portion of the timbers. The flying missile struck the bed at its head, and just where a person's head would ordinarily lie if the bed were occupied. Pursuing its course, the iron fragment still descended with frightful velocity, carrying away a portion of the floor of story, and went through another wall, where its further progress was stopped. The house is occupied by two families. The inmates were badly frightened.

The Grasshopper Ruined in California.

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 20.—The rain, which continued at intervals from Sunday to Wednesday night, has done much damage to the grape crop, and also caused the loss of a large amount of property. Many of the grape crop is fully a month behind the usual time in ripening, and as wine-makers require a certain per cent. of grapes before they will buy, vineyard owners have been forced to let the grapes remain in the field to accumulate this sugar. The heavy rains have caused the fruit to split and fall, and in traveling through the great valleys at this time one may see thousands of acres of vines with the bare poles up without shelter in field. Such conditions at the east would simply result in total ruin of the farmer's last hope, with rich soil and favorable weather conditions to aid him, he manages to make good profit even with great shrinkage.

Vanderbilt Gives Half a Million.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—At a meeting of the trustees of the College of Physicians and Surgeons the announcement was officially made that William H. Vanderbilt had given to that institution $500,000 as a building fund. A site, including twenty-nine city lots, at Sixty-eighth and Sixty-ninth streets, on Fifth avenue, has been purchased, and it is understood that building operations will be begun at an early day.

A REIGN OF TERROR.

Caused by the Bold Depredations of the Buzzard Gang.

Robberies Committed Both by Day and Night—People Shot at if They Offer Resistance—A Reward Sticking Plaza.

PERKASIE, Pa., Oct. 20.—The farmers of Earl, Caernarvon and part of Ephrata township in that stretch of the valley drained by the Conestoga between the Welsh mountains and the Blue Hills, are terrorized and greatly alarmed on account of numerous robberies committed there within the past few days. Justice of the Peace John G. Martin, of Martindale, which Lancaster accompanied by William D. Weaver, and called upon the county commissioners with a view of taking favorable measures for the apprehension of the Buzzard gang. He states that the people of his neighborhood are thoroughly alarmed at the audacity of the gang, and that unless the authorities refuse to offer such independents for the apprehension of these outlaws as will lead to their speedy extermination. He declares that the people of Conestoga valley, if the authorities do not move in this matter, will take the law in their own hands. Meetings are being held nightly and a strong association has been formed for protection to life and property.

Robberies are occurring nightly, and "in broad daylight, the latest of which occurred yesterday morning at the residence of Christian Weaver, on the State road, leading from New Holland to Reading, was visited by members of the Buzzard gang. It was early yesterday morning. Mrs. Weaver awoke her husband and told him that robbers were in the house. They heard her speak and threatened to shoot her if she did not keep still. She continued talking, however, when the desperadoes commenced firing toward the bedroom, riddling it with bullets. They then went outside and shot again, completely building four times. The burglars then departed with their stolen property, amounting to about $200 in cash. The shots awakened the house the inmates, being without arms, were unable to do anything, so even, escape. The news of the robbery soon spread and dozens of farmers armed with guns pitchforks and clubs mounted their horses and went in hot pursuit, but were unable to capture any of the gang, which fled to the Welsh Mountains, where their tracks were lost.

The same night the Conestoga schoolhouse was entered, and the robbers, failing to find anything, in return destroyed the school furniture. The residences of E. H. Yundt, near Cedar Grove, Barton, M. Wenger, near Leola, were also entered, and large amounts of goods stolen therefrom. A gang of burglars robbed the store of J. Adams' Hollman, of Jonestown, last night of about $700 worth of goods, consisting of tobacco and soap. They forced an entrance through the front door with tools stolen from the tool house of Stahl Hunter George F. Mehl. The store of Jacob Lutz, of Lebanon and Tremont branch was also robbed, probably by the same gang. Goods to the value of $500 were taken.

Information has been received from Rahnstown that the alleged confession made a few days ago by the woman named Emma Grubb, who, with her husband, was connected with the Buzzard gang, is reported to be true. A party of men went in search of the supposed cave which the woman had described, and after having gone to the mountain found it. It is about a mile and a half east and the passageway is nearly 100 feet long, formed of rocks. From the appearance it looks as if the opening was made by human hands The woman's statement will be taken by Justice and is to be used at the next term of court

The discovery of this cavern has caused great excitement throughout the Bausafre district, and another party will search the cave to ascertain whether additional articles can be found. Detectives Harry Clark and Billy Weidar, members of the Welsh Mountain gang, have been released from jail, after having served long terms for horse stealing and burglary. They stated when leaving the prison that they would earn an honest living. It is believed, however, that they met their companions in the mountains.

A Large Fire in Brooklyn.

BROOKLYN, Oct. 20.—A man walking along Plymouth street at 3:30 o'clock saw smoke pouring from the second story window of Rice's box and toy factory, at No. 283. He ascended to the roof and by five men could get to the place flames had crept through to the third story. In a short time the fire communicated to the roof, which was combustible material; was in a blaze, and the firemen confined their attention to the buildings adjoining. Everything but the walls of the factory was destroyed. The first floor was unoccupied; the second floor was occupied by the Rice Box and Toy company; the third by William H. Beach, manufacturer of electrical supplies, and the fourth by Brady, manufacturer of electrical instrument. Brady's loss is put at $50,000, which is fully covered by insurance. The other occupants of the building had no insurance. Their loss is given as $100,000, which, however, is said to be too high an estimate. The building is owned by Jacob Worth, and is damaged to the amount of $50,000. The origin of the fire is unknown.

The Ohio Figures.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 20.—Complete returns by counties do not change the pluralities already given, 21,381 for secretary of state to 18,418 for congressman. Democratic Prohibition and Greenback votes increase proportionately with those of the Democrats, giving Hoadly 1,000 to 1,500 more votes last year than Thurman received, 9,582; that year it was 9,510. The Greenback vote last year was 2,967; this year it is 3,700. The Prohibition vote was 3,187 last year, and 3,347 this year, than Robinson's plurality. The rest of the Republican state ticket has an average majority over all of over 5,000. The total vote is 780,251 last year to 776,168. In November, 1880, it was 716,188, and in November, 1880, it was 724,967. There is no change in the legislature, the Republican majority in the senate being 3, and the House of 13; Rogers' majority over Hurd.

Mrs. Garfield's Unwelcome Visitor.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 20.—A well dressed woman, the mysterious stranger from the west, has arrested at the residence of Mrs. James A. Garfield, in Prospect street. He was arrested on a full warrant charging assault and carrying concealed weapons, a bulldog revolver having been found on his person. He refused to divulge his place of residence, nor gave any other name than that of John Doe. He refused to eat, and the police judge thinking his insane, sentenced him to the Northern Ohio lunatic asylum. He will remain in jail until he is to be sent to Toledo.

TALMAGE ON WHISKEY.

He Says All Drink is Created—A Drunkard's Epitaph.

BROOKLYN, Oct. 20.—"Drunkenness is on the march at double-quick time," remarked the Rev. Dr. T. DeWitt Talmage in his sermon yesterday morning in the Brooklyn tabernacle. The eloquent doctor charged that many drug stores are engaged in selling liquors for drinking. He said further: "Talk about crooked whisky!" he exclaimed. "I tell you that all strong drink is crooked. It makes a man's life crooked, his death crooked and his eternity crooked. Many a man dies whose will should be written in this way: 'In the name of disease, and appetite, and death, I bequeath to children my evil habits. My tankard shall be theirs; my soiled reputation shall be theirs. There to fix my seal in the presence of all the harpies of hell.' The time is coming when every politician in America will have to announce himself either as the friend or the foe to strong drink.

"In drunkenness a state evil or a national evil? Does it belong to the north or the south, the east or the west? Thousands of them will be carried to their graves two weeks from next Tuesday made maudlin and filthy by strong drink. Drunkenness and free institutions are going to enter upon a death struggle?

"God is waiting to see if this nation is going to throw off this evil," the preacher asserted. "If it does not he will wipe out the nation. He is calling for the ballot box test. He will do to destroy this evil. If it refuses to do its work he will wipe out the church. Examine the history of the two great political parties of this country. There are resolutions about Mormonism, as it is safe to attack it 2,000 miles, away, but not one word against whisky. Resolutions against official corruption, but not one word about the corruption that will rot the nation from scalp to heel. Resolutions about protection to home industry, but not one word about protection to our homes from this in cruel evil. The Democratic party was in power for forty-five years. What did it do to mitigate this curse? Nothing. The Republican party has been in power twenty-five years. What has it accomplished in this direction? Nothing positively nothing. Appalling apathy. I look in another direction. What has the church done? Adams' Hollman, of Jonestown, last night of about $700 worth of goods, consisting of tobacco and soap. They forced an entrance through the front door with tools stolen from the tool house of Stahl Hunter George F. Mehl. The store of Jacob Lutz, of Lebanon and Tremont branch was also robbed, probably by the same gang. Goods to the value of $500 were taken.

Information has been received from Rahnstown that the alleged confession made a few days ago by the woman named Emma Grubb, who, with her husband, was connected with the Buzzard gang, is reported to be true. A party of men went in search of the supposed cave which the woman had described, and after having gone to the mountain found it. It is about a mile and a half east and the passageway is nearly 100 feet long, formed of rocks. From the appearance it looks as if the opening was made by human hands The woman's statement will be taken by Justice and is to be used at the next term of court

The discovery of this cavern has caused great excitement throughout the Bausafre district, and another party will search the cave to ascertain whether additional articles can be found. Detectives Harry Clark and Billy Weidar, members of the Welsh Mountain gang, have been released from jail, after having served long terms for horse stealing and burglary. They stated when leaving the prison that they would earn an honest living. It is believed, however, that they met their companions in the mountains.

A Large Fire in Brooklyn.

BROOKLYN, Oct. 20.—A man walking along Plymouth street at 3:30 o'clock saw smoke pouring from the second story window of Rice's box and toy factory, at No. 283. He ascended to the roof and by five men could get to the place flames had crept through to the third story. In a short time the fire communicated to the roof, which was combustible material; was in a blaze, and the firemen confined their attention to the buildings adjoining. Everything but the walls of the factory was destroyed. The first floor was unoccupied; the second floor was occupied by the Rice Box and Toy company; the third by William H. Beach, manufacturer of electrical supplies, and the fourth by Brady, manufacturer of electrical instrument. Brady's loss is put at $50,000, which is fully covered by insurance. The other occupants of the building had no insurance. Their loss is given as $100,000, which, however, is said to be too high an estimate. The building is owned by Jacob Worth, and is damaged to the amount of $50,000. The origin of the fire is unknown.

The Ohio Figures.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 20.—Complete returns by counties do not change the pluralities already given, 21,381 for secretary of state to 18,418 for congressman. Democratic Prohibition and Greenback votes increase proportionately with those of the Democrats, giving Hoadly 1,000 to 1,500 more votes last year than Thurman received, 9,582; that year it was 9,510. The Greenback vote last year was 2,967; this year it is 3,700. The Prohibition vote was 3,187 last year, and 3,347, an increase than Robinson's plurality. The rest of the Republican state ticket has an average majority over all of over 5,000. The total vote is 780,251 last year to 776,168. In November, 1880, it was 716,188, and in November, 1880, it was 724,967. There is no change in the legislature, the Republican majority in the senate being 3, and the House of 13; Rogers' majority over Hurd.

Mrs. Garfield's Unwelcome Visitor.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 20.—A well dressed woman, the mysterious stranger from the west, has arrested at the residence of Mrs. James A. Garfield, in Prospect street. He was arrested on a full warrant charging assault and carrying concealed weapons, a bulldog revolver having been found on his person. He refused to divulge his place of residence, nor gave any other name than that of John Doe. He refused to eat, and the police judge thinking his insane, sentenced him to the Northern Ohio lunatic asylum. He will remain in jail until he is to be sent to Toledo.

IN A CAGE OF FIRE.

A Train of Cars Hurled Down a Steep Declivity.

The Engineer Heroically Remains at the Throttle and Meets Death. The Entire Train Wrecked. Much Damage Done.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 20.—Another of those frightful railroad accidents that cause the blood to run cold at the reading is reported to have occurred on the Louisville, New Albany and Chicago railway, near Greencastle, forty miles west of this city.

The train, consisting of an engine, baggage car and three coaches, containing over one hundred passengers, had reached a point near Greencastle when the engine struck an open switch and like a flash plunged down a steep embankment, rolling over twice in its terrible descent. The result was a complete wreck, and the heartrending shrieks of the imprisoned passengers was pitiable to hear.

Mr. John Newman, a resident of this city, who was a passenger in the ill-fated train, gives the following thrilling account of the accident:

"I was in the train jumped the track I was sitting in the forward car. We were going probably at the rate of thirty miles an hour when I felt the train slew up, then give a terrible lurch, and the next moment I thought we were switching to another track, but when I could think twice I was dashed against the roof of the car in its mad roll down the embankment. I was pinned in the ill-fated train over and over I don't know, but I remember of being thrown over and over from one side to the other. There were about forty passengers in the car, and they all had a similar experience. Most of those who were not maimed or bruised released themselves from the wreck and assisted those who were injured. I was among the ill-fated few who were only slightly injured, and I immediately thought of fire. I looked behind me and the baggage car was already ablazing from it. Flames quickly followed, and fanned by a strong breeze the entire train was soon wrapped in a fierce blaze. The scene was terrible

THE FATAL CIGARETTE.

It Caused a Disastrous Conflagration in a Georgia Village.

SAVANNAH, Oct. 20.—Meagre reports from Barnesville, Pike county, give the details of a disastrous conflagration there. The fire broke out at 1 o'clock on Friday afternoon in some cotton belonging to the Central railway and lying at its depot. The cotton was ignited by boys who were playing among the bales and lighting cigarettes. When the flames burst forth the lads ran off and the fire thus gained additional headway. Before it was discovered seventy five bales of cotton were burned, while several hundred were rolled out of the way and saved for the time being. The Central warehouse, adjoining the depot, filled with cotton, resisted the combined efforts of the flames successfully, but a strong wind carried them to Murphy & Hunt's warehouse, destroying it and 500 bales stored within it.

The fire continued to spread with uncontrollable rapidity, and the small engine of the village, handicapped by a great scarcity of water in consequence of the long drought, was utterly incapable of offering a successful resistance to the rapidly increasing conflagration. Within a few hours the depot, both of the telegraph offices, express office, post office, hotel, twenty stores and the whole of the business portion of the town were in ashes. Word was sent to Macon and other places imploring assistance. It is reported that two lives were lost in the warehouse, but names are unobtainable. The destruction of the telegraph offices completely isolated the town from communication with the outside world. At last accounts the flames had destroyed part of the residence portion of the place. Altogether about two-thirds of the town is in ashes. The town had 2,000 inhabitants, many of whom will be left homeless. Estimates place the losses at $250,000. The amount of the insurance is not obtainable. The mail bags in the post office were saved.

BLAINE IN INDIANA.

A Quiet Sunday Spent in South Bend. Future Movements.

SOUTH BEND, Oct. 20.—Indiana is a state which becomes easily excited over politics. Before Mr. Blaine's advent the canvass had become warm. Both sides are very active, in fact, that Mr. Blaine's visit to the state can hardly increase the energy of the fight. The Republicans pretend to be confident of carrying the state as they were in Ohio one week before the election of Tuesday last. One of the directors of the Republican committee, Gen. William, who is here to take charge of Mr. Blaine's train, says that the state can be carried by an increase over the majority of 1880. He predicts a majority of 8,000. H considers a loss to the Republicans of 3,500 from the Prohibitionists and Germans; but he says that the Republican ticket will gain 5,000 votes —1,000 veteran soldiers, 1,000 young men 2,000 Irish-Americans, and 1,000 Protestants. The 1,000 not gain added to the Garfield majority of 1880 gives his estimate of 8,000.

Mr. Blaine remained at Mr. Studebaker's all of yesterday without receiving callers. He went out late in the afternoon to call upon his cousin, Sister Angela, who is the superior of the Notre Dame Educational School for Young Ladies. He left here for Lafayette at 10 A. M.

It is not true that Mr. Blaine intends to cut his western programme and hurry back to New York. He will visit all the points of the schedule arranged in Maine before he started west, and will return to New York in accordance with his prearranged programme. He will wind up this week, Saturday, in Chicago, and will start for New York on Sunday morning.

Mrs. Lockwood's Lecture

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—When Mrs. Belva Lockwood appeared on the stage of the Academy of Music last evening there were about 800 people present, most of whom were in the upper gallery, to which tickets cost 50 cents. Mrs. Lockwood was not introduced by any one. She invited the people in the gallery to come on the main floor, and the people in the street to come in without paying. She favored liberal appropriations for the government; reconciling capital and labor by giving women the rights of suffrage; fixing the banking business on a secure basis by increasing the amount of money in circulation through liberal appropriations, by encouraging commerce, and by protecting the people from venality in the public service. These ends, she said, could best be secured by voting for the candidate of the equal rights party. The audience was about divided between men and women.

Rumors About Butler.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—It was telegraphed here from Baltimore that the People's party in Maryland had discovered that Gen. Butler's movements were controlled by the National Republican committee, and, in consequence, the People's party had collapsed in Maryland. Gen. Butler telegraphs from Batavia, N. Y., to Senator Grady, pronouncing the statement unqualifiedly false, and that he had referred all arrangements to Mr. Plympton, the manager for his campaign.

A Brother's Heroic Deed.

ERIE, Pa., Oct. 20.—A shocking fatality occurred at North East, wherein one life was sacrificed and another lost through unselfishness. While the family of Volney Bull were seated at the supper table they suddenly found the entire house in flames. James Bull, an insane brother, was locked in a bedroom over the dining room. In attempting to effect a rescue Volney was seriously if not fatally burned. The insane brother's charred remains were found in the basement. The victim is a wealthy oil broker and leaves $40,000 in cash.

Five Men Blown Up.

NEW MARTINSVILLE, W. Va., Oct. 20.—The boiler of Isaac Wehrman's saw mill, on Ten Mile creek, Tyler county, exploded, instantly killing John Fry and William Warden and wounding five other men, two of them fatally. The wounded are George Kohlhaus, Henry Johnson Michael Anderson, Jacob Shaw, and one name unknown. All of them were horribly scalded in addition to being wounded by flying timbers.

For Mayor of New York City.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—The Citizens' committee have nominated Hon. William R. Grace, for mayor. A union against Tammany will be formed with the County Democracy, Irving Hall and other organizations opposed to Tammany, and they will make up the rest of the ticket.

Alexander M. Sullivan's Funeral.

London, Oct. 20.—The remains of Alexander M. Sullivan, who died at Dublin Friday, were interred in Glasnevan cemetery, near Dublin, to-day. Prayers were offered and masses celebrated for the repose of Mr. Sullivan's soul in all the Catholic churches of Dublin.

The West Virginia Election.

WHEELING, W. Va., Oct. 20.—There is no change in the claims of [illegible] on the head of the ticket; [illegible] ing 3,100 and the [illegible] 4,300.

WOMAN AND HOME.

The Leading-Strings Fallacy—Divorce and Morals.

Absalom's Stepmother—Tale Bearers—The Model Husband—Paragraphs—New Methods of Pattern Making.

[Clara Belle.]

The new method of a man dripmaker, and one of the most fashionable in town, is based, I suspect, on that of the hatter who forces an apparatus down on his customer's head, thus pricking a reduced outline into a card, or that of the shoemaker, who traces the exact shape of the foot on paper. This artist makes his fabrics direct herself of all falsity. I don't mean sham teeth or glass eyes or painted complexion, but of what may be called upholstery. Then, by means of an apparatus like a camera, he draws the lines of the real figure—side view and front view—on a page in a very, very private book. Then he can see at a glance where the imperfections of form are, and whether artificial improvement is possible; also, just what garments will be most becoming.

Of course, the subject retains an enveloping amount of clothing when thus pictured, so that there is no impropriety in it; and besides, as the faces are not included in the portraiture, recognition is not probable, in some cases, alack! quite impossible. There is something similar in principle offered for amateur use. Corsage linings are now in the market which have the pattern cut with the grain of the web, and the waists will not stay at the seams, as the whole strain is on the linings and not on the outskirts of the material, thereby soaking the waist wear longer and still retain its original shape until the lining itself is worn out. By taking the shoulder seams of a perfect bust and shoulder fit is said to be the result; by taking in the seam under the arm, a graceful waist and hip is produced. The women whose forms are used is because whenever an imperfection is in the figure, it is caused by too high or too sloping shoulders, too long or too short waists, or one shoulder being higher than the other and one hip lower than the other, and it is well known that all figures have some kind of imperfection, more or less. They are usually put together and sized by the bust measure, so that any woman measuring her bust in the usual way, or knowing her bust measure, can obtain a pattern which will fit her perfectly. This new method threatens to do away with paper patterns.

Divorce and Morals.
[Chicago Herald.]

But more than any alteration in the statutes, more than the decisions of courts and the essays of publicists and the arguments of reformers, there is needed conscience in the contraction of marriage and a sense of duty, which statutes cannot enforce, in living within its obligations. The foolish and the silly will demand that, once married, man and woman shall be better and more nearly perfect than before wedlock. Those will assume that by the ceremony of marriage a miracle is performed, suddenly changing human nature into divine. Considerate and common sense are better than statutes, better than essays. No man and no woman should marry until able, out of love, or lacking love, out of a sense of duty, to so adapt themselves to their new relation that mutual respect and mutual sacrifice shall be its first and its permanent consequence. For such as these children of divorce will not be required.

It goes without saying that all laws tending to reduce drunkenness and licentiousness are directly in the interest of moral marriage and quiet and happy domestic life. The man who finds the bar-room, the gambling table and the low resorts of a great city attractive is not likely to make the quiet, refined and able husband. Instead of enlarging the gates of conjugal separation, the hope of women is that by making drinking and gambling and licentiousness more difficult, more expensive and more disgraceful. They have now moral power enough without the ballot to promote high social and home life. The moral power enough without the ballot to insist upon the same standard of morality for men and women. A society that shuts out if guilty of the great offense against the chief moral law, why do they not assert the dignity and power of their sex and insist on shutting out the man guilty of it? If it were half as infamous for a man to be licentious as for a woman the divorce courts would have small dockets.

The Leading-Strings Fallacy.
[Popular Science Monthly.]

From the moment a child is born, he is treated on the principle that all his instincts are essentially wrong, that nature must be thwarted and counteracted in every possible way. He is strapped up in a contrivance that he would be glad to exchange for a strait-jacket, kept for hours in a position that prevents him from moving any limb of his body.

His first attempts at locomotion are checked; he is put in leading-strings, he is carefully guarded from the out-door world, from the air that would invigorate his lungs, from the sports that would develop his muscles. Hence, the pasty-faces, awkwardness and weakness of our young aristocrats. Poor people have no time to the initiate shamfulness of their wealthy neighbors, and their children profit by what the model nurse would undoubtedly call neglect.

Indian babies are still better off. They are fed on bull-beef; and kicked around like young colts; they are not swaddled, they are not cradled, and not dosed with paregoric; they crawl around naked, and soon learn to keep out of the way; they are happy, they never cry.

If we would treat our youngsters in the same way, only substituting kisses and bread for kicks and beef, they would afterward be ladder and hardier. Every week the newspapers tell us about tumbling down stairs and breaking both arms; boys falling from a fence and fracturing their collar-bones. From what height would a young Comanche have to fall to break such bones—not to mention tooth? Sea Island children and young moslems? The bones of an infant are plastic; letting it tumble and roll about would harden the bony tissue; guarding it like a piece of brittle crockery makes its limbs as fragile as glass.

Lincoln's Stepmother.
[Chicago News.]

The stepmother in fiction is very often as unlovely as she sometimes is in fact. But the stepmother who consecrated to marry the log-in-the-wall Tom Lincoln became the angel of Abe Lincoln's life. She quickly perceived the ability of the boy and was not slow in discerning the unusual fiber of his exceptional nature. She transformed a hovel into a home. She put away rags and squalor and put on the family the habiliments of taste and the habits of refinement. She could not make over again old Tom, but she made young Abe; and these delightful pages show that he could not possibly have been the lout that some flippant writers have represented him. From the hands and heart of such a stepmother as united him a boor or vulgar fellow could not so have issued. Almost by the fascination of sympathy he must have become, but he was too rugged and too clean-cut, and read enough and thought enough to take on small appreciation which society calls fine, but which are essentially low and vulgar.

The influence of his stepmother was all in the direction of a natural beauty and rugged but noble development. She seems to have had no false standards. She seems to have been of clean, strong, self-sufficient mind, wholly devoted to bringing up Abe Lincoln into an honest and able woman. She had glimpses of possibilities for him in a large way, but her devotion was apparently in spired by a womanly spirit rather than any ambition or expectation. His gratitude to word her was considerable, but it was the gratitude of one who knew what he became. Without her aid he might have been a power of some sort; but the richness of his character was the fruit of her skill. Let this stepmother be thought worthy of the homage which Abraham Lincoln paid her to the last days of his life.

Tale Bearers.
[Kansas City Journal.]

We think tale bearers may be divided into two classes: Those who carry ill news out of malice, and those who retail it for want of other material with which to decide which is the most inexcusable or the less vicious. We have heard women called "unwholy thoughtless" who would deliberately elaborate and embellish a piece of gossip until its proportions dangerous to the peace and comfort of others. These unwholy thoughtless women usually heard. They have small, unruly tongues, and divide their time between fancy work and tattling. They do a black mailing business, too, on a small scale, and wreak their vengeance for supposed slights on unoffending friends.

There is but one way to deal with such persons—the superior to them. Owen Meredith calls the world "a polite" and gives the safe advice "avoid it or crush it." We think the first method the better of the two. Avoid the scandal monger.

But we hear some one say, "Of course you are speaking of women; men never bear tales or gossip." Not so fast. There is not much difference in sex when we come down to the everyday trials and joys of life. Bear this in mind, you who "don't gossip;" busy women don't bear tales. Kind souls bind up wounded hearts, and kind women heal them. Men don't see much difference whether it is a man or a woman, when the intention to injure is there.

The Model Husband.
[Philadelphia Times.]

The first essential of a model husband is that he in some honorable way earns his by bread, through trade or profession, and provides a home and a living for the wife and children. It is fair to estimate that 90 per cent. of all the married men you meet from year's end to year's end do this. And until those who have never done it try their hands for a dozen years they are not competent critics of the task. All, in fact, the genial and honorable lauds of all property constituted society, and the men that do the work of a great extent model husbands so far.

The model husband is in addition to providing homes, food and clothing for their wives and children, also do the marketing, tend the furnace fire, keep the yard clean, shovel the coal, are kindly and affectionate, take their wives to church, to the park or the theatre, as the wives' tastes may incline, save the latter from all care and worry when the servants rub them off on wash day, dust their own looking-glasses when the chambermaids neglect to do so, and don't carry deadbatches to parties. Such men are not exceptionally patient and enduring, as most husbands are, why they are more than model husbands. And if the cities and towns were not full of them there would be no peace worth speaking of in all the domestic circles of this planet. Now then.

The Prevalence of Stripes.
[Clara Belle.]

We shall look a great deal like convicts, or admirers of the season, before the end of the present year. Stripes, in velvets and silks, are of all widths, up to three inches, in contrasting colors. Sometimes both stripes are velvet; sometimes one is velvet, the other silk. Self-colored goods, with velvet and silk stripes alternating, are also shown. Knit goods exhibit the tendency to stripes and some of the new fabrics have Astrakhan bands of the same or different colors woven in. Silks have bands of satin in contrasting colors. Satins show the dash stripes brightened with outline figures in silver and gold. The old Bayadere stripes, horizontal, are revived. Some of the richest goods for wraps show the Bayadere stripes. Belts can be worn with all waists. They are narrow or wide, according to taste. Deep belts are not suitable for women with short waists. Silver buckles are much sought after when artistically chased. These are closed under a rosette or a ribbon above. The same bows are on the shoulder and in front of the neck. The Directoire sash is also worn. It is wide, of soft fabric, and is loosely tied on the side.

A Lesson in Self-Control.
[Mothers in Council.]

One day, when I was a very little girl, I was watching my mother making strawberry preserves. I can see the great kettle of boiling liquid now, clear as rubies. Beside the stove stood a large milk pan containing some squash for "company" pies, with a plenty of milk and eggs in it. "Now, Bridget," said my mother, at last, in a satisfied tone, "I will do—take the kettle off." This was accomplished, and then, with almost incredible stupidity, the "help," actually emptied the strawberries into the squash. My mother turned her head just too late. She was quick and impulsive, but there escaped from her mouth only a despairing, "Oh, Bridget!" Then as she saw the girl's instantly regretful face, she uttered no angry reproaches, no useless lamentations. No doubt when my tired mother, at noon next morning, I lost her at 10, went up stairs to rest, she felt disheartened, and thought that her preserves and squash, her time and labor, had all been wasted; but probably, the next day, when a more reasonable morning's work than when she gave me that unconscious lesson in sweet self-control.

In Memory of a Wife.
[Chicago Tribune.]

The felicity of Senator Anthony in sentiments on the demise of a friend is nowhere better exemplified than in the inscription on the monument to his long-since departed wife. The inscription closes with the following:

If rare gifts of intellect,
Warm affections,
And the graces that best become her sex
Could have averted the shaft of Death,
Then we had had no need to raise this untimely stone.

For Weak Chests and Throats.
[Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.]

There are always some things under the sun. A Boston physician whom I heard about the other day is doing wonders by means of some very simple notions that he has adopted. He never wears an overcoat, but he seems to me there is so little money in his method that it is not likely to be much followed by other members of the profession. His advice to all persons who take cold easily, who are subject to sore throat, and to coughs and colds, is to wear no clothing on the throat, but to wear low dresses, and to expose the throat and chest to the air. He says that the throat and chest, when exposed, become hardened, and that the skin instead. So her given the advice to so many persons that it is said the sale of our grade of woolen cottons has materially increased. The physician says that most persons dress too warmly for indoor life, and that it is better, especially in winter, to reduce the amount of clothing on the body, the throat, and to wrap up carefully while going out. He says the cotton shirt worn next the skin should be very loose, and the power of the skin to throw off cold by copiously to perform their natural function. I have no doubt that that this paragraph will reach the eye of some persons who need just such advice, and perhaps it may save their lives.

Mothers and Daughters.
[Boston Budget.]

How strangely the world is blind in various parts of the globe are so contradictory. For instance, take the question of girls. In spite of our advancing ideas, we have a general conviction that girls are born to be a very hard work. We shield them if we can. In Asia and Africa, on the contrary, in spite of all we are always hearing of the lazy lives of women in those countries, an old belief prevails that they were born to labor. The same is true in many parts of Germany. In Turkestan and on the Turkoman steppes, the Kirghese millionaire and their daughters, in whose veins flow the blood of long lines of kings, and who, even as children, govern and perform the menial duties of the household. They reverse our order of things. The mother wears silk and the daughter calico; the mother cultivates accomplishments, and the daughter does the drudgery; in fact, they really consider the mother entitled to the best of everything. Such is it to be remembered. The mother is the queen of the parlor and the daughter in the kitchen, and we would look in vain for the child too fashionable to help her mother to earn her mother. What a blessed state of affairs!

Tanned Feet.
[Exchange.]

Why do ladies object to having their feet tanned? The deep, rich crimson color is certainly very becoming and preferable to the pale, sickly look so common. The reason is not difficult to find. A tanned face is supposed to belong to persons low in the social scale; in other words, to the vulgar. So women forego the good they might receive from exercising and regularity in consequence of a sickly pallor caused by organic decay, and call it beautiful.

The Smell of Boiling Cabbage.
[Cor. New York Sun.]

Here is a piece of information for housekeepers which we have culled at random. Everyone knows how disagreeable the odor of cooking cabbage is. All your neighbors can tell when you are going to have cabbage for dinner. If you put a small piece of red pepper in with the cabbage there will be no smell. The pepper absorbs the odor of the cabbage. Don't put in too large a piece of pepper, however, or the cabbage will be hot.

Gregariousness.
[The Housekeeper.]

There can be no doubt that women are, as a rule, inclined to hospitality. Say, if you will, that they are gregarious—always happier with some one to talk to, and that they scan out with whom to exchange news, even gossip; that they love to exhibit to their acquaintances their taste in furnishing a room, or in table decorations, a sheer delight of their skill in cooking; the fact remains the same, that women love to "have company."

The Post-Boy Hats.
[American Queen.]

The post-boy hat is quite a favorite with young ladies. It has rather a high crown, a brim at the back and sides, and in front is generally trimmed with a band of velvet and a bunch of feathers at the front, rather high, or a rosette of lace and aigrette, or a bouquet of flowers.

Good Language.
[Good Cheer.]

You have merely to use the language which you read, instead of the slang which is now in vogue, to form a taste in agreement with the best speakers and poets in the country.

Better than Roughness.
[P. Hotspa.]

Love thy wife and cherish her as long as thou livest. Flattery is better than rough ness and will make her contented and diligent.

Cure for Sore Throat.

A hornet's nest, which has been dosed by the hornets, bound on the throat with a piece of flannel will cure the most malignant sore throat.

For Heartburn.

Half a teaspoonful of common table salt, dissolved in a little cold water and drank, will instantly relieve heartburn.

There are twenty American girls studying at the University of Zurich. They are admitted upon equal terms with the male students.

Mr. Jones on Local Issues.
[Chicago Herald.]

Jones came home in a dilapidated condition night before last and undertook to hang himself to on the hat-rack in the front hall. His wife stood at the head of the stairs watching him. First he would put his hat on the bottom knob of the hat-rack, then by the second collar he would make a lunge for a horse just out of his reach. Then he tried to hang up his umbrella by the point. After it had fallen down several times he sat down on his hat and soliloquized:

"Most wirorinary campaign. Never saw brother like it. Party's all tire'up. Men from other parties wanter go home. Don't know where he stan's. Blamed if I know where I am any more. All the boys goin' soft. Wonder where old woman stan's. Shouldn't be 'stonished if find she's a boiler o' wash rags."

Just then she grabbed him by the neck and observed: "John Henry, ain't you ashamed of yourself staying out till 3 o'clock in the morning when you know I'm all alone here and sick at that? You'll break my heart with your dissolute companions, I know—I—I don't—I'm—makin' tea—hull I can't idea. Prohibition fool idiots and 'er ain't no use tryin' to make men'ial idiots out o' fool idiots. Boy's stay in unit I know it an' ye know it." If a fool woman in that house now wishes his mother-in-law will be sent for or not. The wife says that just one more break of that kind will settle it.

STORE TO LET.

The Sun.

THE SUN is, and will continue to be, a newspaper which tells the truth without fear of consequences, which gets at the facts, no matter how much the process costs, which presents the news of all the world without waste of words and in the most readable shape, which is working with all its heart for the cause of honest government, and which therefore believes that the Republican party must go, and must go in this year of our Lord, 1884.

About sixty million copies of THE SUN have gone out of our establishment during the passed twelve months.

If you were to paste end to end all the columns of THE SUN printed and sold last year you would get a continuous strip of interesting information, almost seven wisdom, sound doctrine, and sane wit long enough to reach from Printing House square to the top of Mount Cepheinus in the moon, then back to Printing House square, and three quarters of the way back to the moon again.

But THE SUN is written for the inhabitants of the earth; this same strip of intelligence would girdle the globe twenty-seven or twenty-eight times.

If every buyer of THE SUN during the current year has spent only one hour over it, and if his wife or his grandfather has spent another hour, this newspaper in 1884 has afforded the human race thirteen thousand years of steady reading by day.

It is only by little calculations like these that you can form any idea of the circulation of the most popular of American newspapers, or of its influence on the opinions and actions of American men and women.

If you know THE SUN you like it already, and you will read it with accustomed diligence and profit during what is sure to be the most interesting year in its history. If you do not yet know THE SUN, it is high time to get into the sunshine.

CHRONOLOGICAL EVENTS.

Battle of Trafalgar 1806.

JOTTINGS.

—The Somerville Firemen and their friends parade to-morrow.

—A special train will take the Democratic clubs to Somerville to-night.

—The P. and R. Railroad Co., are removing the debris of the old bridge.

—Congressman Scott of this District yesterday won a shirt at the G. A. R. fair at Elizabeth.

—The Hunterdon County Democrat is issuing a supplement containing Blaine's Mulligan's letters. It is printed on fine tinted book paper and is probably furnished from Democratic headquarters.

—Parties in this vicinity have been detected killing rabbits and game birds, and the Society for the Protection of Game, Fish and Birds, have secured warrants, through Justice Nash, for the apprehension of the offenders.

—The Newark Conference of Congregational churches will hold its annual meeting with the church in Woodbridge, on Tuesday, 28th inst. In connection with the meeting the church will celebrate the 10th anniversary of its organization.

—The following ladies have been elected officers of the W. C. T. U. of Woodbridge: President, Mrs. Charles Anson; Vice Presidents—Mrs. Henry Hind, Mrs. Kittie Cooper and Miss Annie Hyde; Recording Secretary, Miss Ella Reid; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Fred Anson; Treasurer, Mrs. William Fisk, Jr.

—A big pumpkin in the window of J. R. Tier's bakery has attracted considerable attention for some days past. Its weight is 76 pounds and its measure 94 1/2 inches. In circumference the largest way, 55 inches the smaller way, and 18 inches through, the smallest way. It was raised by George W. Jackson, who thinks it cannot be surpassed much in this section.—Rahway Democrat. Mr. J. R. Tier is a brother of Mr. John Tier, the popular ice cream manufacturer, of this city.

—Another "luminary" has loomed up in Woodbridge. It is called The Sun and no doubt feels it is called upon to fill a long felt want in the newspaper line. The name of John L. Compton, formerly of this city, but for some time employed in the Perth Amboy Democrat office (where the Metuchen Inquirer is also printed) appears at its head as editor. The pages are made up from the columns of those papers and if the establishment keeps on it will soon have a monopoly in Middlesex county.—Rahway Democrat.

—A Prohibitionist who claims to have an intimate knowledge of the canvass of that party in this State makes a detailed estimate of vote by counties, which foots up to 14,800. In the estimate Somerset is put down for 600 Prohibition votes. St. John will not get that number by one-half, at least, and if this is a sample of the "estimate" all over the State, Mr. St. John's vote in New Jersey will be about 7,600 which is at any rate a maximum figure. Last year the Prohibition vote in the State ran about 4,600, and in Somerset 30.—Bound Brook Chronicle.

—A most outrageous story is told about Belva to defeat her election to the Presidency. One of the opposition says that she has corns. That's nearly as bad as condemning Cleveland for wearing a No. 13 boot, a No. 19 collar and a No. 6 1-4 hat. so Judge Brennan said at the Republican mass meeting at the Casino last week. The picture represent Mr. Cleveland wearing a few other promiscuous things, and we think the gentlemen present had better send them to expect the people of this great nation to vote for a man attired in only a big shoe, a big collar, and small hat. They will stand much, but not much of that style. We think the Judge is mistaken.

—While the New Brunswick House News reporter was going his rounds on Thursday afternoon he came across Sheriff Stevens, deputy of Plainfield, at the police station, who was looking after some of her numerous odds and ends that are still remaining there. The lady is not at all of a communicative disposition and probably guessing the reporter might want to interview her, she turned down her veil and passed out. The friends of the lady say that her conduct is to them, totally inexplicable, and can only be accounted for as the result of a sudden freak. In nature Miss Stevens is below the middle height and has a cute, pale looking face, which looks as if she had passed a few sleepless nights. If she had passed a few sleepless nights. If she had passed a few sleepless nights. It is stated that she intends returning to Plainfield, where she has a number of friends.

The Woodbridge Bicycle Case.

The most absorbing town topic in Woodbridge just at present is the occupation of James Boll and his fascinating cousin, Miss Elizabeth Woodruff. James B. is the eldest son of Bro in B-ll, deceased, and has been known to reside at Metuchen his history. Miss Woodruff is the eldest of the borough family. Miss Woodruff is also well known in Woodbridge. It appears that last spring Mr. Boll left his farm and family, consisting of his wife and three children, and went to Long Island to superintend the raising of a crop of Strasburg Bird. A few weeks afterward Miss Woodruff left her home, saying that she was going to New York, but in reality she went to Mariner's Harbor, where she joined her cousin and where she had been living with him up to a few weeks ago. A considerable time from Woodruff, who had occasion to visit Boll at Mariner's Harbor, chanced to see Miss Woodruff there and reported the fact, whereupon her mother, Mrs. Long, went to get her daughter, and after some persuasion brought her home, and shortly after began proceedings against Boll for seduction and damages, the damages being placed at $5,000.

Boll was arrested, but was released on bail, a resident of Mariner's Harbor being his bondsman. After his release Boll disappeared, and his bondsman made frantic efforts to find him, employing detectives for that purpose. The search was finally successful, Mr. Boll being taken into custody about a week ago just as he was stepping on a farepboat at the Cortlandt street ferry in New York. He was taken before Justice Duffy, at the Tombs Police Court, and remanded without bail.

Mr. Boll's story is that the girl came to him for protection from her step-father, whom she claims was overbearing and cruel to her, and that their relations have been simply as friends and relatives. William Long, her step-father, is but three years older than Miss Woodruff, and is one of the most inoffensive men.

Since his trouble with Miss Woodruff began Strasburg Bird, Boll's employer, has levied upon all of Boll's possessions at Mariner's Harbor to make good deficiencies in his accounts, which amount to over $1,000, and Mr. Bird has instituted criminal proceedings against him.

Mr. Boll's wife is very much overcome by her husband's erratic career, and her health, which has been poor for years, is rapidly failing. This is another source of trouble for Boll, as her father, Orrin Pierson, is about to begin proceedings in her behalf for a divorce.

James Boll was considered a good member of the community. He followed the occupation of butcher, and at his father's death he was left about $18,000, but he soon went through most of it.

Miss Woodruff's mother is greatly excited over the affair, and is very anxious as to her daughter's whereabouts, which are unknown, she having mysteriously disappeared soon after Boll jumped his bail.

$3,000 For Hats.

A few months ago we published an account of the misfortunes visiting Kate Radford of North Plainfield, on the death of old Dan Conner who kept the Dog Tavern, at the junction of the Plainfield and Railway road, and to whom Kate supposed she had been married, until Ben's death brought the legality of the marriage into question and resulted in Kate's ejectment, by Ben's surviving sons of his.

At the time of her ejectment there was an old man named Frame Lee, Jr., to whom Kate had always shown kindness, who had for many years been employed at the tavern and upon her ejectment followed her, and received such care as she could in her extreme poverty give. This is the woman whom we spoke of at the time as being more stoned against than sinning. The old man Lee was taken sick and although carefully nursed by Kate, he, recently died. In gratitude to Kate's heroism, he made over title to his death, made a will, bequeathing, after his decease, $10 to his daughter and $3000 to Kate.

After his decease the will was contested, Senator B. A. Vail of Rahway representing the heirs and Judge Hedges of this city, representing the daughter. The case was tried in the Orphans Court which sustains the will, but allowed the defense $100 for legal expenses.

The Republican Parade.

Arrangements are being perfected for the grand Republican parade on Thursday evening, and, if the weather is favorable, the display will be a fine one.

The column will form on North Avenue and adjacent streets, at eight o'clock, by which hour it is hoped all the visiting clubs will have arrived. Clubs from abroad will be met at the depot and assigned position in the line by the Chief Marshal, Gen. Mounted M. Stiles and W. W. Cortell will act as Assistant Marshals. The line of march will be as follows:

Form to Front, to Grove, to Scully, to Dear, to Jackson, to Somerset, to Front, to Park, to Fifth, to Front, to Seventh, to Liberty, to Front, to Central avenue, to Fifth, to Park, to Depot.

A committee of energetic ladies and gentlemen are providing a collation for the visiting guests.

The Burning Street.

Miss Ross, who did not get the Democratic nomination of this District for Congress, as was presumed in view of the split in the Democratic ranks, is supported by the New York World of to-day to be again using the burning theme.

The World says: In the Bellmore House last evening ex-Congressman Miller Ross, of New Jersey, offered them both, without failure:

$5,000 Cleveland carry Connecticut.
$5,000 Cleveland carry New Jersey.
$5,000 Cleveland carry New York.
$5,000 Cleveland carry Indiana.
$5,000 Cleveland will be elected.

Democratic Convention Nominations.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Oct. 21.—After the adjournment yesterday, with which the report published contained, constitution of delegates was held.

The convention recommended at 2:15.

The committee on organization reported favoring the continuance of the temporary organization. Adopted.

The report of the committee on rules governing the proceedings was adopted.

The committee on credentials reported that there were no contests.

The committee on resolutions reported various resolutions praising the Democratic National candidates and Democratic standards.

No further nominations for State Senator then those reported yesterday having been made, a ballot was ordered with the following result:. Whole number of votes 65, necessary to a choice, 33; Bartine, 18, Bergen 10, Laing 19. Frazee 8.

There being no choice a second ballot was taken, resulting in giving Bartine 30, Bergen 4, Laing 31.

A third ballot was ordered, and on being counted by the tellers gave Bartine 34, Bergen 1, Laing 30, thus showing three more votes cast than there were delegates. During the counting when Bartine had received twenty-three votes, a person in the lobby called for three cheers for Bartine, which were given.

On counting the vote to ascertain if possible where the three extras came in, it was found that one ballot which had been counted as four, representing part of a township, was in reality but one vote. This vote gave the nomination to Laing. As this Laing's friends smiled audibly on the Bartine cheerers.

There was some discussion about receiving this ballot, and a motion was made to take another one. The motion was lost by a vote of twenty to twenty-five, and the chairman declared Laing the nominee for State Senator.

The townships were then called for nominations for Assemblyman. The name of John Vetterlein, of North Plainfield, was the only one presented, and the rules were suspended, and the nomination was made by acclamation.

The townships were then called for nominations for coroners. The following were put in nomination: Dr. Engelis, D. J. Somers, A. P. Sutphen. The rules were suspended and the gentlemen named were nominated by acclamation.

On motion the chair appointed committees to bring the nominees before the convention, and after the usual congratulations, handshaking, speech making, etc., the convention adjourned.

A Farmer on The News.

Mr. G. W. Thompson, of Stelton, has been for years a recognized authority on matters pertaining to scientific farming, and has a large model farm on the road between this city and New Brunswick. His contributions to the agricultural columns cover a wide range of subjects of interest to farmers. He recently was in Plainfield on business and now her Tom Haven regularly supplied to him. He writes:

METUCHEN, N. J., Oct. 20, 1884.

MR. EDITOR:—I DAILY EVENING NEWS came duly to hand, and from my standpoint it is like a Lexington battle, "Something for almost nothing." I have looked it over carefully and do not see a place where I could send you anything, if you are aware that my mind runs most on agricultural subjects, and "as a man thinketh so is he." If I can only in former how can I contribute to such a fine paper.

Perhaps after a session you may have a corner where a farmer might sit in some need. R. W. THOMPSON.

The Democratic Parade at Bound Brook.

A large Democratic parade enlivened the streets of Bound Brook last night. The streets were crowded. The clubs present were the Cleveland and Hendricks Independent Club and Samuel H. Vosseller Guards of Plainfield; Cleveland and Hendricks Club of Trenton; Bound Brook Cleveland and Hendricks Club and Mounted Guards; The Millstone Democratic Club; and the Plainfield and Bound Brook Fife and Drum Corps.

The streets of Bound Brook were paraded for one hour.

The Plainfield clubs returned to this city on the 10.58 p. m. train and visited the residence of James B. Vosseller. The music was furnished by the Plainfield Cornet Band, the Goodwill Band of New Brunswick, and several drum corps.

Minor Mirths.

The second entertainment in the Opera House, which Manager Marsh designed to be the opening for the drama, as the first had been for the season, was enjoyed as an audience last evening numbering 1,052 persons not including a few late comers variously estimated at about a dozen persons.

Many visited the theatre on this occasion for the first time.

Mazie Elvins has become a standard American drama that one may see more than once and still enjoy. It has a high moral lesson and leaves no degrading influence. It was therefore a wise selection. The play was excellently acted throughout, Mr. Chas. W. Coulduck as Duncan Elvins a character which he has made famous.

There were many elegant costumes in the audience which throughout was a representative one.

A Change.

Rahway, N. J., Oct. 20, 1884.

EDITOR EVENING NEWS:—The Third District Assembly Convention (Republican) will meet at Laing's Hall, Plainfield, on Saturday, 25th inst., instead of Friday as announced in the Rahway Advocate by mistake.

S. HAMPTON, Chairman last meeting.

Judge David S. Hutchinson, of Fort Republic, was buried last week in the mill dam at Fort Republic, Ga., by the Masonic fraternity, of which he was a member. Despite the heavy rains, was at one time Supreme Justice.

ALL THE VOGUE.

Bayadere striped wool skirts are worn under plain polonaises or overdresses and sashes.

Whenever the wool fabric is light the skirt must be either draped, trimmed, tucked, pleated or braided.

Gold in the shape of braid, embroidery, big pins, buttons or ornaments of various kinds, is very fashionable on hats and bonnets.

The only big bonnet of the season is an odd-shaped calotte of velvet or felt which seems to be from England under the almost blasphemous name of the "Salvation" bonnet. It is similar in shape to the big bonnets worn first by the Salvation Army women.

A pretty fancy for a church wedding comes to us from England. It is to meet the bride at the church door and precede her up the aisle, singing a bridal hymn, or some appropriate song. When arrived at the altar the choir is grouped around the bridal party.

Very stylish seventeen skirts are made with many tucks reaching to a point above the knee. Over these skirts are worn long polonaises of soft wool faced with velveteen, and collar and cuffs of the same, but the polonaise frequently opens over a full waistcoat, or chemisette of Surah matching the color of the suit.

At one of the auctions who turned out to be Samuel T. Boone, of Southport, a suburb of Elmira, recovered his balance, which he lost when he fell from the window of the house of Mrs. Annie Lowrie, and Mr. Henry C. Demorest the son of Mr. W. Jennings Demorest, which will occur on Tuesday evening next, the 28th. of October, in a fashionable Presbyterian church in New York City, will be one of the most unique and tasteful weddings of the present season. The Rev. Mr. Paxton, the pastor of the church, will be assisted in the ceremony by the Rev. Dr. Charles F. Deems, and instead of the usual "wedding march" the bridal procession, a very imposing one, will pace up the aisle to the air of "Annie Laurie." Over 2000 invitations have been issued!

The demand for jerseys is simply enormous. There never was so popular a garment, and this popularity seems on the increase. It is safe to predict that jersey web garments will never go out of fashion. The long silkiness and Newmarkets made of jersey web are to be worn when fashion has had its say sacre, hold as firm a position in the wardrobe affairs of fashionable women as the house jerseys, or jersey waists as they are now called, to distinguish them from the street jersey jacket. Jersey waists, jackets and ulsters will probably be considered as much a matter of course with fashionable ladies as a waterproof cloak or a full-bodied clock.

A WAR IN RE GUITEAU.

Samuel T. Boone Attacks Gov. Cleveland Without Cause.

The Man's Mind Evidently Deranged from Brooding Over a Relative's Imprisonment—The Governor Not Injured.

ALBANY, Oct. 21.—Some two weeks ago Samuel T. Boone, a resident of Southport, a suburb of Elmira, N. Y., called on the governor at the executive chamber, asking for a pardon for his brother-in-law, Sylvester Barker, who was convicted of arson and sentenced to Auburn prison last fall for two years. The circumstances of that case were these: A crowd of boys were throwing stones at the house, when Barker, who had been drinking, fired a pistol into the crowd, severely wounding one Willie Hopkins, an innocent party. When his application was refused the governor told Boone he would examine it, as he did every application brought to his notice. Boone said he would not leave the city until that time. Since then he called on the governor in a hysterical manner and asked her husband's pardon. He tried to take her without success, then took from his pocket a pistol and fired at Governor Cleveland, who was taken by Mrs. Robertson's son and Mrs. Boone to the anteroom, where Dr. Rice was also at work. The governor was taken to his boarding house, where he was soon up with them.

After their boarding house, where Dr. Townsend was called. The woman has been since confined to the house with nervous prostration. She has been very ill in the city with his wife, and it is thought has brooded over the matter, and either allowed his temper to get the best of his judgment or has been temporarily crazed.

About 9 o'clock the governor started to walk to the executive chamber, through the anteroom, when Boone stepped out and he was attacked by Boone, who, calling him all sorts of vile names, attempted to strike him in the face. The governor was taken by the two men, his hands and knees bruised, the man aside, merely defending himself from violence. Boone then ran toward a pile of stones, but was intercepted by Boone and held by Dr. Houghton. The governor walked on, and Dr. Houghton releasing Boone the latter went immediately to his boarding house, where he was shortly after arrested.

On being arraigned before Justice Gutman he gave his name and pleaded not guilty. He was committed by Justice Gutman and his case set down for Wednesday. On being taken to the jail he was placed in a room with another man, but refused to speak to him himself on a bed. He was very willing to talk of the matter. He spoke of a sermon preached by Rev. Mr. Lindsay on the case, which, he said, that like wise, as the case of the governor had not done right in not granting the pension. He seems extremely nervous. The governor's wife was not present at the time of the assault, and could have easily overpowered the man, but only wanted to keep off his blows. He had no fear about the matter as he was not aware of the nature of the assault.

Boone was so troubled and sick over her brother's imprisonment. Upon that matter he had acted in the same manner as he did for all applications for pardons he has filed, a thought that Boone will be examined by physicians as to his sanity at once, and if mentally unsound will be sent to the asylum.

THE NEW YORK SUN'S ACCOUNT.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—An Albany special to The Sun says: Gov. Cleveland left the executive mansion somewhat earlier than usual. He is his practice to walk to and from the Capitol, where he is frequently with intimate friends, but more frequently alone. His customary route is through Eagle street to State, and thence up that street to the State grounds building. The medical college is on Eagle street, between Lancaster and Jay streets. The governor had reached a point about opposite the main entrance to the college, when suddenly a pedestrian, whom the governor had not noticed, sprang from near the railing which incloses the college lot in front of the college building, and made a pass with his fist at the governor's face. The blow fell short, its then it fell, and when the governor caught his arm and threw him aside, sending him spinning half way across the street. The governor did not strike, but rather guarded with his left hand.

The physicians who were standing on the opposite side of the street ran to see if the governor was injured. He said to them:

"I wish you would see to that fellow. He needs the attention of a doctor, apparently. My impulse was to strike him, but I restrained myself. The governor's face was as white as a sheet. Besides, he says as if he were not sure of his mind.

Wilbur in the remark the governor made gentleman was shocked by and proceeded to his office, where he began the business of the day.

As soon as the assailant, who turned out to be Samuel T. Boone, of Southport, a suburb of Elmira, recovered his balance, which he lost when he fell from the window of the house of Mrs. Annie Lowrie and Mr. Henry C. Demorest the son of Mr. W. Jennings Demorest, which will occur on Tuesday evening next, the 28th. of October, in a fashionable Presbyterian church in New York City, will be one of the most unique and tasteful weddings of the present season. A MOTHER HUBBARD.

Gets a Young Lady Into Trouble in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—While Fourth avenue was filled with promenaders the attention of a crowd was attracted by a young lady who came out of No. 418 and walked gracefully along the western side of the avenue, but she had not gone far when a party that attracted so much attention. The fair girl's form was covered in a white Mother Hubbard elaborately trimmed with rich lace. Following her out of the Clark street station, encountered her, and, after gazing earnestly at the little figure walking along so demurely, he followed the young lady.

"Come with me, Miss," exclaimed the officer, as he laid a heavy hand upon her shoulder.

"Heavens!" ejaculated the fair promenader.

"What have I done? You have surely made a mistake."

She almost sank upon the pavement in surprise and chagrin, but the officer roughly seized her and walked her along to the police station. A crowd of sympathizers followed the policeman and his prisoner.

The young lady was placed in the dock, and, after being led, she cried bitterly.

"What is your name?" asked Clerk Clinger, kindly, while Justice Foote looked over his spectacles at the pri-oner.

"Minnie Allen," she replied in a tremulous tone.

"What has she been doing?" asked justice Foote.

"I caught her on Fourth avenue wearing this white Mother Hubbard," said the officer, pointing to the offending garment. "She was ashamed of herself, I guess."

Miss Allen denied the latter charge, but had to acknowledge the Mother Hubbard. The spectators laughed at the unusual charge, but were astonished when Judge Foote fined Miss Allen $10.

A friend of the young lady called and paid the fine, and the girl went away with her.

Several well-known ladies will protest against Judge Foote's decision. Meanwhile young ladies who own white Mother Hubbards are afraid to venture upon the street with them.

Mr. Blaine in Indiana.

KLKHART, Ind., Oct. 21.—Mr. Blaine left South Bend at 10 o'clock on a special train for Chicago. Mr. Blaine's secretary, John [illegible] and a number of [illegible] speaker [illegible] on the train. At Mishawaka, [illegible] place, Mr. Blaine [illegible] and addressed a few words to the crowd, his remarks being entirely upon the tariff.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Oct. 21.—About 2:30 o'clock Blaine arrived at Fort Wayne. The streets in front of the court house square opposite and all adjacent streets were filled with people. When Mr. Blaine appeared on the balcony, he was greeted. From one portion of the crowd, including a number of men wearing high white hats, there came cheers for Cleveland and Hendricks. Mr. Blaine attempted to speak, but was interrupted by shouts and yells; cheers for Cleveland coming from the same quarter. The confusion lasted for a few minutes, Mr. Blaine standing on the balcony, and remaining the hotel he left it again by the side door, and in company with Senator Harrison and Gen. Harrison, Mr. Blaine, of Ohio, was driven up College street to a point opposite Library hall. The great body of the crowd followed him, and the carriage bearing the driver's seat, he made his speech.

Assassination the Result of Vendetta.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 21.—Archbishop Ryan, of Philadelphia, officiated in the Room of the Good Shepherd, at Fallsington, this morning at the funeral of Mrs. Mary Ann Boyle, one of the Roman Catholic sisters. Those present included the wealth and talent of Bucks county. The services were conducted with the ceremonies of the Roman Catholic church. The pall bearers were all young men selected from the white veil of the novitiate and placed in the chancel. The archbishop delivered a short address, in which he referred to the fact that the deceased had answered the letters he had written to her, and expressed hopes for many conversions from the visit to Fallsington. This is a consequence of the assassination of Mrs. Boyle's husband by the Molly Maguires.

Two Hundred Rockets, Chemical Balloons, Torpedoes and Bombs a Grand Illumination and Display.

LOWELLVILLE, N. Y., Oct. 21.—The most interesting fire ever witnessed in northern New York occurred at Carthage, fifteen miles from here, in Jefferson county. The fire broke out at about 4 o'clock this morning, and was discovered from Rawdi's tannery in West Carthage, setting fire to Eaton's planing mill. It then spread to Myer & Rose's furniture factory, and from it to Harvey Perry's tub factory. From this point it crossed the river to East Carthage, catching in Upper's planing mill. Rythe & Pringle's island delivery, destroying the entire building and a large amount of lumber. The fire then crossed on Spring street, and in a short time destroyed Mechanic street from Hall's

WOULD NOT BE A PRISONER.

Fort Worth, Oct. 21.—[Special Courtright, the famous desperado, was captured last night by the State Rangers and officers of New Mexico, after several years endeavor, on a warrant for murder, now escaped from his captors. [Courtright, recalled, the sheriff's party took Courtright to a restaurant for breakfast and dinner, a large crowd following. In the evening the guards again brought Courtright for supper. Some of the prisoner's friends had brought a bottle of whisky under the table where the prisoner sat at his previous meal. One of the guards was invigilated between whiskey and Courtright seized the weapon, covered the two remaining guards, and, backing to the door, mounted a horse in waiting and fled down the street in the presence of a large crowd, who had witnessed every manoeuvre.

The prisoner's friends hampered the officers in the immediate pursuit by crowding in. The ranger force had left without excitement. Jim McIntyre, accused with Courtright, was arrested on Saturday at Wichita Falls and was brought to this city. There was a great crowd at the depot. It now transpires that the man were not wanted for the murder of Meldrum, at Silver City, but for the killing of two Americans named Grostrott, near Albuquerque, whom they are charged with having first arrested as officers of the law and then deliberately murdered. This charge Courtright's friends deny.

Another Turn in the Rate War.

New York, Oct. 21.—The latest development in the railroad war was announced by the Erie road announcing that it will meet the reduced rates of the New York Central and West Shore roads. The Delaware, Lackawanna and Western road will, of course, it is said, be obliged to follow suit, and a very decided drop in the progress of the war will thus be taken. "Mark my words," said a prominent official of the Wabash and St. Louis railroad, "you will see tickets selling at $5 each to Chicago. The end of this thing is not yet." At the chief offices of the different roads no information of the slightest value was to be obtained. Not even would the officials say whether the above announcement was true or not. Somewhat Agents Abbott, of the Hallowell, of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western, and Moseley, of the West Shore, seemed to think that enough talk been said for the present, and each was extremely reticent. At Commissioner Fink's office it was said that his position at present is one of masterly inactivity. The ticket brokers report business brisk with prices to Chicago, $15; to Buffalo, $4.50, and to Albany, $1.50.

Congressman Aynes's Escape.

ELMIRA, Oct. 21.—At 9 o'clock an explosion of gas occurred in the Chemung County bank, causing great excitement. The gas had probably been left burning in the vault all night and smothered itself out. Mr. John Arnot, cashier and congressman from this district, attempted to enter the vault, carrying a lighted candle. A terrific explosion followed, blowing him across the room of the bank and badly burning his hands and face. Luckily he escaped serious injury, and his sight was not injured. Every window in the room was blown out.

Instigated Her Husband's Murder.

MARSHALL, Tex., Oct. 21.—The notorious negro, Anthony Walker, under sentence of death for the murder of William Henry, a wealthy planter, last November, has made a full confession. Walker says he shot Henry from ambush, and that Mrs. Henry instigated the murder and promised him 150 acres of land and $100 in money. He claims that two other negroes are cognizant of the bargain. Mrs. Henry has never been suspected of complicity in the crime, and has always stood very high in the community. She will be arrested at once.

Senator Thurman in New York.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Senator Thurman of Ohio, fatigued by his journey from Columbus, remained in his room at the Metropolitan Hotel and declined to receive any callers but those from the Democratic national committee. He has accepted the invitation of the Tammany committee to attend the ratification meeting at the Academy of Music to-night, and will speak. The senator is in good health, and will probably make several speeches in this state before returning home.

Workers' Lockout.

WORCESTER, Oct. 21.—A lockout is now in progress in the Belmont, La Belle and Top mills of this city and the Rockwell mill, of Boxwood. The trouble briefly summed up is: The millers refuse to resume work again if the manufacturers do not agree to pay for breakage themselves. Heretofore the millers have paid for the breakage about their machines. A conference was held this P. M., which resulted in a lockout.

Gen. Butler's Campaign.

OSWEGO, N. Y., Oct. 21.—Gen. Butler addressed his largest meeting since leaving New York in this city last night. It is estimated that 15,000 people were assembled in the armory when he began and that as many as 7,000 heard some parts of his two hours' address. Mr. G. H. Babcock of the Yokes' Iron Works, introduced Mrs. and presided.

A Fatal Practical Joke.

NASHVILLE, Oct. 21.—A negro boy while out hunting instantly killed two little negro girls near Hazzardville last night. The girls attempted to scare the boy by falling upon their knees and giving vent to all sorts of unearthly noises. The boy became frightened and mistook what he saw. The only response was groans from the girls, who he immediately shot them.

Hire on a Mass Track.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 21.—The grand stand and three of the stables adjoining it at the Cote Brilliante race track were burned together with the horse Lots Eagle, who refused to leave his stable. The loss is about $30,000. It is suspected that the scoundrels who set fire to some horseman who had been ordered off the track for disorderly conduct.

Ten Thousand Men Idle.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Oct. 21.—The shut down of the mills took effect yesterday. Thirty out of the fifty-four mills are closed, and 10,000 people are idle. There is a general thread on the streets, but any excitement which would attract attention, even from strangers.

A Bank Suspends.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., Oct. 21.—The Lockport Banking association has suspended. The officials realize upon their securities as rapidly as possible and believe they will be able to pay all depositors in full.

A New Postal Treaty.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—A new postal convention between the United States and Mexico was to-day signed by Postmaster General Hatton on the part of the United States and M. Romero, Mexican minister, on the part of Mexico.

WOMAN AND HOME.

The Well-Dressed Woman—On Horseback—In Dakota.

Before and After—Painfully Neat—Parisian Jewelry—Miss Alcott—Miss Kelley—Rubbing a Scrap-Book.

[Literary World.]

A scrap-book should not be composed of miscellaneous material, but confined to some special theme, or some branch of literary history. A book of famous authors may be collected from publishers' catalogues alone.

In almost every city or county a volume of local scenery may be collected. The collector should especially seek to save what is likely to be lost. For a book in which to paste the cuttings, almost any bound volume will do, especially if its pages show a wide margin, and the print can be readily covered by two widths of ordinary newspaper clippings. The same may be said for notes, including dates and a few explanatory memoranda. The clippings should be at least for a week or so, before they are pasted down, because a second judgment may rule them out. It is quite safe to advise collectors that no cutting will do, unless it bids fair to be fresh and intelligible a year after it has been honored with a place in the scrap-book. If the pages become too thick for the cover, cut out two or three leaves after every page filled with the clippings.

When there is the slightest possibility that a scrap-book may be used for publishing purposes, or that any of its matter may be cut out for other uses, cover one page only. But on the page used, the clippings should be pasted closely together. If possible each clipping should retain the "rule" which follows the end of a printed paragraph or poem. The column lines need not be retained. In fact, it is best to cut newspapers always along those lines. Ragged edges, of course, should be avoided, and the mucilage with which the clippings are pasted down should be used sparingly, lest it ooze through the pages and ruin from under the edges. Flour paste is better than mucilage, and what is known as "photographer's paste," is excellent.

Woman's Life in Dakota.

[Chicago Herald.]

A broad-shouldered, compactly built young woman with brown face and hard hands sat in the Lake Shore depot the other evening waiting for the departure of a train for the east. She had just arrived in town from Dakota.

"We don't waste any time in foolishness out our way," she said to a young man who seemed to be acquainted with her. "There is no lovemaking in my half section. It's nothing but No. 2 wheat from May to August. That's what we are out there for. Now, I own and manage a farm of 320 acres and this year I took out a crop of eighteen bushels to the acre and sold it, got the cash, put it in the bank, dividend declared, and not one, who will look after things this winter, and I'm off for a little fun down east. Marriage?" said she, in response to some remark by her companion; "that's what all the good-for-nothing cranks of men that I see from plowing time to harvest can talk about. What do I want to get married for! There are more than half of the girl farmers in Dakota, and we will hold a convention some time. I never saw a man yet that I would have around. I intend to farm it until I get enough money to live on comfortably, and then I'll see. I'm in the habit of doing about as I please. There was a nice young fellow in my neighborhood last July, who was very gallant and wanted to help me whenever I did any work. If I chopped a little wood he wanted to do it. If I went after water he said he wanted to carry it. If I put a bag of grain on my shoulder he insisted on giving me a lift. He was a pretty nice boy, and he made me tired. One day I wanted the hay-rick on the wagon, and I took hold of one end and, clapped it up on the wheel so quick that it made him dizzy.

"'Let me,' says he, but he only threw the whole thing down in trying to get the other end up. He didn't have the strength.

"'Say it,' says he, 'say it. You don't set enough No. 2 wheat.' Then I put the rick up in good style.

"We meet lots of such fellows out there. They are good enough, I suppose, but when I want one I will send for him."

The Well-Dressed Woman.

[American Queen.]

The well-dressed woman again knows not only what to wear, but when to wear it. In summer fineness you will see her in the simplest of cottons, a gown absolutely plain and without ornament, without lace, fringe, decoration of any kind. In the winter at the same time she is equally plainly dressed in cloth. Later in the day she changes to smarter clothes for more ceremonious duties, visits, afternoon parties, and teas—velvet and silks combined in winter, in summer rich gauzes and costly lace. In the evening, for dinner or ball, the most choice and splendid corporeal is the dress which she will now reservedly; the richest stuff set off with the most elaborate embroideries and the rarest jewels. But withal, even in this the last grand dress-up time in which the modern style has developed, ostentatious display is scrupulously avoided.

The highest art is to conceal art; to use the richest materials and the richest colors most simplicity. There is no heaviness, no overloading with ornament, no meaningless superadded decoration. The attire of a perfectly-dressed woman is original without eccentricity; personal to herself, yet following the latest fashion; attractive, yet undemonstrative—developing to the utmost her peculiarities.

Women on Horseback.

According to DeBungary's "Handbook," a lady should sit on a horse thus: "The head straight, easy turning upon the shoulders in any direction without involving a movement of the body. The eyes fixed straight to the front, looking between the horse's ears, and always the direction in which he is going. The upper part of the body easy, flexible, and straight. The lower part of the body firm, without stiffness. The shoulders well back and on a line with them. The arms falling naturally. The fore-arm bent. The wrists on a level with the elbows. The reins held in each hand. The fingers freely closed, facing each other, with the upper hand nearest the body. The thumbs on the top of the fingers, and in front of them. The right foot falling naturally on the pommel of the saddle, the left foot in the stirring without bending on it. The part of the right knee which bears the heavy pressure should be bended on its outer or right side, and should press downwards, so as to keep on the saddle. The left knee to be kept respective position. The feet nearly in a horizontal line at elongation. The heels or muscular parts of her leg plays upon the horse's sides, so that when the left heel is drawn back when the right rises to the front, at which time the upper part of the leg leaves the saddle."

Before and After.

[New York Cor. Chicago Times.]

What has not been acquainted here with statistics, genteel, kind-hearted, sympathetic mothers, and been struck by the revelation they have undergone after passing into conjugal bliss! They are said to be fortunately married if they have married money; but for very, fond of their wives, and the most devoted of fathers. There is no reason to believe otherwise. And yet they do not look the happier supposed to be comforted in their hearts. Their faces have drop lines; they seem far older than their years; they seldom smile; their opinions are grave; their manners are not nervous. If all this be anecdotal, their intimates will say that they have many cares; that they have a hard time to get on, but that their domestic relations are delightful. The deduction is that it is possible to be happy at home and appear wretched abroad, just as it is possible to be wretched at home and appear happy abroad. But calm outsiders, waiting for facts and arguments in favor of matrimony before embracing it, may well be discouraged by such observations as these.

New York offers every year more and more inducements to cultivate both positively and negatively. The exposure of Sunday-go-aheads all that is connected with it, steadily and rapidly increases, forcing married men to send their families into the country, while they toil in town and go themselves when they may. Many make a daily journey to and fro of eighty and a hundred miles and are so tired with perpetual travel, added to their nervous duties, that they employ every leisure hour in making rest. They unquestionably enjoy their domesticity; they ought to, they have so little of it. You see it at sunset, still sleepy; bolt their breakfast; hurry to the train: arrive at office or store; work hard every minute; go home tired; find all the while the hour for return; dart off with a number of things undone; reach the station just in season to see the last car receding from view; and immediately profane go back to stand to the unfinished work; send a friend, sincerely, serene, contented, who smiles consideringly the is an infernal bachelor; set to work with more nervous force than ever, still incomplete, and leap on the train, already in motion, hot, out of temper, hurried to death, and devilishly domestic. To this complexion it comes at last, the highest evidence of family devotion; and yet it is not a wholly unalloyed satisfaction.

Miss Alcott's Reply.

[Chicago Tribune.]

Miss Louise Alcott, being asked for advice by a young lady who desired to earn a living by literary work, replied: "I can only reply to yours as to the other innumerable letters of the same sort which I receive. One must walk and work long and patiently before success comes, and talent must be in the tales, or they won't sell. If people won't take the stories, try something else. Put a young woman with a good health and a brave heart many ways of earning a living are open. If she can put her pride in her pocket and take whatever comes, no matter how hard it may seem at first, she will become companion, housekeeper, seamstress or servant are all honest trades and worth trying while waiting for the more agreeable work.

"I did not write for fame, but only for twenty years made a bit seemingly by accident, but I could see how very hard experience had helped every sensible creature, and so believe heartily in the value of training for an all. I do not know any one in Washington, and I think anything better than the capital for a young girl to be poking about. If your stories are good, they will find a market; if they are not stop writing and try something else. The gift is born with us, and cannot be learned, but can be developed. Knowing nothing of you or your capabilities, it is impossible for me to advise or recommend except in the general way. 'Hope and keep busy' is my motto, and I find it one works despair cannot get the upper hand."

Painfully Neat.

[Mrs. A. E. Dickinson in Weekly Magazine.]

The tidy housekeeper may be a jewel beyond price, or she may be, by an exaggeration of her virtues, a most unbearable bore. We have know such, whose continual struggle with the demons of dirt and disorder left its impress on the face. The features sharp, pared from perpetual frying into corners and crevices after dust and cobwebs; the brow was contracted into a stereotyped frown over the total depravity of inanimate things; and the voice ever querulous from continual complaints of the carelessness of children and servants.

Even the guest felt hampered in such a presence; scarcely dared to touch the finely bound volumes arranged with mathematical precision, or move the chairs which seemed so stanchion in their mornings as the same in an audience room, but stepped gingerly about, fearing to disarrange the furniture or drapery, and was silently reproved when the lady herself stooped to pick up some stray ravelings from her work or return to its place the book she had just laid down. The torment of that weary did not prate; but with any sensitiveness, or her children "seen and not call her blessed," but were glad to escape from her perpetual restrictions into house where there was more freedom and comfort.

Congressman Kelley's Daughter.

[Exchange.]

Miss Florence Kelley, the daughter of Congressman W. D. Kelley, of Philadelphia, who has been studying in Europe, is engaged to be married to Lazare Wischnewetzky, a Russian exile. Mr. Kelley has written the following letter of introduction to his daughter's future husband:

"Miss Kelley, as a child, was a pet and favorite of Henry C. Cary, the American economist, and at one time she was to be married to the world's greatest economist. Her sympathies with her then with any specialties on the same subject he had ever known. Her father, naturally proud of her analytical and critical faculties, has given her every opportunity in his daughter's education with a view to developing her ability, and gratifying her tastes for studies that few women have cared to grapple with. Since being graduated at Vassar, Miss Kelley has been for the most time abroad, investing and pursuing studies in economics, sociology and politics, though she found time to write a number of magazine articles and contributed a weekly letter to The Washington National Tribune.

Women Laborers.

According to the Massachusetts bureau of labor statistics among the women laborers of that state are 2,000 farmers and laborers, 6 barkeepers, 21 bill posters, 9 commercial travelers, 2 bank officials, 2 paperhangers, 4 lumbermen, 2 sailors, 1 gun and locksmith, 25 engineers and firemen, 2 undertakers, 2 deaf and blind teachers, 12 lawyers, 2 boiler makers, 1 plumber and gasfitter, 3 carriage makers, 10 watch and clock repairers, 10 blacksmiths, 10 harness makers, 7 coachmakers, 3 blacksmiths, 200 printers, 2 stone cutters, 4 stone cutters, 200 laborers, and 5 engravers.

Paris' New Jewelry.

[American Queen.]

A new style of jewelry has become fashionable in Paris. The whole animal world has been ransacked for novelties, and the result is that either in solid gold or enamel there are to be seen on the fingers of the fair Parisiennes, on the wrist, the throat, the hair, the corsage, the skirt, the shoe, the top of a cane-knife. Fashion now ordains that the tenderest and most elegant ways in fruit and flowers shall be copied in precious stones. One of the most popular ornaments is now the elephant, which, of diamonds, the dispensation, is used to clasp the new Directoire cloak, to fasten the new Directoire trouser, to clasp the sash of beauty, or dangle from the stars. The ugly ornament is to be seen in every variety of material, and flourishes on every occasion.

Aprons for the Children.

[Practical Hints to Housekeepers.]

The use of cambric ruffles and pelerines make serviceable aprons for the children, providing you let the machine do all the sewing and do not spend much time in trimming. Have a good fitting pattern, however, for the plainest garment. Much depends upon the shape and fit of the apron. One pattern, properly fit to cover, will do duty in many ways. I cut aprons, dresses, cloaks and undergarments from a nice cloak pattern I have, varying them all to suit my taste.

Said a lady to me one day, referring to a neighbor's child who was at play with mine, "How shiny that little girl always looks." For reply I asked her if my own little girl toward her and asked if there was not one quite as dirty. "Well somehow she looks shiny," she answered. "your children never look dirty, even when they are." I divined the reason for the difference, for while the dress of my neighbor's child hung in folds and pockets, my little girl's plain gingham aprons, pulled and torn from her play, fitted smoothly and shapely about her form.

Treating of Children.

["Aunt Pattie" in London Letter.]

As soon as your little lass can prattle and run about teach her order, that is, to put away each article she has used when you command it almost at birth. Buy her some boy-dolls, a house and cradle, if possible—supply her with a place to put them in, nor suffer any member of the family to disturb the appropriate that place. As soon as she is tired of her playthings make her carefully dust and stow them neatly away in their proper places. This will give her habits of order and quality. As she advances give her lessons in sewing and making garments for her dolls; also to make the curtains, carpets and upholstery for their little establishment, and arrange them properly, to keep the house clean and in order, etc., etc. By this you will lay the foundation of a good, sound, practical domestic education, and will soon discover all the elements of a well-ordered and regulated system pervading every action and movement of your little pupil.

Lemon for Malaria.

[Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.]

At the International Medical Congress, in Copenhagen, Professor Crudeli, of Rome, read a paper on "Malaria and Its Remedies." Acknowledging the great value of quinine and arsenic in preventing and curing fever, he said a cheaper, harmless, and yet effective remedy may be found in the ordinary lemon. He advised that a decoction of lemon be made as follows: Peel one lemon, peel and all, into thin slices, put in into three glassfuls of water, and boil it down to one glassful. Strain the liquid through linen, adding thoroughly the remains of boiled lemon, and set it aside to cool. Drink the whole amount when fasting. As the decoction contains no particles of quinine, the dose should not be repeated too frequently, not more than once a day, or every other day, according to individual susceptibility.

Fashionable, but Uneducated.

[Julia Ward Howe.]

The reason why education is usually so poor a thing is because it is fashionable. It is not needed for the life which they elect to lead. With a good figure, good clothes and a handsome equipage; with a little reading of the daily newspaper, a little fashionable reviews; and, above all, with the happy tact which often enables women to make a large display of very small requirements, the fashionable social world passes for the end of true education. We pity her none the less, since she will never know its peace and delight.

The Best Dressed.

[Mrs. A. E. Dickinson.]

She is the best-dressed woman whose dress is so harmonious in itself and so in harmony with her personal appearance and manner that while the details are unnoticed, the whole gives a strong and pleasing impression of her individuality—the dress seems a part of herself.

For the Hair.

[Courier-Journal.]

When one has had a fever and the hair is falling off, take a teacup of sage, steep in a quart of soft water, strain it off into a tight bottle. Steep the head with this tea frequently, wetting the roots of the hair.

To Stop a Sneeze.

[Cor. Detroit Free Press.]

When I feel inclined to sneeze I press my finger on my upper lip, directly under the nose, and the sneeze is gone. It always stops the sneeze, but a queer sensation passes over one while doing this.

The Home Grass-Plot.

Try and get a little green grass around your home. Nothing cures the ill mind so much as verdure. It is unselfishness and unnatural, too, to rear children on a playground made of stone flagging or Nicholson pavement.

Don't Fret.

[Mrs. G. F. Wheeler in Christian Advocate.]

Above everything, don't fret. Don't fret. "The contentions of a wife are a continual dropping," says Solomon. I will add—and let be sure to wear out the love of the noblest.

For Mosquitoes.

The Scientific American says if a bottle of the oil of pennyroyal is left uncorked in a room at night, not a mosquito or any other blood-sucker will be found there in the morning.

Hong and story, life and death, are so cruel to a woman.

Milk is the very best thing with which to clean oil-cloth.

When Buying Pictures.

[The Current.]

The Studio makes the following suggestion to those who wish to buy pictures: "Never take the advice of anybody, no matter how well informed he may be, about an 'authority' he or she may be." This is somewhat startling, coming from a journal devoted to the dissemination of art, but it is a good reason therefore. It is true, and rightly, that people should buy that which they really like, and then 'try it by living with it,' if it be really good. It will help the purchaser to get something on good art, it may be, better the next time." The suggestion is wholly sound, for it is to cannot help but cultivate discrimination of means the artistic sense.

The Sun.

THE SUN is, and will continue to be, a newspaper which tells the truth without fear of consequences, which gets at the facts, no matter how much the process costs, which presents the news of all the world without warping or twisting it to suit some peculiar shape, which is working with all its heart for the cause of honest government, and which therefore believes that the Republican party must go, and must go in this year of our Lord, 1884.

About sixty million copies of THE SUN have gone out of our establishment during the passed twelve months.

If you were to paste end to end all the columns of THE SUN printed and sold last year you would get a continuous strip of interesting information, common sense wisdom, sound doctrine, and sane wit long enough to reach from Printing House square to the top of Mount Copernicus in the moon, then back to Printing House square, and three quarters of the way back to the moon again.

But THE SUN is written for the inhabitants of the earth, who need strip of intelligence would girdle the globe twenty-seven or twenty-eight times.

If every buyer of THE SUN during the passed year has spent only one hour over it, and if his wife or his grandfather has spent another hour, then the buyers in 1883 has afforded the human race thirteen thousand years of steady reading night and day.

It is only by little calculations like these that you can form any idea of the circulation of the most popular of American newspapers, or of its influence on the opinions and actions of American men and women.

If you know THE SUN you like it already, and you will read it with accustomed diligence and profit during what is sure to be the most interesting year in its history. If you do not yet know THE SUN, it is high time to get into the sunshine.

JOTTINGS.

—Election only thirteen days away.

—J. Hasbrouck of Bound Brook has a chicken hatching machine in operation.

—Ben Butler and Senator O'Grady are to speak in Plainfield Saturday. See notice.

—The Centennial of the Theological Seminary at New Brunswick, N. J. will be held on Oct. 28 and 29.

—Business will soon be suspended on the Raritan Canal, which passes through Bound Brook and New Brunswick.

—A political trade is charged by a correspondent in the New Brunswick Home News against the political parties there.

—Mr. J. N. Jenkins, the building mover, is moving the old Second street house, that was damaged in the Emery stable fire, to the corner of Sixth and Liberty streets.

—Mr. Fred Vandervoer, brother of Somerset county's Clerk, fell from a tree, which he was trimming at Somerville Monday and was injured quite seriously in his head.

—There have been 2,500 sand wiches prepared for the visiting clubs to-morrow evening. The Republican City Executive Committee meets this evening to take further action on the matter.

—If the ladies who advertised in THE NEWS about "a family wash" will please send to this office or call and deliver us of the mail accumulating on our hands at a very serious rate they will greatly oblige an afflicted scribe.

—The Anniversary of the W. C. T. U. of Plainfield will be held in Reform Hall on the evening of October 30. Mrs. J. T. Ellis, Cor responding State Secretary, and Rev. Dr. J. C. Bliss, former pastor of the Crescent Avenue Church, will make addresses. A cordial invitation is extended to all friends of the cause.

Personal.

Messrs. John Van Deursen and wife of New Brunswick were visiting friends in this city yesterday.

Col. James Fairman, the distinguished artist, who addressed the Republican mass meeting last night, was the guest of Corporation Counsel C. A. Marsh.

Rev. W. H. Honeyman, of this city, was taken suddenly ill last Saturday, with bilious colic and over work, and has been since confined to his bed. His many friends will be pleased to learn that he is recovering.

Mr. D. Williamson, of New Brunswick, Commissioner for this District, for the New Orleans Exhibition, visited Plainfield industries yesterday, including in his visits Schopfin, Baldwin & Tyndall's clothing manufactory, the Potter Press Works and the Scott Press Works.

Mr. E. O. Chamberlin of the Trenton Times has severed his connection therewith to devote himself to general journalism. Mr. Chamberlin is a graduate of the High School of this city. His mother and brother continue to reside here. The Daily Bulletin, which preceded the EVENING NEWS as a daily venture, was started by him and, but for his want of experience and capital, might have proved a success, but had instead a sickly existence and died of starvation. Mr. Chamberlin has profited by experience and is recognized as a promising young journalist of much energy and ability. The Times parts with him with regret.

Hon. E. A. Wilkinson, who is expected here to-morrow with the Wilkinson Guards of Newark, is of the firm of Wilkinson, Geddis & Co., of that city. Mr. Wilkinson's wife is a former Plainfield lady—nee Earle. Their union has been blessed with four charming children, and prosperity generally. Twenty years ago Mr. Wilkinson was a bookkeeper in a saddlery hardware factory. To-day, he is one of the most successful business men in the State, the president of several prosperous enterprises, and financially is estimated worth a quarter of a million dollars. He is also a successful politician, has been a Newark alderman, and also an assemblyman.

Too Much Wind.

Our esteemed Democratic contemporary got too much wind aboard to-day, and the result was that one of the windows of his upper story was blown out, and fell with a crash to the street, while the occupants stood in stair doorways and other things, and with pencil ready to delineate in his most graphic style how great was the fall thereof. The picture of Irving as our fourth page will answer for Billy as to about getting upwards in his most significant manner, while hearing in the distance and his feet in the gutter.

UNION COUNTY DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

Herbert L. Livingston, of Plainfield, Chosen for Senator.

Ex-Chief of Police John Keron of Elizabeth For Senate.

Yesterday afternoon the Union County Democratic Convention was held in Library Hall, Elizabeth. To the absence of the Chairman, the meeting was called to order by the Secretary of the County Committee, Mr. C. A. Ryan.

Dr. James S. Grese, unanimously elected chairman, thanked the gentlemen heartily, hoped the deliberations would be conducted in a spirit of harmony and to the end that the best men be put on the ticket.

The Vice Presidents were R. M. Stover, George P. Morris, Frank G. Parries and Timothy Kelly.

Charles A. Place and Charles Dunn were elected secretaries.

On credentials—R. M. Stover, George T. Morris, Frederick Kurtz, James Manning and T. B. Kingsland were appointed.

The delegates from Plainfield were—First Ward, Solomon Filey, Edward P. Thorn, J. H. Force; Second Ward, J. E. Martine, R. M. Stover; Third Ward, John Cameron; Fourth Ward, Stephen A. Davis, Wm. H. Voorhees, Patrick Muldoon, James Connelly.

Nominations were called for candidates for Senator. Elizabeth—First Ward, [illegible] nated (by Mr. Gilhooly in a long speech,) Hon. T. Dunn. (Applause.) Right Ward, John T. Dunn, Linden, William M. Oliver, Rahway, John T. Dunn. Plainfield nominated (by J. E. Martine, in another speech,) Robert L. Livingston. (Applause.)

Mr. Fay and Mr. Moffatt were appointed tellers.

The first ballot gave Dunn 16, Oliver 6, Livingston 65, blank 38.

As 69 votes were necessary to a choice, there was no choice, and slips were prepared for a second ballot.

LIVINGSTON NOMINATED.

The second ballot resulted as follows: Livingston, 67; Dunn, 38; Oliver, 6; blank, 8.

Mr. Livingston was declared the nominee, and the nomination was, on motion, made unanimous. No better Democrat could have been chosen, and the Convention is to be congratulated.

Nominations for sheriff were called for, and the names of Deputy Sheriff W. H. Reynolds and ex-chief of Police John Keron of Elizabeth, John Brennan of Cranford and Charles Doty of Summit were presented.

There were four ballots taken, on three of which the candidates developed about equal strength. On the fourth ballot Keron received 68 of the 96 votes an i was declared the nominee, and elected.

The Plainfield delegation at this point left to catch the train.

After the nomination of two men for coroners, the convention adjourned.

Somerset Republican Convention.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING NEWS.)

Somerville, N. J., October 21.

The Somerset County Republican Convention was called to order in Somerset Hall, at 11:30 a.m., by Mr. J. L. Griggs, chairman of the last convention, who read the call for delegates to nominate a Senator, a Member of Assembly and three Coroners.

Mr. Voorhees of Montgomery was unanimously elected chairman and Mr. Saydam of Bridgewater, secretary.

A list of delegates was called by the secretary, those from North Plainfield being as follows:

H. K. Carroll, George P. Brown, A. B. Reynell, Isaac Brokaw, R. R. Fairchild.

Committees on Permanent Organization, Rules, Resolutions and Credentials, were appointed by the chair.

At 12 o'clock a recess was taken until 1:30 o'clock.

Upon reassembling the reports of committees on organization, rules and credentials were read and approved.

The names of Hon. Chas. J. Place of North Plainfield, and Mr. L. A. Thompson of Somerville were presented.

Mr. Thompson was the choice of the convention by an overwhelming majority, and upon motion his nomination was made unanimous.

Nominations were called for assemblyman. The names of Sylvester Robbins of Branchburgh, and Peter O. Hoagland of Hillsborough were presented.

Mr. Robbins secured a majority of the votes and his nomination was on motion made unanimous.

D. J. Edwards of Bernardsville, C. R. Fisher of Bound Brook, and H. B. Costello of Montgomery were nominated coroners by acclamation.

The following were appointed an executive committee:

John Van Nest, P. C. Henry, W. H. Long, H. C. Saydam, E. W. Cooper, Cornelius Vanderbeek, A. A. Vanderveer, D. W. Vegtes, John R. Van Dorne, R. D. Carter, Joseph S. Hoagland, Wm. Van Wyck, Capt. Isaac Brokaw, R. R. Fairchild, and John Wendell.

Mr. C. A. Thompson was brought before the convention and made a brief address, which met with applause, after which the convention adjourned.

The $5,000 Windfall.

Yesterday's account of the legacy left by Frame Lee, Jr., deceased, to Catherine Redford, generally known as Mrs. Benjamin Cornell, was slightly inaccurate. The facts are that on his death bed Mr. Lee sent for Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh, to draw his will. The will was drawn accordingly, leaving the bulk of the property to Catherine Redford and appointing Mr. Marsh sole executor. Senator Vail of Rahway, representing Mr. Lee's daughter, filed a caveat against the will, and after the funeral consulted counsel with the intention of setting aside the will. In the litigation following, Mr. Marsh was retained for Mrs. Redford, but having to go on the witness stand in support of the will drawn by him, associated with him as counsel for the contestant Mr. Lee's son-in-law, Mr. Vail, who conducted what an adjustment to counsel was stated yesterday.

New Jersey Colored Men's Headquarters at New Orleans.

The Department of Colored Exhibits at the New Orleans World's Exposition is organized in the State of New Jersey, as follows: B. Henri Herbert, of Trenton, Honorary State Commissioner; James M. Baxter, of Newark, Alternate Honorary State Commissioner. District Commissioners; First Congressional district, P. T. Cobbing, Camden; Second district, Israel Brown, Trenton; Third district, Abreo Lyons, Plainfield; Fourth district, Wm. B. Mulford, Bound Brook; Fifth district, Wm. H. Hopper, Paterson; Sixth district, Alvan B. Hey, Newark; Seventh district, James L. Morris, Jersey City. The appointments are made by the Hon. B. K. Bruce, Chief Director of the Department, upon the recommendation of B. Henri Herbert, State Commissioner. Colored exhibitors should communicate directly with the State Commissioner or with the Commissioner for the district in which they reside, who will cheerfully furnish the information or assistance desired.

The prospects of this department of the exhibition are exceedingly bright. State Commissioner Herbert informs us that the exhibit from New Jersey already secured includes copper-plate engraving, model of a locomotive, two stationary engines, bricks, leather, hair work, clothing, wax flowers, furniture, blacksmithing, drawing, painting in oil and water colors, carriage striping designs, sheet-iron and tin-ware, wood work, pile-sight covers, chemical cements, canned goods, floral designs, organ pipes, wood carving, fancy wood turning, medicines, fancy needle work model of a ship, original musical compositions, press work, tool handles, carved carpets, ornamental pasteboard, patent kindling wood, pictures frames and gilding, crackers, varnish, pyrodrite, goods from a Camden stocking factory owned and operated by colored men, and specimens of various other varieties of handicraft.

Republican Primaries.

The Republicans of Plainfield held their primaries Tuesday night and elected the following delegates to the County Republican Convention to be held in Elizabeth on Friday next:

First Ward—Jos. E. Coward, James Pope, Nelson Runyon. To Assembly Convention —Augustus Frame, Nelson Runyon and Daniel Littell.

Second Ward—County, Elias R. Pope, V. W. Nash, P. A. Dunham. C. W. Dodd. To Assembly—C. H. Goddard, G. Frame, V. W. Nash, John Ulrich.

Third Ward—County, Wm. Stillman, C W. Kimball, Frank Marsh, O. E. Runyon. To Assembly—D. Titsworth, J. Titsworth, J. Frank Bulstard, G. B. Leonard.

Four h Ward—County, Wm. McD. Corbett, Thos. Lucas, Albro Lyons, John H. French, Wm. B. Ayres. Assembly—Robert Simpson, T. J. Gillies, A. D. Jennings, C. P. Sebring, J. B. Mulford.

Suicide.

Yesterday morning about eight o'clock Mr. Martin Stoetzel, residing near Cranbury, committed suicide by hanging himself. Mr. Stoetzel, who was about 57 years of age, had been in ill health for some time past, and suffered from the effects of a sunstroke which he received some years ago. At times he would grow very despondent and it is thought that he was suffering from a sudden fit of melancholia and put an end to himself while suffering under temporary aberration. Dr. Holmes, of Cranbury, was immediately sent for, but all efforts at resuscitation were unavailing.

Mr. Stoetzel leaves a wife and four children, the two sons being the well-known firm of Stoetzel Bros., of Burnet street, New Brunswick. A married daughter resides at Perth Amboy, while the youngest resides at the farm.

The County Physician was notified and left for the scene of the suicide at 11.30.

A Republican Rally.

The Republicans had a rally last evening at VanDeventer Hall in which a large audience assembled to listen to the speakers billed for the occasion. Mr. Frank E. Marsh called the meeting to order and Mr. Alexander Gilbert was chosen Chairman, on assuming which he appropriately introduced the principal speaker, Col. James Fairman, who spoke long and eloquently upon the issues of the day. He was followed by the Hon. John Kean, Jr., who owing to the lateness of the hour, made a very short address, but was nevertheless heartily received. A large number of well-known adherents of the party had seats on the platform, and the Plainfield Cornet Band and Lincoln Glee Club supplied vocal and instrumental music.

The Democrats at Somerville.

A large Democratic parade took place at Somerville last night. About 800 uniformed men were in line. The streets were crowded. Campaign campaign from Plainfield, headed by the Cleveland and Hendricks Club, the Independent Cleveland and Hendricks Club, the Vomelier Guards and the Boys in Red, Bound Brook, Middlesex, Raritan and Somerville took part in the procession. The Plainfield Glee Club were complimented on their flattering. The Independent Cleveland and Hendricks Club and the Vomelier Guards returned to this city about one o'clock this morning on a special train.

ENGINEER MELVILLE SUES.

While He Was in the Arctic His Home Was Papered.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 22.—In the suit against Engineer George W. Melville a decision was rendered in his favor. When Mr. Melville returned from the Jeannette cruise about two years ago he was confronted with bills to the amount of $3,000 or $4,000, contracted by his wife during his absence. These bills he refused to pay. One of them, that of F. P. Stowell & Co., for $280 for paper hanging in the engineer's house at Sharon Hill, was a test case, and the case came up for trial before Judge Tucker. The plaintiffs proved the work was ordered by Mrs. Melville. Engineer Melville testified that he never intended to have the walls papered; that on leaving the country in April, 1879, his salary was $181.80 a month, of which he allotted $60 to his wife; that his salary was afterwards increased $30 a month, so that for thirteen months she had an income of $240 a month upon which to support herself and three children. Upon his return he found that she had contracted bills to an amount greater than he was able to pay. The case went to the jury upon the question of the necessity of the paper hanging to preserve the house in proper condition, and the verdict was for the defendant.

The Result in Ohio Counties.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 22.—Following is the official count of the state ticket in Hamilton county: For secretary of state—Robinson (Rep.), 27,326; Newman (Dem.), 24,722; Harold (Grbk), 198; Morris (Prob.), 168. For judge of supreme court—Johnson (Rep.) 27,256; Martin (Dem.), 24,287; Rosborough (Prob.), 157. For member of the board of public works—Fleckinger (Rep.), 27,507; Hunter (Dem.), 24,232; Ogden (Grbk), 213; Kirkendale (Prob.), 146.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 22.—The official canvass of the votes for judges of the sixth state judicial circuit, comprising the counties of Cuyahoga, Summit, Erie, Huron, Lorain, Lucas, Medina, Ottawa and Sandusky is as follows: Baldwin (Rep.), 59,564; Upson (Rep.), 59,193; Hayden (Rep.), 59,001; Kline (Dem.), 58,582; Stratton (Dem.), 62,858; Garver (Dem.), 52,330; Stewart (Prob.), 1,888; Gage (Prob.), 1,609; Logan (Prob.), 1,603. The Republican candidates have in the nine counties an average plurality of over 2,000.

How a Swindler was Punished.

SEYMOUR, Ct., Oct. 22.—George A. Chatfield, aged about 45 years, has been consigned to the county jail for six months for obtaining money under false pretences. Chatfield has been nearly killed several times for playing this game, and a few weeks ago a band of farmers on Seymour hill, whom he had swindled out of $65, took him from his house, stripped him to the waist, tied him to a hay rack and rode him on a rail. They carried him through the principal streets to the mill pond at the south end of the village, and there hanged him into the water. As fast as he scrambled out he was tossed back again. This was kept up until the victim was nearly dead from cold and terror. His tormentors took him to a thick wood near by, while he was still howling for mercy, and there, by the light of a brush fire, shaved one-half of his head clean with a razor. Then they let him go. But notwithstanding this lesson, Chatfield speedily repeated his offences, and is now in the toils of the law.

Fatal Collision on the Hudson.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 22.—Last evening at 6:30 o'clock the tug Syracuse, Capt. Maurice Leahy, which plies about the creek and river in this vicinity, struck the tug Sammy Cornell, of the Cornell Steamboat company's line, while they were trying to get out of each other's way, near the mouth of the creek. The Syracuse sank in a few minutes. Ezra Freligh, second engineer of the Cornell, was thrown overboard and drowned. In the collision the bow of the Cornell struck a canal boat laden with oysters and sank it.

A Peculiar Death.

PORT JERVIS, N. Y., Oct. 22.—Corbet Dixon, of Neversink, Sullivan county, met his death in a singular manner at that place on Saturday. He, with a companion, was sheathing the roof of a barn. While driving a nail he struck his thumb a blow with his hammer. The pain was so great that it fainted away and, rolling from the roof, fell a distance of twenty feet on a pile of stones, breaking his back and crushing his skull.

A Horrible Tragedy.

HARTFORD, Ct., Oct. 22.—Martin Harrison, a street car driver, fatally stabbed Ada Browne, and then attempted suicide. The cause was jealousy. The couple had been living together. Harrison is supposed to be dying. Some suspicion is cast on a man named Gregory, who is said to have committed the deed. Gregory was formerly the woman's lover. On recovering consciousness, Harrison accused Gregory of the double crime.

Jay-Eye-See in Kentucky.

RACINE, Wis., Oct. 22.—Mr. Case's horses Jay-Eye-See and Phallas left yesterday for Lexington, Ky., where they will remain during the winter. The horses are in excellent condition, Jay-Eye-See having fully recovered from the illness contracted in Michigan when he was taken from the track.

Secretary Frelinghuysen Denies it.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—In relation to a dispatch from Paris stating that Secretary Frelinghuysen had "declared his inability to understand the reluctance of France to an amicable settlement of the difficulties" with China, Mr. Frelinghuysen says he never expressed an opinion on the subject.

An Immense Barbecue.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 22.—An immense gathering of people is present at the great Democratic barbecue at De Kalb. It is estimated that 20,000 are present there, and tents are erected for most of the visitors. Two car loads of cattle are roasting in pits, and immense tanks of soup are preparing.

A Journalist Sues for Libel.

ROCHESTER, Oct. 22.—John R. Morey, Jr., proprietor of the Democrat and Chronicle, has brought suit for $50,000 against The Morning Journal, of New York, for publishing an article to the effect that he had been sued for breach of promise.

Burke Meets Mitchell.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—There was a large crowd at Gormont's Self Defence Hall to witness the Burke-Mitchell fight. After four hard fought rounds the match was declared a draw, although many believed Burke had the best of it.

Western Union's Rival.

ROCHESTER, Oct. 23.—The Baltimore and Ohio and National telegraph offices in this city has opened with the announcement of twenty per cent. reduction from Western Union rates.

Congressman Arnot Recovering.

ELMIRA, N. Y., Oct. 22.—Congressman Arnot, who was injured by the explosion of gas in his bank vault, is on the high road to recovery, and no serious result is apprehended.

The undersigned has secured the exclusive agency for the sale of the

Diebold Patent Iron Stone,

which for elegance and durability, is unsurpassed, and in price will compare favorably with any other pavement now in use. It is the most beautiful pavement known for walks and yards, gutter and curb, floor tiling and street blocks. Also used to build fences and coping of same. Suitable for building purposes generally. These pavement blocks have been in use in Newark, N. J., for some time, and are pronounced by the city and gas contractors, as well as all kinds of mechanics, to be the best pavement on the ordinary brick. The blocks are entirely free from rust. These blocks are cast from the molten Iron Slag and can be had at the Rolling Mills. Samples on exhibition at Werner's Fancy Store, opposite Bellman Music Hall. MIDSUMMER NIGHT.

How the Miserable Sleep in the City During the Hot Season.

Conditions of Caloric Utterly Unbearable—Asleep in the Gutter—New York Mud—How Children Herd.

[New York Herald.]

Listen to the story of the gutter, a story utterly foreign to the understanding of people who live in comfortable homes, and known to the darkness of the roofs only by rumor. Twenty thousand persons on the hot nights of last week nursed upon the stoops, sweltered in ash-bins, slept in the gutters of New York's streets. Within an eighth of a mile of the city hall are many large buildings called tenements, in which scores of families live, breed and die. Dirt and squalor are their normal conditions; suddenness of colors, and indecency are things familiar to young eyes and the everyday surroundings of old age. In winter time it is possible for the despised wretches who herd in the tunnels to exist, because the more crowded they are the warmer they are, and in the winter the two things most needed are shelter and heat. Utterly reckless as to appearance, careless of what may happen to one another in the way of immorality, with no projection in favor of clean faces or tidy linen, these families live together as dogs do, literally rolling one over the other, content so long as their lowest physical necessities are even partially met. In the summer all this is changed. Shelter, to be sure, is desirable, but there are conditions of caloric utterly unbearable, which even these people, unaccustomed to ease or comfort of any sort or kind, insist upon so far as they are able to control affairs. It requires no very great stretch of imaginations to understand that the dark, unventilated houses in which these people burrow, where children are born, the sick are cared for, the dead lie waiting burial, where cooking and washing and a thousand and one domestic occupations necessary to every household, however humble, are carried on, cannot be very desirable places for anyone to sleep in during the frightful nights of torridity. What, then, must they be when not only one, but a dozen, are expected to find nature's even restorer, balmy sleep, in the contracted, foul-smelling, almost loathsome places in which these people stay?

They can not go to the roof, it is already occupied, as they are even upon the stoops. First come first served is their motto. As soon as the evening shades prevail these creatures emerge half-clothed, dirty, contagious to the last degree, and wind their way through the crooked passages down the sidewalks to the narrow street. The steps are now all taken. Every point where a person can rest his weary head is occupied. Far in the evening hours, when children of people in moderate circumstances are asleep, these streets are noisy, echoing with the cries and sports, the fights, the broils, the romps of wretched little children, whose dirty faces are stained with tears, to whom a cruel is a banquet, and a pillow an unheard of luxury. There is something about New York mud which defies analysis. It has a peculiar, pungent, sickening odor to which the frightful smells from Hunter's Point and Barren island are like the profumes from a lady's boudoir. There are streets in which, after a rain, it lies in pools to the view. It matter in the gutters, it hides beneath the stones, it rises in foul vapors from the road way and is as familiar to every one of the boys and girls and babies on the block as the rap of a policeman' club or the yell of a vender of fish.

A walk through one of these streets at 11 o'clock of a frightful September night would do much to allay the discontented fever which eats the very hearts of so many of New York's sick poor. Children are to be seen there by the hundreds who haven't been in bed for weeks, who haven't changed their clothing in months, to whom a good wash would be a revelation more absolute than the most startling sentence in the apocalypse. Curly-headed boys and girls, with bright eyes and sturdy figures, literally romp in the street, and yell each other with its dirt. Miserable, big headed, weak eyed, pallid faced, wasting babies lie upon the laps of skeleton mothers, and roll their heads from side to side in pitiable weakness. All manner of costume can there be seen. Bearded men and women, half-grown boys and girls, with but a single garment between them and the outer air, disreputable-looking men and disheartening-looking women form the ugly groups of every possible age and every imaginable condition of trouble and distress. Recently the very acme and zenith of physical discomfort and distress was reached.

During the late days of excessive heat, with no let up of any consequence at night, the gutters of New York's tenement districts presented a sight of such a character as nearly every corner an attractive glare those from a gin-mill. Men who can not afford an extra dollar a week for a room, appearance or food in addition to raising a nickel every half hour or so, for a pot of beer. Old men and women, fathers and mothers, children and babies, stretched at full length in the filthy beverage from time to time. Little by little the weary children, tired with crying, recognizing the utter uselessness of clinging for comfort, spread themselves upon the side walk, curled up in gutters, rested where best they could, and fell asleep in positions as comfortable as it was possible to get. Groups upon the stoops followed suit. Now and then, with a cry of "Here comes the cop!" the children, startled from a feverish, disturbed sleep, would run to their mothers for protection, and they would cuddle down in the very arms of those who had done nothing to deserve more than a gentle tap or a rough reprimand, they soon returned and resumed their sleep.

There was no air stirring anywhere these nights, save on the roofs of some very palatial warehouses. It was a terrible night for people who had to be about business by seven or eight o'clock. Those who were compelled by street of business to return by the last boat or train, and were expecting rest in their own comfortable homes. Many a rich man was aghast for all while he sat the sole occupant of a spacious chamber. Now, then was it in the street cars, on Broadway or Jersey, in the fine new highways and by-ways called "places," how in these enormous human hives where the poor of every name and nation are crowded it was possible for Mr. Sharp to put aside hope to be herded on their way to the slaughter house! The heat is no respecter of persons. It stabs the liver in every vein, whether that vein be in the body of the rich or poor, the sick or the well.

If you've been waited,
  In hope and in fear,
Watching the billows,
  To see you run,
For your ship on the ocean,
  Laden with gold,
To dance with delight
  As the tide it goes bold,
But forget you're waiting
  For the ship that comes in,
And it's bottom-side up

WAITING AS A TRADE.

The Difficulty of Pleasing a Hundred Different Persons Each Day.

Lives and Prospects of Waiters in Restaurants—Girls Get Less Wages and Work Harder Than Men.

[Chicago News.]

"Many people think the vocation of a waiter is one that can be acquired by half an hour's observation and by simply watching one person to see what to do," remarked the manager of a large restaurant the other day to a Daily News representative. "Now the fact is, I've noticed, that the trade of a waiter is a very difficult one. The man who serves at a public table has from twenty-five to 150 different individuals to please every day he is on duty. He must be a mind reader, and if 5 o'clock, the majority are off duty. Usually they live too far away to go home during this time. They have no place to go to sleep. Accordingly, too many of them congregate together in saloons or gambling places to pass their time. But as a whole they are an honest and industrious a class of men as almost any other."

"What is the average pay of a waiter?" was asked.

"From $7 to $10 a week and board. The German waiters, who mostly serve in German restaurants or for saloons, are the most saving. Other waiters do not save money as a rule. They are too much inclined to what are always in demand, and, knowing this, they are without the incentive to lay up something for a rainy day period of no work. The waiter's life is a hard one, and the outlook for something better to do, and regard their present occupation merely as available till more lucrative employment turns up."

"Do they always find it?"

"Not always. Part go into some small business, and they are often taken home as stewards. A few become successful restaurant or hotel proprietors. One Chicago citizen, who owes so into as since the great fire, commenced the business of waiter. He acquired wealth as a hotel keeper, and although he is not now in the business, his name is a familiar one in the city."

"Do the waiters usually remain with one house continuously?"

"No; they are, as a rule, a fascinating class. It is their benefit to for them to remain in one place long at a time, and many things to discourage them from so doing. There is scarcely a chance of promotion. In the house I manage we have made and followed a rule of advancing the most capable man from the waiters' corps to positions of trust. We have three cashiers to-day who began in my own which has not been filled by taking some one from off the floor. All the men know this and that promotions will be made just as fast as vacancies occur or the interests of business demands more assistance. As a result we have the very best service in this house in the city, and I say it without boasting."

"How many hours a day do you work?" asked the reporter of a plump, black-eyed girl in a cafe where girls instead of men are employed to wait on the table.

"Fifteen," said the girl. "You see, when we get off table duty there is the butter to stamp, silver to clean, glass to polish, and a lot of other things to do. We get up at 6 o'clock in the morning and go off at 9 o'clock in the evening. Our wages? From $4.50 to $7 a week. Men do just the same work that we do and more, but they get much larger wages as men. They don't in stores or in anything else."

"Would you rather wait on men than on women?"

"Yes, I would. Women, they treat us just as if we wasn't fit for anything, but to wait on 'em, but men are mostly right down nice like."

In passing out the reporter met a lady acquaintance. "I do not patronize restaurants where girls serve the food," said this lady. "In my experience, wherever girls are employed for that purpose, either in Chicago, New York, or in Europe, it is impossible for a lady to get good service, or any, sometimes, if any man are to be attended. Not long ago I ventured into a newly-opened and elegantly-appointed restaurant on the North side. After entering I observed that the waiters were girls. One finally condescended to take my order. In the middle of it she broke away to receive that of a gentleman who had just come in. I waited for three-quarters of an hour. Gentlemen came and went and helped themselves all about me and were served. At the end of that time I arose and passed out without eliciting attention or inquiry. No, indeed, the girl is not a success as a waiter."

Heard on Patent Right Men.

[Boston Herald "Pick, Pick."]

It does not take much to break some men up in business. Down at the Commercial hotel the other evening a man was telling how he came near to be looking for a job.

"My brother and I," he said, "had a scheme which promised to work well in the territories. It was a sort of patent right, an article for trapping wild animals, clipping their tails, blazing trees, chopping firewood, paring corns, and pulling teeth." It was the most remarkable invention of the age, and might be said to be looking for a job. We had it on the frontier away from the conveniences of civilization. Unfortunately, we concluded to try Montana first. For a few days we did pretty well, but then they began to sour on us. One man said the machine was a fraud. Another declared that patent right sharks had gouged him for $10 in addition, and that he never would be caught again. Then we got into a hard crowd, and they chased us about a hundred miles. Just as we thought we were out of the woods another party broke up from the mine in which they were going and arrested us for horse thieves. My brother explained that we were patent right men."

"That settled it," said one of the party. "There are some things meaner than horse-stealing."

"Then they hung my brother and were getting ready to do the same to me when the leader said: 'Let's see how the machine works, boys.' Now, you see, my brother invented the machine, and I didn't know any thing about it. I was simply a salesman. I couldn't tell them how it operated, and in the course of further conversation it came out that my brother was the inventor. When they said I wasn't an almighty bad man they would let me go if I would agree not to stop until I got to Chicago. I had to leave all my property behind me, but I don't know how to make any more I'm relieved."

The number of cats on the streets of London is estimated at 1,000,000, nearly as many as in the small of most metropolitan cities.

"Jones, you are much overworked. You look pale and tired. I see that he is about to publish a book, and asks me if I will be kind enough to suggest some good, reliable publisher for him."

"Tell him I will specialize "Amazon" either to confer his book on some deserving publisher with a view to bribing him up and pouring a golden stream of wealth into his coffers. I mention this, in his behalf, that, in his adult eye, can the vague millions of readers inspiring such ardor down and trampling upon one another in the mad rush for his book. In my world I see him already. Sighed up with hope, and, though he lives in New Jersey, I fancy I can hear his quickened breath as his bosom heaves.

To confer his book on some deserving publisher.

"Evidently he has never published a book. There is a good deal of fun about of him that he does not see of. I used to think that when I got the last page of my book ready for press, the front yard would be full of publishers tramping down the velvet lawn and up the veranda in their eager efforts to get hold of the manuscript, but when I had written the last word of my first volume of soul-shock, and had opened the door, there was no one in the howling, hungry mob of publishers, with check-books in one hand and a pillow-case full of seals in the other, I was a little hurt, too, at what the aloofness of the pronounced manner in which they were not there.

Opened the casement to look out on the howling mob of publishers.

All of us have to struggle before we can catch the eye of the speaker. Milton didn't get one-fiftieth as much for "Paradise Lost" as I got for my first book, and yet you will find people to-day who claim that if Milton lived he could have touched the scribe off of me with one hand tied behind him. Recollect, however, that I am not here to open a discussion on the matter. I only mention it to show that comparison in relation to authors. People cannot agree on the relative merits of literature. Now, for instance, last summer I met a man over in South Park, Col., who could repeat page after page of Shakespeare, and yet, when I asked him if he was familiar with the poems of the "99-cent Bard of Medipa," he turned upon me a look of stolid vacancy, and admitted that he had never heard of her in his life.

After Seeing Him on the Stage.

[Li.e.]

America's Impression of Irving.

A Stock-Broker in the New York Stock Exchange.

[N. Y. World.]

A ill-year-old youngster, of diminutive size, with a face as shiny and black as the brokers' beaver hats, who plays popular melodies on his fife, and goes through the festive brokers blowing his instrument in New street. He was dragged into the Exchange and sold to play in peril of his life. His tragic, yet golden, destiny believed was not long. Brokers forgot about the Certain's new issue of bonds and began to sing "Columbia, the Golden Gate" and "Where Gabriel Blows His Trumpet in the Morning." This was followed by an Irish jig. Four hundred brokers danced a "break-down" in broad daylight, the clicking of the ticker and at a time when nineteen men thousands of dollars, and when the financial world is watching their transactions with the cashier. Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds were wrapped for order in vain. He distributed rebates and $10 fines with unsparing hand, and the broken purpose of keeping bound to have some sport, and they had it.

The colored boy at the end of twenty minutes found himself outside the entrance, with his fife jammed with silver to the amount of $25, and he went on his way rejoicing.

Why She Had no Fun.

[San Francisco Post.]

The prettiest girl at a Sausalito picnic the other day was observed to sit in a most inattentive attitude. Her companions had paired off and were wandering about, had climbed to dance, swing or climb the rocks after trees. Later in the day she was found by another girl weeping bitterly under a bush.

"What on earth's the matter, Bessie?" she inquired.

"Why, you see, Sugsy," sobbed the unmated, "I never learned any dancing, myself a lot. I started off in such a hurry this morning that I forgot to put on any other stockings. Then I remembered dark socks covered all of me all," she

The Sun.

THE SUN is, and will continue to be, a newspaper which tells the truth without fear of consequences, which gets at the facts, no matter how much the abscess, costs, which presents the news of all the world without waste of words and in the most readable shape, which is working with all its heart for the cause of honest government, and which therefore believes that the Republican party must go, and must go in this year of our Lord, 1882.

About sixty million copies of THE SUN have gone out of our establishment during the passed twelve months.

If you were to pass end to end all the columns of THE SUN printed and sold last year you would get a continuous strip of interesting information, common sense wisdom, sound doctrine, and sane wit long enough to reach from Printing House square to the top of Mount Copernicus in the moon, then back to Printing House square, and three quarters of the way back to the starting point.

But THE SUN is written for the inhabitants of the earth; this same strip of intelligence would girdle the globe twenty-seven or twenty-eight times.

If every buyer of THE SUN during the passed year has spent only one hour reading it, and if his wife or his grandfather has spent another hour, this newspaper in 1882 has afforded the human race thirteen thousand years of steadying sight and day.

It is only by little occasions like these that you can form any idea of the circulation of the most popular of American newspapers, or of its influence on the opinions and actions of American men and women.

If you know THE SUN you like it already, and you will read it with accustomed diligence and profit during what is sure to be the most interesting year in its history. If you do not know THE SUN, it is high time to get into the sunshine.

—The Fair for the benefit of St. Mary's Church commences this evening.

—A colored dude club with uniform identical with the H. L. M's of this city, is expected among the visitors this evening.

—The Republicans of Plainfield are in want of a local Republican organ. Having none here they go abroad for political favors—notably to the Elizabeth Journal, a strong Republican paper, as the Herald is Democratic.

—The line of march for the Republican parade is as follows: Form on North avenue and adjacent streets, Passaic to Front, to Grove, to Somerset, to Jackson, to Somerset, to Front, to Park, to Fifth, to Pease, to Seventh, to Liberty, to Front, to Central, to Fifth, to Park, to depot.

—The Young Peoples Association of the Park Avenue Baptist Church who conducted a very successful course of popular entertainments last winter, are arranging another course for this winter. It will probably include the Young Apollo Club of New York, Miss N-i-l-s F. Brown of Boston, and the Valencia Orchestra of Hoboken.

—The ringing of the fire bells during the night was more violent than necessary in view of the fact that the fire was probably six miles away. The ringing seemed to have been continued from pure devilery. There should be some remedy against allowing such reckless mens. It is a positive cruelty to women in the neighborhood. Some nerves are not strong, to be needlessly alarmed by such clanging.

—Up to last evening the Ladies on the Republican city executive committee to provide refreshments for the visiting clubs in the parade this evening, had secured 6,000 sandwiches, of which 3,000 are from North Plainfield. They have also 60 pounds of coffee and 55 pounds of sugar. The grand feed is to be spread on the two upper floors occupied by the Oxford Roller Skating Rink, accommodating 400 persons at a time on each floor—800 in all.

A Republican Organ Wanted.

The Central Times cuts a sorry figure in Plainfield as a Republican organ. At the outset of the campaign it opposed Blaine. Later, when public opinion began to set strongly in his favor, it fe-fpared over Blainewards. Now it seems endeavoring to become a Democratic organ, and to finally to the half dozen free traders who opposed Blaine because he stands boldly up for protection, that patriotic act which has forced to be alleged to be corrupt. If all the campaign stories are to be believed neither Blaine nor Cleveland are fit to run in the Democratic organ, as was the case with its New York namesake. Failing as a Republican organ, it is too sinuous to have any chance of success as a Democratic organ, while his alone Billy is in the field, and much less an Independent paper with Tax Riders in the field. It is sadly in need of back bone.

No. 2 Co.'s. Ball.

Plainfield Engine Co., No. 2, propose to give a grand ball at the Casino as announced in our advertising columns the proceeds to be applied to pay for the horse and harness recently purchased by the company for the hose carriage. A $200 organ and a $25 camera are offered as prizes, the latter to each lady and gentleman voting for the worthy object of the ball being to forward the facilities of the firemen to protect life and property, will doubtless make it the greatest event of the kind ever known in this vicinity.

Snakes at Westfield.

In a lot belonging to C. B. Risley, corner of Central avenue and Park street, Westfield, some winter grain was recently sowed. Tuesday George Ostbhp, Mr. Risley's foreman accompanied by some workmen, went to repaint he fences and ever surprised to find in the lot numerous snakes. Up to last evening the men killed ninety-eight of the reptiles, the largest being five feet eight inches in length.

Injured on the Railroad.

Frank S. Hare, a German about 60 years of age who resides in Hurle's quarry at Bonhamville, was walking on the railroad track below the depot here at about 5:35 Monday night when he was struck by the engine of the up train. One arm was set comfortably and he was badly bruised. Dr. Meixsell dressed his wounds and he was taken to his home in Round Brook.

Democratic Assembly Convention.

[SPECIAL TO THE NEWS.]

FARWOOD, N. J., Oct. 28.—The Democratic Assembly Convention for the Third District met in the Town Hall this afternoon shortly after two. The convention was called to order by James Ritchie in behalf of the local Democracy.

Mr. Walter Hatfield, of Plainfield, was elected chairman, and in a short speech explained the convention for the honor conferred. Mr. H. C. Marsh, of Westfield, was elected secretary.

On motion the chairman appointed Messrs. J. G. Mill r, Joseph Savage and William Stansbury as a committee on credentials.

The Committee on Credentials reported that all the wards and townships were represented and the committee of the township Clerk. On motion Dr. Hough was made a representative from Clark.

On calling the roll it was found that the delegations were full. The convention then proceded to nominate a candidate for member of Assembly. The name of Edward P. Ridabay presented Robert D. Gibby, the city editor of the Railway Advocate, a Republican paper. The Third and Fourth wards of Railway and Clark township seconded the nomination. There being no other names presented Gibby was nominated by acclamation. Dr. Hough, Joseph Savage and J. N. C. Marsh were appointed a committee to inform the nominee.

The delegates selected Westfield as the place for holding the next convention, and adjourned.

The Fire Ladder Parade.

Yesterday afternoon the Somerville Fire Department with Gazelle Engine Co., No. 1, of this city, accompanied by the Plainfield Cornet Band, Chief Engineer Carney, Smith and Seltzman, Chemical Engine Co., No. 2, of Westfield, Engine Co., No. 1, of Flemington and Raritan Hose Co., had a Firemen's parade. The members of Gazelle Engine Co., No. 1, who took part are as follows: Foreman Jeremiah A. Moore; 1st Assistant, C. H. Hoge; 2d Assistant, James Connelly; and Messrs. John Jackson, Burton Kline, Aaron Kline, Stephen Davis, George Schiereth, Robert Schiereth, James Searing, Silas Bird, J. B. Flannery, Wm. R. Asbury, H. J. McCarthy, H. Schiereth, Edward Van Wart, W. Van R. Spicer, Wm. Grunendyke, Jas. E Huntington, John B. Gaide, J. R. Gaide, Jr., Aaron Rockhart, Edward Searing, Isaac Taylor, Frank VanWinkle, Wm. Cline, Robert Stothwell, Chas. Sebring, Wm. Newman, Andrew Lowe, Sr., James Lowe, Chas. Coleman George Demarest, and Wm. Van Sickle.

The Company left this city at 1.15 p. m., on a special train and returned about 11.30 p. m.

After the parade the Companies partook of supper and refreshments which was followed by speech making.

Somerville Engine Co., No. 1, presented Gazelle Engine Co., No. 1, with a handsome silver water pitcher and goblet, which are to be put on exhibition at the city store of Ira Long. Gazelle Engine Co., in return presented the Somerville Company also with a pitcher and goblet.

As the parade passed the factories in Raritan all the whistles were blowing and the bells in the towers were ringing. There was a number of mottoes displayed, all of which had inscribed thereon "Welcome Gazelle."

Wells Westfield Engine Co., No. 2, were putting their horses in the car preparatory to returning home, one of them slipped and fell on Warren Street, a member of the company and dislocated his shoulder.

What Elizabeth Thinks of It.

The city of Plainfield may well feel proud of her beautiful and commodious new temple of amusement, Stillman's Music Hall. It may be said to be modeled after the Grand Opera House, New York, though it has but one balcony and no private boxes. The sides are all richly carpeted and the seats are of the latest folding design. The lobby and corridor are large and commodious. The stage is 40 feet deep and 70 feet wide. The view of the stage, which is larger than any in the State, can be secured and every word heard. A fire patrol of four men, uniformed, will guard the theatre. The exits are numerous. The entrance is large and kept free from loiterers. The drop curtain is a very rich piece of artistic skill. The stage furniture, scenery and settings are rich and modern. The ventilation is all that could be desired. The light is soft and mellow, in fact the theatre has been designed in every respect in keeping with the rapid progress of modern ideas. Last evening the Madison Square Company produced the inaugural drama on its boards, the play being "Hazel Kirke." Not a seat could be obtained after 8.00 o'clock last night. The play was enthusiastically received and well placed on the stage, and fully eleven hundred persons, the first-class of Plainfield, witnessed it. Mr. Chas. W. Coulduck, as Dunstan Kirke, Miss Annie Sutherland as Hazel Kirke and Miss Sidney Cowell as Dolly Sutton secured the manager of the play with a strong support. It is earnestly hoped that Elizabeth may some day in the very near future be able to keep pace with Plainfield in this respect. Rich Jolly was presented with a silk souvenir.—Elizabeth Herald.

Reporting an Evening Post Blunder.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Oct. 28.—The bridge across the down line of the Central Railroad of New Jersey was completed the 5th ult. and the engineer of the construction corps of Plainfield, whose name I was attached to an address published in The Somerville Press of yesterday. The fact is that the bridge was completed by Mr. Shelton, and the declaration that the engineer of Plainfield was the engineer of the bridge is false and I wish to say to them of the world and civil service the reform party here are not drivers. A member of the Republican party here is not a member of the Democratic party here. We are never voted the Republican ticket, while some out of ten of my school fellows voted in the Democratic ticket and the names of five of the number of New Jersey.—E. L. Stetson.

A Deception.

A few weeks ago, a meeting was held at Laing's Hall, pursuant to the announcement set forth on a circular which had been distributed to every voter in the city for the purpose of organizing a club of Independent Republicans, explicitly stating as an extract from the constitution, that "Any person becoming a member of this club shall not thereby be deemed to pledge himself to vote for any particular candidate."

Under such a promise a number of names were secured. Then a private meeting was held last Saturday evening, attended by the bait a dozen engineers of the movement and their satellites, altogether about thirty-five persons, including a few outsiders, while the majority of the signers, well known respectable gentlemen, were conspicuous by their absence. All the same their names were set forth in a contemptuary as appended to an address denouncing Blaine, and per contra, assembly endorsing Cleveland, although as stated the constitution explicitly declared that the members were not pledged.

The Independents have a perfect right to vote for whom they please, and to receive the same consideration for their opinions as other citizens of voters. But when they call for others to sanction their opinions, they should not resort to privacy to hatch their egg, and then launch the unfledged chicken forth as a hen of legal age.

The Herald objects not to the professed principles of the club, but to what seems like underhand methods, by which the majority of respectable gentlemen whose names appear below, have been deceived by the cunning few. Appended are the names assembled at the meeting, this club has issued, as nothing Stolen:

Mason W. Tyler, Samuel St. J. McCutchen, Edward F. Midlane, Sanchin Stoner, Edward C. Pearson, Isaac L. Miller, G. W. Oydyke, Edward S. John, Samuel Hunnington, Rev. T. Logan Murphy, Leonard W. Darrell, Henry F. Tolmesh, W. D. W. Miller, Edward R. Clark, H. W. Bowen, Rev. A. S. Patton. D. D., W. M. Burrows, John Erskine, Prof. B. Hawley, Thos. R. Cone, Wm. D. Murray, E. W. Conklin, T. B. Blackley, Jr., John E. Christeel, L. F. Brigham, J. E. Turrill, Charles Tweedy, H. R. Munger, A. E. Faber, Jr., Rev. Wm. E. Honeyman, Frank L. Fremont, Charles R. Fremont, G. S. Darby, J. A. H. Hasbrouck, J. F. Pantone, Edwd. R. Anthony, W. R. Lockhart, Edward Rockmore, Henry F. Bowen. Wm. M. Alberti, Aug. Vanderveer, Geo. A. Chapman, Edward L. Suffern, Geo. B. Walbridge, Henry S. Mason, Robert S. Miller, F. M. Theriot, J. W. Stimson, H. G. Stephenson, S. R. Brunners, Walworth Ballantine, Samuel Willis, D. D. Dunn, F. B. Libby, John E. Colville, John Dieterich, A. P. Smith, Wilson Flake, C. A. Hunter, (Independent), Jas. E. Waite, H. P. Reynolds, Walter Squires, S. B. Montgomery, R. Smith, J. H. Wilcox, Ed. S. Hosley.

Robert L. Livingston.

Elizabeth acted magnanimously by waiving her right to the ballot box of Senator and awarding that enviable honor to a distinguished citizen of Plainfield, Mr. Robert L. Livingston. Mr. Livingston, although in no sense, a politician of the period, has, during the whole useful existence, been a Democrat of the most rigid cast, has never wavered off after any strange political gods and is a solid man. Living in the Republican city of Plainfield he has frequently been triumphantly elected to Council, of which body he has been, on several occasions, chairman, filling his responsible position to the satisfaction of his fellow members and earning the plaudits of the people by his urbanity, ability and honesty. Mr. Livingston is a gentleman of the old variety and comes out of the Living Stone stock so distinguished in the Revolutionary war for its patriotism and intellectuality. As a member of the Board of Freeholders, all remember his efficiency and devotion to the interests of the county. He is now a member of the Plainfield council, and is regarded by all parties as a model municipal Legislator, whose sole object is to do his duty. Mr. Livingston is, in addition to these sterling qualities, a man of large culture, ready in debate and logical in his argumentation, is thoroughly conversant with the varied interests and needs of Union county and always has the courage of his convictions. Such a man, at this crisis, is a public necessity. No man could have been nominated who will more completely bring the honor pending to his support, and none that will receive the hearty and enthusiastic aid of every Democrat in Elizabeth.—Elizabeth Herald.

Personal.

Mr. F. M. French and wife of North Plainfield, are spending a few days with friends in Hackettstown.

The Chief Engineer of the Railway Fire Department accompanied Chief Carney of this city to the Somerville parade yesterday.

Mr. Albert Sweet of Elizabeth, who is lying very low at the Park House, is being attended by Dr. Bellows and nursed by Mr. Parker B. Miller.

Chief Engineers Carney, Smith and Seltzman, wish to thank through the columns of The News, Mrs. John E. Rockefellow, of Somerville, for courtesies extended.

An Alarm of Fire.

About two o'clock this morning the slumbers of this city were disturbed by the violent ringing of the fire bell. The department responded but soon discovered that the fire was out of the limits and returned to their respective houses. The morning the fire was said to be between New Brunswick and Bonhill.

The Courts.

The case of Frahm vs. Anderman an action for debt came up for trial before Justice Hoag yesterday and was settled.

The case of Sipe vs. Smith, an action to recover damages for trial before Justice Hoag yesterday, and was settled by the two as it remaining.

A Grand Surprise.

It is rare for all who use Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs to say they have found remedy. A RUFFIAN ON THE RAMPAGE.

He Strowheats a Train Filled with Cowards and Stabs a Passenger.

CAIRO, Oct. 23.—A dispatch to The Daily News from Cairo, Ill., says a passenger just in reports a frightful occurrence on the Paducah and Memphis train on Sunday night. Herman Marshall, of Dyersburg, Tenn., was on the train drunk and went up and down the isles with knife in hand, threatening everybody and insulting in the most frightful obscenity. Finally he insulted a man named Epon Hendersaine, of Maysville, Ky., who struck him. Marshall cut and slashed Hendersaine's head and shoulders in a shocking manner, and the latter at last turned and ran out upon the platform, where Marshall followed him, striking at his back as he turned and threw the bleeding man from the train as it passed over a bridge, the victim falling fifteen feet. The train backed up and the wounded man was taken up, barely alive. Marshall continued his performances through the car, daring any one to touch him, and no one dared. He was not arrested.

A Desperate Wife's Plight.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Henry Williams, a real estate agent at No. 218 Eldridge street, reported at police headquarters yesterday that his wife was missing. In 1876 he married his second wife. They have two children, Frederick, 8 years old, and Emery 5. Mrs. Williams is a stylish brunette, 30 years old. He is her third husband, and due to the neglect of the lower children. Him and wife had a quarrel on Monday night, caused by Mrs. William's unjustifiable inebriation. The lady arose early Tuesday morning, and her husband gave her to the kitchen dropping a little brownish powder in a glass of milk, which she offered to their youngest child. The father dashed the goblet to the floor, and with a scream Mrs. Williams seized a bundle from the table and ran out. Mr. Williams followed, and was joined in the chase by his neighbors. His wife, however, escaped. The brown powder was ascertained to be cantharides.

A Fortune for a Pittsburg Barber.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 23.—Mr. Herman Haupt, a barber doing business on the south side, was surprised on Saturday to re ive a telegram from Hesse Cassel, Germany, informing him that one of his uncles had died and left a fortune of $1,000,000 to each of his relatives. He was at first inclined to believe the news, but a second cablegram from his parents confirmed it and requested him to come at once and publicly claim the money. Mr. Haupt left for New York Sunday night, and sailed for the old country yesterday morning. He will reach his destination in about twelve days.

Starvation Threatens Them.

HOPEDALE, Oct. 23.—Dr. Pudog, minister of parliament for Gaspe, has just returned from the Labrador coast and confirms the statement regarding the miserable condition of the fishermen. He says the total proceeds of the catch of 815 tons, only realized $300, and that unless the government relieves, starvation is feared by people. The same state of affairs prevails at the Magdalen Islands, where, owing to the stormy weather, the herring fishery is a complete failure.

Georgia's Double Lynching.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Oct. 23.—Full particulars have reached of the double lynching of J. R. Dorsey, postmaster at Alpine, Ga., and the woman, Jane Wade, by the belligerent people. When they were carried from the jail the woman confessed that Dorsey had killed his niece, Mrs. Davis, at his guest, C. C. Jones, whom he mistook for her husband, but she pretended her own innocence. When the bodies were being strung up they were riddled with bullets, and pistols hanging from Dorsey was shot 70 and the woman past 60.

Fire in the Americus.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—The French iron steamer Americus, which was advertised to sail yesterday morning, was detained one day by a fire which was discovered about 7:30 o'clock yesterday morning among cotton stored in the fore hold. The cotton compartment was flooded by the fire department and the cargo was soon put out pleasant on the dock and in the street. Just one week ago a fire was discovered in the hold of the Transatlantic, of the same line, while she was lying at the same pier.

Sir Moses Montefiore's Birthday.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—The 100th birthday of Sir Moses Montefiore, of England, is noted for his charitable actions in behalf of suffering Israelites in Christendom, will be celebrated by the congregation Rodeph Sholom, in Clinton street, Sunday, Oct. 30. Rabbi Isaacs, minister of the congregation Rev. Dr. Wise, will deliver a suitable sermon on the occasion.

Relieving Fishermen in Distress.

OTTAWA, Oct. 23.—The government steamer La Canadienne is at Dalhousie with 300 barrels of supplies for distressed fishermen on the north shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence. The Dominion steamer Lily is to carry any supplies required by relief of fishermen suffering from failure of fisheries.

Blitzen by Mosquitoes.

MARSHALLVILLE, I. T., Oct. 23.—Sophus Mitchell entered his hog-pen, when the hogs between his legs, upsetting him. One hog began biting him, the hogs carrying away, but not before Mr. Woodhull had badly bitten that he could not stir. A yard long strip torn from his back.

They Don't Love Him.

PETERSBURG, Oct. 23.—A secret printing press and a number of documents were found in a place against the door have been discovered in this city and search by the police. Several persons suspected to have been connected with the scheme have been arrested.

THE LAST REMNANT

Of the Once Powerful Indian Tribe of Atakapas.

A Visit to Their Village—Possibilities of Their Language—Personal Appearance and Habits—Basket-Making.

[Cor. New Orleans Times-Democrat.]

About twenty-five miles above where the meandering Teche flows into the Atchafalaya there is the little village of Chetimachas, and a pleasant walk distant from it is a small group of cabins. The bayou at this point approaches Lake Chetimachas, or as it is called now, Grand Lake, more closely than at any other place, as it here runs a long turn before it comes back to a spot only a mile or so distant from where it started. This bend is called Indian bend, and derives the name from the little cluster of cabins spoken of. Here for more than a century has dwelt the last remnant of the once powerful tribe of Attakapas, once the terror of all other red men, but now the sole relic of them that they devoured the flesh of their fallen foes.

The last remaining family now residing in Indian Bend are of the Chetimachas tribe, a branch of the Attakapas, and as relics of a once great nation they are most interesting to study. Far more difficult to approach and less communicative when approached than our Chatawa, it was not without much trouble that what is here given was learned.

The people living near them still hold them in something like awe, and strangers are not escorted to their village without minute advice as to how they must behave, and even then much reluctance is shown. It is not a little curious to note the hesitancy with which a resident of that locality will endeavor to prevent one from making a visit to the Indian village. Once having set out to secure an introduction to these interesting aboriginals we were told that a very dangerous fever was prevailing among them. As we expressed a willingness to brave the disease we were informed it was not the proper time of day to call. When the proper time arrived it was said the sun was too hot. When a later hour was fixed the party to escort us had his carriage made ready and drove us to a distant prairie to view some wonderful cattle of the country. Too hospitable to deny us the pleasure of a visit, that had some unknown dread to him, by eminent subterfuge he filled up the time in that other excursion until the hour proposed call. Of course this only whetted the curiosity, which a subsequent visit gratified.

There was an atmosphere of dreariness hanging over the little settlement, notwithstanding there were three or four women moving languidly about from one cabin to another in the yellow sunlight. Around their reservation waving fields of cane in bright apple-green spoke of the growth of civilization that hemmed them in, but this did not seem to be appreciated in the quality, for no attempt at cultivation was to be seen near their house. No prattle of children, no song of mothers, no sound of life was to be heard. All was silent, and the village seemed extinct. At the sight of a stranger the women retired, and it was only when the door of a cabin was approached that a man showed himself.

In general appearance they differ most from our Chatawa, with whom we were familiar from their constant visits to the French market. The men are a much more darker than them, we see in the city, their cheek-bones very high and their eyes keen and quick of movement. Furry, sensual mouths, indicate a deterioration of the race, but even with this drawback their expression is one of perfect self-assurance if not boldness. They were fully up to the average height of the white man, and their broad shoulders showed that they came from a big framed people. The women were smaller and more compact than the men, and their faces betokened quick intelligence. All were dressed in the habits of the whites, the men in cottonade pants and calico shirt, the women in calico skirt and bright-colored waist or jersey. Their spoken language differs from all others of our known Indians. It is a nul generis, and can in no way be noticed as akin to the twittering of birds. It is made up of labials sibilants, and each syllable seems of sharp brevity. The absence of all liquid sound in their speech sound more like an attempt at loud whispering which, with the short syllables, produces, as was said before, the twittering of birds. No attempt has been made to form a written vocabulary of their language, and it will not be long before it will be an impossibility.

So far as has been observed none of the ceremonies or festivals of ancestors are felt loved or celebrated, but it is possible within their close community old rites may be regularly observed without neighbors knowing anything abo it.

One of the most remarkable arts they have preserved is basket-making. In this they excell. In fact words fail to describe the attribute in which such exquisite specimens of both workmanship and color can be found. Their baskets are really objects of art, and are highly prized by those who have seen them. They are made of cane, but so small and delicate are the strips, some appear to have been hand-woven. The process by which their finger they strip off the hard outside from the ordinary wild cane, and the different dyes are applied before the weaving begins.

These dyes are imperishable, and notwithstanding many temptations held out, they still refuse to divulge the secret of their concoctions. Each basket is capable of design so two of these baskets are alike. Squares, triangles, curious hieroglyphics and geometric patterns in white, red, chocolate, yellow and black, make each basket a study, unique and all so wrought that there is a unity in the composition avoiding a remarkably high cover of taste. The larger baskets are double, the outside being covered with designs, while the interior is plain, and each is their fashion they would hold water.

The art of basket-making will soon pass away, however, as the younger ones show no desire to learn. An estimable gentleman living in the neighborhood is over now endeavoring to encourage them to continue up the study from their parents rather than see such exquisite work become a lost art.

Their wants are very few, and when we consider the subject they irresistibly comment on the high price of cotton, a bolt-ornage of which they are immoderately fond. Money and a little salt seem made up their entire list.

Unlike most tribes they recognize female equality, and the twenty-five or thirty left are now ruled by a queen, the chief having died.

The younger generation are more indolent, and show a marked indisposition to work, but among others are striving to urge them to learn the most dyes of their fathers, so that they may be able to preserve them, so they will be of service to them in the future.

Like "Yes, sir," said Mrs. Partington, speaking of one who drank himself to death, "he, sir, commenced his drinkings young, a man to the grave."

NOT HOME—BUT LIKE.

[Chicago Tribune.]

Come, take the chair next to mine with common comfort,
And converse still and coldly as the two in the Who, parting thus, might yet have kept together,
Had pride and stronger heart been often pride.

There were no bitter tears, no signs of sorrow,
No sad reproaches utter'd at the end;
And, after they had met—years from sorrow or the morrow—
'Twill be with courteous ease as friend meets friend.

Oh! mocking words for those who once loved madly,
Henceforth to be mere friends—not lovers!
Deep in each heart a death knell sounded sadly
For pain, deemed deathless, is glad days of yore.

Not more than friends—the voices must not falter,
Lest their tones betray a vain regret;
And on the lips the formal smile must not alter
To show how, 'neath that mask, grief's fires are set.

Let them take hand, but any word be spoken
To rouse some ghost from out the buried past
Through the door ties, that bound them once, are broken,
A strange spell lingers yet, and holds them fast.

Not less than friends—but, oh! the friendship offered
Seems of such little worth now love is done;
The hard to take the hand these coldly proffered,
And feel the tender, thrilling touch has gone.

Gone with the day, when just one word was spoken
To show how heavy clouds of pride and doubt to lift;
But all in vain, love's dying voice had broken
Now far apart, each lonely life must drift.

And she will never know, at their next meeting,
How hard he fought an outward calm to gain,
Nor will he see, beneath the friendly greeting,
How her true heart still yearns to him through pain.

THE MANUAL TRAINING SCHOOL

Adds New Dignity to Labor—Attracts Favorable Attention of Americans.

[St. Louis Globe-Democrat.]

"It's a very good thing!" said an old gentleman energetically, as he looked at the display of tools made in one of the galleries on the Olive street side of the exposition building by the Manual Training school.

"What's a good thing?" a reporter inquired.

"This school," said the gentleman, adjusting his glasses as he glanced admiringly at the long tables and decorated walls. "It adds new dignity to labor, and is a reality, for no attempt at cultivation was to be seen near their house. No prattle of children, no song of mothers, no sound of life was to be heard. All was silent, and the village seemed extinct. At the sight of a stranger the women retired, and it was only when the door of a cabin was approached that a man showed himself.

The art of basket-making will soon pass away, however, as the younger ones show no desire to learn. An estimable gentleman living in the neighborhood is over now endeavoring to encourage them to continue up the study from their parents rather than see such exquisite work become a lost art.

Their wants are very few, and when we consider the subject they irresistibly comment on the high price of cotton, a bolt-ornage of which they are immoderately fond. Money and a little salt seem made up their entire list.

Unlike most tribes they recognize female equality, and the twenty-five or thirty left are now ruled by a queen, the chief having died.

The younger generation are more indolent, and show a marked indisposition to work, but among others are striving to urge them to learn the most dyes of their fathers, so that they may be able to preserve them, so they will be of service to them in the future.

Preaching Wives.

[Chicago Herald.]

A famous leader in the best wives of Bengandy, having as a result of the long association of the wives is best done away with, has taken to artificially training his wife. He thus, whichever a certain gentleman of leader in the best of his pan his wives. The crop of ice thus removed, as soon as it melts, becomes fatal, showing some elements of spontaneous combustion. The ice-cream does not seem to affect the quality of the wine except for the better, as regards sweetness, body and color.

The Sun.
THE SUN is, and will continue to be, a newspaper which tells the truth without fear of consequences, which gets at the facts, no matter how much the process costs, which presents the news of all the world without sectional bias in the most readable shape, which is working with all its heart for the cause of honest government, and which therefore believes that the Republican party must go, and must go in this year of our Lord, 1884.
About sixty million copies of THE SUN have gone out of our establishment during the passed twelve months.
If you were to paste end to end all the columns of THE SUN printed and sold last year you would get a continuous strip of interesting information, sometimes news wicked, sometimes doctrine, and once we had enough to reach from Printing House square to the top of Mount Copernicus in the moon, then back to Printing House square, and three quarters of the way back to the moon again.
But THE SUN is written for the inhabitants of the earth; this mere strip of intelligence would girdle the globe twenty-seven or twenty-eight times.
If every buyer of THE SUN during the passed year has spoken of it favorably to one, and if his style or his grandfather has spoken another hour, this newspaper in 1883 has afforded the human race thirteen thousand years of steady reading night and day.

It is only by little tokens like these that you can form any idea of the circulation of the most popular of American newspapers, or of its influence on the opinions and actions of American men and women.
If you know THE SUN you like it already, and you will read it with accustomed diligence and profit during what is sure to be the most interesting year in its history. If you do not yet know THE SUN, it is high time to get into the swim.

A NEW PAVEMENT.
The undersigned has secured the exclusive agency for the sale of the
Diebold Patent Iron Stone,
whether elegance and durability, is unsurpassed, and in price will compare favorably with any other pavement now in use. It is the most beautiful pavement for stables, cellars, floors, sidewalks, floor tiling and mount blocks. Also used to build fire and burglar proof vaults; and for building purposes generally. Can be seen in front of Cleaver's carriage manufactory.—They show no perceptible wear; are non-conductors of heat and cold, as well as all kinds of moisture. Where dampness accumulates on the under brick, their pavement remains perfectly dry from it. These fit closer and 7-12 the ordinary brick, and are the cheapest pavement in use. Specimens on exhibition at Wesner's Fancy Store, opposite Dickson Music Hall. For further particulars call on or address

CHRONOLOGICAL EVENTS.
Daniel Webster died 1852.

JOTTINGS.
—Two legal holidays in November, the 6th and 27th.
—Overcoats were greatly in demand last evening.
—The police of Rahway have received new uniforms.
—Temperance meeting at Warren Mission Chapel this evening.
—Senator Vail is urged for re-election by a correspondent in the Elizabeth Journal.
—The Democrats say they will eclipse the Republicans. Twenty-five clubs are invited.
—Contractors have commenced work on the new stables for Gazelle Engine and Sophyr Hook and Ladder Companies.
—Sweet milk at Lebanon, N. J. is only two cents a quart; forty quarts of skimmed milk can be secured for fifteen cents.
—Butler is sure to come this way. Mr. B. V. Woodruff has invited him to spend Sunday as his guest at Hotel Netherwood.
—Democrats say there were only 1,050 men in line last night. Republicans say there were 2,543, and that they supplied that many with food. We strike between.
—Judge Good of this city addressed a large audience at Lebanon last evening on Prohibition. The Republican Glee Club of Clinton and the Democratic Brass Band at Lebanon entertained the audience with fine vocal and instrumental music.
—Ex-Sheriff S. B. Ryker, the owner of Ryder's Hall, in this city, writes from Chicago that he will positively refuse to be considered a candidate and will not accept the nomination for sheriff of this county. This he does in the interest of Republican harmony.
—The Elizabeth Journal says, "Who is Robert L. Livingston of Plainfield, the seasonal orator of the Democratic convention of this county?" Reply should know that as he is a Plainfielder, that's enough guarantee that he is a good fellow. Horsehair he is very well thought of.
—It is talked that the Democrats and Republicans of Plainfield propose, which ever side wins, to have a grand combined parade in Plainfield after election, and in accordance with the suggestion of THE NEWS recently the Republican flags and the Democratic dudes are to go arm-in-arm—the H. L. M's. and the H. T. R's.
—John Wilson, a fine-looking bridge builder at this place, was on a drunk at Round Brook, Wednesday afternoon got on a train on the P. & R. Railroad, smashing seats and things generally, was arrested at the depot, taken before Judge Good yesterday morning and fined $25, which he paid, and was thereupon released.
—A few days ago Hon. John Kean, Jr., Republican candidate for Congress, and Hon. Robert S. Green, Democratic candidate for Congress, met on Broad street Elizabeth. They did not eat each other. The greeting was cordial. One "horny hand" fraternally sought the other "horny hand," and both "cons of toil" shook as vigorously as they were hid long years ago tails behind a lively team on stony ground.

Personal.
Mr. Charles Mason and family of Lafayette, N. J., are visiting on East Front street.
The Rev. Dr. Vincent and wife passed yesterday in this city, the guests of the Rev. Dr. Harrison, of East Fifth street.
Mr. Henry G. Berger, representing Mr. H. J. Sargent, the popular theatrical manager, was in town yesterday arranging for the appearance of Madame Janauschek.
Mr. William A. Dunning of this city, is president of the Columbus College Clevelan and Hendricks Club. This club will hold a meeting at Cochering Hall, New York this evening.
Mr. Robert D. Gibby of Rahway, who was nominated by the Democratic Assembly Convention at Pearwood yesterday for assembly, is a brother of Mrs. Henry R. Spencer of Somerset street. North Plainfield.

Another Barn Burned.
About eight o'clock last evening a barn belonging to Mr. Charles Randolph, on West Front street, was discovered to be on fire. The barn was a small structure and before the department arrived up at the scene it was almost consumed. The timely arrival of the department, however, saved a large frame barn that was standing near and had caught the flames. The fire was undoubtedly the work of an incendiary.

THE REPUBLICAN TORCHLIGHT PARADE.

Many Visitors—A Fine Display—Gunning Illuminations.

Last evening the grandest parades of the campaign in this vicinity took place, when upward of two thousand paraders marched through the streets in various uniforms (some very common and some very grotesque,) amid the music of many bands. There was a general illumination on the part of the populace, a fine display of fireworks, and generous demonstrations of applause.

The formation of the line was begun about eight o'clock in the evening opposite the depot, where the many visitors were vociferously encouraged to welcome the visiting clubs, who were to have been here by 6:15 o'clock, but were half an hour late, excepting those from Westfield—the Weed Light Artillery, and two Westfield Bands and Lenape—who arriving at 6 and half-past eight o'clock. The evening was very chilly, and the delay was anything but enjoyable—to that non-est. The moon shone brightly, and the man in the m on smiled blandly. A large number of people, in addition to the paraders, were congregated at the depot to welcome the visitors. "Grip" being among the most distinguished, attired in a rip ping tan kin spat, with drapery gracefully pendant therefrom, or, if sing the form of an Adam—if not an equal gr for Eve.

Between 8 and 9 o'clock and nine o'clock several companies hat tights, at different times, were sighted after all approaching from Elizabeth, or from the opposite direction, and, as the pealing of the a gines became more and more audible, the hopes of the crowd made rye search, cheers grew and hosannas swell, under the pale moonlight, the glaring searchlights and the lights of random gas jets, only to collapse, as the paraders proved to be drawing only empty coal trains, or other things not likely to be of any use in the parade.

At last, after weary watching, the train arrived, and from thence on until after midnight things were lively.

There were fourteen packed cars, from which six full bands in uniform, (including 60th from Newark,) alighted. The first car contained about sixty-five Zebras from Rahway, whose uniform consisted of huge striped pa ba bonnets, short Mother Hubbard dresses, and striped stockings, and whose weapons of offense and defense were black Zapucas and umbrellas. The jolly girls were received with a scream of laughter that would have brought down the r of, if it hadn't been too strong. From that roof—heaven itself—a myriad of starry lanterns contributed vividly to the illumination, and the combined voices of words I give cause their umbrellas lost the silvery light of the moon upon their rosy cumpl xions.

The F. A. Potts Guards of Elizabeth, the Prelinghuysen Engineer Corps, the Rainey Guards, and the Whitman Grenadiers, both of Elizabeth, were the visiting companies near, each of the organizations being accompanied by large delegations of citizens, and a fine-looking body of men and handsomer uniforms, particularly the uniform of the Whitman Grenadiers, we have never seen.

As soon as the train was unloaded another large train arrived from the opposite direction, bringing clubs from Bound Brook, Somerville, Raritan, New Market and Dunellen, and the men were quickly got into line, and marching began.

The display of fireworks were begun by Mrs. Frank Green, who surrounded by a number of handsomely attired Plainfield ladies, at a large upper window in Force's Hotel, the entire window having been removed, herself set off a number of Roman candles while her lovely companions stolidly waved their handkerchiefs. The hotel was finely illuminated, particularly Mrs. Green's elegant suite of apartments. Both she and her stalwart husband, the latter a commander of Plainfield Pipe, went to vie with each other, in giving point to the event. From thence there was a continual blaz along the line of march, of colored fire, Roman candles, and the like, and most beautiful discriminations, conspicuous among the latter being Gilbert Hall and Leland's Hotel. The streams of lambent fire all along the line as the Zebra's appeared vaulted the upper k y of G.

Prelinghuysen Engineer Corps, Newark.
Colonel's Prelinghuysen Club, Newark.
The Robinson Dunellen Cavalry which sprung into existence only three days ago, were, considering this fact, respectable. They were about sixty strong and looked remarkably well-mounted, and well officered, their Nancy Robinson, as Captain, C. B. Taylor, Marshal, Joseph Hiddis, First Lieutenant, and Sergeant Doty, Second Lieutenant.

The Plainfield Colored Cadets company, in white pig hats, drum-coats and white pants, with banderoon in their hats, drew much attention, marching in Masonic style.

The parading lasted three hours.

A collation of ham, tongue, turkey, chicken and sausage, sandwiches and coffee, was provided on the second and third stories of Ryder's Hall, for about eight hundred persons at a time, and at the old echo house, corner of Somerset and East streets, North Plainfield, for six hundred more. Although some 6,000 sandwiches had been provided, these proved insufficient, and several barrels of crackers were brought by the Plainfield committee and put aboard the trains, for the visitors homeward bound. It was afterwards discovered that about 1,000 extra sandwiches were at the North Plainfield echo house, which had among its guests the Mother Hubbards. These extras were today sent to the Children's Home.

The parade will long be remembered for its many interesting features and as the great event of the campaign.

Old North Plainfielder.
Mr. John Vetterlein of North Plainfield was nominated by acclamation for Member of Assembly. Last year, when it was quite generally believed that our (Democratic) party's cost no chance whatever of electing an Assemblyman, and when no other man was fool enough to make the fight, "Honest John" Vetterlein, much against his personal wishes, consented to accept the nomination, and he made a run that any man ought to feel proud of. In 1880 the Republicans elected their candidate by 675 majority. Mr Vetterlein polled into the 6-hundreds last year, in the face of these great odds, succeeded in reducing the above majority to 51. His management of the canvass surprised almost every one, and many a Democrat who had not thought it worth while to go to the polls and cast his vote at the election has never ceased to regret it. The feeling has been general in the county that Mr. Vetterlein should be given another nomination, as was evidenced by the fact that no other name was mentioned in the convention. That our candidate will receive the united support of the party on the 4th of next month we do not doubt.—Somerville Messenger.

Jackson—Wilbur.
A select company gathered at the residence of Mrs. Mary L. Crawford, of 60 Dane street, North Plainfield, last evening, to witness the marriage of her daughter Miss Emily J. Wilbur, to Mr. John H. Jackson, of the well-known law firm of Jackson and Coddington. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Eaton, a Universalist divine of New York city, and was very simple. The bride carried in her hand an impressive elegant bouquet of roses. After the service the happy couple received the congratulations and well wishes of all their friends. Dancing and supper followed. The presents were very handsome. Mr. and Mrs. Jackson left town on the 10.35 p. m. train for New York city. They will make a trip to Chicago, returning by way of Indiana, Niagara Falls and Canada. On their return they will take up their residence in North Plainfield.

Mayor Maxson Declines.
At the Prohibition Congressional Convention held at Elizabeth yesterday, Plainfield's popular Mayor, Wm. B. Maxson, was unanimously nominated for Congress. The nomination was telegraphed to him, and he promptly declined it. Had he accepted he would no doubt have proved a strong candidate and polled many temperance and other votes from both parties and that is perhaps just the reason reason for his declining, as the ticket defeated, would be likely to attribute the defeat to him.

A Lamplighter Way to Get an Organ.
A novel feature of the grand ball to be given by the Plainfield Engine Co., No. 2, will be the disposal of a $300 organ as a premium to the guessing nearest to the number of random guessing of beans will be dipped from a tea-kettle of them in the presence of the people and put into a glass globe, the ticket holder guessing nearest to the number of beans in the globe, is named in their presence by bikers of their own election, to take the organ.

For Shooting at His Brother.
Reuben DeVall, colored, who shot at his brother in Somerset street, a few months ago, and disappeared, returned yesterday, and was arrested, on a warrant, by Constable Wagner, and lodged in the County Jail. In default of $500 bail, he was committed to await the action of the Grand Jury of Somerset county, Judge Scudder, his counsel, in his behalf waiving an examination.

St. Mary's Fair.
The Fair for the benefit of St. Mary's church commenced in St. Mary's Hall last evening. The Hall was decorated with the stars and stripes and the table-s were loaded with useful and ornamental articles. The event is to be continued one week and success is assured.

The State Convention of the Universalists met in-11 Friday in the Church of the Redeemer, Newark. Among the delegates are as follows: President, W. C. Whitty, of Newark; Vice President, A. D. Richard, of Jersey City; Secretary, the Rev. W. E. Gibbs, of Newark; Treasurer, Alvin Kelsey, of Trenton, and John McDougall, of Newark.

PROTECTION AND FREE TRADE.

Great Britain has been endeavoring for many years to force upon the world free trade, a policy which she had inflicted upon herself in a moment of national insanity. She has failed, and even British obstinacy begins to realize the failure. The world has refused to adopt a system which would have made England the great source of supply for manufactured goods, and thereby have placed other nations to a proportionate extent at the mercy of free Britain. The disasters which followed the adoption of the free trade policy, and which might have been checked had British influence forced the same policy upon the rest of the world, therefore not only continue but constantly grow worse.

Industry after industry has been driven from the country. English manufacturers have transferred their establishments to France and Germany, because they can get peasant labor for even less than the paltry wages paid in England, and can then send the goods home and undersell their business rivals who remain there. Wages have grown down with each reduction, or are above it only where constant immigration to America has rendered certain sorts of labor so scarce that it can command a little advance. No sooner does English capital build up one line of manufactures than foreign capitalists catch the idea, and through England's open ports comes a deluge of cheaper goods in the same line, and the British capital has to seek some new investment. In this hand-to-mouth sort of a way English manufacturers have lived for years. Bitter experience begins to bear its fruit. A London despatch recently said:

"A new crusade has started in the North of England. The chief promoters of the movement are of the extreme protectionist school, whose dogma is that retaliatory measures should be adopted against every foreign government in which protection is employed in any shape. Deputations of workmen representing the new propaganda are stumping the mining and iron districts, and pointing out the disadvantage to England of the system of bounties given by the governments of Continental Europe to manufacturers in those countries. They claim that foreign products are crowding out home manufacturing industries, and berate the English Government for its supineness and inaction. They favor retaliation by means of protective tariffs, and point to the distress among the miners and moulders as proofs of their assertions."

Therefore it is that British gold is ready to elect to Congress in this country any man who will support free trade. It is a matter for congratulation that both Democrats and Republicans are doing all they can in industrial districts to defeat free trade candidates.

A REMARKABLE ESCAPE

Villainous Attempt to Poison a Whole Family.

Two Pounds of Paris Green Discovered in a Water Can by the Perpetrator of the Dastardly Act.

WOODBRIDGE, N. J., Oct. 24.—A dastardly attempt to poison a whole family was made in this place. The discovery of the plot was made early yesterday morning, before any of the water into which the poison had been poured was used. The intended victims of the wretch were Michael Brewer and his wife and eight children. Mr. Brewer is quite at a loss to know why any one should have such a fell design against him, as he does not recall the existence of a single enemy. He has never in his life, so far as he can remember, been on bad terms with anybody.

Mr. Brewer owns a very neat but unpretentious residence, and not far from the kitchen door stands the well in daily use for the household purposes. Into this well some miscreant flung about two pounds of paris green. Water was drawn out of the well as late as 9 o'clock, in the forenoon, and the poison so mixed, so that it is certain that the paris green was thrown in after that hour. Mr. Brewer went in his well about 8 o'clock yesterday morning and drew a bucket of water. His attention was attracted to a green substance adhering to the iron hoops of the bucket, and with a stick he pushed the hands touched it. When the water was poured from the buckets into the pail there was a green sediment in the bottom of the bucket and a film of the poison on the sides of the staves. A considerable quantity of paris green had been carried by the force of the water into the pail. Mr. Brewer recognized at once that the substance was poison, and he hurriedly investigated the disposition made of the water drawn the morning preceding with the result that some of the deadly material. Fortunately it did not, for the family had drunk of it.

Looking into the well Mr. Brewer discovered a large amount of paris green on the curb. It proved to be half a pound or paris green. It was done up in a newspaper containing Nat Fisher letters. The villain who threw such a large quantity of the poison into the well no doubt intended this half pound package to go the way of the rest. The newspaper was evidently used instead of a store wrapper to ward off detection. Two farmers in the vicinity have more or less paris green on hand all the time, as they were children of the poison in the potato mixture, the potato bugs, and they buy the poison when it is cheapest. It is possible that the paris green came from one of Mr. Brewer's well was sliced from some farmer's supply.

There was a story floating on the varying lines yesterday regarding the effect that one of Mr. Brewer's daughters had rejected the offer of marriage of a hot-tempered young man, and this, it was thought, might be a clue to the author of the attempt to take the lives of the family. The Brewer family said there was no truth in the statement. The communication is at a loss to account for the crime. The people are considerably alarmed, not knowing when well may be closed with poison next. Mr. Brewer's family, to the number of nine, escaped death by the poisoned water been drawn from the well at an hour when darkness would have prevented the detection of the poison by its color, and used in the morning, when the whole family would undoubtedly have been poisoned, with what results it is hard to conjecture. A coroner's jury sat on the well, and it was the habit of the family and friends visiting them to drink there during the evening when thirsty.

BLAINE AMONG THE HOOSIERS

Journeying from South to North and Talking by the Way.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 24.—Mr. Blaine left Evansville at 8:30 o'clock yesterday morning, having before him a long ride to Lafayette. The first stop was at Indiana, a small village where a few citizens assembled. At Terre Haute there was a great demonstration. As the train came in the city the steam whistles in the factories and on the boats were sounded and the cannon, and when it reached the depot the crowd received Mr. Blaine with wild cheering. He was escorted by the reception committee, headed by Gen. Lew Wallace, to carriages driven in procession through the crowded city for about an hour. Upon returning to the depot he made a short speech.

The party arrived here at 5:30 o'clock last evening. They were met by a reception committee of some 200 or 300 business men and the various political drum corps with bands and escorted through several streets. It was nearly 6 o'clock when Mr. Blaine appeared on the open-air stand and faced an audience of about 4,000 people. He spoke for twenty minutes on the needs of Indiana. In the evening there was a grand torchlight procession, with speeches by Senator Harrison and others.

A Horse in a Church Pew.

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 24.—When the fencing and stabling was completed in front of the chapel for prayers yesterday morning it was discovered that a horse, the property of P. of P. of Leicester, had escaped one of the pens. The animal evidently began sampling the two flights of winding stairs the night before, his feet being muffled to prevent discovery by the watchman. The pew openers were at a loss how to remove the intruder, and he was allowed to occupy his quarters all day. Last evening they sent for a veterinary surgeon, who, with a number of assistants, a derrick, blankets and ropes, got him out feet together, bundled him, and led him through the streets whistling. The boys gathered about in great numbers in the darkness to watch the proceedings and cheer the exit of the beast. They made a procession of their own, and the police force

A CANDIDATE BEAR HUNTING.

The Experience of a Pennsylvania Nominee for the Legislature.

LOST HAVEN, Pa., Oct. 24.—"Between running for the legislature and hunting bear, Joseph M. Sinzer is having a lively time up in Cameron county," remarked Attorney Bodgers, a resident of Lost Haven, at the Fallon house. "You know Joe," he continued, "is famous for hunting, and would rather follow a bear all day than stop to eat the best dinner that could be set before him. He's a candidate for the legislature, by-the-bye, a little, and passing over the mountain in the direction of Driftwood he struck bear tracks. That was enough. He forgot all about electioneering, and started after the bear. He carried his silver-mounted Remington that was presented to him by a few friends at Harrisburg on the adjournment of the legislature. He had scarcely traveled a mile when he came up with the bear. It was sitting on a hemlock log apparently waiting for Joe. He stopped suddenly, drew up and fired, and then looked to see if Bruin had been hit. He was hit in the right leg, but not badly hurt. Joe fired again, and frightened Joe because he had made a bad shot. The bear became greatly enraged and made a rush for Joe, who dashed behind a big chestnut tree and began running around it, thinking he could elude the bear; but it traveled so fast that he couldn't get a chance to fire another shot, and, after going around the tree for half an hour, and getting pretty tired, Joe concluded to change the programme. He suddenly made a dash and, bounding over the trunk of a fallen hemlock, made for a big tree with low branches. He made a failure. Just as he was in the act of climbing up the tree the bear caught him with one paw, and as he was in the act of giving him a square American hug a friend came up and shot the bear through the head, and Joe was saved. Joe minds that he thought he would never get back to Harrisburg again."

END OF A CHECKERED LIFE.

Death of a Woman Whose Face Was Her Fortune and Misfortune.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 24.—Ex-Police Clerk Dar Gardner called his man some wife into the sitting room of their residence, No. 234 Lake street, in this city, on Sept. 24 last, and shot her in the head. Then he sent a bullet into his own brain. In transpired that his wife had recently left her husband and intercepted, a letter from a handsome gambler of whom Gardner had reason to be jealous. Gardner lingered in an unconscious condition two days. His wife was borne to the Huron hospital, where she rallied and for a time seemed on the road to recovery. Finally paralysis set in, and she lost the use of one side of her body. Then a raging fever added to her torture, and in her delirium she would cry out:

"Dar, don't kill me! Oh, Dar, you have done it at last! I don't want to live, now that Dar is dead!"

The doctors were unable to extract the bullet and Wednesday she died. The bullet was found at the base of her brain. Mrs. Gardner was attended by Mrs. Robinson, wife of a well-known gambler, who will give her a decent burial. Mrs. Gardner was the daughter of poor and uncultured parents, who lived in Michigan. Her face was her only fortune and her act a curse. She learned to read and write only five years ago, when a desire to write and read love letters was the incentive. Twenty years ago she married a rich man named Tucker, who was infatuated with her handsome face, and often recalled the luxury of her life when she spent the summers with Tucker at Saratoga. He wearied of her, and they separated. Finally five years ago she married Dar Gardner, who was then in good repute. He lost his property, and his wife often experienced want. Her life was a series of brief seasons of Lappinus alternating with misery' until she lay wounded to death by the man for whom she had made great sacrifices.

Dumb to her Father Until her Death

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga., Oct. 24.—Ten years ago, in a post, Miss Olivia Jenkins, of Gwynnet county, refused to speak to her father, although living in the same house with him ever since, she has never spoken to him, acting at the table and elsewhere like one dumb. She would not speak to others even while he was within hearing. She was frequently remonstrated with, but she explained that in his presence she was really dumb, and could not by any effort use her tongue until he went out of sight. She died on Tuesday night without opening her lips to him.

Business Failures.

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 24.—Thomas A. Lewis, of the firm of Bohmer, Lewis & Co., filed a personal deed of assignment yesterday, with liabilities amounting to $55 000. The principal creditors are in New York. The firm is not effected by the assignment.

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—The clothing, boot and shoe and notion stock of Adolph Kahn was attached yesterday afternoon for $20,000. His liabilities are estimated at between $30,000 and $40,000, and assets between $6,000 and $8,000.

An Iron Pipe Pool Dissolved.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 24.—The national wrought iron pipe pool, which was formed here last December, has been dissolved because of a disagreement over the division of the profits. The Enterprise iron works, of New York, which are owned by the pool, have been ordered to be shut down, the profits divided among the members. A general cut in prices is now predicted.

A Sleepy Driver's Fate.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 24.—Charles Kimball, a butcher, while driving to market fell asleep on his wagon seat. On approaching the railroad crossing in the Eighteenth ward, his team took fright and dashed into a coal train. Man and horses were killed, and the wreck of the wagon derailed four cars, which tore up a considerable stretch of track.

Three Men Killed by an Explosion.

DALLAS, Oct. 24.—By a boiler explosion at a sawmill in Alcolo, Indian Territory, J. B. Olivet, Joe Metcalfe, of Illinois, and Frank Choate, of Sarasatowa, Indian Territory, were killed. Oliver and Choate leave families. The mill was totally wrecked. The explosion was caused by carelessness.

Lake Vessels Blockaded.

DETROIT, Oct. 24.—There is a fleet of lake craft at the Lake St. Clair flats, worthy forty-six schooners and steamers are detained, and all passage from Lake Huron to Lake Erie is blocked. Heavy gales on the lakes and severe snow squalls render navigation very trying and dangerous.

Butler at Taunton.

TAUNTON, Mass., Oct. 24.—Gen. Butler spoke at Music hall yesterday to about 1,000 people, mostly laboring men. His speech in the main was similar to previous efforts, deviating but once or twice.

Bones of a Mastodon Discovered.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Oct. 24.—The tusks, ribs, and part of the vertebral column of a mastodon were found on the Hopper farm, near Monroe. The bones are very large.

A BOY IN HIS TEENS

Is a Very Queer Animal for Anybody to Handle,

And a Father Should Study Hard to Learn the Whims and Tricks of His Son's Nature.

[M. Quad in Detroit Free Press.]

"I have a boy 17 years old. Nothing around the house is good enough for him and he is constantly threatening to run away. I do not know what to do with him. Do you?"

Two writes a father who seems to date from a town in Indiana. His boy is probably no worse than the average lad of that age. Has the father ever got right down to hard-pan to discover whether the fault lies with him or with his son? Has he ever studied out of the boy to learn how he should be handled? When a man buys a horse is he guess himself a certain length of time to learn the animal's habits, whims and tricks. Isn't it of as much importance to study a boy? While no two boys are alike, nearly all fathers seek to govern on the same principle, the whip, and order, and imagine that settles the case.

Now, to begin with, a boy from 13 to 21 years of age, is a queer animal to handle. He is full of the most absurd whims and notions and false ideas. You may partly convince him of this by argument, but you can't make an impression by scolding or pounding. I believe the better way is to let his minds wear itself out, like a fever. The boy of forty years ago wasn't as bad as the boy of to-day, but he may be explained that he hadn't the chance to be. When women had only one new bonnet a year at the outside, and men in the village church in their shirt-sleeves what boy of 18 would have dared ask for collar and necktie? To have wanted better clothes would have been to exhibit basest ingratitude. To have refused to wear cowhide boots and black trees with hard and lumpy, which would have been to accept the abject native and go barefoot. Clothes were made at home and after almost any fashion. If shirts had a collar of the same material it was something to be proud over. The boys' feelings were not to be consulted in such cases, and it was rarely that one lad would criticise what another wore. Pride in boy's clothes would have been denounced almost as a crime, and a "tanning would have certainly followed.

But the years have made a great change. We seek to govern our children in a different way, and fashion is consulted in every corner of the land. We expect more of our boys than was expected of us, and we cultivate pride instead of crushing it. If we have a son from 13 to 20 years of age we realize that he must be kept up an equal footing with his age friends. He is a matter of personal appearance or he will feel degraded. Show us a boy of 16, in village or city, whose family have any social standing, who can be coaxed or bribed to wear a pair of pants patched at the knee. He will argue that the whole town will stop business to gaze at that patch. If one of his boots is out at the toe, that settles the case with him. If there's a rip in his coat, or a button off, he can't take a minute's comfort on the street.

The boy of to-day has got all these whims, and you must cocnsih them and bear with him. No matter what tailor measures him, you can expect a complaint that his pants are too large or too small, too tight or too baggy. He didn't want "so much coat," and the vest doesn't fit him within a mile. His neckties don't suit; his collars are horrid, and the complaint will include even his bootlegs. Found him if you will, but you will only make him hate you. Argument and reason will smooth over most of his troubles. Has the Indian father tried that method? If a man doesn't vote on ticket or attend our church—if he believes the world to be flat instead of round—if he drinks too much—if he scouts at standard facts in science or natural philosophy, do we knock him down or argue with him? Don't we give him three times the show that you do a boy, whose false notions will disappear with age? Egotism should be scorched until the blister effects a cure, but the parent who seeks to crush the natural pride in a boy is playing a dangerous game. The same natural pride that makes him find so much fault with the clothes must be depended on to keep him out of cigarette, tobacco and vanity suit associations. Found it into him that anything is good enough for him, and he will find it easy to wear old clothes and brain with leathers.

Have you as a man walked the streets dead-broke for a single day? You felt cheap and belonged of yourself. A boy might not feel it quite so keenly, but he feels it sufficiently to mortify his pride. I don't say that you should hand out dollar after dollar to your son and take no heed how he spends it, but simply common sense with the transaction. Let him know that you disapprove of smoking, chewing, beer-drinking, betting, gambling and billiards, but with money for a score of things which seem foolish to you, but he is a boy. If he has a dollar in his purse he feels a certain pride in the knowledge, and will waste less than if you doled him out a dime at a time. When one boy applies the term stingy to another it means a great deal more than you realize. It means a boy too mean to associate with. If he is stingy he is supposed to be a cheat and a liar as well. Give your boy 25 cents for the Fourth of July or to go on an excursion in the company of lads who have been furnished $1 apiece and you can map your fingers at all the comfort he takes. He feels less one of inferiority, not only financially, but in all other respects, and this degrades him. Has the Indian farmer reasoned in this way?

This is any amount of reasoning over spoilt boys. If but a seed of the interest was displayed a little sooner, there would be little use for reform schools.

Canning in Maine and California.

[San Francisco Alta.]

The canning of fruit and vegetables is an industry in which California and Maine are both largely engaged. In 1880, the census year, this industry gave employment to 1,172 persons in California and 4,360 persons in Maine. The employment is not constant in either state, because the canneries operate only a part of the year; but the wage statistics show a remarkable difference in compensation between the two states. In Maine 4,360 persons divide between them as wages $816,360, giving an average of $44.25 each, while in California 1,172 hands received $961,415, being an average of $245.50.

Wood Fiber in Surgery.

[Scientific Journal.]

Wood is to be used successfully in surgery in a different form from ordinary splints. A foreigner has introduced wood wool as a cheap and useful dressing for wounds, and it is being prepared extensively as a commercial staple for surgical dressings. It is finely-ground wood, such as is extensively used in the manufacture of paper. It is a clean-looking, delicately fibered, soft, yellowish-white substance, having no odor of fresh wood, and absorbent immense quantity of liquid.

THE COACHMAN OF THE FUTURE.

Benson Medkin Advises a Bride.

[Boston Globe.]

Mr. and Mrs. Medkin and the girls were all comfortably seated in large rocking chairs upon the hotel piazza enjoying the ocean breeze.

But the dancers was uneasy. Near him sat a dude from New York, with lonely checkered suit, silver-headed cane and pronounced odor of patchouly. The dancers spied the dude, climbed uneasily in his seat, and at length arose an' said:

"I guess I'll get to wind'ard."

"I tell ye," said he, so idlenly addressin' the dude, "I know what'll take that air smell outer your clothes. You must bury 'em every 'un a month, an' then they'll be all right. Know when I was a boy, I lived in the country, an' one day I was goin' to school, an' I threw a stone at a little black kitten by the roadside, an' you bet your I've kep' stoned a black kitten since. reckon you run across one o' them critters this mornin', by the smell — Good gracious, there's the folks! come! Don't see what there was to get huffy about," he remarked, turning to the smiling crowd that had gathered round. "Guess he must ha' gone to bury his clothes."

Politics on the Border.

[Marquette Mining Journal.]

Even the little ones have caught the craze and are classifying themselves according to their political preferences. "What's your politics?" I inquired a lad of three or four, of a mile about his own age, the other day. "Well," she replied, after a moment of profound thought, "I ain't sure. Papa is a Publican, mamma's a Democrat, and so I guess I must be a half-breed."

DANCING IN DISKO.

A Journalist's Experience at a Ball in Greenland.

Ellen Joy in the Frozen North—Charming Girls in Bloomer Costume—Well Behaved and Church-Going.

The following is one of the brightest, breeziest sketches of the late J. A. MacGahan, the lamented correspondent, whose remains have just been brought from Arracan to rest in his native soil. It is a descriptive of the visit of the steamer Pandora to Disko, a little Greenland town:

A sunny, pleasant little spot is Disko just now during the few months of summer, when the grass is peeping out timidly between the rocks, and the great, round, smooth boulders scattings their brown forms more for one of the dreary, green sod belt; when the melted snow comes tumbling down the ravines in white, fleecy torrents, and the tall, rugged cliffs in the background are covered with soft, reddish purple, like a great red curtain drawn across to shelter the little bay from the biting northern blasts. Altogether the place has a warm, comfortable look, very agreeable after the chilly winds and icy air of those northern seas.

We took a walk about the village. The people, with the exception of a few children, turned out to see us, and greeted us with pleasant smiles—many of them giving us a "good morning" in English, which they had learned from the sailors. The girls were all dressed in their best finery, and some of them, and especially those who had Danish blood, were very pretty. It is a very difficult at first to bring oneself to believe that they were girls at all. This is the country for Mrs. Bloomer; the women all wear trousers, and are dressed in the skins of anything else as absurd and probably indecent.

The Disko costume appears very funny until you get used to it, but rather pretty, nevertheless. The hair is drawn in a kind of top-knot on the crown of the head; a loose fitting jacket, made of any kind of light, thin cloth of color, trimmed with a fur collar, reaches to the waist; a pair of sealskin trousers with the hairy side out descend neatly to the knee, where they are confined with a garter; then a pair of light cloth trousers at the knee, the feet and ankles of red lea ther, the upper portion of white linen, trimmed with fur around the tops. Imagine a pretty girl clothed in this costume, with fair darkness, dancrest eyes and the smoothest brown complexion ever painted by sunshine, and you have a picture of a Disko girl. You should see them tripping about in their little red boots, that scarcely seem to touch the ground, so soft is their tread, or springing over the rocks like young antelopes, to know how charming a girl may be in boots and breeches. And they have the daintiest little feet and hands, these Disko girls, as even the critical eye of the prettiest American or English girl burst with envy, so finely shaped, so small, so delicate, and yet so strong.

These girls learn the syphe, a fact we soon discovered. It is the custom in Disko to give a ball to every ship that comes there, and the Pandora, as soon as she cast anchor, received an invitation to the entertainment proved to be a very great success. The festal hall was no other than the workshop of Disko's lonely carpenter, which had been cleaned and decorated for the occasion, and inscribed over the door in chalk, the following legend: "Must chal dor e open at 8 o'clock," which in the vernacular of the written literature was finally deciphered to mean: "Maste-hall door open at 8 o'clock." Further investigation proved that this was the only record of Alert and Discovery had left on their visit here.

I will not deny that this hall, twelve by fifteen, was perhaps a little warm and close when twenty of our officers and the whole population of the village was crowded into it, and that a little more room might have been desirable. But there was no petit mal, no fainting fits, no one was to be trampled upon; a woman took no more space than a man, and that made a vast deal of difference. After a while, however, we found the place so oppressively hot that we decided to adjourn to the open air. The dancing was continued outside with renewed enthusiasm, and I was ready to aver that I never enjoyed a dance more in my life.

My partner was a demure little beauty, with dark, slightly almond shaped eyes, a skin as brown as that of the sun-burnt girls herself, the reddest, ripest lips, and the daintiest little feet that were ever seen. A greater pleasure even than to encircle her slender waist or to waltz with her I don't give was to watch her little red booted feet as they skimmed over the ground like the wings of a sea-bird over the waves. Occasionally, while her whole body swayed with the music, the feet would disappear under the edge of the dress, and then, as they came out again, the brown skin of the ankle was exposed for a moment, which, contrasting with the white ribbed linen tops of the boots, appeared as brown as a walnut.

My partner's queer little topknot, planted perpendicularly on the top of her head, and tied up with a red ribbon, just reached to my mouth, so that I must have looked as though I had an extraordinarily long nose, if it had depended to it by a red ribbon. Young girls, by the way, tie this topknot up with a red ribbon, married women with a blue, colored ribbon.

It should not be forgotten about these girls that they must all very well behaved. They attended to their duties in the church as a matter of course, and there is not the slightest evidence of the kind. They knew as well how to maintain their dignity and keep people at a proper distance as any girls in any part of the world. They are all good Christians and church-going people, belonging, as do all the Esquimaux of Greenland, to some form of the Lutheran faith, in which they are carefully instructed by the missionaries, and the result is a high standard of moral and intellectual influence of the kindly Danes. They have a neat little wooden church, where they have religious service every fine day, and a school, and the children of the whole district are sent to it, the girls one or four times a year, and they get a quiet, lady-like training, and, all appearances to the contrary notwithstanding, are happy in their little ice-bound world. The summer is probably the most luxurious time for them, as nearly all the men are away in the boats, and the girls have the ground. We only saw about five or six of the village, but they took no part in the festivities, and the girls look for their possible husbands to the next arrivals, or the great event of the summer.

New Idea in Courtship.

[New York Journal.]

It is perfectly clear to families where there are daughters to marry that the present style of courtship is a nuisance. He is too much encouraged to remain in love months before he must be professed. Now, how to talk it to be done? It is the custom for a young gentleman caller to remain at least two hours on Occasions out. Old and bald-headed gentlemen would inevitably lower the tone of conversation, and young ones are not to be encouraged. Let us consider. Again, on the other hand, the young lady is not to be allowed to [illegible] or talk to [illegible].

The Sun.

THE SUN is, and will continue to be, a newspaper which tells the truth without fear of consequences, which gets at the facts, no matter how much the process costs, which presents the news of all the world without waste of words and in the most readable shape, which is wedded to its home for the account of honest government, and which therefore believes that the Republican party must go, and must go in this year of our Lord, 1884.

About sixty million copies of THE SUN have gone out of our establishment during the passed twelve months.

If you were to paste end to end all the columns of THE SUN printed and sold last year you would get a consecutive strip of interesting information, common sense wisdom, sound doctrine, and sane wit long enough to reach from Printing House square to the top of Mount Copernicus in the moon, then back to Printing House square, and these quarters of the way back to the moon again.

But THE SUN is written for the inhabitants of the earth; this same strip of intelligence would girdle the globe twenty-seven or twenty-eight times.

If every buyer of THE SUN during the passed year has spent only one hour over it, and if his wife or his grandfather has spent another hour, this newspaper in 1883 has afforded the means to employ one thousand years of steady reading night and day.

It is only by little calculations like these that you can form any idea of the circulators of the most popular of American newspapers, and of its influence on the opinions and actions of American men and women.

If you know THE SUN you like it already, and you will read it with accustomed diligence and profit during what is sure to be the most interesting year in its history. If you do not yet know THE SUN, it is high time to get into the sunshine.

ANOTHER WAIL.

Beery Billy is blubbering again for pap. The Reform Club declined to give him any on the occasion of opening the handsome new Hall. Then with his finger in his mouth he pointed, and announced that he would not speak to it or of it nevermore. The W. C. T. U., after observing his repeated beery screeds referring on their work, quietly ignored him, and thereat he blubbered more. Finally the Music Hall people, as in the case of the others, showered favors on THE NEWS in the way of job printing and other patronage, and thereupon he gets off the handle completely.

The W. C. T. U., the Reform Club and The Music Hall people, are, like THE NEWS, imbued with a spirit of enterprise in common with each other, and "in fellow feeling makes us wondrous kind" to each other. Who, except "Beery Billy," will say that these four enterprises are not a benefit to the community, and who cares what he says. For twenty years he has had the field virtually all to himself, and if he had but a fraction of the spirit of enterprise of the people of Plainfield, he, with the other advantages his long residence naturally gave him, might have had such a daily paper in this city, as would have prevented a stranger at least from getting a foot hold. But no, he preferred to be beery and lumpish generally, and the result is now really benefitted the locality, in that when an entire stranger did come and at least tried to do the right thing he was received with open arms and now flourishes a thoroughbred beery tree."

Costly Game.

The game law in this State will not be up until the first of November, at which date almost anything in the line of game may be shot, provided the sportsman can get near enough to it. Until the roost rain the woods were exceedingly dry, and walking through the dead leaves would have created such a noise that all game would have been frightened away before a chance could be got to shoot at it. But the rain has helped that considerably, and by Novem er 1st there may be some good sport for hunters, unless those who disregard the law have already killed the most of the game. It is reported this year that the game is quite plentiful, and New York exchanges say that English snipe are arriving in large numbers. Squirrels never were more plentiful, and young rabbits sport about every farmer's door-yard. Wilson snipe, robin snipe, curlews, and yellow legs are having the warmest summer time they don't mean until the proper time pay the penalty. Constable Weaver of North Plainfield has been on the alert for this class and last Sunday caught two New Yorkers over the mountain. Justice McLaughlin told them that they could have been fined $70 each, but let them off with $25 each and costs, $8. They have considered household to buy their game.

Thursday night the inquest on the death of Engineer Carman, who was killed by the collision at Scotch Plains, was held by Coroner Moore assisted by Justice Bedford. From his examination of cars it had been discovered with but a short time before the accident. Fireman Gallish and his train was going at eighteen miles per hour when the smash came. Switch-tender Smith admitted that when he went to work on the morning of the accident he didn't examine the switch. Superintendent Buckalew threw no light upon the mystery.

FRIGHTENED AWAY.

Body-Snatchers Break Into the Phelps Vault at Binghampton.

A Constant Watch Now Kept Over the Corpse That Is Likely to Lead to Discovery—A Coroner's Guard and a Piquet Guard.

BINGHAMTON, Oct. 23.—This city is wild with excitement over one of the most daring deeds of sacrilege ever attempted in the annals of crime. An attempt to rifle the mausoleum of the proud old Phelps family was entered by body-snatchers, who were scared away before they had effected their purpose. The Phelps family, consisting of the judge, doctor, invalid and the wife of the eldest son, have all died within the last five years, leaving their millions in the hands of executors. Gilbert, the eldest son, died the last that died, was, as is claimed by Dr. Henry O. Ely, embalmed by order of his wife, Mary Ely Phelps, during which operation he received $5 for the job. Mrs. Phelps died before the will was presented, and when it was presented by the executor of her estate, Hon. Wm. E. Tayler, refused to pay it. A suit ensued for the money and the doctor's bill, in addition, totaling altogether $15,000. This has been a long time in the courts, and excited wide interest. The only thing that seemed possible to settle the matter was the examination of the body of Robert to see if the process was perfect.

This must have attracted the attention of body-snatchers to the immense value of the body as proof, and they commenced tampering with the mausoleum, one of the most magnificent and strongest ever erected in this state. Sheriff Bloss, at his office, became aware of the movements of the villains and set a watch over the vault. Thursday night the sheriff was called out of town on business and placed a guard of two deputies on guard. About midnight the men saw in the deep gloom five men steal around in front of the vault. Two remained in the double doors with keys enter and commence work in the catacomb of Robert, while one passed as guard before the tomb. The three men were provided with dark lanterns, and

ELLA WATSON'S SLAYER TO HANG.

Reggie Sullivan Found Guilty of Murder in the First Degree.

SALEM, N. J., Oct. 25.—Howard Sullivan the colored man who killed Ella Watson, the girl he had betrayed, was found guilty of murder in the first degree by the jury in the Salem county court this afternoon, which showed that he killed his victim deliberately and with malice aforethought. In rendering the verdict in this case, beginning with Ella Watson's walk to the village up to the time when the prisoner assaulted and struck her. A scene ice was caused in the court room when the murdered girl's father took the stand. Tears were in the old man's eyes and he aroused the sympathy of the spectators, who were already shocked by the prisoner's depravity. So he so dazed several times while giving his testimony, which was as to the finding of the body and the nature of the wounds. Mrs. Watson, who was also in the court room, fainted and had to be carried out.

Sullivan showed no emotion on hearing the verdict, which he had evidently anticipated. On returning to jail he made a further confession to Sheriff Coles.

A SALESMAN'S ECCENTRICITIES.

He Lives in Royal Style on His Employers' Credit.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 25.—The Victor Oil company was surprised to learn that it had an exhibit at the Chicago exposition. The notification came in form of bills from leading hotels for entertainments furnished their manager. Their manager has a 4 horse away from Cleveland, and it transpired that Charles A. Malcolm, a salesman employed on trial, had been to Chicago posing as manager and living like a prince. He had before been a grocerie in Michigan, and was hired with the distinct understanding that he should not go near that city. But he went there, ran up hotel bills, which are now being received by the company every mail, lost money at gambling and had the gamblers arrested when they refused to return his money, and made matters generally that see firm discharged him without even waiting to ascertain how much they had involved. Yesterday Malcolm, who refused to be disheartened, notified the firm that he should canvass Indiana for them. Malcolm has been trouble before when a boy, and another old firm, by whom many his unpaid bills from all sections of the country.

Worked from a Moving Train.

SAVANNAH, Oct. 25.—Dorsey Green, a wrecking through Georgia. While the special train was running between Albany and Thomasville trouble arose between the white and black employees. Pistols and knives were freely used. The engineer, not knowing the cause of the firing, increased speed to reach a station. The whites, being in the majority, finally forced the negroes on to the platforms and hurled them off the train as it was running at full speed. None fell under the wheels, but three were so badly injured that death is probable. Over half of the forty participants in the fight were more or less cut, but none fatally. Officials have gone to make arrests, and trouble is apprehended.

English Mediation Not Wanted.

PARIS, Oct. 25.—The Telegraphe says France has declined England's overtures to mediate in the Franco-Chinese difficulty. Reports are current here that the Chinese are pushing their advance into Tonquin, and are about to besiege Hung-hoa.

The re-enforcements to be sent to the aid of Gen. Brisen De l'Isle will be limited to 3,000 men. Admiral courbet, at Formosa, is to leave re-enforcements of 2,000 men. Eight batteries of artillery are to be sent to Tonquin.

HAVRE, Oct. 25.—The remainder of the Chinese troops before Chu have been withdrawn. The Chinese there have abandoned their intrenchments.

Poisoned by Cheap Whiskey.

PARIS, Oct. 25.—Yvoet, in the Department of the Seine-Inferieure, where the last outbreak of cholera in France has occurred, is in a bad sanitary condition, and there is a scarcity of drinking water. The inhabitants are a drunken lot, and some doctors believe that the deaths which have been assigned to the cholera were really caused by the cheap and villainous spirits which the victims drank. Two cases of cholera have occurred in St. Leonard, a village near Yvoet.

Pieces From Milkmen.

ALBANY, Oct. 25.—The sum of $6,500 was recovered at the state treasurer's office from Sullivan county. This was the amount of fines imposed upon three milkmen of Parksville, and was collected by the committee of adulterating their milk. This is the third amount recovered by the state treasurer of fines imposed under the late pure milk statute providing against deceptions in dairy products. The sum total received from such fines for adulteration of milk is $31,700.

Burning of a Steamboat.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 25.—The steamboat Henry Frank, hence for Memphis, was burned to the water's edge last night near the Davis Crevasse. The boat and cargo are a total loss. No lives were lost.

The Frank was owned by Capt. Frank Hicks and Alfred George. She was valued at $40,000, and was insured in Cincinnati and Louisville for $30,000.

Belgium's New Cabinet.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 25.—It is said that a new cabinet has been formed, with M. Bernaert, minister of agriculture, in the retiring cabinet, as premier. M. Thonissen becomes minister of the interior; M. Bruyn of agriculture, and M. Pries or M. Bocker takes the portfolio of justice. The other places will be retained by those present incumbents.

Mme. Gerster's Illness.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—The reports as to Mme. Gerster's illness make it quite uncertain whether she will be able to sing here responsible for a concert over in the United States. The nervous affection from which she is suffering has now attacked her throat, and the doctors say that it will be many weeks before she will be able to sing in public.

Owes Nearly $100,000.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 25.—The firm of A. Knowles Price & Co., of Springfield, which has confessed judgement for $210,000, and is now in the hands of the sheriff, owes nearly $100,000 to Rhode Island jewelers.

A Strike of Civilians in Glasgow.

GLASGOW, Oct. 25.—The rioters in the Clyde shipyards struck against the piece work system. Their places were filled with non-union men, but the strikers attacked the latter and drove them away.

Manitoba Wheat in Montreal.

MONTREAL, Oct. 25.—The first installment of Mr. Stinson's Manitoba wheat, amounting to 300 quarters, brought by the Canada Pacific railway, has just reached this city.

DESERVEDLY FAMOUS.

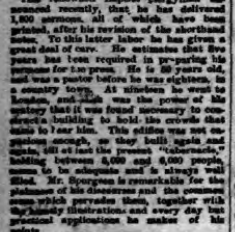
Portraits of Persons who Have Earned Prominence.

Wm. Henry Smith, Chas. H. Spurgeon, H. S. Jewett, Chas. Lemuel Ridley, Chas. H. Mathews, J. S. Robinson and Others.

CHARLES HADDON SPURGEON.

This renowned Baptist clergyman announced recently, that he has delivered 1,500 sermons, all of which have been printed, after his revision of the shorthand notes. To this latter labor he has given a great deal of care. He estimates that five years has been required in preparing his sermons for the press. He is 40 years old, and was a pastor before he was eighteen, in a country town. At nineteen he went to London, and since the power of the pastory that it was found necessary to construct a building to hold the crowds that came to hear him. This edifice was not capacious enough, so they built again and again, till at last the present "tabernacle," holding between 5,000 and 6,000 people, seems to be endless and is always well filled. Mr. Spurgeon is remarkable for the plainness of his discourses and the common-place which pervades them, together with the homely illustrations and every day but practical applications he makes of his points.

Ex-President of the Erie Railroad.



HUGH S. JEWETT.

Mr. Jewett began life as a lawyer in Ohio, though he is a native of Maryland. He received his education and studied law in Maryland. He was elected to the 43d congress from Ohio, and served from Dec. 1, 1873, to June, 1874, when he resigned to accept the presidency of the Erie railroad, with a salary of $50,000 per year, this position he recently resigned, his successor being Mr. John King, of Baltimore.

Grace Before Meat.

[New York Sun.]

The minister had been invited to dinner.

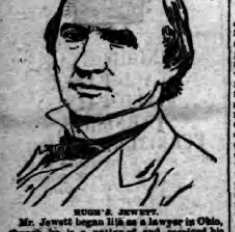
While grace was being said Tommy eyed the unwonted good things spread before him with pleasurable anticipation.

"Ma," he said, when the minister had concluded, "did you know why pa doesn't give thanks every day at the table?"

His mother shot a warning glance at him.

"Cause its only when the minister is here that we have anythin' worth givin' thanks for."

General Manager of the Associated Press.



WILLIAM HENRY SMITH

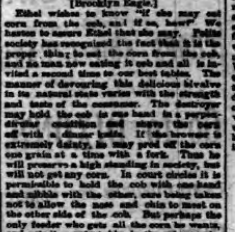
is a native of Columbia county, N. Y., and is a descendant of the New England Smiths. His father, William DePuyster Smith, who was born in Litchfield county, Ct., in 1803, was a grandson of Deacon Smith, of Kent, Ct., who was a grandson of Rev. Henry Smith, a clergyman well known in the Connecticut valley. His mother was a daughter of Solomon Rorys Gale, of Greenburgh, Columbia county, who was a lieutenant in the army during the Revolutionary war, and was descended from Daniel Gale, who settled in the connecticut valley prior to 1636. The family was of Dutch origin, and came to America for religious freedom. The parents of William Henry Smith emigrated to Ohio and settled on the Darby Plain, in Union county, in 1833, when the subject of this sketch was about two years old. He lived on a farm until he was 16, and was given the advantages of a thorough education. After graduation, and when 21 years of age, he was employed in literary work, and for a year or two was editorial writer of a weekly paper in Cincinnati and of a monthly called The Casket and Review. Subsequently he became connected with the daily press of that city, and when the war broke out was on the editorial staff of the Gazette. In 1862 he was invited by Gov. Salmon P. Chase's political opponents, who had become the governor, to become his private secretary, and while holding that position was commissioned as assistant secretary of state on the Union ticket in 1864 by a majority of about 50,000, and was re-elected in 1866. He resigned this office in January, 1868, to join with others in establishing the Cincinnati Chronicle, and on that paper he ... the Times, accepted the ... general manager of the ... Associated Press. This was in ...

Grace Before Meat.

[Brooklyn Eagle.]

Ethel wishes to know if she may eat corn in the ear, and I'd say, here! We hasten to assure Ethel that she may. Polite society has recognized the fact that it is the proper thing to eat the corn from the ear, and its name have not been changed at all in latest edition. The manner of devouring this delicious delicacy is to an extent left to the whim, strength and taste of the moment. The scourger may hold the cob in one hand in a perpendicular position and gnaw the corn off with the other, or he may, if he is extremely dainty, so may prod off the corn one grain at a time with a fork. Then he will preserve a high standing in society, but will not get any corn. In court circles it is permissible to hold the cob with one hand and nibble with the other, only taking care not to allow the ears and chin to meet on the other side of the cob. But perhaps the only feeder who gets all the corn he wants, and gets it comfortably, is the editor who stations himself at a cob in both ends, and, sharpens his teeth, and gnaws away at the cob like a rat at a flour barrel.

The "Fitzsnodist" of Punk.



BENJAMIN R. VALENTINE.

The young man named Pitzsnodle who sat pictured with this face, left last week for New York to become the editor of Punk. It is dead, to that publication at least. Mr. Benjamin R. Valentine, associate editor on Punk, and author of the "Pitzsnodle" letters, has come prominently before the public in connection with his litigation with the proprietors of the "Pitzsnodle" letters. He has been managing editor from the start of this the first successful comic journal in America. A born Englishman, he is thoroughly American in spirit. He has been a successful drive traveler, having performed the circuit of the globe twice. His judgment, constructive power and edgewise style has made a marked effect on Punk. Mr. Valentine is well known among New York literary people and a member of the Lotos club.

The Government of the Celestials.

THE MINISTER OF FOREIGN AFFAIRS.

The present emperor of China is Kwangsui, son of Prince Kung, the minister of foreign affairs. Kwangsui is not regularly descended from the throne, but was chosen by the imperial advisers, but was selected by the empress dowager, whose portrait we present, on account of which he proclaimed himself years of age when selected in 1875, thus giving her an opportunity of rehabilitating the regency for many years to come. Though her portrait would indicate a mild and mild-mannered lady, she is to a great extent the wisest of the present trouble which have beset the rule in China, and of the national women ... France is taking ad vantage of.

A Presidency Reminiscence by Thomas Allen Snowden.

Holding motion of a glass pitcher, I sent up a cadence that gave forth a sound as if it were a fine bell. "Why," continued Mr. Snowden, "I was a great boy for music when I outlived Governor A. G. Curtin's plan in that line. I taught the war governor and said wife Sarah to sing. Curtin was a good singer, but Sarah was a failure. He said day I sent her keyboard and said tablet: 'Look here, your wife put a 50 gold piece in the hat collection for the benefit of the singing societies.' 'Yes, sir,' he replied, 'my wife didn't smoke or swear.' 'She don't sing often, and let me tell you when she sings she floats.'"

The Association of the Red Cross.

CLARA E. BARTON.

The president of the American Association of the Red Cross is Miss Clara H. Barton, who is justly entitled to the high position for the humanitarian work she has done. A native of Massachusetts, she has a claim by birth to the American people as the founder at the commencement of hostilities immediately volunteered her aid in variety for the wounded. From April, 1861, until the close of the war she was actively engaged on the field and in the hospitals. After the war she organized the bureau of records of missing men, an organization being made by congress to enable her to maintain this bureau.

His Processes of Mind.

[Philadelphia Press.]

A certain lady, who is not unknown in Philadelphia society, has been twice widowed, but is now the pride of a third husband. The lady alludes to her husbands as her "first," "former" and "present." She often relates incidents of the lives of husband 1 and 2. The latter she describes as a man who always endeavored to appear perfectly cool and collected on any occasion. One occasion they were staying at a hotel and were aroused in the middle of the night by an alarm of fire. The former wife describes correctly how the husband coolly said to his wife: "Dress carefully, my dear, just as much as if you were preparing for a ball." Well, they left the room, and the lady waited on the lawn in safety, while their gentleman friend was rescued. The husband immediately began to dilate upon the advantage of always being cool and ready, to which his wife replied that she thoroughly agreed with him, but still she begged to remind him that he had forgotten to put on his inexpressibles, and he had.

Ohio's New Secretary of State.

JAMES S. ROBINSON.

The recently elected secretary of state in Ohio, Gen. James S. Robinson, is an old war veteran. He entered the war as a volunteer in the three months' service. He re-enlisted with a three years' regiment. He served in West Virginia and in the army of the Potomac, commanding a brigade at Gettysburg where he was severely wounded. In the transfer of his brigade to the west, he commanded it as a brigade commander. He was brevetted general at the solicitation of Gen. Joseph Hooker and Gen. John A. Logan.

Ohio's Present Secretary of State.

JAMES W. NEWMAN.

Mr. Newman is the present secretary of state in Ohio, who was elected by the Republicans two years ago, is the editor and proprietor of The Times at Portsmouth, Ohio. He is a man of pronounced ability and to the prime of life.

Higher Endowments Needed.

[Rochester Herald.]

Rev. Dr. Talmage in his last Sunday's sermon, told his congregation that every one of them who is good will have a "white horse to ride on" when he or she gets to heaven. He will discharge some liveries from going there. A million dollars wouldn't tempt them to ride a white horse—or a black or any other color. They would be afraid they'd get their name changed. Promise them a "crash and fear," with a noisy procession and footmen, when they get to heaven, and they'll be willing to go in "straight and narrow way" yet be much greater.

The Sun.
THE SUN is, and will continue to be, a newspaper which tells the truth without fear of consequences, which goes at the facts, no matter how much the process may offend the nerves of all the world without waste of words and in the most readable shape, which is working with all its heart for the cause of honest government, and which therefore believes that the Democratic party must go, and must go in this year of our Lord, 1880.
About sixty million copies of THE SUN have gone out of our establishment during the passed twelve months.
If you were to paste end to end all the columns of THE SUN printed and sold last year you would get a continuous strip of interesting information common sense wisdom, sound doctrine, and wee ook long enough to reach from Printing House square to the top of Mount Copernicus in the moon, then back to Printing House square, and three quarters of the way back to the moon again.
But THE SUN is written for the inhabitants of the earth; this same strip of intelligence would girdle the globe twenty-seven or twenty-eight times.
If every buyer of THE SUN during the passed year has spent only one hour over it, and if his wife or his grandfather has spent another hour, this newspaper in 1879 has afforded the human race thirteen thousand years of society, reading, and debate.
It is only by little infinitesimals like these that you can form any idea of the circulation of the most popular of American newspapers, or of its influence on the opinions and actions of American men and women.
If you know THE SUN you like it already, and you will read it with renewed diligence and profit during what is sure to be the most interesting year in its history. If you do not yet know THE SUN, it is high time to get into the swindle.

Signal Office Prediction—Fair weather, followed by increasing cloudiness and local rains, increasing higher temperature, lower barometer.

CHRONOLOGICAL EVENTS.

Coins was discovered in 1658.

JOTTINGS.

—"Geo" whooped-it-up at VanDerveer's Hall Saturday evening.

—Ice formed on the ponds in this neighborhood during Saturday night.

—St. Mary's Fair was held Saturday evening and had a large attendance.

—By going to Newark tonight you may see the next President—and you may not.

—The gas fixtures are being placed in the rink. The electric lights cannot be obtained.

—The Vaender Guards will go to Dunellen this evening to participate in a Democratic parade.

—As the cold weather approaches the visitors to the Public Library reading-room begin to increase.

—Edsall has received to-day a new line of beautiful plaid dress fabrics. His sales on these goods this season have been large.

—The County Clerk has issued this year naturalization papers to twenty-six persons, and twenty-two have announced their intentions.

—The Fair which is being held in St. Mary's Hall for the benefit of St. Mary's Church is to be postponed Wednesday evening in honor of the Democratic parade.

—Plainfield has a good share of political excitement this campaign—Livingston, Democrat, Seven Republicans, Kirkner, Republican, North Plainfield—Waterbury, Democrat.

—Don't forget to register to-morrow, if you have not already done so. It will be your last chance, and if you vote for the winning man you will rejoice, if you will not feel otherwise of the defeat of your favorite.

—There was a report absent here that Mr. Hoffman, the Democratic candidate for Governor, was dead. It is a mistake. Butler is here every time, with his imported bag rum only forty-five cents per bottle at No. 31 West Front street.

—Rev. Harry M. Lowry preached an eloquent sermon in the Park avenue Baptist church last Sabbath morning. He can very properly be styled a polished speaker, and would be a valuable acquisition to our resident Plainfield preachers.

—Attention is called to October 30th as a day of prayer under the auspices of the National W. C. T. U. There will be public services at the Hall from twelve to one p. m. Those deterred from attendance are invited to observe the hour in private.

—The Republicans made a great mistake in not having the parade a counterpart of last Thursday evening. They prevented the men in line from seeing the parade also. It is hoped that the Democrats will not make the same mistake next Wednesday evening.

—In the play of "Leonore," which Miss Janish presents here, she has exceptional opportunities for the display of her elegant dresses, of which so much has been written, and also her magnificent jewels which took the first prize at the Vienna art and loan exhibition last Summer. Undoubtedly the actress dresses and jewels will prove the eyesores of the ladies who witness the play.

—Quite a Cleveland is to be at Newark to-night when there will be a monster pa rade including clubs from all the upper sections of the State and the H. I. M.'s of this city. The Albany phalanx and the Dry Goods Men's Cleveland club of New York, numbering together 1,000 be we noted for appearance in the line. The railroad company will charge only fifty cents for a return ticket from this city.

Temperance Matters.

The Reform Club Sunday evening meeting, was, on account of the repairs undergoing at Reform Hall, held in the Methodist Church, Rev. Dr. H. H. Tomlin pastor, by whom also the exercises were begun, with prayer, reading of scriptures, and an address of unusual power even for the eloquent divine. He was followed by addresses from Lawyer John Ulrich, Judge Mahlon Harper, Judge F. F. Goodell, and Lawyer by President French, who presided at the meeting. Several of the speakers were warmly applauded by the large audience present, who seemed deeply imbued with the spirit of the occasion.

The four o'clock Gospel temperance meeting held in the M. E. church yesterday afternoon was fairly attended, the exercises being under the direction of Mr. Rudy Edsall. The Dunham Choristers were present, led by Mr. George Bunker, and rendered some choice music. So the Christian Temperance Union Quartette, of Middlesex, with a fine, full tone, in which he united how dear the cause was to him and how grateful they should all be for the good accomplished. Remarks were made by Rev. Mr. Chaver, Mr. Bagnell, Mr. Goodwin, Mr. Hannigan and several others. The services were closed with an invocation by Rev. Dr. Tomlin.

Fires.

An attempt was made Tuesday evening to burn the barn in the rear of A. S. Ross' factory, on Roby street. The fire was discovered in time to prevent it from spreading to such a large extent as it would have done had it not been for the prompt action of the fire department. The fire was first discovered by the night watchman, who immediately gave the alarm. The department responded promptly, but by the time they arrived on the ground the fire had been extinguished by the employes of the factory. The damage to the building will not exceed $50, and the loss on contents will be covered by insurance. The origin of the fire is unknown, but it is supposed to be the work of an incendiary. The fire was discovered by Mr. Ross' watchman, who was making his rounds about the premises. The alarm was given at 8:30 o'clock. The fire was extinguished by the employes of the factory before the arrival of the department

A THEOSOPHIC MARRIAGE.

[Henry J. W. Dam in the Century.]

She was a theosophic miss—
Vice-chief of Nirvana;
She talked of esoteric this
And that, in mystic manner.
She wore a wide psychic smile,
Used chants transcendental.
Two suitors her besieged meanwhile—
Both softly sentimental.

The one, he was a drummer bland,
Who wore a jolly collar;
He knew no dialogue save dollar, and
He chased the nimble dollar.
The other was a soulful youth,
Who talked of things symbolic;
Examined quite all kinds of truths—
And prolipsosed an cellic.

The one, he talked of common love
In tones that made her shudder;
The other soared with her above
To realms of Buddha.
She sent the first upon his way
With snub unmitigated—
Upon the other smiled, and they
By Hymen were mated.

FOUR YEARS LATER.

Within a lofty Harlem flat
She's found her truest Nirvana;
She does not think of this and that
As mushy sophyrs fan her;
She dreamily eschews Mumm's nose
And spanks-ish Zoroaster,
And mends their trans-cendental clothes,
Torn by ocean disaster.

Her adept husband still can solve
The mysteries eternal,
But for restaurant can't evolve
A salary diurnal.
He still feats on ti-cycles new,
But fails to notice Mabel
With—not the Cheshi-h milky brew—
But Jersey apple toddy.

She eloquently mourns her life
And objurgates her Latin,
To daily see the drummer's wife
Drive by, effete and vain.
She has best heard, in fact, to say
When somewhat discontented,
"Though theosophist I may be, way,
Though allegiant I shed my
I think, in love: the good old way,
By far the best invented."

WOMEN'S WORK.

Of the 42,000 persons who form the civil service army in Washington almost a third are women. They are in most of the departments, and predominate in the Bureau of engraving and printing and in the treasurer's office, while the war and navy departments have almost none. It was for a long time thought that woman was not fit for service in the State department, which is supposed to be the receptacle for secret matter of great importance, but this feeling has now worn away, and about a dozen women are employed in that department. As far as known, the foundations are not shaken. In the post-office department the services of women are especially prized, and their intelligence and experience in the dead letter office in deciphering and forwarding the wads of stupid and ignorant writers leads the officials to say that in other names the department could hardly be carried on. The fact that women has no vote is what bars her from service in the capitol, where all the employees are and must be under the direct influence of the congressmen. It is the rule among the female clerks that "few die, none resign," and those who drop out, do so from unconscious causes.

AGED BUT HAPPY.

Mrs. Sarah Hedges, Aged 104, Celebrates Her Birthday.

Many Friends Present to Wish Her Many Returns of the Day.

Mrs. Sarah Hedges, of 1510 Union street, Philadelphia, celebrated her one hundred and fourth birthday yesterday. She was born in Burlington county, N. J., and has lived in Philadelphia for many years. She is the mother of Mrs. Mary Hedges Carlisle, of Bordentown, N. J., and Mrs. Sarah Hedges Emery, of Philadelphia. Mrs. Hedges is remarkably well preserved for a person of her age, and is able to walk about the house without assistance. She is also in possession of her mental faculties, and converses intelligently on the events of the past and present. Yesterday she received many friends, who called to congratulate her on the occasion of her birthday. Among the callers were Mrs. Emery, Mrs. Carlisle and Mrs. Hedges, daughter, granddaughter and great granddaughter of the centenarian. Mrs. Hedges received her guests in the parlor of her home, and was dressed in a handsome black silk gown. She was in excellent spirits, and enjoyed the visit of her friends very much. Mrs. Hedges has been a member of the Methodist Episcopal church for many years, and is a regular attendant at the services. She has been a widow for many years, her husband having died in 1850. She has been blessed with good health, and has never had a serious illness. She has always been a hard worker, and has been accustomed to do her own housework. Her eyesight is good, and she reads without the aid of glasses. She is very fond of reading, and spends much of her time with her books. She has been a subscriber to the Ledger for many years, and is very much interested in the news of the day. She is also a great lover of flowers, and has a number of plants in her room. Mrs. Hedges is a remarkable woman, and her friends hope that she may live many years to enjoy the blessings of health and happiness.

ON A DIET OF HARD SOAP

Were Servants of the Sudden Mistress of a Minneapolis Household.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 27.—Several months ago a family moved into a handsome residence on Grand avenue, in this city. Mrs. Joseph Bass, a widow lady of sixty years, was the mistress of the household. Two servant girls were employed, and for several months they remained in the employ of the family. Then the girls left, and their places were filled by two others. Mrs. Bass was very particular about the manner in which her household affairs were conducted, and the new girls found that they had to work hard to please her. They were required to rise early in the morning, and were kept busy all day. Mrs. Bass was very economical, and the girls found that they were expected to live on the plainest food. They were not allowed to eat meat, and were required to subsist on bread and potatoes. Mrs. Bass was also very particular about the manner in which the dishes were washed, and the girls found that they were required to use hard soap in washing the dishes. They were not allowed to use soft soap, and were compelled to wash the dishes with hard soap. The girls stood this treatment for a few days, and then they left the house. Mrs. Bass was unable to secure servants to fill their places, and for several days she was compelled to do her own housework. She was finally compelled to secure the services of two servant girls, and they found that they were required to live on a diet of hard soap. They

A MYSTERY OF THE DEEP.

The dead body of a Former Resident of the Vicinity Found.

Little Falls, N. J., Oct. 27.—The remains of the Mahwah murder mystery have been found, came to the surface last Sunday and put up his home at the Beattie tenement. His intimate acquaintance with the body when it was found, and the fact that it was identified by a scar on the left leg, a relic of a gunshot wound received in the late war, leaves no room for doubt that the remains are those of Peter Vreeland, who disappeared from this vicinity on the afternoon last mentioned. He stepped aboard a train at Allendale, and was seen by several persons to go forward into the smoking car, and that was the last that could positively be known. Two boys walking on the track discovered his dead body lying on the east of a forty-foot high retaining wall about one-fourth of a mile west of the Allendale station, and informed the police. Coroner Ellis was notified and held an inquest, at which the following testimony was given:

Peter Vreeland's wife, sister and brother-in-law identified the body as that of the missing man. Conductor Hopper, of the train on which Vreeland left Allendale, testified that he had seen the deceased on the train, and that he had left the train at Allendale. He also testified that he had failed to see the conductor or was detained in some way until the train had run some distance, and then jumped from the train and had thrown over the fence. Coroner Ellis impanelled a jury, and after viewing the body adjourned until 1 p. m. to-day, when all the facts will be presented. His head was crushed and the body otherwise bruised.

FREAKS OF A SAVAGE HORSE.

A Citizen Gets $2,000 Damages After Being Severely Wounded.

Brooklyn, Oct. 27.—A verdict of $2,000 has been awarded by consent in the city court, in a suit brought by John Meade against Henry E. Sargent, Edward W. Hulbert, John A. Livingston, and Cyrus A. Healy, for damages sustained by him in April last under the following circumstances:

On that date he was passing along Fulton street on his way to work. In front of the premises of Healy & Livingston, coal refiners, there were standing two trucks. Meade came up, halted one of them and tried to pass between the horse and the fence. The animal objected to such use of the truck, and bore against Meade with its shoulder, crushing him sideways. When approaching the shoulders of the animal it suddenly reared, threw itself across the truck, and with the other horse with it. In so doing its hoof struck Meade on the side and in the lip. In endeavoring to save himself he threw up his hands. One of the horses's ears caught on his toe and he bore about the plaintiff's arm with his teeth; the animal finally lifted him up and threw him with great force against the building. It was for these damages plaintiff had brought his action. The horse was notably ferocious and had caused a good deal of previous trouble. After medical advice had been taken, counsel agreed to accept the verdict above given.

Deathbed Confession of Murder.

Butte, Mont., Oct. 27.—The sequel to the cold blooded and mysterious murder four years ago of Johnny Dolan, a well known saloon dealer of Helena, has just come to light. He was accustomed to carry on his person large sums of money. He was one day found dead after having left there with his skull crushed in from a blow of a hammer and his pockets turned inside out. No clew was discovered to the murder. Information has just received to the effect that John Bosbey, formerly keeper of a dance house in Helena and Butte, and who died a short time ago in Pennsylvania, made a deathbed confession of having murdered Dean and robbed him of $10,000. He followed Dean into the cellar, where the latter went to get some whisky, and killed him with a hammer. Bosbey lived in Helena for two years afterward, and then moved to Butte.

Government Work in Alaska.

Washington, Oct. 27.—Lieut. George M. Stoney, commanding the surveying ship Onnalaska, reports to the navy department his arrival at San Francisco. All on board are said to be well. Lieut. Stoney succeeded in exploring, for 500 miles, a new river, which he discovered a year ago in the northeastern portion of Alaska. The river is not named. On account of scarcity of time the lieutenant did not reach the head waters of the river.

Tobacco Trade Depressed.

Lynchburg, Va., Oct. 27.—The tobacco trade here is very much depressed. While manufacturing is more active than it is reported in other localities, few sales are being made, owing to the difficulty of making collections. This report is of the city revenue collector, who says that the $8,000 collected on tobacco, it was unprecedentedly small for the season. The leaf trade is also depressed by the drought which has had no rain since then for over two months.

Kentucky Miners on Strike.

Livingston, Ky., Oct. 27.—The miners in the employ of the Livingston Coal company are on the strike. They are strikers on account of the coal company running the coal over a one and a half inch screen before weighing it. They demand that the company run it over a one inch screen instead of a one and a half inch, and the coal company declare they will close the mines and discontinue the operation of the mine rather than change the screen.

A Determined Suicide.

Greenfield, Mass., 27.—Mallory Davenport, of Colerain, on Friday filled a sack with stones, tied it around him, then threw himself through the ice and jumped into the Deerfield River. His body was found on Saturday, and while a coroner's jury was summoned suicide to cause the death certain. He was the son of Levi Davenport, a wealthy farmer. He had been a teacher in Dorchester Academy, and was twenty-three years old.

Gov. Cleveland's Movements.

Albany, Oct. 27.—Gov. Cleveland, after returning from his trip to Newark, N. J., and New York city, will start for Buffalo Saturday morning, and will attend a hearing at Rochester that evening. He will go thence to Buffalo and remain there three days. He will cast his vote in Buffalo.

Rumors that Graham Will Resign.

Washington, Oct. 27.—The story is received that Secretary Graham contemplates tendering his resignation at an early day. The secretary could not be seen. The story cannot be traced to a reliable source, and is not generally credited.

England's Heavy Weight Champion.

London, Oct. 27.—It is rumored the English pugilist, who claims the heavy weight championship, proposes to go to America with a view to a contest with John L. Sullivan for the championship of the world.

Mount Holly's Rather Rough Christmas.

Cincinnati, Oct. 27.—Griffin Rainbolt, the father of Marsh Rainbolt, while going to his home in Pulaski Run Clermont county, Saturday night, fell over an embankment and broke his neck.

WOMAN AND HOME.

Women as We Find Them When Visiting or Visited.

Our Sleeping Rooms.—Breakfast.—Dress of Ancestors.—Fashion.—Work.—Rest.—Visiting.—Visitors.—Dress.—Dinner.—Evening Dress.

[Fanny Fern in Arthur's Magazine.]

"How good it is to be welcome when one enters the house of another!" no thought can ever decently enter with stand upon the threshold of the poor hireling tenant of our neighbor Busby.

It was in the forenoon, and the little woman was busy, but her fine grey eyes were bright and welcoming.

"I am always glad to see you; you always do me good somehow," she said, taking both my hands in hers. And then she went on with the work in which I found her busy, and stood into the new place; how much we paid for the last picture; how we got along at the seashore, and all about the bathing and the excursions and the general way we passed on definitely; how much the trip cost and where the girls got that good-fitting jacket, and how Tommy's teeth came in here, laughed about the baby's teeth, told her a cure for baby's burns and colic; promised her some pie-plant roots to set out, and a slip of the rose that "Aunt Betsy" sent me, and I suggested a grape-vine to shade the end of the portico; commended her hanging wire screen, that saved her dyeing so often, and said we really remembered how we looked over the contents of the yarn and stocking basket in the fall.

Her cheerful contentment did us good. When we came to go home we said, "How good and lovely your rising has been dear!" And then the little woman, with a pleasant, bright, loving look, answered in this way, said:

"There is an old hat; one more than the oven will hold, and one more than I really wanted to make. I will be so glad if you will accept of it and take it home and bake it yourself."

We were very willing to do it; the kindly little deed made us both happy. We planned, too, on that her bread contained to her in cookies.

How different women are.

Then we were invited once this way: "Come, be sincere and bring dear Cousin Rowland with you and make me a good, long visit. I want her to carry home with her pleasant memories of her relatives." I thought the invitation meant all day, or for dinner anyhow, and we two elderly, old-fashioned folks were staying Aunt Mary's bell a little before 11 o'clock and in our very best and smallest our brightest.

It was a long time before the door opened, and such a dismayed countenance we never beheld!

There stood Mrs. Mary, looking "quite contrary," her sleeves rolled up and her arms floury, an old hood bonnet popping on her head after her hair in curlers, and the tie of her apron half undone, and the strings full of lint and bristles and thorns. Her very mouth fell ajar, and the whites of her black eyes fairly glared at us in amazement. Her poor folks who stood there all puckered and smiling, with their gloved hands held over each other primly. It was serious then, but very funny to look back upon.

She—Aunt Mary—tried to smile, but her dear, distorted face looked as if a log had rolled over it and mashed it into a ludicrous grimace.

"Oh! I won't looking for you yet," she stammered out, and then she followed up with, "Come right in. I'll start a fire; you see we got up a little late this morning. I put there in the same breath she said sweet and bitter things while she swayed to start the hard coal fire in a cheerful way, and threw everything looked pruche and unfashioned, stiff and inhospitable. And then we drew two cold, smooth chairs near the poky fire, the bonnet bustling out with a bowing of the bonnet that flapped like wet wings.

We did not see her again till dinner, but we heard the rattle of pans and bottles, and the jingle of, cutlery that had to be cleansed over, place by place; heard the cry when the potatoes burned and when the coffee boiled over, and when the tureen cover fell and broke. And we heard exclamations of delight over the canned fruit that was "just as nice as the day it was put up;" over the "jelly that never failed," over the cream that the chubby lad delivered at the side door, and over the new sardines, stiff and stark, and bought "for do bushes."

It chanced that we two "visiting brethren" were not women who "took things to heart," who laid up queer sayings and doings to worry over, but women who knew the cares of the world and could make all sorts of allowances, giving wide margin to the women who fear and are sadly annoyed and who must "do" for everything.

Our Sleeping Rooms.

[Lucy Randolph Fleeting in American Agriculturist.]

A physician of world renown "we hear a great talk about malaria, now-a-days, but there is more malaria to be found in most modern bedchambers than anywhere else." Persons who are moderately intelligent on other topics appear to have small thought, or that very perverted, on the subject of hygiene in their sleeping rooms. Ventilation of a bedchamber cannot be too carefully attended to; and, as says Horace Mann, "among the great agencies by which God has all around the globe, it is a useless piece of economy to breathe it more than once." Yet some mothers cut or let carefully close all the windows, "for fear of colds and night air," and leave two or three children to sleep in a stifling atmosphere, and see no connection between the cause and effect. Hooded heads and the vitiated air she compels them to breathe night after night. Let the morning air and sunshine into the bedroom as soon as possible after the occupants leave, and if there is no sunshine, and it is not raining, let in the air. Do not make up beds too soon after they are vacated. Let the bed-clothes be turned back over the foot-board of the bedstead, but it is better to smooth nearly our blankets to snugly pack up bed clothing until the inhabitants of the sleeping beds have been removed to the breakfast table.

Look carefully after the wash-stand and the various unsightly furnishings therein. The pitcher and wash-bowl should be kept so scrupulously clean. All slops and foul water should be emptied very promptly. Wash cloths and all pitchers, glasses, and tumblers should be used in the mornings only. Never allow any one to use the bowl or towels to stand for days in the same manner after the departure of their owners. Towels and wash-cloths should be promptly removed and all soiled clothing allowed to hang at summer

Intercourse of American Children.

[Cecil" in Philadelphia Times.]

I was talking the other day to Stephen Elliot, of the Protestant Episcopal Church, the apparent disobedience and irreverence of American children. He said: "A boarding-house keeper has two children of about 5 and 7 years. I never lived among people for Masters and in Spanish countries, where I went when a boy. Among the Spanish reverence for parents has been brought up by a thousand years of practice, until it had got to be a very strong system and almost of the fall. Even I, who have spent most of my years, old habits that I can't quite get rid of. Children and stand up at the entrance of their parents. In this country the boys of 4 years old have not that much respect. The Spaniard at 40 years is a boy. If he is sent to bed, he takes his cigar out of his mouth and hold it in his hand, half concealed, when his father passed. The American boy at 4 years would eat that cigar and say: 'Give me.' We are not to consider our civilization," said Mr. Elkins, "apart from the conditions which prevail in the world. Our children are brought up in the atmosphere of what Wendell Phillips has called the 'bad boy.' It is indeed, the atmosphere of the country. Our boys are informative, or, indeed, not formed yet, by the old Gothic ideal, whether that interest is for time most they have become instinctive."

On the subject of runaway girls, I may say that the papers are now full of the cases of runaway girls, some going on the stage, some marrying the hostler, some tired of school. This seems to me to show that home-life is not attractive to girls. The English dwell on home life in its sacred and best aspect as woman and apparent careers which unsettle them very early, especially with the school business reading which we have. Most of which the novel and the newspaper are the greatest. Some, I am glad to say, are not. Others, the vast majority, are tired of school from school and her mother clothes her in a beautiful dress and sees her for a companion on Chestnut street or Broadway. The girl is admired and flattered and petted, and she is ruined. Something they all make up and find that the girl has been married somewhere she could not tell you the two sides of her life—the mystery of the child and the free dom of the woman.

What Is Wanted.

[Mary H. Ford.]

What she does one want? in the first place a quiet corner far away from gossip and prying eyes, where one's own individuality can be developed, free from the world's criticism, and where one can shake time enjoy a moment's quiet, untroubled with one's duties or one's friends. And in the second place, where the children of the household can keep their little hearts young and not grow too soon learned in the wisdom of this world.

Most Americans do not have homes; they have merely places to stay, where the father can read his newspaper, the mother pry the latest gossip out of her friends, and the young people, or have annual birthday parties. But the idea of a home! Quiet, where love is cherished, delights are fostered, and mutual respect is constantly achieved in their simplicity. Materialism gone to church on Sunday without a idea that one is hearing the holiest precepts behind her, of which she is high privileges, and if you should dissect her brain you would find that in the corner devoted to the memory of the duties of clothes, of sewing girls and rosebud turkey fill up all but the smallest cranium conscientiously set aside for religious belief and church membership.

The Maid's Dress.

[American Queen.]

A Newport critique on the new costumes that they are "all of silk which is not set a fashion in either entertaining or dress, without having it copied in a month or two afterwards." Mrs. Astor, who leads the dress she said: "It is a shame that servants and shop-girls immediately imitate our manner of dressing every so the way we wear our hair or the cut of our clothes. There is no reason why a maid or shop-girl should not dress to please herself, and if she has the taste to copy her betters, it is all the more to her credit if not to ours." Yet it is rather provoking to have one's maid appear in a dress, but otherwise most imitation of a Worth contrivance is flattering. Mrs. Astor's party is Lenox last week. In such a case an English lady could punish the maid by instant dismissal, but an English maid would never think of copying her mistress' costumes!

Reform in Dancing.

[Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.]

If fashionable dancing should earnestly seek the modest and graceful, what a revolution it would be!

One word more for revival of the minuet, which has inflicted upon our home architecture's medieval Gothic eyebrow and monstrous gable. Is there any thing graceful and high-bred in modes of dancing that are worth revival? Why not display graceful movements and courtesies to the music, to the end of a pleasant waltzed down the hall, whirl and bobbing and bumping? Or, if wrestling physical activity is the want, why not have it decently in the old style of jump and pigeon-wings and other quick steps, and let the waltz and polka and galop alone? Or why not have the Irish jig—an entirely modest dance, but quick and gay, and put all the young Americans without doing violence upon one another?

Every Day Wants.

[From Frau "Hausfreund."]

A gift every day rather is a part of her character. The mother who is already in the morning to see that the breakfast, however the time may be, look in the evening to see that her house handle your room may be, there are eight things to should consist: a saucer, a cup, a knife, a spoon, soup, bread, butter, and meat breakfast. There are few or no additions to your household where drink you should daily good use of them. Persons who wish to provide their children with such a supervision, and to make them a habit of neatness, and a sense of order, should consult a table of contents. Look way in the morning, and after the dinner is over happen your

WEATHER.

Signal Office, Washington—Local rains and partly cloudy weather, followed by clearing weather, south to west winds, nearly stationary temperature.

CHRONOLOGICAL EVENTS.

Harvard College was founded in 1638.

JOTTINGS.

—A handsome pin cushion is to be drawn for at St. Mary's Fair this evening.

—Front street, opposite the post office is receiving a covering of crushed stone much needed.

—Thomas Winsor left Bound Brook Tuesday for Shakespeare, New Mexico, where he will remain for some time.

—Mag-wump is defined in Elliott's Indian Bible—noble Indian. But whether the tribe is Tammany or not deponeth saith not.

—THE NEWS of Plainfield wants to know where Cain—he of biblical renown—got his wife. It is plain to us that he got her in a field. Next!—Elizabeth Herald.

—The Plainfield Cornet Band, the Vosseller Guards, and delegation from the Clover Hand and Hand Hose Co., left this city last night to Dunellen last evening to participate in the Democratic parade.

—The W. C. T. U. at a meeting yesterday afternoon selected the basement of the Methodist Church for their prayer service to-morrow instead of Reform Hall, owing to repairs in the latter place not being ready.

—The Fall of the year is the best time to view the mountain scenery shaped in its full age. The Mauch Chunk excursion over the Reading road, will take place to-morrow. There will be a large number of persons to view the scenery at its grandest.

—The largest load of paper, we are informed, ever received in this city, was delivered at THE NEWS office to-day, when one hundred and fifty reams of an order of three hundred reams arrived. It requires from sixty to one hundred reams per month to supply readers of THE NEWS.

—The Rahway Advocate referring to the visit of the Belva's to this city says: "The Plainfield Democrat has a column of self-slaughtering plumbers taken to their city by the Belva's trip, to relieve their aching sides. They laughed till their sides were so weak that the planters were actually needed."

—A meeting of the Y. M. C. Debating Society to-morrow evening at eight o'clock in the parlor of the Y. M. C. A. Subject—Resolved that women is eligible to citizenship and to hold office." Messrs. J. Ulrich and E. H. Lewis on the affirmative. Messrs. E. L. Suffren and J. H. J. Runyon on the negative.

—We are pleased to learn, during a few moments chat with Bro. T. W. Morrison of the sprightly Plainfield daily (Ten Evening News) that his efforts to supply that locality with a live daily newspaper have been successful beyond his anticipations. Plainfield shows its wisdom by liberally supporting the enterprise.—Somerville Messenger.

—Democratic papers in this district are quoting from the Central Times as a full-fledged Democratic organ. The Rahway Democrat has half a column from it announcing local Republicans and endorsing Democrats in opposition. The Democrat readily recognizes the junior Democratic organ of this place. The Republicans here prefer it seriously alone.

Rattling Crews.

The Junior Democratic Weekly of this city has received such a wholesale republication by Republicans whom it had pretended to represent only to covertly stab, that it has taken alarm and in to-day's Tribune is a heated editorial where goes back on last week's tomfoolery, and avows he has always been for "Blaine," is now, and ever shall be. What a whopper.

While parties exist and papers pretend to represent them, they should do so faithfully. An honest square Democrat or Republican, is a man whom people will honor as a good soldier. But all will display a skulker, who professing to be a strong representative Republican or Democrat loadies to his party's adversaries, and stabs on every opportunity those whose organ he professes to grind.

The Grand Democratic Parade.

To-morrow evening the Democrats propose to have their grandest parade of the campaign. Twenty-five clubs have been invited. The line of march is as follows:

Line form on Somerset street, right resting on Craig Place, and passed as follows: Somerset to Linden avenue, to Grove, to Front to Richmond, to Fifth, to Peace, to Broadway, to Ninth, to Park avenue, to Crescent avenue, to Seventh, to Liberty, to Front, to to Central avenue, to Fifth to Park avenue, to Front and disolve.

A Runaway.

A horse and phaeton belonging to W. R. Stewart of Seventh street, occupied by Percy Stewart, Rowland Gen and Irving West, three boys, and the driver, was on Front street, near Peace, this afternoon, at about 4.30, when the horse took fright and ran away, towards Park avenue. Mr. Fetter stepped him in front of Slade's drug store, into which the horse was rushing regardless of consequences. The occupants of the conveyance escaped injury, but two wheels were smashed.

THE DEMOCRATIC MEETING.

Addresses by Judge Green and Messrs. A. S. Sullivan.

The Democracy turned out in large number last evening to greet the orators who came to old Green's Grove to speak, and were apparently greatly pleased by what fell from the lips of the silver-tongued gentlemen who came from afar to rally them for the battle in November.

Mr. Jacob Martin called the meeting to order, and read the following list of officers of whom occupied seats on the stage:

President—Hon. Joseph W. Yates. Vice-Presidents—First ward: John Simpson, Wm. S. Clarkson, Sigmund C. Lilienstern. Second ward: A. D. Button, Guilford Meyer, Christopher H. Pratt, M. D. Third ward: James Clark, John Cameron, Wm. E. Lows. Fourth ward: Hon. Nathan Harper, Andrew Love, Wm. H. Miner. Secretaries—First ward: Walter L. Reddell. Second ward: J. Alfred Demarest. Third ward: Theodore J. Miller. Fourth ward: Joseph F. Shepard.

Mr. Joseph W. Yates was chosen chairman. In a few happy sentences he introduced Judge Green of Elizabeth, candidate for Congress from the Third District, who was received with applause, and who made a speech in which he showed all that he said in his recent letter about trickery and corruption, taking the solid ground that the ballot-box should be kept pure, and that the characters and doings of public men should be well looked into.

On now hearing the name of the Hon. Algernon S. Sullivan of New York took the floor and by his oratory and persuasive manner held the attention of his hearers while he lashed his opponents and held up for admiration those not of his party who have come out in favor of the Democratic candidate for the chief magistracy of the nation.

Mr. Keron of Elizabeth, candidate for sheriff, reminded his friends that he was not an orator, but felt satisfied that they would do the right thing at the right time and that all would be well.

Last, but not least, Mr. Robert L. Livingston, candidate for Senator, made his bow, and called attention to the fact that a certain journal recently wanted to know who he was. He thought that the people very soon would furnish the desired information.

Judge Harper called for three cheers for the candidates and the speakers, which were given heartily, and a spontaneous one went up for the popular candidate for Governor, which was duly acknowledged by that gentleman. And thus ended the meeting.

About the Bedrun.

The Belvas fared ill after leaving this city last Thursday night, the train at Elizabeth missing connection, so that the club was compelled to walk all the way from Elizabeth to Rahway. They rang at Belva's residence and arrived home about four o'clock in the morning. In Rahway a backster at a recent Belva parade desiring to show his loyalty to women, and his love for their rights, hunted up an old hoop skirt, a perfect daisy in its day for size, hung it up on his front veranda, and illuminated it by placing a kerosene lamp inside; while the hoop skirt wheel-rotated with the lamp, the effect was grand, and the boys say that they say the girls—as they passed in line paid their respects to it with a piercing hurrah! The worst is to come; the hatchetator has been keeping bachelor's hall for a few days and a neighbor, as neighborly neighbors should do, called in to see how he was getting along, when the first salute was: "O, you old rascal, I've caught you, have I." He very mildly asked "What's the racket?" and the answer was "Racket! that's the racket! What do you call that?" and in turning around there lay the duky of a hoop skirt which had encircled the kerosene lamp so beautifully the night before. Then our friend attempted to explain about Belva Lockwood, ratification, celebration, illumination, mixed in with some other "slicus" but, it was no go! He was a suspect, and the last heard was "I'll polish you across the continent, and don't you forget it!" The Rahway Democrat is requested not to say anything about the matter. Now, the old daisy of a hoop skirt is hanging up in the garret, upon which we pay no rent, and the rafters behind the chimney, twisted up in the shape of a figure eight, and is to stay there until Belva is President.

Mr. Vincent's Opinion.

Dr. John H. Vincent, of this city, widely known in connection with his work in the Chautauqua Circle, is reported by the New York Tribune as out for Blaine and Logan. He just returned from an extended trip through the West, having travelled as far as Dakota. "I am a Prohibitionist," he said, smiling, "and perhaps for that reason as well as the one that I have been busily occupied with my work I have said but very little on politics. But I have no hesitation in declaring that my convictions are strongly in favor of the Republican candidates. To me the Prohibition vote in this National issue is a wasted power."

"Have you found that Mr. Blaine was popular in the West?" said the Tribune representative.

"As far as my personal observation goes, I should say the entire country is strongly in his favor. And the Prohibition vote, I do not think, will be large in the Western States. Ohio, I believe, is the only one of a doubtful character. On the question of no great an issue as the election of a President, the importance of the result is obvious to all thinking men, and of this character the voters of Prohibition are more truly than those of any other party. The Prohibitionists, I think, will result in the election of the Republican President and Vice-President."

—The temperance organizations of the city are cordially invited to attend the anniversary exercises of the W. C. T. U. at the Methodist Church, this evening, Oct. 28, at 7.30 p. m. Addressed by Mrs. J. Ellen Foster and Rev. Dr. Reid.

All about a Cow.

At the Council Chamber on Saturday John Brown and James Harding were put on trial for alleged violation of the City Ordinance relating to public pounds. The complaint stated that Patrick Bergen was in the act of taking one stray cattle to the pound when the accused interfered and opposed and even apparently grappled with him, that fell from the lips of the above-named gentleman who came from afar to rally them for the battle in November.

Mr. Jacob Martin called the meeting to order, and read the following list of officers of whom occupied seats on the stage:

President—Hon. Joseph W. Yates. Vice-Presidents—First ward: John Simpson, Wm. S. Clarkson, Sigmund C. Lilienstern. Second ward: A. D. Button, Guilford Meyer, Christopher H. Pratt, M. D. OCTOBER 28, 1884.

THE WORLD IS PROUD OF HIM.

Sir Moses Montefiore, whose portrait we gave recently among our groups of famous men, left Thursday rounded out a century of life. He is a Hebrew of the Hebrews and a man of whom the world is justly proud. He is the type of a righteous man and a modern example of Old Testament integrity.

Sir Moses Montefiore has been for half a century one of the world's greatest and noblest philanthropists. His deeds have been those that breathe out charity and love for humanity. There was no advertising of Sir Moses' gifts. He gave quietly and unostentatiously and much preferred that no widespread notice be given to his benefactions.

He is a worthy son of the old Hebrew patriarchs and as such has rigorously adhered to the faith of his fathers. The one thing that has thrown a slight cloud over his life was the ill-judged efforts on the part of some Christians to proselyte the philanthropist. The effort failed and wisely so. To see a great man, the descendant of a great race, stand as a monument to the faith and integrity of his ancestry is also praiseworthy.

So it has come about that Sir Moses Montefiore has not only practiced philanthropy, but has been a living example of the liberality of religion. Those who rashly supposed no integrity, no righteousness and no charity could exist outside of Christendom long ago discovered their mistake. In this grand old Hebrew they found the personification of goodness. And Sir Moses is not a single and rare example. There are thousands of adherents to the Hebrew faith that compare favorably in life and benevolence with those of other creeds.

WILLIAM H. VANDERBILT is not the richest man in the world; the colony of Victoria has a man who is worth $200,000,000, and his wealth is rapidly increasing. Only lucky man is a Lord Rupert's wood. By his father's will he fell heir to 2,500,000 merino sheep, 300,000 acres of freehold lands, besides a leasehold of crown lands in England of equal area. By care and thrift he has doubled his inheritance; making it considerably over $200,000,000. His residence in Melbourne is said to be the most magnificent in the world. It cost $4,000,000.

A POOR woman in Paris picked up a parcel which contained human flesh that some medical students had carried into the street as a sort of "practical joke." Discovering the nature of her "find," the woman was quite frightened, and sought to dispose of the slices of flesh by stuffing it down a grating. The police took her in custody, and but for the safe shelter of a prison the poor creature would have been lynched by the mob that, mob-like, refused to accept her explanation.

"Argument in the matter of the application by counsel for the Pennsylvania railroad to have the company's suit against the New Jersey Central upon the Long Branch railroad reopened must begin to an examiner for further testimony has been set down for the 20th inst., in the United States Circuit Court. Judge McKennan expects to hear the arguments

THE POLITICAL FIELD.

Following the Courses of the Various Candidates.

GOV. Cleveland Views his Native County—Mr. Blaine's Progress in New York State—A Democratic Ox-Gored Meeting.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 28.—Accepting the invitation of the Essex County Democratic club, tendered him some months ago, Gov. Cleveland, accompanied by Adjt. Gen. Farnsworth, left Albany at 9:20 yesterday morning. The Governor's party, in the neighborhood of 127, accompanied by the Albany city band, acks [as the governor's escort, and amid the hundreds of the multitude boarded the train to accompany him on his trip to his native county.

The train was not a special, and at every stopping place crowds had assembled to get a sight of Mr. Cleveland, and if possible to take him by the hand. All the way down he was kept busy replying to the greetings that met him at every station, and at Elizabeth the coming of the train was announced by the booming of cannon from the hill. There was a brief delay north of that city caused by the heating of one of the boxes of the cylinder heads, and when the train reached the depot Judge Westbrook and ex-Attorney General Schoonmaker were the first to take the governor by the hand.

Mayor Haynes, of Newark; Rufus Blodgett, with a delegation of the New Jersey Democratic association; Lieut. Colonel Hayes of the Randolph Light Guards, of Newark, and the McAvoy Light Guards, of Jersey City, who were to be the governor's guard of honor, were awaiting the arrival of the train at Newburg and its coming was announced by a salute of eleven guns from Washington's headquarters. The Democracy of Orange county were largely represented at the depot, and what with the enthusiasm, cheering and hand-shaking, the train moved southward at last about 10:30 o'clock. Then At Haverstraw another delegation awaited the governor's train. From that point until the arrival at Jersey City every town and hamlet was the scene of an outburst of enthusiastic Democrats to cheer their candidate.

At a few minutes after 4 o'clock a succession of cheers at the extremity of Pennsylvania railroad depot, in Jersey City, gave notice to the dense mass of humanity that had waited patiently within for over an hour to greet the Democratic presidential candidate, that the train bearing the governor and his friends had arrived. The cheers swelled into a deafening shout and were taken up by the crowds assembled in the streets leading to the depot as the Seventh regiment band, seventy strong, struck up "Hail to the Chief."

While the gentlemen of the reception committee sent by the citizens of Newark to meet the governor at Jersey City were boarding the train, Mr. Cleveland, standing on the arm of Gov. Abbett, stepped on the platform of his car, and his appearance was the signal for a deafening cheer. This was repeatedly and smiled continuously, and the excited throng surged about the car to grasp his hand. Finally the train drew out, and the gentlemen of the reception committee were presented to Mr. Cleveland by Gov. Abbett.

The space surrounding the depot here was black with people and cheer after cheer was heard from every throat. The governor acknowledged the salute of the multitude by repeatedly lifting his hat, and was driven to the palatial residence of Hon. Edward Balbach. The grounds about the place were illuminated with Chinese lanterns without number, that were suspended in festoons of festoons from trees and shrubbery. The night was already dark and cloudy, but the occasional rain ceased, and at 7:30 o'clock a brilliantly lighted canopy extended from the open door to the carriage way, and as the governor entered the house, the 10-year-old daughter of Mr. Balbach handed him a bouquet of flowers, and welcomed him in her childlike way to his native county. A reception of a short time was given Cleveland by a host of invited guests, including many ladies and luncheon was served. Among those present were Gen. Sandford Cox, Gen. Wm. J. Sewell, John P. Stockton, Rev. Dean Stainsberry, Senator McPherson, ex-Gov. Ludlow, Miles Ross, Andrew Albright and Chancellor Runyon. Last night a grand public reception in the city hall, where he received a procession of several thousands, in which about 1,000 retail city goods merchants from the up-town Democratic club, of New York city, and 500 members of the down-town wholesale merchants club participated. The latter were all uniformed and carried white lights in hand and carried light canes. The city was ablaze with rockets and red fire, and the demonstration has never been equalled in numbers.

MR. BLAINE'S JOURNEY.

Discussing the Tariff and the Solid South.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., Oct. 28.—From 9:30 to 10:30 Mr. Blaine received a large number of visitors at the residence of ex-Gov. Fenton, and at 11 a. m. he arrived in enormous parade of "Pinned Knights" in Brooklyn Square, where he subsequently addressed the crowd. His remarks were upon the question of protection and cost 40 minutes. At noon Mr. Blaine boarded his private car, the next stop being made at Randolph, where for five minutes he spoke from the rear platform to the large crowd in the town. Salamanca was reached at 1:20 p. m., and here Mr. Blaine made a ten minute address in the presence of 2,000 people. The morning of fifty cannons, the ringing of church bells and the shrieking of steam whistles soon what interfered with the candidate's progress.

ELMIRA, Oct. 28.—Mr. Blaine arrived here at 5 o'clock last evening. His reception was very enthusiastic. Delegations were present from all the neighboring towns, but the largest of the escort by a crowd estimated at 10,000. He was at once driven to the residence of Gen. Congdon, in front of which he made a brief speech. The procession then moved to Corning.

Democratic Address.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—The Democratic National committee have issued an address to the people, setting forth as follows: That the country is burdened with unnecessary taxes; that Mr. Blaine aided in the passage of laws for the speedy accumulation of the present surplus in the treasury; that he is responsible for the mischiefs the surplus has occasioned, and that he proposes to continue the evil system. The address further charges Mr. Blaine with personal knowledge of and responsibility for frauds and infamies at the head of the Navy and Interior departments, and concludes by saying that the manufacturers who met Friday night at the Fifth avenue hotel were but the agents of the Republican party managers, to stop work at their factories unless their workmen would support Mr. Blaine. The workmen are called upon to remember this on Nov. 4.

A Democratic Grady Meeting.

BUFFALO, Oct. 28.—Senator Thomas F. Grady spoke in the Music hall in presence of 5,000 people. Mr. Grady talked an hour and a half. He began by attacking the Republicans mildly and devoted the rest of his effort to attacking Cleveland's political record. He was loudly cheered. Gen. Sherman Rogers, of New York, followed him. When Blair began to talk [illegible] in the gallery shouted, "You're a humbug!" Blair replied to the people. Mr. Grady talked an hour and a half. He began by attacking the Republicans mildly and devoted the rest of his effort to attacking Cleveland's political record. He was loudly cheered. G. Blair, of New York, followed him. When Blair began to talk some one

THE WARRING ROADS.

An Appeal From a Decision of the Vice Chancellor Granted.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28.—The judges of the United States circuit court filed an opinion refusing the injunction asked for by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad company to compel the Pennsylvania railroad to restore the passenger, express and baggage cars of the former company over the New York division of the Pennsylvania road. The opinion was prepared by Judge Butler, who very fully goes over the contracts entered into between the two companies, and in says:

The suggestion that the court is simply asked to preserve the existing relations of the parties until final hearing is without force in view of the fact that those relations are the result of a contract, which provides for their termination at this time.

If the respondents will signify their willingness to accept and transport the complainants' cars between Philadelphia and New York, as provided by the contract, until and including the second of November next the motion for an injunction will be dismissed.

This was accepted by the Pennsylvania railroad.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—A break is expected at any moment in New York Central passenger rates, the management of that line being dissatisfied with the present status of affairs, but up to the present time it had not been announced. The West Shore continues to sell tickets at half former rates, and is satisfied with the business it is doing, its officers asserting that it is doing more than twice the amount it did previous to the break in rates.

The ticket scalpers are also aching for a change, the action of the West Shore having put them all at sea, as they are unable to do any local business worth speaking of.

Reductions have been announced on the West Shore to and from Poughkeepsie, and that fact may tend to force the Central to a further cut.

THE FIRE RECORD.

VINCENNES, Ind., Oct. 28.—A fire at Logansport, Ind., destroyed The Democrat newspaper office, the post office, six stores and three saloons. The loss is estimated at $300,000; insurance, $150,000.

LINDSEY, Ont., Oct. 28.—The Grand Trunk railway freight sheds and storehouses, together with seven loaded cars and a large quantity of grain and other merchandise, were destroyed by fire. The loss is about $90,000.

TORONTO, Oct. 28.—A fire in Farley & Co.'s fancy goods store, on King street, destroyed goods to the extent of $10,000.

BOSTON, Oct. 28.—The woolen shoddy manufactory of E. A. Hall, at Weston, has been burned, with its contents. The loss is unknown.

CUSHOCTON, O., Oct. 28.—The store and dwelling of C. Wolf, at Lock Seventeen, has been burned. The loss is $8,000. The fire is supposed to have been of incendiary origin.

Salvationists at War.

NEWBURG, N. Y., Oct. 28.—Capt. Thompson, the groom in the hallelujah wedding here recently, and who has renounced Major Moore and goes with the English Salvation army, spoke at meetings here in the opera house. He reflected strongly upon Moore's financial probity and management, and intimated that in the near future it will be thoroughly shown up. Moore had made a statement that Newburg has only paid about $75 to headquarters, and that the disbursements have been over $1,000. Officers connected with the army have said Newburg has contributed $3,500 or more. The army at Cornwall has disbanded. Capt. Johnson and Lieut. Dorsak made farewell addresses and will retire from work. The reason given for disbanding is that all are disgusted with Moore and his methods, and refuse longer to work under his orders.

Now for the Third Time.

ST. ALBANS, Vt., Oct. 28.—The steamer Maguam, on the way from Plattsburg to Maguam on the Vermont shore, Saturday night struck a rock in a part of Lake Champlain known as "The Gut," and had a large hole made in her. Capt. Hawley made all possible steam for Tobias dock on Grand Isle, and when the vessel reached there the water was up to the first deck. A number of passengers were on board, but knowledge of the nature of the disaster was kept from them till the dock was reached. The accident was due to the lights on the government buoys in "The Gut" being blown out. This is the second time the Maguam has been injured by rocks in that locality.

Indignant Citizens Hang a Negro.

GALVESTON, Tex., Oct. 28.—Jerry Rhoden, who lately cut his wife's throat, killing her with a bowie knife, and shot at those who captured at the east end of the island. He had become desperate from the hunger, and was in the act of breaking a dwelling to obtain food. A crowd gathered around the jail house and demanded that he had been wronged. Should there be great indignation against him, it does not seem probable that he will be lynched.

An Anti-Garrett Movement.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 28.—The Penny Press publishes a report that agents of the Pennsylvania Railroad company are in this city buying Baltimore and Ohio railroad stock, with a view to electing an anti-Garrett man president at the next annual meeting. The movement is said to have been on foot for nearly a year, and has been pushed vigorously since President Garrett's death.

Glass Manufacturers Responsent.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 28.—The manufacturers of window glass in this city say that their business is nearly prostrated. The most discouraging reports of the glass trade are coming from the west and northwest with no indication of improvement. Unless there is a decided turn favorable to better business in the near future, the factories will be closed on January 1, until stocks are lessened.

Only One Day Married.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Mrs. Alice S. Bangs has sued for a divorce from her husband, Frank G. Bangs, the noted actor. The reasons in the case are briefly as favorable. Mrs. Bangs is a daughter of Singer, the late sewing machine manufacturer. She was on the stage as Agnes Leopard before her marriage. Mr. Bangs lived with her only one day.

A Little Girl Suicide.

HUNTER'S POINT, L. I., Oct. 28.—Tillie Francis, the 13-year-old daughter of William J. Francis, of Springfield, who recently sued his aged father for damages for ruining his home, shot herself with a rifle. She will probably die. Her father's and mother's troubles unsettled her mind, it is supposed.

A Large Whale Catch Reported.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 28.—The bark Flostwing, the first of the Arctic whalers, arrived here last evening. She reports that 117 whales had been taken by the fleet up to September 20. This is considered a very large catch.

Fall River Mills Resume Work.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Oct. 28.—The mills, which closed last week, have started up again, but unless the cloth market improves another shut down of a week is probable.

A NEW PAVEMENT.
The undersigned has secured the exclusive agency for the sale of the
Diebold Patent Iron Stone,
which for elegance and durability, is unsurpassed, and in price will compare favorably with any other pavement now in use. It is the most harmless pavement known for mules and yards, gutter work, floor tiling and sewer inverts. A few used in Broad and Bergen, good results; and for building purposes generally. These pavement blocks have many striking peculiarities. They are so perceptible water as non-conductors; repel ice and snow, as well as all kinds of moisture. They are more accordance on the ordinary brick, the material remains perfectly free from rust. These blocks are 2½ to 3½ inches thick, and 6 to 9 inches square. Samples can be seen on exhibition at Wetmore, Emery Bates, opposite Skillman Music Hall, where further particulars call on or address

SELECTIONS FOR AN ALBUM.

The truly generous is the truly wise;
And he who loves not others lives unblest.
—[Horne.

Away then! work with boldness and with speed;
On greatest actions greatest dangers feed.
—[Marlowe.

Oh, how bitter a thing is it to look
Into happiness through another man's eyes.
—[Shakespeare.

Be purity of life the test—
Leave to the heart, to heaven, the rest.
—[Spurgeon.

'Tis beauty that doth make women proud,
'Tis virtue that doth make her most admired,
'Tis modesty that makes her seem divine.

Count that day lost whose low descending sun
Views from thy hand no worthy action done.

A sweet heart-lifting cheerfulness,
Like springtime of the year,
Seems ever on your steps to wait.
—[Mrs. Hale.

A friend is gold: if true he'll never leave thee;
Yet both without a touchstone may deceive one.
—[Randolph.

All who joy would win,
Must share it—happiness was born a twin.
—[Byron.

If happiness has not her seat and center in the breast,
We may hope in vain, or rich, or great, but never can be blessed.
—[Burns.

I would not waste my spring of youth
In idle dalliance; I would plant rich seeds
To blossom in my manhood, and bear fruit
When I am old.
—[Hillhouse.

That life is long which answers life's great end.
The time that bears no fruit, deserves no name.
The man of wisdom is the man of years.
—[Young.

Good actions crown themselves with lasting days;
Who deserves well, needs not another's praise.
—[Heath.

MAKING ACTORS.

The New Mill in New York Raging Work on Broncostic Goods.

[New York Sun.]

A hundred assorted people climbed to the three upper stories of 18 West Twenty-third street and plunged into the Lyceum School of Acting. Fragments of Shakespeare and society drama floated down the stairway. Eighty pupils who had passed the entrance examination were taking lessons. Mr. Max Freeman walked up and down the carpet impressively on one floor, while a class of amateurs studied the fine points of his gait and stage business. In his other room a charming little lady went through dramatic pantomimes for the benefit of other students, and still another room a professor tested the vocal capacities of a third section of pupils. In the afternoon all the pupils in a body waited up to the Comedy theatre and listened to a Vassar College lady, who lectured about the Theatre Francais method of acting.

Before the lessons began, Mr. Steele Mackaye's idea of making the young ladies and gentlemen, telling them that the best of them will be organized at the end of the year into a company which will represent the school in a series of matinees at the Lyceum theatre. He told them that they might appear under assumed names if they wanted to, but he hoped they would not.

All this time and long afterward a very active man, with a black beard and bright black eyes, nearly talked himself to death in the office answering the flood of questions that stage-struck young women kept asking him about the school, about acting, about the chances of their being able to act, about the possibility of their being worth seeing if they did, about the possibility of their getting their money back if they didn't feel satisfied with a term at the school, and other miscellaneous things. A very old gentleman had descended from carriages at the door, and two matinees completed the active man's perplexity very nearly in despair. He said if the school would guarantee to make pulpit orators of them. By 4:30 o'clock the man was hardly able to talk, and his name was MacConaby or not.

"We'll have to shut down on this," he said, "or else we'll get so much to do that it will swamp us altogether. Women just pour in here. The instruction of females seems to be no obstacle to their ambition. They are very erratic in their notions. To-day one fat woman, with wide cross-eyed, wanted to know if she couldn't make a leading lady. Another, who had no voice at all, wanted to become a tragedienne.

"What can be done the school proposes to do. We propose to take good amateurs and make actors of them, and make better actors of people who are already professionals. It's a big job, but we think that, after our rigid examination, our eight months' course of training will be of great benefit to them. We make any kind of actors—tragedians, comedians, soubrettes, or anything else. When they are ready managers can come here and pick out what they want when they run short of material."

"Do you expect to make any great actors?"

"Some good actors, not stars. This is a sort of factory, and all its proprietors guarantee is that it will turn out good goods. We find out the ambitious strangers before, already, and we will get rid in the same inoffensive way of all the stage-struck but worthless material that will be forthcoming between now and June. We don't mean long in suspense."

A Frank Confession.

[Chicago Tribune.]

"I do not wish to marry a man," said a young girl, "who has not the means to support me in the way I have been accustomed to live."

This remark was made in mixed company. Every one was breathless with the audacity of the confession.

"Sensible woman," I murmured, under my breath.

"Mercenary thing," said my wife, who certainly had not understood.

And yet this is what every girl thinks; only it is not what every girl dares to say.

Not a Bit Afraid.

[Burlington Hawkeye.]

Why, a large minded, capable man is never afraid that his wife will rule him. It is the little soulded, do-less, nerveless individual, who knows in his very heart that he ought to have some one to control him and keep him in order, who is always afraid of being bossed by a woman.

Playing with Fire.

"I like playing with fire," said a young girl, "it is exciting."

"Yes, my dear, and fire likes to play with you."

Buffalo Express: Conflagrations there are in plenty, with holocausts, and to spare; but the plain, old-fashioned fire seems to have had its day.

ADVERTISING.

History of the Art in All Ages of the World.

Tablets from Pompeii — Newspaper Advertising in the Seventeenth Century—Perspective of New York — Rock Painting.

[Philadelphia Times.]

Advertising is very old, as witness the scheme of Pompeii for the stencil tablets with lists of goods and recommendations to customers. The latter were known by the sign of a wheel and hoop, with a milestone on it. A scheme underlying a question was also the notice of a school. These advertisements were on stone, in slab relievo, or in terra cotta, and usually set on pillars beside the shop. Very special advertisements were on tablets set in the wall. In Rome the physician had a cupping glass at his door, the poultry seller a cage of fowls, and other trades sometimes symbolical emblems of their calling, some of which were very ingenious. A fashionable perfumer had a tablet beside his door with alto relievo figures of four men carrying vases, such as were used for sweet waters.

In all ages people seemed to have needed a reminder of their wants, and the advertisement enabled the busy or the lazy to supply them without extra trouble. The tavern-keeper usually displayed a "bush"—as their sign. We find no mention of the peripatetic advertisements which now greet our eyes on street corners, in various outre and ridiculous garbs, but perhaps they may have had their origin from antiquity and the peripatetic philosophers, who studied and discussed their learned theories while perpetually perambulating the walks of the gymnasium. Later on in the middle ages in old London and continental cities, the advertisement signs on shops were very curious and suggestive and have kept pace with the times. Occasionally in an out-of-the-way street you stumble on a curious old sign, a marvel of paint and ingenious of conception. The apothecaries' signs were often very intricate and the fortune-tellers had cabalistic hieroglyphics over their doors.

When newspapers had first printed in the seventeenth century the tradesmen found them a very convenient vehicle for their advertising, but as the space was limited, they were usually brief and to the point. We read, for instance, "That excellent drink called by the Chinaans Teha, by the nation Tee or Tay," is sold at such a place; in another, "Excellent lozenges or pectorals sold by Mr. Jeremiah Gruse." Then quaint notices of destitute boys to make the teeth ivory with the use of sage and salic syrup.

In our country advertising is carried to a height perhaps unequaled anywhere else, and the peripatetics in New York and other cities are a study for the idler. On a wet day these philosophers present a sorry appearance, and when the thermometer is below zero or up in the nineties they are objects for compassion. Sometimes merely two bill-boards ornament the fore and aft of the walking advertisement, sometimes he is accoutred in the strictest style of the day, he is fired to display—a nobby hat or a pair of patent garters fitted on a well-developed and shapely leg. Some time ago, when hoops were in vogue, we daily saw with a solemn individual encircled by a naked frame of steel ribs.

Two stalwart negroes, dressed in fashionable fit-out, displayed on immense stand-up collars, and "shoddy soap." Scarlet umbrellas, shirt fronts framed, casts of feet with ugly corns, are carried around by these unfortunates, who, we guess will "rue" ere to be seen on the thoroughfares. There are peal little vans and canaly wagons with bells and all sorts of designs to attract attention. The new invention of the flood of gloomy-looking beings, often in sleet and storm, with "Two Orphans" sandwiching them. Transparencies which exchange perpetually and exhibit different designs at night in the evening in the streets and startle the beholder with strange varieties. American advertising said to have originated in a beauty found nowhere else, also the sign painter's ubiquitous and incorri-ible in spite of artizan groans against his vandalism. All over the country in most picturesque nooks and corners his pathway by "Liver Pills," "Stove Polish," "Agua Pads," "Clothing Company" and other detestable disfigurements, where you hope to find "a view to the left," "the woods" or on the "rocky shore." A sign painter said with a grin: "I guess I have desecrated as you call it more nature than any man in the country; but what do I care! To my mind pretty lettering is an ornament to an ugly rock."

A young sign painter out of work originated the idea of painting advertisements on rocks. In 1855 he printed his name and occupation on the rocks in Harlem, N.Y. This caught the eye of a sharp Yankee, who employed him to advertise their business in the same manner. He traveled over the country to rocky prospects, and in this style progressed every where as far as the Pacific coast. He met with one competitor and imitator, but they fraternized and became partners. Traveling at that time was a thing of the past, so these destroyers of the beautiful deserve credit for perseverance. "We traveled over 1,000,000 miles, painted 90,000 signs, and yet I am one of those few who have left at the same time showing how much paint they consumed by figure—also their profits.

Forty years ago the shop windows in Europe said that the shop windows of Philadelphia were by far the most elegant in America and often reminded him of Paris. This has been true for a long time, and our shop windows have kept up their character and vie with their foreign rivals. Advertisement cards with all sorts of designs are now printed on the backs of envelopes. A story is told of a gentleman who became tired of his country-seat and put it in the hands of an agent to advertise. His painted a description of it in such glowing colors that the owner refused to part with it, saying he did not know its value till then! Signs first appear in Pompeii, who knows but our shop windows have kept up their character and vie with their foreign rivals. The Doctor.

[New York World.]

"Do you think his disease incurable, doctor?"

"He is a poor man, isn't he?"

"Hasn't got a dollar."

"Yes; medicine won't do him any good now."

"He has a rich uncle who has agreed to pay all expenses of his illness."

"Excuse me, if you please," interrupted the physician, waving his hand. "Never mind about his rich uncle. As I was saying when you interrupted me, I don't think medicine will do him any good, but I never give up a patient until he is dead."

Novel Paper Weights.

Berlin iron bugs, beetles and grasshoppers and useful looking dragons, are the latest fads to keep letters or papers from flying off the table. At least a couple, they do not amount to much, but they are so admirably modeled it is impossible to resist their fascination if one has a taste for curious nets.

The tattoos first are 10 spots
Upon the contestants' other places;
They rise above the kneeling faces
And front us with unflinching faces!
The lusty time of all the year
In effect working more or fewing!
The summer's sanctified boon
The bright October days are going!

Their fabric fades along the sky
Reeve's every frame is shaking splendor,
And where the sunshine lies asleep
On leaves with yellow shadow tender.
Into Golden vintage lies.

The last and richest wine is flowing!
And with the draught is brimming up
The bright autumnal days are going.

And in his royal robe and crown
The year awaits the spoiler lasting;
And scorn will lay his glory down
Before the foe whose touch is blasting.
Too few the golden days, alas!
So much with them in outward flowing;
They take the sunshine as they pass—
These bright October days are going.

A Sermon Spoiled.

[New York Sun.]

"What seems to be the matter?" he asked, mildly, as they were returning from church; "didn't you enjoy the sermon?"

"Enjoy the sermon!" she repeated, shortly, "and that odious Mrs. Smith sitting directly in front of me with a new fall wrap on that never cost a cent less than FIVE. You must think I have a very warm religious temperament."

The Horse, and How to Ride Him.

[London Punch.]

FIRST POSITION. THE MANE IDEA.

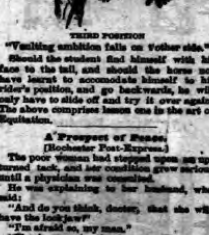
The first object of every equestrian is much the same as everybody else's in life, "How to get on."

And to "get on" you must be in the best possible position. Supposing the horse quite still, let the equestrian student place himself on the left side of the horse, facing the tail, and with his back towards the horse's head.

To begin with, catch hold of the mane. This is the leading or mane idea. As a rule a mane is objectionable; the less there is of it the better for appearance, though not for use.

SECOND POSITION. "EXCELSIOR."

In the second position, the middle-aged student is represented as engaged in a noble struggle for self-culture. With one vigorous spring he finds himself in the third position, and only a long gymnastic practice will enable him to bring himself quickly round, and take the proper position. The student should arrive with his face to the tail, let him be thoroughly satisfied with his first lesson. But it must be thoroughly understood that no horse provided for the student must be perfectly quiet throughout this mounting drill.



THIRD POSITION

"Vaulting ambition fails on t'other side."

Should the student find himself with his face to the tail, and his heels in his mane, he will have learnt to accomodate himself to his rider's position, and go backwards, he will only have to slide off and try it over again. The above comprises lesson one in the art of Equitation.

A Prospect of Peace.

[Rochester Post-Express.]

The poor woman had stepped upon an upturned tack, and her corns on the crown grew serious until a physician was consulted.

He was explaining to her husband, who said:

"And do you think, doctor, that she will have the lock-jaw?"

"I'm afraid so, my man."

"Thank you, sir; thank you. These are the first encouraging words I've had."

Lots of Fun in this World.

[New York Sun.]

Wife—I noticed a statement to the effect that in this city every year $80,000,000 are spent for liquor, but only $7,000,000 for religion. That's significant.

Husband—Significant of what?

Wife—That you men are having a pleasanter time in this world than you will in the next.

Mortuary Advocate: Whisky is said to be good for the bite of a rattlesnake, but what is a poor fellow going to do who can't afford to keep a rattlesnake?

Pittsburg Commercial-Gazette: "Is life worth living?" was the interesting topic discussed in one of our churches last evening, and the question recalls the witty but truthful answer, "It depends on the liver."

Lowell Citizen: Ellen Terry, the actress, has had four husbands, and it is a pleasing tribute to her gentleness of disposition to note that they are still alive.

CHRONOLOGICAL EVENTS.

John Leach died in 1864.

JOSTINGS.

—It is hoped that the Democrats will counter march this evening.

—The Fair for the benefit of St. Joseph's Church commences this evening lasting four days.

—The Democrats have issued hand-bills requesting a general illumination this evening.

—A new Democratic Company has been formed who have themselves the dynamiters. They will make their first appearance this evening.

—The Republican parade of local clubs announced to take place last evening was postponed on account of the rain until Monday evening.

—The Vonseller Guards will entertain the Centennial Legion and the Jefferson Club of Elizabeth, in Custer's Hall after the parade this evening.

—The Democrats will have to change their line of march from Central to Madison avenue as they cannot pass the house that stands in the middle of the street.

—The pin cushion which was drawn for at St. Mary's Fair last evening was awarded to Mr. P. A. Bachman, a handsome, table cloth was won by Miss Dougherty.

—Mr. J. F. Libby of this city has now in his possession a remarkably striking crayon portrait of the poet Henry W. Longfellow, executed by himself from a photograph.

—This week's issue of Frank Leslie's illustrated paper has a full page picture of the Belva Lockwood Club of Rahway, which took part in the late Republican parade in this city.

—There are rumors of a split in the Democratic party in this city, in consequence of which one prominent club has refused to parade, owing to a fa cted slight. The matter may be adjusted however, before the parade takes place.

—The Reading Railroad Company will on November 1 increase their fares to the old form rate of three cents per mile. This change will make a trifling reduction from existing rates. Between some stations the reduction is only one cent.

—The improvements in the basement of Plainfield Reform Club Hall is progressing. All the colonies and supports will be in tomorrow and the audience room again opened to public to-morrow evening for the anniversary of the W. C. T. U.

—The children's carnival at the Oxford Roller Skating Rink on Saturday afternoon was highly successful, there being a number of skaters in fancy dress. The rink was tastefully trimmed for the occasion with horse-shoes and other emblems.

—Official advertisements announced that the final day for registry would be Thursday, Oct. 28th. The 28th was Tuesday. The official announcements should have been Oct. 30th; to-morrow, when those who have not already registered may do so.

—The Plainfield Evening News is giving its readers two weeks. One of the latest is: "Where did Cain get his wife?" and all the ladies of Plainfield are trying to solve the problem. This is one way of getting people to study Bible history.—New Brunswick Home News.

—The progress being made by students at the Plainfield Art School is regarded by those competent to judge as simply wonderful. Exhibitions of first attempts are being placed in the windows of the various drug stores, one now being at Dr. Shaw's—and seem incredible. All who know Mr. Johnson will be pleased to learn of the great success of his school and will feel, that it is well deserved after witnessing specimens of work by his pupils.

—Isaac L. Melbourn, of this city, has started the making of some two millions of brick, at his kiln, in North Plainfield, near the mountain. This is the largest quantity, it is stated, ever began at one time in this locality. Mr. Melbourn has recently come into possession of this kiln and proposes to make it another one of the important industries hereabouts. Yesterday morning a balloon fell in the kiln, supposed to have been sent up from Newark, at the Cleveland parade, the evening before.

—People from Elizabeth, Somerville and intermediate stations, quick to appreciate the rare treat offered by the Music Hall Directors in the great Janish engagement, for to-morrow evening, have already secured seats. Citizens of Plainfield who do not care to repeat the experience of the hundreds who were obliged to stand during the Hazel Kirke performance, will do well to select seats at the drug stores at once. No extra chairs will be allowed in any part of the auditorium.

Democratic Parade.

Judge P. P. Good of this city is the Prohibition candidate for State Senator.

Robert D. Gibby, the City Solicitor of the Rahway Advocate, (Republican) who was recently nominated for Assembly, first District, and who has a sister residing in North Plainfield, is a brother to the Mayor of Princeton.

Clemence S. Lozier, M.D., the candidate for Vice President, on the Belva Lockwood ticket, is said to have been born in this city, and to be a woman of wonderful ability, with a fine practice in New York city. She is also said to be the Dean of the Women's Medical College of that city.

Mr. John Walker of Park avenue, who was mentally and physically prostrated last Summer from over work, so that it was necessary to have him removed to the Morristown Asylum, and from which after gaining health of body and mind as the result of a needed rest and proper treatment, he started for Europe to visit relatives and friends in Scotland, is expected home next week, fully recovered. He was to have taken passage on a State line steamer to-day. His wife has been managing his business during his absence.

Important to Voters.

In view of a recent occurrence in the Third Ward, New Brunswick, where the Registry Mr. A. Netherwood's name, he having recently moved into the ward, it will interest election officers to know that a decision has just been given regarding such matters.

Chief U. S. Supervisor Rowe, of Trenton, has had a complaint entered with him that the State election officers in several cases refused to register a citizen who has moved from one ward or district to another, unless the citizen produced a certificate from the election Board of the district from which he has removed that his name was erased. Mr. Rowe has decided that the Election Board's duty is to register any citizen who can satisfy it that he is a resident of their election precinct, and that a certificate from the other precinct is not necessary.

More about Janish.

In the highest niche in the temple of historic fame in Europe is placed the name of Antoinette Janish. At present this artiste is quietly enjoying a short vacation in Philadelphia prior to her appearance there on Nov. 3d, for two weeks. The Philadelphia press are loud—y with gossip about the distinguished actress. But prior to her Philadelphia debut, Janish has been induced by her enterprising manager, H. J. Sargent of Plainfield, to give one of her grand impersonations to his fellow townsmen, and our people will have an opportunity of seeing the consummate artiste in her first performances in America of her famous role of Lorie, in the comedy drama of Leonore.

That Cow Case Again.

City Judge Good this morning decided the "cow case" against the city, stating as the ground of his decision that Bergen (who was taking the cows to the pound when the defendants stopped him) was erred to the animals. This, in the opinion of the Judge, settled the case; but as in the opinion of the Corporation Counsel, it has nothing to do with the case, notice of appeal was given. The City Judge said he hoped an appeal would be taken, as the question is a nice one upon which he had expended much thought.

The Grand Democratic Parade.

The line of march for the Democratic parade to take place this evening has been arranged as follows:

Line to form on Park avenue, right resting on Craig Place, and proceed as follows: Somerset to Linden avenue, to Grove, to Front to Richmond, to Fifth, to Sycamore street, to Sixth, to Peace, to Broadway, to Ninth, to Park avenue, Crescent to avenue, to Seventh, to Liberty, to Front, to to Central avenue, to Fifth, to Park avenue, to Front and dismiss.

Steiner-Martin.

This afternoon, at half-past one o'clock, Mr. Charles Steiner and Miss Theodosia Martin, both of North Plainfield, were united in wedlock, at the Park Avenue Church by the Rev. Dr. Lowrie, and were to have started thereafter to Philadelphia on a wedding trip. They appeared as happy as birds in Spring.

State Items.

Frank Patterson, the theatrical manager, of Asbury Park, was arraigned at Freehold recently before Jus.ice Applegate. Walling and Bennett upon indictments charging him with having passed like indictments to the notes aggregating $26,000. There were 34 indictments against him. He entered a plea of not guilty in each case and was released on giving bonds for $10,000. His first trial will begin on November 17.

William and Thomas Hague, brothers, went on a duck shooting ex pedition to bay on Sunday afternoon, with a young companion named Johnson. As they came bay sighted a flock of birds. William lay down in the boat to take aim. Just then the boat lurched and both barrels of the shotgun in the hands of Thomas Hague were discharged in the stern of the boat, were unexpectedly discharged. The charges struck William in the groin and abdomen, inflicting frightful wounds, and he died the same evening. Before his death he said he was wounded accidentally.

The heavy rain storm on Wednesday night helped to extinguish the forest fires which have been so ragi g in West Jersey and in South Jersey. Yesterday morning the flames could be seen burning around Winslow, but the tarnado and rain had put them in a very short time under control. The loss, as a rough estimate, will amount to nearly $50,000. The Atlantic Cranberry Company, near Elwood, loses $15,000, and the Weymouth Cranberry Company $5,000. The aggregate loss at Weymouth is $9,000. Haines' cranberry bog was damaged to the amount of $6,000 and Elias Rossell's $5,000. The fire in Imlay's swamp has caused a loss of $5,000 damage.

Six young ruffians named Michael Hagan, Edward Tierney, Frank Bourke, James Malley, Thomas Gibbons and Peter Gallagher attacked David Middleton, a teamster, in the southern part of Paterson yesterday, and knocked Policeman Keyes down when he came to his assistance, beating him with stones they had in their hands. On being then retreated to the home of Mrs. Bourke, the mother of one of them, where they were followed by police. men, and a fierce battle took place in the dark. Policeman Keyes was badly injured while attempting to arrest Murphy, and would probably have been killed but for the arrival of Policeman Guilford, who had to club Murphy to insensibility before he would surrender. Reinforcements of citizens were assaulted by the gang during the evening, lamps and other property destroyed, and for a while the city was in a terrible uproar. The whole lot are now in jail and the town breathes easier.

George McVeatey, of No. 470 Second street, was held up in the First Precinct Police station in Jersey City last night on a charge of murder. On Sunday afternoon he informed the police that his wife, Mary, had used kerosene in starting a fire, and that the oil had overflowed the stove and her clothes had caught fire. The woman was removed to the hospital where she died yesterday morning. His statement was denied and it was learned that Mrs. McVeaty had told a neighbor that her husband had deliberately poured the oil over her clothes and before she could comprehend what he was doing had set fire to her clothing. The prisoner is an ale-wife and quarrelled frequently with his wife, because she would not divide the earnings of her two sons with him. He is 39 years old. His wife was two years his junior. His daughter Rose entered the complaint of murder against him.

The new Alumni hall of Seton Hall college, South Orange, is finished. It is 70 feet long, 40 feet wide, and 75 feet high. The lower story contains two reading rooms and billiard room. The second story furnishes a spacious hall, provided with a stage to serve as a literary, musical and dramatic entertainments. This hall will also be used for meetings of the Alumni association, and when not in use for these purposes will serve as indoor gymnasium. A gymnastic apparatus has yet to be provided. The Very Rev. James A. Corrigan, president of the college, has subscribed $14,325, of which $5,427.91 remains to be paid. The Alumni of the college are also giving to aid in paying off the debt. The new hall will be opened with appropriate ceremonies on November 5 at 3 p. m.

Latest Novelties.

Fancy feathers are not worn at the moment, but the milliners all say there will be a return to ostrich tips and plumes at the sea on advances.

Children's dresses when made of silk are generally of the new silk serge brought out especially for them. This silk is soft, supple and rich and is made in charming shot colors.

Dolman vi'es of all lengths are the leading wraps now worn. Some reach just to the waist line or only a few inches below it, others fall to the bottom of the skirt, and others are of very much longer length.

Embroidery and brocha resembling embroidery, and tufted colored wool flowers figures birds, dots, squares, diamonds, crescents and other designs are thrown up in cut relief on solid grounds are among the striking wool novelties of the season.

Among other novelties for boys' wear are suits of wool with deep collars and belts of yellow alligator leather. Sometimes the leather collar and belt are made of plaid Scotch satin back linen or rough linen weave, or dark blue and green tartan plaids.

At a reception last week where there was an exhibition of new bodies, were seen of pale pink and pearl shades producing a opaline effect. The loose worn with this dress and shown as a garniture of lace, were of pink tulle ground with white Chantilly flowers. The corsage bouquet was of pink roses, and the dress trimmed with pale pink snake petals. Plats of pale pink and pearl willie ribbon were lavishly mingled with the lace.

News About Town.

It is the current report about town that Kemp's Saloon for the throat and lungs is making some wonderful cures, while people who are troubled with coughs, asthma, bronchitis and consumption, call and see. WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1884.

AT THE DOOR.

I thought myself indeed secure—
So fast the doors, so firm the lock—
But lo! he toddling comes to lure
My parent ear with a timorous knock.
My heart unsteels, would I were stronger!
The sweetest of my baby's plea—
That timorous baby knocking, and
Calling me innocently "Me!"

I threw aside th' unfinished book,
Regardless of its tempting charms,
And opening wide the door, I took
My laughing darling in my arms.

Who knows but in eternity
I, like a truant child, shall wait
The glories of a life to be,
Beyond Heavenly Father's gate!
And will that Heavenly Father heed
The truant's supplicating cry,
As at the outer door I plead?
"Tis I, O, Father! only I!"

DR. HAMMOND ON LUNACY.

Society in Need of Protection from Cranks.

[New York Commercial-Advertiser.]

"Simply and plainly, what is the responsibility of a lunatic?"

"There you ask two questions that start from a common apex and branch into a wide angle. I will answer the first. Given a man of unsound mind, one of the rational lunatics, for instance, who goes through the world mistaken for a sane man. He has delusions; he imagines that a person is about to commit, or has committed, a serious offense against him—perhaps that he intends to take his life—and while suffering from the delusion he kills the person. Now, morally, that lunatic is irresponsible. Legally, he should be held responsible. Why? Because he should be thought to have had up in an insane asylum for criminals for the remainder of his natural life, or he should be executed.

"In Europe the insane once having transgressed the laws are immured for life. Here, according to old laws, a man may, during an insane fit, kill a whole family, and as soon as the physician in charge of the hospital pronounces him cured he is discharged, and the supreme authority of the state or federal government cannot put an office hold him. He goes forth certified to as a convalescent lunatic, with an indulgence to kill with immunity. I have here in this note-book the facts connected with the five degrees of crime in this country and in Europe where men who have been allowed their freedom on the ground of insanity after taking human life have again committed the same crime.

"Do you think that a prospect of being hanged would prove as deterring to a man I mean as a sane man?"

"To be sure. Insane persons are governed by the presence of impending punishment even more readily than sane persons. Only the former must be made to realize the certainty of consequence, and even then may be restrained to a certain extent. If a lunatic in an asylum spreads his butter on the table-cloth, and you take him, as my friend, if you do that again you shan't have any butter,' or 'You shall be placed in the dark cell,' and he won't do it again. It is dangerous to some person is of no use to himself or to the community. While he is not morally responsible, he should be put out of the way. He should either be executed, or, what is better, imprisoned for life, and allowed to go out of his prison no more while life remains in his body. Is it cruel? So is the man who slays the household dog because the dog goes mad. He is not responsible for his madness. Why kill him? Because by his death society is served. Society knows no law but necessity. It looks for the greatest good for the greatest number. Once a member of society becomes dangerous, society has a right to put him out of the way, regard not the moral sense of some of the counties. Justice is not the meting out of exact measure to the accused, but the striking of such punishment as may not only deter others, but rid the community of the transgressor."

IN THE SAME CITY.

Both Candidates in New York the Same Day.

Gov. Cleveland Reviews a Military Parade and is There Stoned—Mr. Blaine Spends a Quiet Evening—His Banquet.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Gov. Cleveland was up early and after breakfast and the transaction of some private business was besieged with callers. Among them were Senator Wm. H. Barnum, Senator McPherson, of New Jersey, Congressman Amos J. Cummings, Senator Michael C. Murphy and Senator Pinkitt. The governor in speaking about his reception in Newark said he was overjoyed at it.

At 2:30 P. M. the governor left the Hoffman house in an open barouche drawn by four white horses to review the parade of the first and second divisions of the national guard. The governor, with his staff, were driven to Fifth avenue and Sixtieth street which was the upper end of the line, the right being formed at Fifth avenue and Thirty-eighth street. It was not until 3:30 that the line was completed, and by that time the governor and his guards of the immense crowds that had assembled all along the line, inspected the two divisions.

The governor was then driven down Fifth avenue to the reviewing stand at the North monument at Madison square. The entrance of the governor to the grand stand was the signal for a tremendous outburst of cheers from the multitudes that had assembled on the sidewalks and in all the streets in the vicinity of the stand. Punctually at four o'clock when the governor, surrounded by his staff, took up his position on the extreme right of the stand, and fifteen minutes later the Twenty-second regiment, which had the right of the line, passed in review. Then followed the Eleventh, Ninth, Twelfth and Seventh regiments, protected from the rain by heavy overcoats. Their marching, however, despite the condition of the streets and the burden of their overcoats was excellent.

Gen. Hancock's staff, from the window of his rooms at the Fifth Avenue hotel, opposite the reviewing stand.

After the review Gov. Cleveland, with his staff, soldiers and commanders of the various regiments, was driven to Delmonico's, where he was entertained at dinner by Gen. Shaler.

Gov. Cleveland, accompanied by Private Secretary Lamont and Adjutant General Farnsworth, entered a carriage at the Hoffman house at 6 o'clock, and was driven to the Grand Central depot, where he took the 9 o'clock train for Albany.

The Blaine Banquet.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Great preparations have been made for the banquet to be given to Mr. Blaine to-night at Delmonico's. It will be a social affair. About 200 invitations have been issued. No reporter will be admitted except those of The Tribune and Associated Press. There will be only two speeches, one by Mr. Evarts—a short address of welcome—and the other a reply by Mr. Blaine himself. There may be other addresses, but not likely. Mr. Depew is a great many orators present. The following prominent gentlemen will be seated at the table with Mr. Blaine from Pennsylvania: ex-Gov. Cornell, of New York; Minister L. P. Morton, Senator Eugene Hale, John Jacob Astor, William Evarts, Elihu Root, Chauncey M. Depew, Judge Noah Davis, William Walter Phelps, Judge Addison Brown.

Mr. Blaine in New York.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Mr. Blaine arrived at Jersey City shortly after 2 o'clock. He was accompanied by Gen. Benjamin Harrison, Postmaster Manly, of Augusta, and Senator Warner Miller. They were met at the depot by Messrs. Wessels, Depew and the Republican state committee and J. J. O'Brien and Barney Biglin. The party entered carriages and crossed to this city by the Pavonia ferry, going to the Fifth Avenue hotel at 7:30. Mr. Blaine and his son immediately went to their rooms, where they received but a few intimate friends during the evening.

The Joy-Bee-her Difference.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—In reply to Mr. Jas. F. Joy's letter charging Rev. Henry Ward Beecher with misstatement of facts in repeating an alleged after-dinner conversation with Mr. Blaine's official honor, Mr. Beecher gives to the press a letter in which he reiterates his original statements and claims that the conversation took place before other witnesses. He defends himself from the charge of having violated confidence by saying he was forced into this controversy and dropped the title of Joy's injudicious friend Gen. R. A. Alger, who made "a garbled statement."

Gov. Waller Addresses a Meeting.

HARTFORD, Ct., Oct. 29.—Gov. Waller delivered an address in the opera house before a very large audience, filling the entire space of the house and crowding the stage and windows. He was very enthusiastically received, and his address, which was a clear, concise presentation of the issues of the campaign, was frequently applauded. The audience was one of the most enthusiastic of the campaign.

To Save Hamilton's Neck.

BATAVIA, Oct. 29.—The sensational murder trial of Hamilton, of Jamestown, N. Y., for the murder of Mamie Thorpe, was resumed, the court being expected to submit the case to the jury to-day. It is understood that ex-Gov. Wyatt Allen, for the defense, taking the ground that it was preposterous to ask for a verdict of murder in the first degree, has said that because the defendant is insane and that he made without justification in other cases, it was wrong if the defendant should be made to suffer the extreme punishment.

The jury found a verdict of manslaughter, the highest penalty attached to which is ten years in the penitentiary. Sentence will not be passed for a few days. It is the general belief that a verdict of murder in the first degree would be given. The prisoner heard the verdict without any visible emotion.

The Switch Was Left Open.

BALMAR, Ill., Oct. 29.—A New orleans train conveying uniformed clubs back here from a political meeting at Shelbyville was side tracked at Sterling junction to let the Bullville express pass. By some means the switch was left open, and the rapidly-approaching express was disobeyed. The engineer was reversed and the brakes pulled. Engineer Newton Servent was fatally injured and Fireman L. Cassel was slightly hurt. The passengers were badly shaken up.

The Work of Post Office Inspectors.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—The annual report of Chief Post Office Inspector Stuart shows that during the last fiscal year there were 192 arrests of which number 98 were postoffice clerks, 36 of mail carriers, 18 of postmasters, 15 letter carriers, 8 railway postal clerks, 2 mail carriers and 15 burglars. Of those convicted 139 were convicted and 53 acquitted. The aggregate of fines and penalties collected aggregated $26,297.

THE SCOTT LIQUOR LAW.

Supreme Court Decides Against the Validity of the Measure.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 29.—The decision of the supreme court that the Scott law is unconstitutional, will hardly affect all the counties in the state, as during the year over one hundred have voted that the law was unconstitutional and would bring into the treasuries of counties and cities a considerable amount of money. The Cincinnati receipts, between $45,000 and $50,000 were realized from the tax last year, and some of the amount has been paid this year. The great question of municipal and county authorities is, how they will secure immediate relief from the embarrassing situation, the legislature not being in session to grant immediate relief.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 29.—The announcement in Cincinnati that the Scott law had been declared unconstitutional created considerable interest and commotion. Thos. Dongall, attorney for Hamilton county, in the Scott suits, says: "Politically it must prove disastrous to the Democratic party. The decision reaches the person of the people everywhere who are by it compelled to pay over again their taxes. There are none more interested in the repeal of the law, the Germans since the effect of it has been experienced. It is an unfortunate decision for everybody; but I do not propose to criticise it in any times. It has been made by our court of highest resort, whose decisions we are bound to respect."

Gov. Hoadly (Dem.) said: "I never thought the law constitutional. I never believed it was so. I believe and advocate that the liquor business should be taxed. Now if in no way a constitutional amendment to that effect."

Gov. Hickenlooper (Rep.) says: "This decision is incorrect in principle, unjust and an instance of taxation, compelling us to borrow $1,500,000."

"It will give the state to the Republicans for next year," said Hon. A. Shank, who thinks the law a just one.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—A Columbus, O., dispatch says that the decision against the constitutionality of the Scott law was rendered by three Democratic judges, two Republican judges dissenting. The dispatch further says: "The decision from the bench will affect the November election greatly, as the liquor men who may go back to the Democrats will be offset by Democratic taxpayers not in the liquor business."

GLADSTONE ON HIS METTLE.

The Premier Defends the Actions of Bart Spencer.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—This has been another lively field day in the house of commons. The debate on the Irish demand for an inquiry as to the Maamtrasna murder trials was resumed, and was proven how full of exciting than it was when Mr. Parnell made his savage attack on the government. The event of the evening was a long and well considered speech by Mr. Gladstone, which occupied nearly an hour. The premier spoke without notes, but deliberately and in a plain, strong, argumentative style. As a matter of fact the crown was powerless to grant a sworn inquiry on unsworn testimony. He admitted that a great mass of testimony bearing on the case had been received and considered by those enthusiasts who were agitating the question. The county of Connemara had been scoured for revolutionary evidence and opinions by all the agents of the country side. In the opinion of many of those good people there had been a sad miscarriage of justice. The government had not, after all, their judgment, their beliefs and their opinions could not be taken to equal the sworn evidence of the trial. Mr. Gladstone then referred to Mr. Parnell's statement there were loud groans from the Home Rulers, and cries of "Not in Ireland." Mr. Gladstone did not head the interruption, but went on to say that Mr. Parnell's statement was the result of the Republican state committee and J. J. O'Brien and Barney Biglin. The party entered carriages and crossed to this city by the Pavonia ferry, going to the Fifth Avenue hotel at 7:30. Mr. Blaine and his son immediately went to their rooms, where they received but a few intimate friends during the evening.

DEPRIVED OF LIBERTY.

Some Revelations in Connection with a Famous Insane Asylum.

The Nephew of a Scotch Earl Incarcerated—Proceedings Declared True by Carefully Sane and Responsible.

BROOKLYN, Oct. 29.—Judge Bartlett in the supreme court granted a writ of habeas corpus in the application of W. H. Leonard for the release of Charles E. Richards, confined in Dr. J. W. Barstow's private asylum for the insane, at Flatbush, in this city. In his petition Mr. Leonard says that Mr. Richards is restrained from his liberty and was committed without process. The writ was made returnable at Hero 1 at 10 A. M. Mr. Leonard is the lawyer who secured the release of Mrs. Wiley who was confined in the same asylum, and through whose influence Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher was released. Mr. Leonard says that Mr. Richards, who is known as Sandford ball.

The case of Charles E. Richards is one of special interest. He is a handsome man of between thirty-five and forty years of age, over six feet tall, with sandy mustache and beard. He has been in the asylum since 1874, and although he is claimed that he is perfectly sane he has been kept in solitary confinement. He comes from one of the oldest and most aristocratic families in Philadelphia. His father was Benjamin W. Richards, who was mayor of Philadelphia in years gone by. His mother was a sister of Lord Lyndhurst, a part of whose estate in this country and established a business in Philadelphia. His place was on the summit of the hill overlooking Girard avenue, and was known throughout the state. Lord Dundas never returned to Scotland, but accumulated a fortune and eventually left his estate to his family. Before his death his sister was married to Benjamin W. Richards, a representative of one of the oldest families in the state. Mr. Richards was very wealthy and left a large portion of the property which now constitutes Fairmount park. This property he subsequently sold to the city. The issue of this children, Benjamin W., Jr., Selina, Howard and Charles R. Howard. Richards is a prominent lawyer in Philadelphia and was married to a lady of the Lyndhurst family of Scott. The only daughter, Selina, is the wife of Gen. R. Lawrence A. gentleman who has been identified with the family intimately for thirty years said to a reporter:

"Charley was a tall, handsome blonde, and one of the most jovial fellows I ever knew. His nerves were always of the best. I am astonished with him, showed any symptoms of insanity. The last time I saw him was, I think, in 1875, so I do not know what has become of him until the other day, when I was told that he was in an asylum. I was amazed. I knew his family well. Charley and his brother, who was a year or two older, Dundas, spent a number of years in Paris. It was there that Mrs. Richards finally died. Mr. Richards died in Philadelphia. In his considerable property he left a large dividend among his children. Charley was a bachelor, and spent a portion of his time in Paris and this city. Dundas, I believe, followed suit. Charley was a favorite with all. I did not know that he was in an insane asylum until the other day."

Mr. Leonard says that his attention was called to the case of Richards while he was connected with the asylum. Miss Addie Price, who was a nurse in the institution for four months, left it and told Mr. Leonard that Mr. Richards was perfectly sane. Mrs. Henrietta Wiley, whose release from the asylum he secured on Sept. 9, said that she was confined there by Dr. Barstow acted like a perfect gentleman, and never showed any symptoms of insanity. Mr. Leonard says that he also received information from other sources that he is convinced that the man is unjustly restrained of his liberty. Ten years ago, he says, Richards quarrelled with his brother Howard, who lives in Philadelphia. Shortly after that he was brought to this city and thence taken to Flatbush under the pretence of seeing a friend. He was then told that he was to be confined in the asylum without a legal commitment, as it is claimed. Twice he attempted to escape, but each time he was captured before he could get away from the village. Dr. Barstow, Mr. Leonard says, is receiving $45 a week for keeping Mr. Richards. As far as the latter can learn, the reason for depriving Mr. Richards of his freedom. The unfortunate man is worth $30,000 or more, which will go to him by the father. The money is invested in real estate and stocks.

Due to the Railroad War.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 29.—The position of the Reading road in the present railroad war attracting not a little attention just now. It is generally believed that the lease of the road to the Pennsylvania will be signed, and in that event there will be considerable difficulty in making a final settlement, for, it is said on Third street, the accounts of the two companies are in such a confused condition as to make separation a troublesome work. It is said that differences of cash and material have been made from time to moment anyway, thus making it impossible to determine the exact expenditures on the leased lines. The Reading officials decline to make any statement in regard to the matter.

A New Railroad for Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 29.—Mr. Francis Stanley, of New York, is in this city arranging the details for the new railroad from this city to New York, to be known as the Seaboard and Western road. Mr. Stanley says the road will undoubtedly be built. An agreement has been made with the Pittsburg and Western railroad, whereby the new line will have an entrance into this city over that road. They have also purchased six acres of land on Brady Island to be used for terminal facilities. The new company is composed of prominent men, and the money will likely be backed by the Lehigh Valley road. Notwithstanding reports to the contrary the road will be ready for traffic January 1, 1886.

Still Cutting Rates.

ROCHESTER, Oct. 29.—Official orders have been received here to cut the rate for passengers on the Vale division of the Central Railroad of New Jersey from one to one cent per mile. Travel is heavy on the line.

An Anti-Jewish Crusade in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—Considerable excitement has been stirred over the report that Jews are excluded from membership in the First Regiment I. N. G. It is stated that a number of prominent Jews propose to form a new company in the first regiment. The remainder of the company brought to bear a sufficient amount of pressure to get their withdrawal. It is said that while the company was in its infancy and needed recruits a number of Jews of good character and reputation were enrolled, but as the company grew in prosperity and numbers the Jews and others of their race were refused admission, and finally those already members were asked to withdraw.

A REMARKABLE CASE.

Another Woman Finds Proper of Her Insane Husband.

HAMMONTON, N. J., Oct. 29.—Fifteen years ago A. J. Jernigan, of this county, married Miss Fannie Thompson, one of the most beautiful belles that ever reigned in Camden society. For a couple of years Mr. and Mrs. Jernigan were quite prominent in social circles, but after the birth of a daughter the lady found herself completely paralyzed, and for years her condition was such that not only was she unable to move a limb, but her tongue was paralyzed so that she could not speak a word. Mr. Jernigan is a man of wealth and has always been considered a stupor, but in silent prayer. She threw her whole soul into her appeal to God to spare her daughter's life. While in the fourth hour of her prayer when her attendants had retired. Suddenly she imagined she heard words repeated, as if by an angel:

"Arise, thy faith hath made thee whole."

Offering up one more fervent prayer, she found that the power of motion had returned to her limbs. She walked half a mile to church for the purpose of praying, at the end of which she was not in the least fatigued. The incident excited the whole county, and hundreds have come to see her, all of whom she assured that her cure has come from God.

KEELY'S MOTOR

Will Positively Operate, Says the Inventor, in December.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—An informal conference was held at the Keely Motor company was held at their New York office in the Boreel building. The secretary read a letter from Mr. Keely in which the latter stated that he had disposed of directors to meet him in Philadelphia on Tuesday next, when he would be prepared to "show up" his wonderful invention to the "complete satisfaction" of all concerned. Mr. Keely added: "On or before Dec. 1 I shall be to my motor in readiness for a public exhibition."

One of the stockholders in the company said to a reporter: "Some of us are completely disgusted with Mr. Keely and are not inclined to put much faith in his promises; but there are others of our number who really believe that he will be prepared to show us something on the 1st of December. At any rate, we are willing to give him another opportunity."

"How there been a new quarrel among the stockholders?"

"No, sir; but we have been fooled along so much that some of us are getting pretty cross. Keely is a friend of Governor Abbett, and the limit has been nearly reached with us. I do not think that Mr. Keely is a humbug. He undoubtedly believes that he has discovered a new motive power, but he spends all other means of furnishing motive power. Perhaps he is himself deceived; but it is my opinion that he is deceiving us. There is certainly something very strange about his machine, and the mystery is still very far from being explained to my mind."

Fourteen Corpses at Uniontown.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Oct. 29.—Of the twenty men in the coke company's mine when the explosion occurred fourteen have been taken out dead. Two others recovered will probably die. Suffocation is nearly every instance was the cause of death. The mine is still burning, and great difficulty is expected in extinguishing the flames. The coroner is holding an inquest. It is charged that the superintendent has been warned that the mine was unsafe two months ago to employ as incompetent men. Great indignation prevails at the scene of the disaster. Fourteen bodies have arrived from Pittsburg. A rigid investigation will be made at once.

Coal Miners Resume Work.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 29.—From recent indications, every coal pit on the Monongahela and Youghiogheny rivers will be in operation before the end of the week. The 65 cents per bushel for mining in the first three pools and 3 cents in the fourth.

The strike was several days ago, when the third and fourth pool miners returned to work at the operator's figures. In the first and second pools several of the miners remained out, but now that the men are willing to accept the reduction, and preparations are being made for a resumption of work.

The Effects of Two-Cent Postage.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—The reduction in the rate of postage to two cents per ounce, about what the postmaster general anticipated it would be in his last report. Notwithstanding the issue of two-cent stamps has increased about 20 per cent, and the amount sold last year, the deficiency is about $8,000,000. There is a noticeable diminution in the sale of postal cards, as business men find two cents necessary for letters, when the postage costs but two cents.

Heavy Damages Awarded.

BROOKLYN, Oct. 29.—In the suit brought by William Brady, a New York commission broker, to recover $50,000 from C. P. Huntington, Henry C. Howe and others, which amount he claimed to be due him on commission for negotiating the sale of railroads running through Louisiana and Texas, and the Mexican National railroad, the jury to-day brought in a verdict for the plaintiff for the full amount.

Lillian Russell's Latest Role.

BROOKLYN, Oct. 29.—Miss Lillian Russell again appears before the public in a new role, that of defendant in a suit for divorce by her husband, Mr. Edward Solomons, who sues for absolute divorce on account of the lady's intimacy with Mr. Edward Solomons. The case will come up in the supreme court of Kings county in the course of next week.

Some Peculiar Testimony.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., Oct. 29.—A jury was taken, and the trial of Talbot in the county house in the trial of Dr. Ira Bigelow for manslaughter by malpractice, which case has been pending for a week past, and was to have been taken up to-day. The court was obliged to adjourn. Bigelow's first wife, in her testimony, stated that he was her husband and father of her seven children. Dickerson, Bigelow's wife, she is called, denies that he knows her at all.

Gen. Pitz-John Porter's Appointment.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Mayor Edson has appointed Gen. Fitz-John Porter police commissioner vice Bishop P. Nichols deceased. Porter is an ardent Tammany Hall Democrat.

ONCE MORE IN OFFICE.

Hugh McCulloch Again Secretary of the Treasury.

Judge Gresham Finally Retired to Accept a Judicial Appointment. Short Sketch of the Life of the New Appointee.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Secretary Folger died suddenly, but peacefully. Wm. Q. Gresham surrendered the treasury portfolio, and ceased to be a member of President Arthur's cabinet. His place will be taken by the Hon. Hugh McCulloch, who was appointed secretary of the treasury and will at once assume the duties of that office. At the same time that he surrendered the secretaryship Judge Gresham received the appointment of United States circuit court judge for the seventh circuit, to succeed Judge Drummond, whose resignation is being now pending. The ex-secretary will leave for Indiana at once to take his new place upon the bench. Unless death again finds a vacancy in Mr. Arthur's cabinet these changes are probably the last that will be made in that body.

In connection with the present attitude of the treasury parties on the tariff question, the views held by Secretary McCulloch on that subject are recalled here with interest. In his annual report as secretary of the treasury for the year 1866 Mr. McCulloch wrote: "There will be in the future, as there have been in the past, widely different opinions in regard to the proper mode of this important subject; but the indications are decided that the more enlightened sentiment of the country demands that the tariff shall hereafter be framed for revenue and not for protection, and that the revenues to be derived from it shall be no larger than, in connection with those received from other sources, will be required for the economical administration of the government, the maintenance of the public faith, and the gradual extinguishment of the national debt. While the country is not at present, and may not be for many years to come, prepared for the abrogation of all restrictions upon foreign commerce, it is unquestionably prepared for a revenue tariff."

Hugh McCulloch is of Scotch descent, and was born in Kennebunk Port, Me., in 1808. He entered Bowdoin college, but was obliged to discontinue his studies after one year's attendance on account of his health. He studied law for two years in the office of Hon. Abbott Lawrence, and went to Boston in 1829. The following year he settled in Fort Wayne, Ind., and began the practice of his profession. He was elected to congress in 1840, when he assumed the management of a branch of the State bank of Indiana. He was made president of the bank in 1856, and continued to act as manager and agent of the Fort Wayne branch until the expiration of the charter in 1865. During these twenty-five years he became one of the most notable firms as a financier, and in 1858 he was unanimously elected president of a new banking company known as the Bank of the State of Indiana, with an authorized capital of $6,000,000 and twenty branches. In this capacity his reputation as a financier increased, and when Secretary Chase transferred him the position of controller of the currency under the National Banking law. When Secretary Fessenden resigned from the treasury portfolio in March, 1865, Mr. McCulloch was appointed secretary of the treasury by President Lincoln. He held this position through the administration of Andrew Johnson, and left office in 1869. After this Mr. McCulloch became the London partner in the firm of Jay Cooke & Co., and in connection with that corporation as president and manager of the American Council of Foreign Bondholders.

Election of Railroad Directors.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 29.—The Cincinnati, Indianapolis, St. Louis and Chicago railroad stockholder elected the following directors: Samuel J. Crowdell, George Wilshire, M. E. Ingalls, B. F. Evans, Lars Anderson, Edward Ferry and C. P. West, deceased; Geo. Bliss, C. R. Huntington, John M. Farr of Boston; S. R. Cable, Thos. A. Morris and Allen M. Fletcher, vice T. H. Sharpe, Jesse Add Hannah and Wm. Fortune. No dividend was declared, the "our per cent surplus having been applied to improvements. Ti directors re-elected M. E. Ingalls president, and E. F. Osborne secretary and treasurer.

A Fortune Awaiting Him.

HOMELLVILLE, N. Y., Oct. 29.—Five years ago Lucien Bowen, a boy, left his home in Long with his father, a wealthy farmer of Louisville, Chautauqua county, left the home of his father. He was never heard from by his father directly, but it is reported that he was for a time at work in Newburg. Old Mr. O'Brien died recently and left in his will $100 to his son Lucien. The son not found, and the Surrogate of the county advertises a reward of $100 for information of his whereabouts.

Was It Dog or Cat?

HAZELVILLE, Oct. 29.—Thirty passengers sat down to breakfast at Dalton, Ga., on the Atlanta and Charlotte air line railway yesterday. Before the train had left the station six passengers were taken ill and had to be left. All others who ate sausage for breakfast became deathly sick, and Dr. Alfred G. Horton of Nine had to be left in care of physicians at that point. It is expected that six of those left at Marietta will die. Physicians attribute the wholesale poisoning to trichina.

Sullivan's Appetite All Right.

SALEM, N. J., Oct. 29.—The sheriff denies the report that he has received a letter from Sullivan, the murderer of Ella Watson, threatening food and endeavoring to starve himself to death. He states that the prisoner has eaten more heartily since he became his death sentence was pronounced.

Kit Carson's Memory.

SANTA FE, N. M., Oct. 29.—The Kit Carson monument is to be unveiled in about four weeks, and Col. Robert Ingersoll has consented to deliver the address. The monument will be located at the head of Lincoln avenue, fronting the south entrance to the new capitol building.

CONDENSED NEWS.

It has been discovered that a niece of Richard Wagner, the great composer, is starving in Chicago.

Count Lewenhaupt, the Swedish minister at Washington, has been recalled. He will go to France, and the Swedish minister to France will succeed him at Washington.

Capt. Rodford Pim, R. N., a recognized authority on Arctic matters, declares he has no confidence in the success of the Pandenna canal, and does not believe it will ever be built.

The wife of George McCreery, living at Waterford, N. Y., of the Hudson River Knitting mills, presented him with four children at a birth on Sunday. They are all girls and weighed seven pounds apiece.

In a fight growing out of politics, between James Armstrong and James Roach, of Oakhill, W. Va., Roach kicked Armstrong in the stomach, from the effects of which he died. Roach was arrested.

WALKING INTO A CAGE.

MILFORD, Pa., Oct. 22.—At the last term of the Pike county court, held here, last week, a young man named Fred Drake was tried on trial for stealing a valuable horse belonging to his brother-in-law, John Quinn. He pleaded guilty, and was sentenced to seven years at hard labor at the Eastern penitentiary at Philadelphia. From Drake it was learned that he had an accomplice in his horse stealing, and the grand jury, therefore, indicted a man named Amzi White, and a warrant was issued for his arrest. Greatly to the surprise of Sheriff Williamson, who should call at the jail on Sunday last but the very man White for whom he had a warrant, accompanied by Drake's wife, the latter having visited the jail for the purpose of bidding her husband good-by. The very sheriff invited White into the cell adjoining that occupied by Drake, and, after locking the door, read to him the warrant for his arrest.

White was dumbfounded, as he had not learned that he was even suspected, let alone indicted for the crime of horse stealing. Since the arrest of Drake his wife, who is a young and comely woman about 20 years of age, has been living with White at his home. Mrs. Drake was greatly affected by White's arrest, and wept copiously as she conversed with him through the cell door, appearing to have no thought for her husband in the next cell. Between her sobs she said that White was innocent of the crime charged against him by her erring husband, and that she could prove it when the proper time came.

Extensive Smuggling.

MONTREAL, Oct. 22.—The customs officers have seized $2,000 worth of gold and silver watches, chains, bracelets, &c., smuggled into this country by Henry Hobbs, of London, England. The authorities, having for some time suspected that extensive and systematic smuggling was being carried on at the Vermont frontier, dispatched an officer to investigate. He ascertained that the smuggler was one George Clark, who did business for a firm of manufacturers at Derby Line, Vt., who are charged with being the responsible parties. Acting upon the information thus acquired, a special service officer captured the smuggler red-handed with a horse and wagon and a valuable load of goods. The man arrested is believed to have been engaged in smuggling continuously since May.

Extensive Strike in Colorado.

DENVER, Oct. 20.—The coal miners' strike is fairly inaugurated and includes about all of the bituminous mines in the state. The strike includes mines at Mitchell, Canfield and other points north of here, upon which the city is largely dependent for coal, and the Trinidad mines and those in the San Juan region, including 3,000, all members of the Knights of Labor. Their grievances are of various characters, and their delegates are now endeavoring to harmonize matters into a general complaint.

The Work of a Fiend.

TROY, Ind., Oct. 20.—Mrs. George Foster was in her house, about ten miles from here, when a man passing along the road stepped in and asked to stay all night. About 8 o'clock Mrs. Foster's house was seen to be on fire. It was beyond help when the neighbors reached it, and in the embers the remains of Mrs. Foster were found with marks which plainly showed that she had been murdered. The whole neighborhood is aroused, and a large crowd is scouring the country in search of the fiend. They will make short work of him if found.

Love and Death.

PARSONS ANNE, Md., Oct. 20.—Irving J. Mills, a Baltimore drummer, after having been on trial for the past ten days, was last evening convicted of murder in the second degree for killing Capt. L. T. C. Davis, a wealthy citizen of Worcester county last July. The killing was the result of Mills paying attention to the daughter of Capt. Davis against the latter's wishes. A feature of the trial was the effort of this same daughter to have Mills acquitted.

Threatening Lynch Law.

DAYTON, Oct. 20.—A telephone message from Reston, O., states that Marshal Ryan was murdered about 7 o'clock by a rowdy. Some time ago Ryan arrested a murderer and used a club a few times in taking him to jail. A few days ago he was discharged, and has since been looking for Ryan. Meeting him he opened fire upon the marshal, shooting him three times, the third shot being fatal. The murderer was captured, and threats are made to lynch him.

Drowned While Trying to Save His Son.

ST. IGNACE, Mich., Oct. 20.—On Saturday last, while Joseph Leighton and his sons were out in a small skiff lifting fish nets, off Scott's Point, Lake Michigan, his boat was swamped in some feet of water, and on account of the heavy sea running, the father, in trying to save his drowning son, was also drowned.

Spain and the United States.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—The Daily News' Madrid dispatch states that serious obstacles have arisen in the negotiations for a commercial treaty between Spain and the United States. Spain contends that she cannot grant special concessions for trade with her colonies, and the United States would therefore refuse to repeal the duties on imports from those colonies.

Thirty Coal Cars Wrecked.

READING, Oct. 22.—A disastrous collision and wreck occurred on the Philadelphia and Reading railroad at Port Clinton. Thirty loaded coal cars were smashed to pieces, and the locomotive wrecked and burned. The trains crashed into one another owing to a misplaced switch. The damage is $30,000. The fireman of the engine was slightly hurt.

Death From Her Father's Barbarity.

BRISTOL, Tenn., Oct. 20.—John Pike drove his two daughters from home. Night overtaking them, they went into camp on the railroad, built a fire and lay down to rest. Miss Hattie, aged 18 years, a beautiful young lady, accidentally set her dress afire and was burned to a crisp, dying in an hour.

$7,500 Damages.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 20.—The suit of Mrs. Carrie R. Windmus against the Pennsylvania Railroad company, to recover damages for injuries received by being thrown over a road in a car at Jersey City by the violent jerk which the engine gave to the train, resulted in a verdict in her favor for $7,500.

Gold Watches for Seamen.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—President Arthur, through the secretary of state, has presented gold watches to Capt. Edward Williams, of the British bark Catalina, and to Capt. T. W. Churchill, of the Canadian ship Jessie Dervist, in recognition of humane services rendered by them to American crews.

BIG [illegible]

Jerry A. Dayton was the most original of my acquaintance. He was the son of a backwoods shark, for he was by long odds the sharpest man in the neighborhood. He was a tall, raw-boned fellow, with a face like the front stone, a half an inch smoothings, but they were spinning, nervous, nervous-twisted fellows, whose "Jerry" could twist and bend his wheels if it came to a scratch.

Where Jerry hailed from originally I never knew. He enlisted in New York in the spring of 1863, and, I fancy, had at that time been campaigning about among the Bowery boys and living off the admirers of his ineffable good nature and unparalleled bluops. But I never knew known to what section before the month of raising so glorious a specimen of the original man.

Take it all in all, I believe Jerry Dayton was essentially the biggest man I ever saw. I was I who enlisted him when I was at home in New York during March, 1863, the honor of certain papers to Governor Morgan, and when I took him to the surgeon's examination I noted down all his measurements as a matter of curiosity. Here they were.

Round chest, forty-eight and three-fourths inches; round shoulders, fifty-nine inches; round forearm, fourteen inches; round biceps, eighteen and one-half inches; round thigh, twenty-six inches; round calf, sixteen inches; weight, 195 pounds.

Taken stock any prize-fighter ever enlisted, the thing that could beat that. And yet Jerry was not fat. He was simply a perfect specimen. When he was stripped his muscles stood out free from adipose tissue, and showed their play when he moved like those of a thoroughbred after training. Added to these a tall neck and a good-looking jovial face; hands like the paws of a gorrilla, but small feet for his size; enormous length of arm, and slow, sang-going look, which betokened coldness and honesty, and Jerry Dayton gave one the idea of a huge, inoffensive elephant.

I have called Jerry a good-looking. Perhaps it was more the good humor which shone through its every pore from the amiable soul within that gave one this idea; for Jerry was not a handsome man, and was wonderfully freckled. He wore a very small yellow mustache which seemed to be all his beard grew; for although he never shaved, his face was destitute of hair, save on the chin. Nature had apparently exhausted herself in putting together his frame, and had nothing left for beard.

Jerry was provided with any of his comrades. Good reason why. To begin with, he was too gentle to tyrannize or bully, and altogether too burly for any one willingly to bully or tyrannize with. I never knew what set he at odds with a single soul. He never shout and attended to his own business with much the same kind of conscientious superior indifference that a Newfoundland exhibits among a pack of terriers. No matter how much the boys teased him; no matter how much the nervous pulled at his beefy, yielding to his forbearance, they were very apt to decide would for an instant look as if he were on the point of retaliating; but then, as if feeling that he might do them harm if he allowed himself to get angry, he would check his rising ire and smooth down his bristling good-humor with a sheepish look of self-reproving, "How, boys, look out and quit your fooling!"

Dayton was a good soldier. To be sure, he had not had the chance as yet that he had not had a chance to show his gallantry; but he was obedient and attentive to duty, intelligent and upright. He seemed sometimes to dislike to obey orders, but it was rather from any objection or recklessness; but this was only at a piece with his own laziness and he never called for more than a passive gentleness. Taking it all in all, the head of the high road to success in the profession of arms, though it had been taken up as only a temporary one.

Jerry was one of my favorites. He was always willing, nay, eager, to be of service to me. He would volunteer his help whenever there was work to be done about my quarters; and, finding his remarkable strength he possessed steadiness and aptitude at work in no ordinary degree. He was handy; he had a thorough fist for a hammer and could seize hold of any little, delicate job as dexterity as if they had been an paper as a woman's. Nor did he seem to be weary in well-doing. Before I knew I wanted a thing done Jerry would have started to do it; and all manner of little conveniences such as a locker of berges, a bench of my use, or an oven for my convenience, came to have been put in one place, under the deft hand and willing heart of Corporal Jerry Dayton.

As a rule, when men grow to such an enormous size they lose in stamina what they gain in weight. Little-waisted men, weighing of from five feet five feet nine inches in height, and weighing from a hundred and twenty to a hundred and sixty pounds, are generally able to march farther, carry more weight and live on shorter rations than men who go beyond those limits. The greatest endurance I have almost invariably seen exhibited by small, spare men; not men who lack muscle, but men whose food goes to nourish bone, sinew, and muscle instead of burning into fat.

But Corporal Jerry Dayton was the exception to the rule that size and endurance stand in inverse ratio to each other. As his carcass and endurance seemed to have kept pace with growth, and he and our pet corporal of the 5th flank is five-foot-two, one-hundred-and-fifteen-pound specimen) vied with each other who would first show signs of flagging. But there was this difference between them that the Brobdingnagian could have picked the Lilliputian up and carried him all day, marched off with him, while the petit corporal could scarce have done the same by Jerry.

Often have I seen Jerry Dayton with a half dozen muskets and knapsacks slung in various fashions about his brawny person, whilst he was carrying along for some weary comrade, and laughing at the idea of being overloaded. A prettier man was Corporal Jerry Dayton; a mighty man of valor—yet untried.

There were two of his fellow soldiers who did not believe in Jerry's courage. One was the orderly sergeant, an old soldier himself, and the other a man who seemed to have known something of Jerry's antecedents, though he never gave any reason for his opinion. Both acknowledge Dayton's good qualities in camp and on the march; but—

"You keep a sharp eye on Jerry Dayton next, last squall we git into; an' of Jerry Dayton don't run, then I'll go beg his pardon for thinkin' of it," Sergeant Bodle's been jilted he'd he know'd, so much to be pure and jilted."

"You thought he was really lame that day he went to the rear with Sanders, Bodle, you mean," said the orderly, "but I've always had a shrewd notion that he was lame nearer the people's side heart that time."

All this I of course pooh-poohed, and condemned that I was as good a judge of the man as any one else had fast to my liking for the corporal. If, indeed, there was a man in the regiment, I said, there was not a man in the company who would. Time showed whether I was right or wrong.

It was at Fair Oaks. We had been having forward to the support of Casey's shattered division, and I was on the right of the line, as my own men and myself thereabouts had gotten nothing beyond the patterns of his faces, and as pale them as I was myself, when I heard a shower of men, I paid to go to the rear.

Our regiment and one other both commanded of Col. Stanwix, had been ordered to support the right battery that was playing on the enemy's left, and we had filed through the wood and were in the act of forming line of battle when the enemy's infantry broke cover and charged down upon us. It was a fearful moment. Our regiment was not a full one, and we had to fight for our lives against overwhelming numbers. Our colonel, who was a gallant officer, would delay Casey's and Kearney's division for back to the river. We had received a great part of the way as a double-shotted, and the men were in the act of firing when they heard their thoughts to the rattle of small arms and shouts of the enemy, which seemed to be close behind us. In another moment we had been back. And the sides of the hurried march gave no time to the dead-beats and poltroons to skulk out of the ranks.

But finally we were on the edge of the swamp and deployed into line behind a snake fence on the skirts of a wood whose underbrush screened us almost entirely from view. Before us lay an open field, perhaps of a quarter-mile in breadth, across which wounded men limped or were carried to the rear, while the enemy's infantry could be heard beating back one of the regiments on our left. In another minute, I should guess Casey's and Kearney's division would be back to the river. We had received a great part of the way as a double-shotted, and the men were in the act of firing when they heard the rattle of small arms and shouts of the enemy, which seemed to be close behind us. In another moment we had been back. And the sides of the hurried march gave no time to the dead-beats and poltroons to skulk out of the ranks.

But finally we were on the edge of the swamp and deployed into line behind a snake fence on the skirts of a wood whose underbrush screened us almost entirely from view. Before us lay an open field, perhaps of a quarter-mile in breadth, across which wounded men limped or were carried to the rear, while the enemy's infantry could be heard beating back one of the regiments on our left. In another minute, I should guess Casey's and Kearney's division would be back to the river. We had received a great part of the way as a double-shotted, and the men were in the act of firing when they heard their thoughts to

CHRONOLOGICAL EVENTS.

Governor Andrews died 1867.

JOTTINGS.

—Remember Janish to night, in Lennox at Stillman Music Hall.

—The Democrats say "never mind we will parade after election, when our man gets thar."

—The Fair for the benefit of St. Joseph's church commenced in VanDeventer's Hall last evening.

—Plainfield Engine Co., No. 2, will commence a fifteen cent package express next Monday, as announced elsewhere.

—Mr. R. B. Titsworth of this city has a grape vine which has blossomed and borne new fruit six times the present season.

—Up to noon to-day there were fifty-five names registered at Laing's Hall, making a total to that time, of 595 votes for the Fourth Ward.

—At Gerstel's billard parlor last evening, a handsome gold medal was awarded to William Mahaffee, as the winner of a series of games in a handicap pool tournament.

—Persons having business to transact at the bank must remember that Tuesday next (election day) is a holiday in this State. A note falling due Tuesday will have to be met Monday.

—The latest charge of corruption against Blaine is that he has bribed "Old Probs," so that he will reserve all his foul weather for the Democrats. He certainly made them scarce last evening.

—Somerset's Republican Assembly nominee, Hon. Sylvester Robbins, of Branchburg, speaks in the old school house, cor. Race and Harmony street, North Plainfield, this evening. All are invited to attend.

—A proclamation recently issued by Sheriff McHenry, of Somerset county, should be read carefully by all who contemplate buying or selling votes. A similar proclamation has been issued by Sheriff Forsyth of Union county.

—The Lincoln Club intends to have a telegraph wire at Van Deventer Hall election night, to receive returns, at an expense of $60 per day. They say they propose to keep the office open until Blaine is elected, if it is for two months.

—Those who are entitled to naturalization papers and have not yet taken them out are reminded to be at the Clerk's Office on Saturday of this week (Nov. 1) and on Monday of next week, which will be the last opportunity before the election.

—If a traveling gentleman asks you to sign a petition, asking for a reduction in general taxes, look with suspicion upon him. You may find the "petition" coming back to you in the shape of a promissory note. The dodge is now being played.

—Plainfield Engine Co.'s forthcoming ball is already an assured success, so far as the sale of tickets is concerned. They are going off like hot cakes. It is to be a popular event to aid the worthy firemen to pay for the horse and harness for their hose cart, so that patrons, not only secure an opportunity for unpleasant enjoyment, but also assist in proving additional protection against fire.

—The New York papers to-day publish an affidavit from the father-in-law of St. John, declaring that the saint deserted his wife seven years ago, and left her and their children destitute, the family dying of a broken heart, and that he even refused to pay the doctor's bill for attendance on their son, who had received injuries by a fall from a horse, from which the son finally died. Belva and Ben are the only couple whose skirts are clear thus far this campaign.

Charity for All.

As on account of the weather the Democratic parade is indefinitely postponed, the needy, irrespective of their politics, are cordially invited to come to the rooms over Peck's dry goods store, Friday morning, and receive such provisions as had been prepared for the visiting clubs. The "Children Home" and other charitable organizations, will be welcome to all they may desire.

Personal.

J. W. Burger, the Prohibitionist candidate for Assembly, is a well-known resident of Plainfield and a New York merchant.

J. F. Plummer of Netherwood was recently tendered the Republican nomination of New York city, and declined it.

Mrs. Grace L. Stevens, niece of C. J. John Dorrick of Arlington avenue, starts next Saturday with her three daughters and person on the steamship "Westernland," for Antwerp, Belgium, to remain a year and a half, to personally supervise her children's education at one of the schools of that place. The American Consul at Rotterdam, an old friend of the family, is to meet her and her children at Antwerp. Mrs. Stevens has a host of friends in this city, who will miss her.

The new Legislative Committee of the Federation of Trades and Labor Unions is preparing bills providing for compulsory education, and for State aid to obtain a school and manual training idea, co-operative factory and workshop bill. Candidates for the Legislature will be asked to pledge themselves to support these and the "Prison Labor" "Ticket of Leave" bill.

FIRE ENGINES AND FIRE INSURANCE COMPANIES.

The firemen of New Jersey have a Firemen's Relief Fund, sustained through Legislative enactments by a tax on the business done by foreign fire insurance companies in the State, the tax being payable into the State Treasury, and disbursed pro-rata by the State Treasurer, to the Firemen's Relief Associations throughout the State. The rate paid by the insurance companies is one half of two per cent.

The laws sustaining this tax are very obnoxious to the insurance companies, who are constantly endeavoring to have enactments whereby the amount of this tax annually will be saved to themselves. The firemen, on the other hand, have found the fund a beneficial one to them, and to prevent the insurance companies from securing the repeal or nullification of laws protecting the fund have watched for objectionable bills. The report will be read with interest by Firemen and their friends everywhere, and particularly by firemen in this vicinity. We are indebted to Mr. W. H. Voorhees, the President of the Firemen's Relief Association of this vicinity, for a copy of the report, which is herewith annexed:

REPORT.

The Legislative Committee takes pleasure in reporting, that the work of the last Committee has been active and successful. The firemen should be given the same advantages to expect to as others, and injury duty as members of the National Guard, has been accomplished, and is now the law of this State.

The relief fund of $20,000 gives each active and exempt fireman exemption from taxation on five hundred dollars of real or personal property, or both, and also exempts him from poll tax and jury duty.

The only firemen not benefitted by this act are those who receive more than one hundred and fifty dollars a year salary; and this exception your committee reluctantly consented to in order to save the bill from defeat.

Of course the act only applies to firemen working under the supervision or control of the municipal authorities.

Those who attended the convention of 1883, at Dover, will remember that the Legislative Committee reported, that, as the previous session of the Legislature, two bills were introduced which specially affected the interests of the firemen.

One of these was in relation to tax exemption; but the committee, thinking it would be unnecessary to a majority of the firemen of the State, defeated it.—A better one was passed in its place.

The same influences which was then active, and which have been active ever since, during last winter, directed against the present law.

The other bill introduced in the Legislature of 1882, which the committee spoke of, made it a misdemeanor for agents to do business for fire companies not complied with the laws of this State.

Through the efforts of the committee, last year, the passage of this act was secured.

Another measure, also, was introduced looking till was introduced, entitled An Act to repeal a supplement to an act entitled an act for the incorporation, etc., which was approved March 7, 1855; nothing to indicate the mischief which might lurk behind so innocent a title.

A critical examination of the bill, however, and of the law referred to, such as your committee were obliged to make, in the one hundred and twenty eight bills brought before the Legislature last winter, showed that it was intended to repeal the obnoxious tax act of the previous winter. The life of that bill was short.

As we have said, eight hundred and twenty-eight bills were introduced into the Legislature last winter, and every one was carefully criticised by your committee, to ascertain if by any means it might affect the interests of firemen. Only eight and twenty-seven of these were selected as being of sufficient interest to the firemen to be within the jurisdiction of the committee.

The Legislature was convened Tuesday, January 8th, and adjourned April 18th, 1883, a period of fifteen weeks, during which each of which the bills came in so thick and fast that it was thought prudent to call the Executive Committee together, at Trenton, to consider the situation.

At this conference a plan of action was agreed upon, and the Legislative Committee were enabled to go on with their work unhampered by the approval of the Officers of the Association.

Never before, in the experience of any of the members of this Committee, has there been such a flood of Legislation affecting firemen, and never has it been of such vital importance.

There were ten bills affecting the Relief Fund, two only of which were passed, and one of these by the influence of your Committee.

Of these two we will speak later on.

Four of them were: First, to increase, or introduce, by the State, a tax on the insurance business, and another one would have reduced the amount to about three hundred dollars a year for each fire department, giving an equal share to each department, and stopping all collections from the insurance companies directly.

The question of corporation taxes received more consideration than any other matter before the last Legislature.

Four bills were proposed; of which the bill last spoken of providing the annual repairs for the Relief Fund to about three hundred dollars a year for "Children Home" and other charitable organizations, was the least objectionable, though bad enough.

Your Committee and several members of the Executive Committee, including our honored President, Gen. Spencer, thought this bill the most dangerous, as it had the strongest backing, and the influence of the Senator who prepared the bill, and explained to him its effect upon the interests of the Firemen.

Thanks to his kindly assistance, we were enabled to strike out the section to which we objected, and the bill was passed in that form, and which left our Relief Fund undisturbed.

In the shape the bill became a law.

Another bill, more corporation tax bills were amended, upon our suggestion, but none of them passed.

Had any of these corporation tax bills become laws, they would also, as amended by your Committee, have left the Relief Fund undisturbed.

Amendments were made to four other bills at your request, but none passed.

A robust bill (criticised by your Committee) provided for a new Department of Banking and Insurance, with a Commissioner to pay over to the State Treasurer all moneys received by him, except his salary and the expenses of his office, (referred to by its title only), for the relief of disabled firemen.

Such a reference to a law, attempting to make it apply to and become a part of the new act, would, of course, not have been valid, but that part of the act of 1882, which the act referred to had been repealed, and hence was another complication, and, by the way, was revived by reference to the title only.

The effect of the bill would have been to have deprived the firemen of the three hundred dollars per year distributed by the Governor of the State, and the law would have compelled the Commissioner to pay over to the State Treasurer.

Even the unintentional errors to be overlooked, by the Governor and other State officials, and the moneys given to the firemen, as passed to be already by the act, the Commissioner would have been guided by the act referred to, which was the old act giving to cities and towns power to provide for the fire department, which in effect, would have failed to support the officers of the Relief Funds directly.

All fire insurance outside of the cities would have been cut off from any share in the semi-annual distribution by the Secretary or Treasurer of State.

Your Committee quietly interviewed the party who introduced this bill, and errors were corrected.

It failed to become a law, but that was because of opposition from other quarters.

The Jersey City Relief Fund having been missed, a bill was introduced to place the Fund, in cities of first class, in charge of three trustees appointed by the Governor.

Your Committee, foreseeing the evil which might result from such a law, and that it would remove the Newark Fund out of the care of the trustees elected by the firemen, prepared a substitute which places the Relief Fund, in all the departments of the State in the hands of trustees selected by the firemen.

The substitute was passed and has been approved by the Governor.

Eight bills in all which affected firemen's interests, were passed and are now laws; five of which were called by your Committee, and one was amended by us.

Ten remaining two bills were introduced as members of the Legislature, by the firemen and the other for Orange, and were not interfered with by the Committee.

As the session closed every Committee was unanimous in the wish that the word "fire" might not be heard in the Legislature, next winter; for in this we were a little inclined to be selfish.

Such a wish is little to be expected and it would not, perhaps, be desirable that such should be the case.

Still it would be desireable for our firemen to sit still, and think that legislation, any more than fire, will do no harm if let alone.

There is and will be legislation needed by the firemen: take care that what you ask for is fair!

On the other side, your interests may require favorable legislation; and this is also to be guarded against.

You must, as was shown last winter, be on the alert, and ready promptly to protect the interests intrusted to your care.

The Relief Fund is a sacred trust, and must be preserved at all hazards; and no effort should be spared to keep it intact.

Other legislation will be needed, or will be thought necessary, every year, which has any reference to the firemen or their interests, should be referred to the Legislative Committee of this association for their approval, before it is sent to Trenton.

It is now known that in some of our townships and villages firemen are not subject to the organization of their Relief Funds, to the same law which applies to cities and incorporated towns. This is a defect which could have been avoided by a little regard for the wishes of the firemen, which requires the necessity for a general law for the organization and government of the Relief Funds of cities, townships, towns, borough, and villages in the State.

This ought to be the next subject, if we would have a law passed, and to which the matter had been known to the Committee.

Your Committee prepared and introduced near the close of the session a bill to remove the city fire departments from political control.

This will probably come up next Winter.

Firemen should not be subject to the caprice of parties.

In the fire department, above all others, civil service reform is essential to successful work.

Firemen of New Jersey! you may well be proud of your organization and of your record.

Like Jersey law, the firemen of this State are noted for good work.

Given to the public on the most enthusiastic and self sacrifice and none will be too proud to do you honor.

Respectfully submitted,

WM. H. BROWN,
JOHN KERRELL,
W. B. WEAD,
Committee.

Roller Skating.

There is no finer, more manly, graceful, invigorating sport than roller skating. It gives healthful scope for personal courage, endurance, skill and taste. One can't get tired of it, for it is an art whose possibilities are boundless, and whose minute and finer developments are infinite in subtlety and bewildering in their complexity. Moreover it is where young people—young ladies and gentlemen together—meet in more healthy, natural, and hearty relations than at the rink. Nowhere can a manly young fellow—we say it without shadow of silly sentimentality—so conduct himself to the regard of a frank, kindly girl as by his patient, considerate, and helpful care in a series of first skating lessons. Nowhere is a fine courageous spirited girl more attractive than in the modest but fearless determination with which she addresses herself to better the instruction of her more robust companion. Young eyes will light up at the glance of other eyes, we know; young hearts will beat responsive to other hearts; why not a thousand times better in the circle of kindred and friends, under the fine inspiration of noble exercise, than in the presence of mean-like sentimentality?—Scribner's Magazine.

Very Nearly An Explosion.

Last night a son of Mr. Chas. Geise, professor of the restaurant No. 9 Somerset street, fearing that the lamp in the transparent sign on top of the building might be extinguished by the wind went up on the roof to extinguish it. He discovered it to be on fire, picked it up and threw it into the street. His opportune arrival prevented another fire.

The officials of the Camden jail have discovered that a bar of one of the windows had recently been sawed, indicating an attempt on the part of jail-delivery to escape.

A Successful Blessing.

Read, ponder and profit thereby. Keep's Balsam for the throat and lungs is a blessing to all who have need to consult any preparation in the market as a complete throat and lung healer. All persons afflicted with any throat or lung disease will find speedy relief and in a majority of cases a permanent cure by using Keep's Balsam. Prepared by E. S. Shaw, Bound Brook, N. J. Price 50 cents and $1. Sold by druggists. Ask your druggist for Keep's Balsam and if he has not got it, send to the proprietor and you will receive it by return mail. Don't delay, but send at once.

A Terrible "Specter Bark."

[New York World.]

The lumber-laden schooner, Maggie M. Myers, which struck on a shoal, waterlogged, near cape Hatteras, on last January, still outlives the raging Atlantic gales. A vessel arriving at Halifax reports having encountered the derelict on the 11th inst. in latitude 40 degrees 53 minutes, north, longitude 64 degrees 6 minutes, west, dismasted and covered with barnacles. After the crew left her she drifted 300 miles in an easterly direction right across the Gulf stream current, then sweeping her course 200 miles due southwest; then for forty days moved to the northwest. In May she was heading for the Florida coast; in June she turned towards Savannah, and since then has been variously reported drifting to the northeastward in the Gulf stream current.

She is now probably about 250 miles southeast from New York, and having gotten by the aid of ocean currents fairly within the "anti-trade" wind belt, she will be speeded by some additional current and carry her into the great ship routes between America and England. She is not a "specter bark," but an actual solid mass of lumber, and hence a grave menace to navigation, which may for years survive the disintegrating power of the waves unless some one blows her to pieces. The government would do a good service to commerce by directing a naval vessel to find and sink, or else to bring into port this seemingly indestructible rover of the deep.

A Kiss in Provincetown.

[Boston Globe.]

A young Boston gentleman recently passed a couple of days in the ancient town at the end of the cape. It chanced that on the first evening he met a certain young lady, whom he escorted home, and at the door it was his pleasure to impress upon her lips the indispensable token of friendship. On the next evening he met the same young lady, and again escorted her home, and again was privileged to plant her sisterly kiss. At parting she remarked:

"Charlie, do you notice any difference between the kiss I gave you last night and the one you received to-night?"

"I can't say that I do," responded Charlie, "by do you ask?"

Because," was the innocent response, "I forgot to tell you last night; I haven't been ill to-night."

Bad for Vegetarians.

[Chicago Exchange.]

Mr. Spencer Cobbold has reminded vegetarians that abstaining from meat does not afford security from parasitism, for the most common of worms, the trichina, is almost entirely nourished by vegetables, and it is by means of vegetables that certain parasites are introduced into the human body.

Would Be Salutary.

[Fargo Sunday Argus.]

It would be salutary if special emphasis were given to the injunction to delight living in the love of the good need of the age, and the best assurance of security and felicitous attainment when the relentless messenger from beyond the river calls.

Defence of the Mind of to be Tolerated in New York City.

New York, Oct. 26.—The following letter has been given to the press by District Attorney Olney:

To whom it may concern:

Information, which I consider to be trustworthy, having been brought to me that systematic efforts were to be made by certain persons to commit extensive frauds upon the ballot box at the approaching election, by means of organized gangs of registers and colonizers, I deemed it to be my duty, as public prosecutor of the county, to secure the services of experienced men to make a thorough investigation into the matter. The result of the inquiry has more than justified me in the course adopted. Many persons have been proved to be engaged in the nefarious business of falsely registering repeaters and colonizers, and to be guilty of other violations of the election laws. It has come to my knowledge that bands of men are to be paid for defrauding honest citizens of their rights on election day by falsely representing them at the polls, and that repeaters have been registered from many houses, the occupants of which have made themselves party to the fraud by consenting in misinform those engaged in verifying the register by falsely stating that those who registered from their homes actually reside there.

I also have information that certain inspectors of election are privy to the frauds and are giving their aid and assistance to the perpetration of them; and, further, that they have arranged to defraud voters on election day by substituting ballots in place of those offered by voters.

It is my intention, as it is my duty, to prosecute with vigor every violation of the election laws, irrespective of persons or parties, and to this end I request all inspectors of election and poll clerks and all other persons who may have knowledge of such frauds upon the ballot-box committed by any person to send information of the fact to me at this office for the immediate action of the grand jury of the county.

The perpetration of such cases of fraud as are shown are felonies punishable by imprisonment in the state prison for a term not exceeding five years, and it is also a criminal offence for inspectors of election or poll clerks to have ballots in their possession behind the ballot boxes; and all persons who contemplate engaging in any of these crimes must take warning that if they persist therein, they must expect that the penalties of the law will be visited upon them.

This office will be open on election day to aid in the prosecution of offenders against the election laws.

A STRANGE STORY.

After Arrest and Discharge a Man Boasts of Murder.

YARMOUTH, N. S., Oct. 30.—Several weeks ago Absalom Huribut, while conversing about an old grudge entertained against Benjamin Treffy, exclaimed: "I will fix him or he will fix me." Nothing further was thought about it. Last night Treffy left his father's house to visit his betrothed, as was his wont, taking a short cut through the woods. The lamp burned late in the father's house that night, and the faithful girl retired fearing that another's charms had stolen her lover. Sunday and Monday passed, and young Treffy did not turn up. The father supposed he was at his lady's house, so had no fears. Tuesday disclosed the fact of his strange disappearance. The whole country was searched in vain. Huribut's conversation was recalled, and he was arrested. "You can charge all you like, but you can't prove anything," said Absalom, and his was right. The justice discharged him, and he went home. An evening approached neighbors dropped in and began to talk of his acquittal. Huribut finally came home with quarters locked as the man who had been talking, and said: "You are fools, fools; all of you. I did kill him, and I told him where no one can find him. He is under the water in Wilson's lake. They can't try a man twice for the same thing, and now that they've cleared me, it doesn't make any difference. Besides, I am not the only one to blame." Then he went to bed. To-day Huribut is again in custody, and while the constables dragged Wilson's lake hundreds stood around the shore, waiting for the first glimpse of the corpse of the murdered man. It has not yet been found.

Storms on the Pacific.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 30.—The steamer Newbarn, which arrived from Unayman, has brought news of disastrous storms on the coast of Lower California. The steamer Estado de Sonora, which left Mazatlan Sept. 26, with nineteen passengers and a crew of forty-eight, is believed to have been lost with all on board. The Mexican schooner Para is also believed to have been lost. Another storm occurred on Oct. 7, and continued three days. Twenty houses in Capo St. Lucas were destroyed and many cattle killed. Nine Mexican coasters were lost, each having from three to five persons on board. The storm was the most violent ever experienced in that locality.

A Mother Held for Murder.

BOSTON, Oct. 30.—Mrs. Abby G. Brunner, aged 54, was held in $5,000 for murder, by throwing a dipper of scalding water at Mrs. Mary McCauly, aged 45, on the 20th inst., which caused the latter's death. The deed was done during a quarrel over their respective children. Mrs. McCauly was scalded about the face, neck, shoulders and abdomen, where the water ran down in a blistering stream. The woman lingered in great pain all through last week. Every effort was made to save her life.

The New Treasury Secretary.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—Secretary McCulloch is expected to qualify to-day but will not enter upon the discharge of his duties for some days, as he finds it necessary to first transact some pressing private business. The president has designated Assistant Secretary Coon to act as secretary of the treasury in the absence of Secretary McCulloch and Judge French to act in the absence of Mr. Coon.

Dashing Mrs. Hewette Released.

BOSTON, Oct. 30.—Mrs. Georgina Hewette, who has been confined in Chelsea street jail, pending a hearing in relation to a charge of larceny of diamonds from Mrs. Lynch, of Broadway, New York, has been discharged by order of Gov. Robinson, Gov. Cleveland, of New York, having refused his requisition

A NEW PAVEMENT.

The undersigned has secured the exclusive agency for the sale of the

Diebold Patent Iron Stone,

which for elegance and durability, is unsurpassed, and in price will compare favorably with any other pavement now in use. It is the most beautiful pavement known for walks and roads, gutter stones, floor tiling and stone blocks. Also used to build fire and Burglar proof vaults; and for building purposes generally. It hangs together and is very evidently a non-conductor; resist ice and snow, as well as all kinds of moisture. Upon dampness or coldness as the ordinary brick, this material remains perfectly free from it. These blocks are cast in moulds from Slag and are the hardest of substances to cut on, an exhibition of which is to be seen in the spacious Ballimon Music Hall. WOMAN AND HOME.

Opinions of Servants—Any to Be Your Own Help Stick.

Tell Your Wife—About Hopeless Sorrow—Poetry of Motion—An Indian Dish—Stray Bits of Information.

[Arthur's Magazine.]

Until there is a great change in the way the average mistress treats her servants, she will not get a better service than that of which she now so loudly complains. The following, the source of which we do not know, is so excellent an example of the way in which to make good servants that we give it a place in our magazine. It will bear careful reading and must fail to lead some who have not been as thoughtful as they might have been, to change their manner of treating domestic dependents:

"I never shall forget the servants' sleeping-room in a very simple household I once was in. Everything was fresh and clean and wholesome-looking. The two iron bedsteads comfortably neatly, the window-curtains spacious, the two floors neatly arranged, the floor nicely matted, and with a strip of carpet before each bed, and on the wall some pretty colored pictures. The mistress of this genial, simple home told me that she labored for a year before she could induce her two maids to see the beauty and comfort of such order, but that now they felt it heartily, and it had affected their work and spirits very visibly. Near their kitchen was a small room, which Mrs. —— had fitted up simply for a sitting-room and a place to take their meals in. There was a chest of drawers, in which were their napkins and table-cloths and their own, bed-linen, and a nice glass-covered case shelved their china.

"My friend told me that for some time her maids actually preferred to use the kitchen, but after finding them ever ready to a great pride in their neat little room, and she said the effect upon their characters and work was speedily visible. Occasionally she would bring in some flowers or pretty, inexpensive ornament for them; she took a good, illustrated weekly paper entirely for their use, requiring them to file it, and before long a pasteboard case was forthcoming for their bags and manner had developed. These two servants had come to her very uncouth and untutored, but certainly when I saw them, after they had been with Mrs. —— for a year, they were by far the most refined, respectful and well mannered servants I have ever seen in America. If country-house people would treat this sort of consideration would 'spoil' a servant, but it seems to me that the very first means of teaching the servant to-day what she ought to do is to make her feel that her mistress' house is her home, the place in which she is to live, not the place she is to work in as little as possible and escape from during every possible hour. A servant should be taught to respect the laws and pleasures about her as if they were her very own."

Still Arp on Divorce.

[Atlanta Constitution.]

Bowse sitting down in front of the hotel the other morning perusing The Constitution when a clever good-for-nothing, seedy, pale faced bullivisal came up and took a chair beside me, and said to Ed, "Kernel, speak a woman was to put up a plea and writ a fee-bo when she had no grouns, and her lawyer put it in the paper, and how she wants to take back and get a divorce, and I want to make her write a bebill and put that in the paper too."

"I don't exactly understand you my friend," said I, "is it a divorce case. Is your wife suing you for a divorce?"

"Absolutely," said he "I had a little property and she and her lawyer wants it, and so she raised a rumpus about nothing and put in a plea and wants all the money." "Alimony," said I. "Alimony?" said he, "and so I sold my property and put all the money where she can't find it, and now she wants to come together again and don't want to sign a bebill."

"How long have you been married," said I. "About two months," said he.

"And what was the matter?" said I. "What made her sue you; what did you do to her?"

"Nothin," said he. "She got mad 'cause I wouldn't give her money to go off on an excursion to Texas accompanied with a big bebill Sallie, and she called me an old North Callina puller-yeast, baiter-faced, bar-nakin vagabond, and I don't know what all. She decided on me, and I want to know if I can't make her prove it Aint she got to prove it before she can put in a plea?"

"Prove what," said I.

"Why, prove what she called me," said he. "Why, prove what?" said I. "Did you come from North Carolina?"

"Well, I were born ther," said he.

"And your eyes are a little yaller," said I; "and your complexion is very sallow, and you called her an old devil I know. Now the main question is, What do you do for a living? What is your trade; are you a vagabond, or not?"

"Well, kernel, I don't do much of anything right now, again to knock round, for business is mighty dull."

"Well, now," said I, "do you go and make up with your wife and buy you a little house with that money your daddy left you, and go to work, and the very first thing you do give that bad feller a lickin' if he comes about and then your wife will have more respect for you."

He studied awhile and said: "Kernel, I believe you are right. I'll whip him shore," and he left me.

Well, there is a power of trouble amongst the poor and the rich. The poor fools marry for fun and the rich fools marry for money, and there is misery all round. There is no happiness in wedded life except when they marry for love and have a mutual respect for one another. Then, and then only are the happiest for they have to work for a living and they are happier in the country than in the town, for the ridiculous shape have got to work too and haven't got time to be crowding around in excursions with other people's wives.

Caring for Song Birds.

[Rochester Chronicle.]

"Why, you have no idea," said an old and well-known bird fancier to a reporter the other day, "how little care a song bird requires. It has been my experience—and a long one, too—that nine-tenths of the cases of deaths among canaries are caused by overcare and over-feeding.

"Let a lady get a new bird. The chances are it is the first she has ever had to care for. It is a novelty and a curiosity in the house, and she feels as though she must be attending to it all the while, and thus if she does not kill it with over-feeding, or something. The result is she will give the bird everything she can think of or everything she has ever heard of a bird eating. It will feed it cracker, cake, cake, and bread, and candy, and sugar, and apple—and heaven only knows what—stuff through the bars of the cage for the bird to eat. In the end-house you will find all kinds of seed, mixed, etc. Now it does not seem to me that it requires an extraordinary amount of sense to know that this is wrong. [can touch the spot of the bird's tongue with any implement to the cage, or by the bars of the cage, and the bird will peck at it. Should it do so, the chicken fattens the fastened tenderly. They lose their voice, they become subject to rheumatism, they get the gout in their feet. They become tired with life, and they die in any decday for their health. Ten birds out of a usually brilliant songster, one who is singing kindly, sweetly and almost incessantly, and in real love at the cage he is in. You will find a bird that will not sing at all times.

"The best bird food is just plain, ordinary, common bird seed—only that and nothing more. It is all I give my birds, and you have heard how they sing. For more than three and a half years I buy a cuttlefish bone for them, and I never give them gravel or grit in their food. I put a piece of the cuttle bone in the cage, and I put a bath dish of water, with the shell reduced, into the cage every morning. Once a week I clean the cage thoroughly, scrubbing the perches, the bottom and the sides, and the bath-dish, clean bird seed, fresh water and fresh air, and if he does or loses his song it will be from natural causes."

Reliable Rules for Making Soup.

[Cluster and Household Magazine.]

The hand that can make a good soup unfailingly has arrived at a stage in the culinary art not reached by any except a good cook. Therefore, when our correspondent can succeed in having her soups, not sometimes, but always, perfect, she need never fear in venturing among the other branches of cookery, because the very knowledge and tact necessary in the one case will be sure to guide her unerringly in the others.

To culinary economists the preparation of a soup is a mystery they don't want to have the desire or ability to understand. Yet, when properly made, there is nothing more palatable and wholesome. Among the well-to-do portion of every community, it forms a very important part of the dinner, and there is every reason why it should not be so generally discussed, as it is by the poor alone, for it is not only nourishing, but can be made to constitute a large portion of their diet, with quite as much, if not more economy than is possible in the use of other dishes.

Every utensil used in the cooking should be scrupulously clean. The sauce-pan covers should be boiled after, and all their rims, and even handles not neglected.

Watch your fire, and should there be the least smoke, always remove your sauce-pan to a safe distance when you have occasion to stir the id.

The meat should be lean, and used as soon after killing as possible.

Avoid purchasing a piece of meat that would require any washing before going into the pot.

Do not put the bones in until they are first pounded into small pieces.

If your meat and bones are fresh—that is, not stale—they should be put into cold water. On the other hand when they have been previously fried, or browned, boiling water only is the proper thing, and this should be added a little at a time.

Make your soup the day before it is wanted. Let it stand till cold, and then remove all the fat that has risen to the surface.

Beware of a hot fire. Simmering is the life, as boiling is the death of any good soup.

If your soup is to contain vegetables, let these be boiled a little while in separate water before adding them.

In seasoning bear in mind that it is much safer to have too little than too much—pepper especially needful when you are adding the fish.

Do not add cream or milk without first boiling them separately and straining them. And when added they should be boiling hot.

When eggs are to be added, do not put it directly with the body of the soup; put a little of the latter in a cup, and after allowing it to cool for a minute, mix the egg thoroughly with it and then pour it into the soup, a little at a time, stirring it while adding.

Keep your soups always in stoneware or china, and when stirring or skimming them, use a wooden spoon.

Tell Your Wife.

[Burlington Hawkeye.]

Advice is cheap, you know, and most of all coveted bodger like it the least. But what if it proves a method of doing and treating for all the money and appreciate its importance as a factor of the happy home. So if we tell you how every wife in the land can be married the experiments can save from 15 to 20 per cent of his expenses during the coming year, you will probably listen. Now that it just what we intend to do. It is free, and if any and sure to work. Just tell your wife all about your business affairs. Show her your balance sheet, let her study it, and if she don't know how to read it, teach her.

You think it will make her feel badly; that it will make her blue. Well, that will do her good. Another such way in which you can do it. If you begin by declaring that there is not another family in town runs such bills as yours, and that there is more money spent for the head of your household than for any other place you can find, she will feel hurt, and if she has not had all the spirit taken out of her by your unfair treatment, she will resent it. If she does not, then you are less than you have played the bully and the fool.

But, on the other hand, if you approach her as if she were an intelligent being, with soul and sense and self-respect equal to your own, you will find an interested listener, willing and anxious to help you. You can teach her on the subjects of family finance, and although she may do a little quiet weeping before the interview is ended, they will be happy tears. In the end, that child, after years of waiting and hoping, you have come to realize that she is your friend and may be your helper, instead of the child, like which you have treated her by shutting her up in an oyster when she ventured to ask a question any ways relevant to business matters, and studiously avoiding in conversation everything connected with that great mystery.

The Poetry of Motion.

[Chicago Herald Interview.]

"If easy and graceful manners are not acquired in early life, or by some process of dancing, "they will scarcely ever be possessed at all, and since nothing appears to me to give children so much confidence, confidence and behavior, and to raise them to the conversation of those above their age, as dancing, I think they should be taught to dance as soon as they are capable of learning it. Although dancing consists mainly in outward gracefulness of motion, yet, I know not how, it gives children manly thoughts and carriage to the boys and a delicacy and ease to the outlet or expression of strong feeling; dancing does not require much discussion, for the general rule applies that most dancers[illegible], for a time are lively, awkward, and do not exhaust, the flow of feeling.

"This is what I tell many parents who should like their children to learn dancing, but are afraid that the physical exercise will be too much for them. Health is second nature, and the earlier in life an extraordinary

CHRONOLOGICAL EVENTS.

General Hooker died in 1879.

JOTTINGS.

—Council meeting next Monday evening.

—Intelligent and conscientious voters read the papers to know what is done: they consult themselves on election day to know what they ought to do.

—Among the attractions at St. Joseph's Fair, are a clock to be voted to the most popular Presidential candidate and a twenty dollar gold piece at twenty-five cents a chance.

—The Jewelry contest at St. Mary's Fair is to be decided this evening. The contestants are Miss May Flanigan, Miss Alice Keely, Miss Alice Quinn and Miss Winifred Kelly. A lively time is expected.

—Mr. S. V. Woodruff, the proprietor of Hotel Netherwood, has arranged to have election returns next Tuesday, by direct wire and he cordially welcomes the people of Plainfield, who may wish to avail themselves thereof. Good new by cable.

—The German Independents held a meeting in the wigwam last evening, but owing to the inclemency of the weather there was not a large attendance. Mr. Magnus Gross of New York spoke in the German language and Germans say he was very eloquent. Plainfield Cornet Band furnished the music. Clubs from Bound Brook, Somerville and other places were expected, but for the storm.

—We have no apology to offer for political squibs. Politics are of paramount interest now to everybody, and the well-conducted newspaper is but the reflex of its patrons' wishes. Our weekly contemporaries give each week twenty per cent. less reading matter, even a week old, and at one hundred and fifty per cent advance in price, than is given each day in THE NEWS, and they apologize, because if they go heavy in politics they have no room for anything else.

Jacob Kirkner.

EDITOR EVENING NEWS:—The Republicans of the Third Assembly District have nominated Jacob Kirkner, Esq., as their candidate for member of Assembly for this district.

To the citizens of Plainfield it is unnecessary to say anything as to Mr. Kirkner's fitness for the office. As he has lived among them twenty years, but for the information of such of his constituents as reside in other parts of the district, a brief introduction may not be improper.

For sixteen years he has been Trustee of our most excellent public school, the duties of which office he has performed with scrupulous fidelity and entire satisfaction.

He is one of our "solid" men, respectable and respected citizen of varied and general information on all ordinary subjects, ready in debate, frank and plain in speech, courteous in manner, strong in his convictions with courage to assert them, charitable in feelings, a valuable member of society.

He is a business man of rare qualifications, the elements of which are quickness of perception, sagacity and promptness in action, a steady nerve, and an indomitable will and pluck. Among the keenest business men of New York, he takes no inferior rank.

The Third District has honored itself in its nomination of Mr. Kirkner.

The sudden Illness of Janish Prestidigitateur Lecnere.

At exactly a quarter before six last night, a telegram was received from Mr. Sargent stating that "Janish is too ill to appear."

Immediately large posters were ordered announcing that "On account of the sudden illness of Mme. Janish (as per telegram just received) their will be no performance to-night.

Money refunded to-night at the box office, and thereafter at the drug stores.

The posters were conspicuously placed within twenty minutes, and the entrance to the Music Hall well lighted, the ticket seller being in place to refund money.

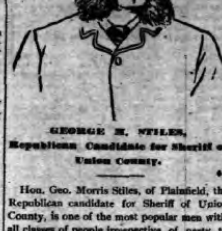
The livery stables and hotels were telephoned at once, and every possible means employed to inform the public of the facts. As the result of these precautions very few people left their homes for the Music Hall last night.

Personal.

Mr. John B. Plummer of Nolltherwood, has been chosen Republican Candidate for Controller of New York city, and has accepted the nomination, in a letter published in the New York Times of to-day.

The name of Rev. A. V. V. Raymond of this city, is among the New Brunswick Home News list of attendants at the celebration of the 100th anniversary of the Theological Seminary of the Reformed Church of Amboy.

Dr. E. W. Hedges, of this city, has been elected visiting physician at the Muhlenberg Hospital. Dr. Hedges was formerly resident physician at the Presbyterian Hospital, Philadelphia, prior to his coming to Plainfield, in which he has many friends.



GEORGE H. STILES,

Republican Candidate for Sheriff of Union County.

Hon. Geo. Morris Stiles, of Plainfield, the Republican candidate for Sheriff of Union County, is one of the most popular men with all classes of people irrespective of party to be found any where in the county.

The Legislative Manual of 1879, has the following on page 107:

"Mr. Stiles was born at Union County, N. J., March 23d, 1845. After completing his education at one of the excellent schools of Elizabeth, he went as a clerk in a store in Montclair, remaining but a few months, however, as his father's health failed, and it became necessary to return to his home to assume the management of the farm. When the Townley Academy was erected, in 1869, Mr. Stiles was foremost in organizing a Sabbath School in it, and was elected Superintendent, which office he held for nine consecutive years. He is also a zealous friend of secular education, giving liberally of time and means, to every scheme intended to promote the best interests of young and old.

A man of plain common sense, of sterling honesty, temperate, social and friendly, with all, a hard working farmer, yet he found time to keep himself fully informed on all the questions of the day. A life long Republican, yet never a bitter partisan.

Mr. Stiles is a member of important House Committees, and an indefatigable worker for the party, which he so ably represents. He is 33 years of age."

The Legislative Manual for 1880, on page 125, also says "that Mr. Stiles was a Trustee and Clerk of the Board of Education of Union township for the previous nine years. Was Inspector of Elections during the years 1874, '75 and '76, and is a Deacon of the Second Presbyterian Church, Elizabeth. He was a member of the 102d Legislature."

In 1879 he was chairman of the committee on "Railroads and Canals," member of the committee on "Riparian Rights," and of the Joint Committee on "Reform School for Boys," member of committee on "Municipal Corporations."

One of the best evidences of his increasing popularity, is found in the increased majorities he received each time he ran for office, as follows:

For Assembly (2d district) which embraced the Fifth, Sixth and Seventh Wards, of Elizabeth, and Cranford, Linden, Springfield, and Union townships, he received in 1878, 268 majority, in 1879, 680 majority, in 1880, 819 majority. The fourth year he was urged to again accept the nomination, but declined. The last time he ran for Assembly he carried every ward and township in the district, even the Democratic township of Union giving him 50 majority.

When asked to become a candidate for the office of Sheriff of Union County, he replied that he wished to see the strongest man nominated, and, if his friends considered him such, he would accept and use all honorable means to win. On the first ballot, he came within one vote of a majority, with three other excellent candidates in nomination.

On the second ballot he received seventy-seven votes of the ninety-six, and the vote was on motion made unanimous with the very best of feeling and hurrah generally.

Mr. Stiles is as well known to the people of Plainfield as to the people of Elizabeth, having business connections in both cities. He is also well-known throughout the county and no man can say anything to his discredit, morally or socially. In his care, if he is elected, as is the general opinion that he will be, the sheriff's office will be administered in the best interests of the Union County generally.

The office being non-partisan makes it one on which all parties can unite to secure a good man, to have it administered with honesty, and no better man can be found than George M. Stiles.

—The senior Democratic organ of this city, with characteristic perversity, is endeavoring to delude its readers with a tale that Ohio went Democratic. Whichever way it went, nothing is gained by untruthfulness. People are not fools, even if the press and public Democratic organs have such long ears.

Anniversary of the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

"For God and Home and Native Land," which called into being that noble institution, numbering now one hundred and twenty five thousand members throughout the country—the Women's Christian Temperance Union—of whom the Apostolic teacher admonished the people in his day to "Help those women which labored with me in the Gospel," met last evening in the Reform Club Hall to celebrate their seventh anniversary. And owing to the inclemency of the weather the attendance was not as good as might have been expected, though the spirit of earnestness and enthusiasm manifested throughout made up for the lack in numbers.

The platform was very tastefully arranged, cut flowers in different devices and plants in pots adding beauty to the place, plainly showing the desire of the ladies to exalt everything they undertake and scatter blessings all around them.

On the platform were Mrs. J. W. Yates, be President of the W. C. T. U., Mrs. F. M. Prentiss, Vice President, Mrs. Dr. Ellis Corresponding State Secretary, and the Rev. Messrs. Raymond, Richards, Bliss and Goodrich.

The Rev. A. V. V. Raymond, pastor of Trinity Reformed Church, presided, and the exercises of the evening were begun by the singing of an anthem by the Choristers led by Mr. Marvin Dunham and a cornet. Rev. Wm. B. Richards, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Church, in place of Rev. T. Logan Murphy, who was absent, read a chapter from the Epistle to the Galatians and invoked the Divine blessing upon those present and the noble women engaged in the work of reclaiming the drunkard and outcast, after which the hymn "Come, Thou Almighty King," was sung.

Rev. Mr. Raymond then read the Secretary's Report and Rev. Mr. Goodrich the Treasurer's Report, both of which were very encouraging and hopeful for the future.

Mrs. S. S. Struthers, Treasurer.

"The Temperance Banner," by the Choristers, followed the reading of the Reports, and the Rev. Dr. John Bliss, after a few appropriate words of introduction by the chairman came forward and made the principal address. He happily referred to his being among them once more, and the pride and joy it gave him, when in other lands, to hear of the great work being done in the cause of temperance by the self-sacrificing, earnest men and women of Plainfield, with whom he had heretofore held such sweet communion. He had gazed on the ruins of Pompeii and the wrecks of once great nations and thought of the wrecks intemperance had made and the ruins of once happy homes and firesides. In far off lands he had seen the degradation, want and wretchedness, but felt sick at heart when he came back to this Christian and civilized land to see in the great cities and at every point confronting him shop places that cast a blot on our civilization, and not to be found in those lands of less privileges which he had traveled in. It was a grand thing to see 800 men banded together in lifting up their fellow men, and with the aid of the Women's Christian Temperance Union they were bound to conquer, for if neighbor and higher till this fair city shall be redeemed from the curse of intemperance.

Mrs. Ellis, Corresponding State Secretary, arose and made an address of some length, replete with wisdom, illustration and appeal to the heart and consciences of those working in this temperance cause, urging the necessity of greater effort till the nefarious traffic, about which the U. S. Government encircles its arms, shall be wiped out. Fight for "God and home and native land," and the day may not be very far off when the old familiar song of John Howard Payne, "Home, Sweet Home," shall have its meaning, and many shall rise up and call blessed those silent workers "for God and home and native land."

Rev. Mr. Goodrich prayed for a blessing, a hymn was sung, and the benediction by Rev. Dr. Bliss dismissed the meeting.

The following is a list of the officers of the W. C. T. U. of this city: President, Mrs. Joseph W. Yates; Vice-President, Mrs. F. M. Prentiss; Recording Secretary, Mrs. Wm. B. Richards; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Geo. H. Babcock; Treasurer, Mrs. H. H. Lowrie.

A COAL BREAKER BURNED.

Also a Villa—A Close Call for the Mulberry.

PottsVILLE, Pa., Oct. 31.—The coal breaker at Keating William colliery, on the big vein, has been burned. The loss is $60,000. The colliery is owned by the Alliance Coal company, of which Cooper, Hewitt & New York, are the principal owners. It employed several hundred men, who are thrown out of work. It is believed the fire was of incendiary origin, though no motive can be assigned.

NEWPORT, Oct. 31.—The villa of Mrs. Mary C. Holmes, of New York, was burned early, causing a loss of about $20,000. The fire originated from an overheated furnace.

WHEELING, W. Va., Oct. 31.—The Moundsville Repeater newspaper and job printing office was destroyed by fire, with three presses, type and fixtures. A large dwelling house adjoining was also burned. The fire is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary. The loss is nearly $10,000; no insurance.

NEWPORT, R. I., Oct. 31.—A large building at Fort Adams, occupied by fourteen families, was destroyed by fire. It was owned by the government and used as a laundry for the officers and soldiers. It caught fire from a defective flue. Many of the families narrowly escaped with their lives. The fire department was not able to reach the buildings until late, owing to the long distance. The families as they belong to enlisted men, will for the present be cared for at the hospital buildings.

FAYETTE CITY, Pa., Oct. 31.—The finest block of buildings in the city has been burned to the ground. Loss $60,000; insurance unknown. The cause of the fire is also unknown.

A NEEDLE IN HER FOOT.

A Young Girl's Untold Agony—Her Peculiar Recovery.

ELLENVILLE, N. Y., Oct. 31.—Miss Emma Marshall, the youngest daughter of Ferdinand Marshall, of Lackawack, near this place, about two months ago ran a large needle into her foot while walking in her stocking feet. All attempts to remove the needle proved futile, and after several attempts had been made by a local physician but a small portion of the needle was taken away. From the foot, the thickest portion of it remaining firmly embedded in the flesh, and the operations were abandoned, fearing lockjaw might set in if the foot was further operated upon. The thick part of the needle left remaining in the foot caused the girl at times untold agony, and her sufferings were almost unbearable up to Sunday last, when she was on a visit to her sister, Mrs. Kitty Du Puy, at Rossellah. That lady, on closely examining her sister's foot, discovered near the surface the long looked for needle, and soon extracted it with a small pair of pinchers. After it had been removed it was found that the needle had corroded and was very black and discolored, evidently from the corrosive action it underwent while embedded in the flesh of the young girl. Miss Marshall is now free from pain, and uses the diseased and affected member as naturally as ever, and returned to her home at Lackawack the first of the week very much relieved at parting with so dangerous and painful an agency.

A Lawyer's Lucky Case.

GWEGO, N. Y., Oct. 31.—Aunt Katy Tanner, a well-known old colored sitter at this village, died some time ago. Legal advice in September last. She called on F. F. Goff, a young Waverley lawyer. He did the work much to her satisfaction. A few days ago Aunt Katy died. She left a will bequeathing all her money to Lawyer Goff. It was thought at the time that her treasure amounted to a few hundred dollars only, but an inventory reveals the fact that the lawyer will inherit over $10,000 from this grateful old colored woman. She has no relatives.

A Young Girl Hangs Herself.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 31.—Mrs. Burnett, living at No. 1306 Hutchinson street, went up stairs to look for her daughter, who had for several years been subject to periodic attacks of insanity. On the third floor the corpse of the girl was found hanging from a closet door, a piece of bed-ticking having been used as a means of self-destruction. Miss Burnett had saved a considerable sum of money, which she recently lost in a speculation, and this doubtless prompted the suicidal act.

He Danced a Hornpipe.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 31.—Amos Mason, living at No. 2,330 North Fifth street, and John Dixon, of No. 2,008 North Second street, were held in bail by a magistrate to appear in court. They were charged with having gone into the laundry of Wan Lee, and while the former made the Chinaman dance a hornpipe by sticking a pump handle of his queue, the latter helped himself to such funds and valuables as he could conveniently carry off.

A Courtship Worthy of a Romance.

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 31.—The recently published sensational case of Miss Sallie Ragsdale, of Meridian, Miss., whose father, an influential citizen, placed her in an insane asylum at Oxford, O., to keep her from a lover, and endeavored to pursue the same with his wife, to secure control of a $200,000 legacy, has had a happy issue. The father has been routed, and the young couple will be married in this city on Monday.

College Students in Revolt.

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 31.—The students at King's college, at Windsor, have rebelled, and demand the dismissal of President Dart and Professors De Frumentin and Butler. The original cause of the trouble is said to be that Canon Dart treats them continually with contempt. The students burned him in effigy on the college grounds on Monday night. The college lectures have been suspended, and the students are idling about the town in knots of twos and threes.

Wm. C. Rhinelander Declared Sane.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Recorder Smyth has filed his decision on the reports of the commission appointed to determine the mental condition of William C. Rhinelander, who shot Lawyer John Drake on June 19. The recorder agrees with the minority report presented by the commissioners, Edward Patterson, declaring Rhinelander sane, and fixed bail trial under indictment at $10,000.

Another Cincinnati Election Death.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 31.—Officer Henry Stenfoh died at the city hospital yesterday. He was shot on election day at Third street and Freeman avenue at the same time that Officer Martin Gorman received his death wound. He was engaged at the time in helping to suppress a fight that was in progress near the polls, when the fatal volley was poured into the ranks of the policemen from the rear.

Seventeen Thieves Lynched.

DENVER, Col., Oct. 31.—Rumors have reached here of the lynching by vigilants of a gang of seventeen cattle thieves, who were captured while in camp on Rock creek, in the Gore Range mountains, about thirty miles west of Georgetown. No particulars are at present obtainable. The report is thought to be exaggerated.

A NEW PAVEMENT.
The undersigned has secured the exclusive agency for the sale of the
Diebold Patent Iron Stone,
which for elegance and durability, is unsurpassed, and in price will compare favorably with any other pavement now in use. It is the most beautiful pavement known for walks and yards, gutter stone, floor tiling, steps, etc. Also stone for Vaults, Safes, and Burglar proof vaults; and for building purposes generally. The permanent blocks have many useful peculiarities—They chew no perceptible water, and consequently will not rot, and may, as well as all kinds of moisture. When dampness accumulates on the ordinary brick, this stone is specially perforated to free from it. These Blocks are cast from the molten Iron Slag and are the hardest of substances. Specimen on exhibition at the store of the agencies of the Stillman Music Hall. For further particulars call on or address

Putting up the Stove.

[Through Mail.]

Bringing the joints of pipe into sweet communion with each other.

The season of the year when the gentle housewife with much fear of profanity and blistered fingers attendant upon the effort, seductively remarks that the time when the stove ought to go up is at home. Job got through his boil epidemic all right, but had he undertaken to put up the stove, there is no knowing what might have been the result. In all the ages that have gone down into the dim vista of the uncurious past, history and biography nowhere intimates that a single one of a long line of red-handed heroes ever tried to erect a stove, and bring the several joints into sweet communion with each other. Only in the modern days of hung juries, star routes and sock Fridays, do we find soldiers and statesmen descend to such base use, and thus starting themselves on the downward road to perdition. Solomon was a wise man in his day, but he was not up with the present time, and therefore never made a proyach to fit the case of a man who owns a recreant stove. If he had, he would have remarked: "My son, look not fondly on the stove-pipe when it is out of joint. The spirit is strong, but the flesh is weaker than a last summer's fly. Step away and call the hardware man, and let his soul go to Gehenna, but save your own if it costs you a dollar.

The Lime-Kiln Club.

[Detroit Free Press.]

Just previous to the opening of the meeting Sir Isaac Walpole, who had his left shoe off to cool a bunion, got his foot in the way of Elder Toots' No. 11's, and the result was a spirited little affair, in which Sir Isaac had his nose roughly used and the elder found three of his front teeth loosened. Blows had scarcely been exchanged, however, before both old patriots extended their hands with words of apology, and while Sir Isaac fairly begged the elder to step on his bunion all the rest of the week, the elder was earnest in his hope that Sir Isaac would loosen all the rest of his molars.

"Which goes to prove," said Brother Gardner, as he referring to the matter when the meeting had opened, "dat de trifles of life annoy us fur mo' dan de solid troubles. A nose bed will gin a statesman mo' annoyance dan a re-electshun. A bile on de leg will delay a king's journey. Tight boots have plunged Kaiserdoms into war, and stomach has led to grievious quarrels among famous men.

The result was a spirited little affair.

"Let a man's house burn down, or an epidemic sweep away his family, or reverses come to his income, an' in most cases he will show his sand. Let a co'n appear on his toe —a blister rix up on his heel—a tooth begin to ache—de cook strike for higher wages or de front door bell git outer order, an' nineteen men outer of twenty am all broke up an' ready to assert dat dis am a cold world an' life ain't worf de likin'.

"Let dis be a lesson to us to guard our weak side. It ain't dat we shell go lamp cornerwise because we can't meet Noah's ark due to-morrer, but dat we doan' lewer our dignity in de neyborhood if we happen to shut de gate on our coat tails. We want to congratulate a man for shakin' off de poverty to influence by his own individual exertions, but we doan' keer to be spozed when he misses a hardcoal and strikes his foot wid de hoe. We reverence gray hairs in our council chambers, an' we hate to suspect dat de owners of 'em give way to tears of indignashun ober a shirt too high in de neck or a leak in the kitchen water pipe."

Let appetite yield to reason.

Habits of a Codfish.

[Laramie Boomerang.]

A correspondent says that the codfish frequents "the table lands of the ocean." The codfish no doubt does this to secure as nearly as possible a dry, bracing atmosphere. The pure air of the submarine table lands gives to the codfish breadth of chest and width of limbs which we have always noticed. The glad, free smile of the codfish is largely attributed to the exhilaration of this cosmic outdoorness. The codfish when at home, racing through the submarine forests of sea-fan and sea-cucumbers, as he sometimes does, [illegible] the grocery stores [illegible]

The Crazy Quilt.

[D. T. Highmore.]

Oh, say, can you see by the dawn's early light,
What you failed to perceive by the twilight's last gleaming,
A cranky concern that through the long night
O'er the bed where you slept was occasionly screaming?
The silk patches to fair,
Round, three cornered and square,
Give proof that the lunatic bed quilt is there.
Oh, the crazy quilt waves triumphantly waves,
And the maid, wife and widow are bound as its slaves

Bill Nye on the Thinker and His Think.

[Jamestown Sun.]

Thought, however, must be coupled with energy and industry, or it may come to naught. Many thoughts protrude into the moist spring air only to be gnawed off by the cut worm of neglect or slowly eaten by the squash bug of idle speculation. I once knew a man whose brain was one of the most active of his time, and yet his name is not known beyond the limits of his own school district. His had a fine, scholarly mind, yet his liver was torpid. The latter never satisfied quite to deal with incongruities, I need only say that although this man was a poet and an artist in his mind, he ate pie with a knife and finally died in obscurity. He was not practical with all his greatness, and he walked down the long vista of life holding up his pantaloons by a single nail! How often is this the case. Why should men with the greatest mental endowments be almost prone to gastric eccentricities! And yet it is so I am that way myself.

Turning the Tables.

[By Jingo.]

A man bent near a high board fence,
To weed an onion bed.
With back turned to the goat immense,
Which quickly at him sped

The goat drew on with steward head
To butt with force immense;
But this incident isn't going to end in the regulation way, for the man turned around quicker
Caught Mr. Goat by the curling horns,
And tossed him o'er the fence!

A Meeting of Two Joneses.

[Chicago News.]

Col. A. M. Jones, chairman of the Republican state central committee, of Illinois, being in New York the other day, walked into the National Republican headquarters and introduced himself to Col. B. F. Jones, chairman of the National committee.

"I believe we must be of kin," said Col. A. Jones, pleasantly.

"Yes," replied Col. B. F. Jones," the name of Jones is such an uncommon one that whenever I meet a man by the name of Jones I am pretty well satisfied he is a cousin of mine. Where were you born, colonel?"

"In Jo Daviess county, Ill.," replied Col A. M. Jones, "and you?"

"In the romantic mountain regions of Western Pennsylvania," said Col. B. F. Jones, "where the jay bird sings in the lofty pine and the day laborer sits in the bowels of the earth.

"My native spot," rejoined Col. A. M. Jones, "was on the prairie, where the wild goose flaps his wings and carols to the incipient cyclone, and the unfettered Hennepin canal purls merrily on its way to the sea.

"It seems, then," said Col. B. F. Jones, "that our native spots would not satisfactorily explain our relationship."

"True," replied Col. A. M. Jones; "but what was your father's name?"

"His name was Jones," said Col. B. F. Jones.

"Indeed!" exclaimed Col. A. M. Jones; "and what was your grandfather's name?"

"Jones," replied Col. B. F. Jones.

"Singular coincidence!" cried Col. A. M. Jones, "that was my grandfather's name, and I am advised by the genealogical records, which I treasure among the family archives, that my great grandfather's name was Jones, also."

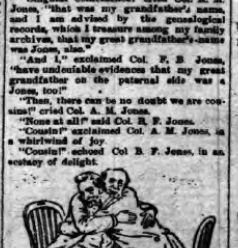
"And I," exclaimed Col. F. B. Jones, "have undeniable evidences that my great grandfather on the paternal side was a Jones, too!"

"Then, there can be no doubt we are cousins!" cried Col. A. M. Jones.

"None at all!" said Col. B. F. Jones.

"Cousin!" exclaimed Col. A. M. Jones, in a whirlwind of joy.

"Cousin!" echoed Col B. F. Jones, in an ecstasy of delight.



The two Joneses fell on each other's necks.

And without stopping to make inquiry about the traditional strawberry mark each was supposed to wear upon his left arm, the two Joneses fell upon each other's necks and remained for two consecutive intervals, languishing embrace.

Carving a Chicken.

[New York Sun.]

Dumley had been asked to carve the chicken, and he was struggling with it.

"What seems to be the matter, Mr. Dumley?" asked the landlady, "hasn't the carving knife a good edge?"

"Yes, madam," he replied, "but it won't have very long"

Bill Nye Talks About Smiles.

[Denver Opinion.]

There are many styles of the gentle smile. There's the smile that's childlike and bland, the cultivated smile, and the pickaninny smile that ripples forth like the first joyous laugh of the hollow factory, and that spreads out with a gurgle that closes the eye, trots out the wisdom teeth and then shows a roguish dimple in the mouth.

There might be enumerated, also, the classical smile, the subdued smile, the parlor smile, the sacred smile, the before-election smile, and the after-election smile.

Then we have the stage smile and the portrait smile. Do you call to mind the genial smirk which is, in fact, the thin silk over skirt of joy covering the stiffer stuff of a nameless woe? Do you happen to have about your house the photograph of a friend whose petrified gayety fills your eyes with briny woe?

A joy I do not feel.

Joy is something that we cannot seem ruthlessly and lead it into the photographer's laboratory by force. I've tried that. I always leave my umbrella and my hope behind when I go into the photographer's gilded hall. I can laugh while the dentist pulls out my round teeth and plugs the poor ones, and I can even be gay while nature and the cucumber of commerce are engaged in mortal combat, but I cannot affect a joy that I do not feel while the cast-iron hatrack of the artist leans against my love of home, and the artist bids me look at a place on the wall that is freckled with hollies.

I am positive that the art of photographing is upon the eve of a grand stride toward perfection. Those who have never seen anything on the eve of a grand stride will find little of interest in what I am about to say; but the day is not far distant when no camera will have the photograph pulled without the administration of an anæsthetic. Cut this out and see if I am not right.

That Statue of Liberty Again.

[Punk.]

Bartholdi says his mother posed for the model of the statue of "Liberty Enlightening the World."

She did—more than once. We all know the pose.

After Twenty Years.

[New York Sun.]

Two old gentlemen met on the street who had not seen each other for twenty years. Their greeting was most effusive.

"Well," said one, "I'm surprised to see you here. How have you been?"

"First rate. You're looking well."

"Yes, never felt better in my life. Fine weather we're having."

"Beautiful. But I suppose we can expect rain soon?"

"Yes, I shouldn't be surprised. Well—I suppose I'll see you again before long?"

"Oh, yes."

"Ah—er—good-day."

"Er—good-day."

They shook hands awkwardly and departed.

After Examining a Political Statement.

[Rockland Courier.]

"I tell you what," airily exclaimed Perkins, as he sat down to the supper table, "I was in a tight place this afternoon."

"Yes, I know you were," interrupted his wife in a clear, cold utterance that cut like a knife; "I saw you coming out of it."

And then it dawned across Perkins' mind that he had inadvertently stepped into a saloon with a friend, for the purpose of examining a doubtful political statement, and the supper table was cleared in silence so profound that he could plainly hear a nail file ring.
